Former Syrian Strongman Held In Damascus

New Regime Is Facing Growing Resistance

BEIRUT (Reuters) — Damascus Radio today announced the arrest of former Syrian strongman, Col. Abdel Hamid Serraj, as the new Syrian regime faced what appeared to be growing resistance to its break from the Egyptian-dominated United Arab Republic.

The radio said Serraj was arrested at "a hideout." He was being detained to "prevent the revolutionary movement from being exploited for personal reasons," the broadcast said.

Serraj, once U.A.R. President Nasser's chief lieutenant in Syria, broke with him and resigned as vice-president last week. He returned to Damascus two days before the rebellion against the U.A.R. broke out. Cairo sources had blamed him for the uprising but his name never was mentioned in various rebel broadcasts from Damascus.

In Washington, the state department reported today the provisional government of Syria has asked the United States for diplomatic recognition.

The department spokesman said the request is "under study."

Meanwhile, broadcasts from Cairo claimed that Beirut bellies were raging between troops and civilians in Aleppo, a key military base in northern Syria and a focal point of the revolt five days ago.

ASKS REINFORCEMENTS

The Cairo broadcasts said the army commander in Aleppo had asked for reinforcements. He also declared that violent demonstrations had taken place elsewhere in favor of unity with Egypt.

There was no confirmation of the reports from Damascus but Damascus Radio announced Saturday that a 10-hour curfew had been imposed in Aleppo, leading to trouble there. The Aleppo curfew is twice as long as the one in force in Damascus itself.

(The Syrian radio ridiculed Cairo broadcasts claiming a revolt had broken out in Aleppo. An Associated Press report said that an American living in Aleppo, reached by telephone from Beirut, said the city was quiet.

Reliance to the new regime also appeared to be coming from the country's 120,000 Palestinian refugees, who overwhelmingly support Nasser.

Damascus Radio Sunday night broadcast a statement asking the Palestinians to observe calm and order and warned that all non-Syrians taking part in demonstrations faced arrest and expulsion.

CAIRO (AP)—President Nasser said today the Syrian revolt is "a setback which must be the starting point for destroying reaction and treason throughout the Arab nations."

Speaking to a student rally at Cairo University, Nasser said, "We are facing the most serious position which ever faced our nation."

"It might turn into a catastrophe, into despair," Nasser admitted.

"But we might be able to turn it into a driving force forward to destroy reaction in all the Arab nations."

"I must tell you that Arab nationalism suffered a setback, a stab, a shock and treason," Nasser assailed "the five-man company" ruling Syria. He said Syria's secession "also supports treason as he always did."

Jordan has recognized the new Syrian regime.

It was said that Sunday in Syria pro-U.A.R. demonstrators in Aleppo attacked a railroad station.

"The Syrian people now are fighting to save their unity," he said.

Nasser said the Syrians betrayed him with gifts but said they were thousands in prison.

"Only after three days they have not yet said how many they have killed," he declared. "I will tell you there were 70 Communists and 22 members of the Syrian Nationalist party in prison before the revolt."

Federal Cabinet Drafts Plans For Session

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal cabinet met today for the first time since what Diefenbaker sources said would be an intensive series of meetings preparing for the next session of Parliament, expected to open in December.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker told reporters on his way to the meeting he did not expect any announcements as a result of today's meeting.

To another, a reporter's question about the possibility of a November election, Diefenbaker said: "I have no feelings at all in that regard at the moment," he said.

MUST AID BRITAIN

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Australian Treasurer Harold Holt said Sunday night it is Australia's duty to help Britain with a "constructive attitude" in its approaches to the European Common Market. He said he was not convinced Australia's fundamental and important interests could be adequately protected if Britain joined the Common Market.

Franco Wants Nuclear Arms

BURGOS, Spain (Reuters) — Hints of a Spanish bid for nuclear weapons for its armed forces were here today in a call by Generalissimo Francisco Franco for an overhaul in the country's defence ties with the United States.

Franco called for the overhaul Sunday at celebrations here marking the Spanish dictator's 25th anniversary as head of state.

He told a group of military officers that defence and mutual-aid agreements between Spain and United States must "need to be newly studied and revised" to meet "present circumstances."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Extensive cloud layer covering most of Ontario prevented temperatures from dropping sharply Sunday night in spite of the arrival of cooler weather in Southern Ontario. North of the Great Lakes, however, temperatures dropped well below freezing. Rather cloudy weather is expected to persist in most areas today.

WINS WORLD FLOWING CHAMPIONSHIP—William Dixon, left, of Brampton, Ont., is congratulated by Hans Alan Magson of New Zealand, after winning the world plowing championship at Grignon, France, Sunday. Magson was second in the two-day competition. Dixon scored 144.11 points out of a possible 200 while Magson scored 140.15 points. (AP Wirephoto).

FOUR CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH IN LONDON

17 Occupants Sleeping at Time

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Four children died early Sunday when fire hit a three - storey brick house here while the 17 occupants were still sleeping. Seven other persons were burned, three of them severely.

Two of the children died when they wandered back into the house in bewilderment after being led to safety. A third died when his father dropped him when they became enveloped in flames.

Dead are Sylvia Morton, 2, Trudy Morton, 8, James Bellias, two months, and Wendy Horner, 5. Three families shared the house.

Firemen extinguished the fire, blazing throughout the house, within 15 minutes of their arrival. One fire official said he could not understand how it

Brampton Man Wins World Plowing Title in France

GRIGNON, France (CP) — A 26-year-old Canadian dairyman won the world plowing championship Sunday on the farmland of the French National Agricultural College here despite heavy rains that soaked the surface and made conditions difficult.

William Dixon of Brampton, Ont., who operates a dairy farm with his father, defeated 31 other contestants from 16 countries in the tough two-day competition in which he plowed seven furrows side by side behind a tractor.

The 26-year-old Dixon learned the finer points of plowing from his neighbor, Jim Eccles, who won the first world title for Canada in 1959. Only 11 countries competed then but since that time Canada was not able to produce another winner until Dixon turned the trick Sunday in neat fashion.

The young Dixon told reporters "I never had any idea of winning."

His father, George, and his wife Ada said they are "very, very proud" of Bill's victory which earned him the gold plow trophy and white scarf symbolizing

White Officers In Katanga Now Civilians

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters) — All White officers in secessionist Katanga's army have become "civilians" and melted into the tangled Congo landscape in the face of UN demands that they leave the province, it was reported today.

A reporter spoke to a French-man at Jadotville who shed his Katanga army captain's uniform for civilian clothes.

The captain said all other white mercenaries, from 20 countries, also had become civilians. He said he knew that they left or were leaving the country.

President Moise Tshombe of Katanga said Saturday he had paid off the white help in his army. This was Tshombe's answer to UN demands made last week for expulsion of 50 to 100 whites in Katanga's army.

Quebec's Lieut.-Governor, O. Gagnon, Dies Suddenly

QUEBEC (CP) — A 15 - day cruise of the late Premier Maurice Duplessis, had been in poli-mourning period was proclaimed Sunday by the provincial government in honor of Lieutenant - Governor Onesime Gagnon, who died Saturday shortly after his third heart attack since May.

His wife, three sons and four daughters of the 72-year-old veteran of federal and Quebec politics and Mr. Gagnon when he died at Bois des Coulonges, his official residence.

Rene Hamel, acting premier in the absence of Premier Jean Lesage and Attorney General Georges Lapalme, said all government offices will be closed Wednesday morning for the state funeral. Mr. Hamel, municipal affairs minister himself, also proclaimed the mourning period, and will represent the government at the funeral.

Rightists Stage Algiers Strike

ALGIERS (Reuters)—The entire white population in central Algiers appeared today to have joined in a 30-minute strike called by extremist right-wingers in a new threat to the authority of President Charles de Gaulle.

The main business section of Algiers came to a total standstill for 30 minutes. Even taxi drivers took prospective customers to "peace back in half an hour."

French troops moved through the streets of Algiers in battle formation to put down any violence arising from the strike called in protest against de Gaulle's policy of self-determination for Algeria.

103 Stranded Americans Visiting Ireland Promised Plane Home

SHANNON (AP) — Stranded for five days after a nostalgic trip to Ireland turned into a nightmare, 103 Americans today were promised a plane ride home.

The chartered airliner that will take them to Boston left Shannon airport last Wednesday but finally arrived.

The Americans slept in chairs and on the carpeted floors of the air terminal, most of them out of money, some of them ill, bewildered.

The group from the Irish-American Erin's Own Club of Chicago, came to Ireland a month ago for a vacation, scouring Dublin Sunday night to send a cabled appeal "please help us" to President Kennedy.

Kevin Casey, the club's president, and Rev. Edward Salmon, pastor of Our Lady Queen of Angels Church in Chicago, signed the cable, which said:

"Babies are ill and hungry. . . . Men face job dismissal. . . . Situation desperate and getting worse. . . . No funds. . . . Contacted U.S. embassies in Dublin and London but no results."

Carty said the club paid $30,000 to charter the plane from

MINES MINISTER J. A. MALONEY, DIES SUDDENLY

Entered Hospital On Friday

OTTAWA (CP) — Mines Minister James A. (Jim) Maloney of Canada died here Sunday night at the age of 56.

The stocky two - fisted Irishman succumbed in hospital to a coronary thrombosis after entering Friday for a checkup. He had complained to his family earlier of not feeling well.

A stocky, two-fisted Irishman bred to politics, Mr. Maloney loved a verbal battle in the courtroom or the legislature. He had practised law at Renfrew, 50 miles west of here since the early 1930s.

A requiem high mass will be said at St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic Church in Renfrew at 10:30 a.m. Thursday. Burial will be in the parish cemetery.

Mr. Maloney was born to politics. His father, Dr. Martin J. Maloney, was a Conservative member of the Commons from 1935 to 1935 and his grandfather, James Bonfield, was a Liberal member of the legislature in the 1870s.

A brother, Arthur, is the Conservative member of the Commons for Carleton, Ottawa West.

James Maloney, a heavy - set man who played rugby, football and baseball at Loyola in Montreal and Osgoode Hall, Toronto, formerly had friends who preferred the action of a courtroom to the political arena.

RUNS FOR OFFICE

Perhaps it was as much this love of action as family tradition that led him into politics for the first time in the 1945 federal general election.

He was beaten at the polls by former revenue minister James L. McCann, who has since died.

Mr. Maloney waited 11 years before trying again, this time in a

Church Janitor Wounds Robber Wielding Knife

HAMILTON (CP) — Hospitals were warned to watch for have a wounded fugitive, shot by a church caretaker when he is arraigned on a charge here Saturday night.

The man, bleeding extensively, escaped with an accomplice after Dominiks Luring, 51, was shot in the arm as he advanced wielding a knife.

Police found the trail short of transistor radios had been stolen from the G. W. Robinson Company in nearby Mimico by Century United Church.

Luring entered a man on the fire escape outside his apartment and discovered a pile of radios in the alley outside.

The man disappeared when Luring ordered him off. But when Luring returned to the alley beside the church after summoning police, a second man confronted him.

The man pounds me lunging at me with a knife," said the Latvian-born caretaker. A struggle ensued in the dark carrying and told him to stop.

"He lunged at me, waving the knife. I shot right at him. He dropped the knife, turned and went down the alley."

Police found a blood-stained steak knife with a broken blade and patches of blood in the alley leading to the main street.

Outlook Brighter For Compromise In Berlin Crisis

Gromyko Will Continue Talks in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Russia are reported inching toward agreement on negotiations that could lead to compromise settlement of the Berlin crisis.

Prospects seemed brighter than 10 days ago, when U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk began a series of talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, that there will be an early high-level meeting to deal with the dispute over the divided German city.

Its probable form would be an East-West summit conference.

The next order of business is a continuation in Washington of the Rusk-Gromyko talks. The two held three meetings in New York during the last 10 days.

After the third meeting Saturday, Gromyko said "we both probably have a deeper understanding of our position." U.S. officials agreed with Gromyko's sentiments and said the talks had been "useful."

Gromyko probably will come here Tuesday or Wednesday to see Rusk and to call on President Kennedy at the White House.

MUST PERSUADE

At the moment, Kennedy and Rusk are faced with the urgent task of persuading U.S. allies to go along with various formulas may be evolved to settle the Berlin crisis.

British Journals no problem. The British have been pressing for negotiations.

Earl Home, Britain's foreign secretary, met in New York with both Rusk and Gromyko and all three agreed the series of talks was useful. On flying home to London Sunday night, Home said:

"We have been preparing the way for what one hopes may be negotiations at a summit nature and there is plenty of room to talk and plenty to talk about as long as the essentials for the freedom of the city of Berlin are preserved and there is uninterrupted access."

The U.S. will have to be concerned with the co-operation of France and West Germany. Officials of both have been critical of the willingness of the U.S. and Britain to seek compromise with Russia.

High officials here assume the Rusk-Gromyko exchanges gave Soviet Premier Khrushchev a clear view of U.S. policy on Berlin and that he will have to be prepared wielding a knife.

Police found the trail short of transistor radios had been stolen from the G. W. Robinson Company in nearby Mimico by Century United Church.

Historians Call Bomber Command's Raids on Germany Costly Failure

LONDON (CP)—Britons were receiving today—on official judgments that, while the RAF won the Battle of Britain in the air during World War II, it lost the Battle of Berlin.

Publication of the official history of Bomber Command's night attacks on Germany during the 1939-45 war was delayed before did so many do so much and lose so heavily.

The historians, Sir Charles Webster and Noble Frankland, assessed the bombing campaign's area bombing of German cities, which cost the lives of 55,000 fliers in aircrew, was a costly failure.

They say the attacks failed in their two main objectives: they failed to break the will of the German people and the effect on the enemy's war production was was remarkably small.

In part the history is an indictment of Bomber Command's chief, Sir Arthur (Bomber) Har-

Policeman Shot With Own Gun In Arrest Fight

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto police constable was shot twice with his own gun in a scuffle early today after he surprised a burglar at a northwest Toronto shopping plaza.

Police said Constable Russell Clark, 34, was shot through the shoulder and bit in the left side of the jaw. He is in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Less than half an hour after the suspect was surprised, Joseph Dumas, 20, of Toronto, was arrested on Highway 401 and charged with attempted murder, discharging a firearm with intent to prevent arrest and breaking and entering.

Police said the constable noticed a broken door in a shopping plaza building and heard noise from a second-floor room. After he and a friend went to the door, he forced the door open.

A man leaped at the constable and in the scuffle took his gun. Five shots were fired, two of which struck Clark, the remained across rooftops.

Const. Clark crawled to a telephone and gave police a description of the wanted man. Shortly after, two officers stopped a car on Highway 401 and approached with drawn guns. The driver surrendered without a struggle.

A man and at least four offices in the building had been ransacked but apparently nothing had been stolen.

SPECIAL CLASSES FOR SWIMMERS BEING STARTED

The local YMCA has started special advanced swimmers' classes for the girls and boys who have passed all of the National YMCA's five-star swimming tests but are not yet of age to progress into the junior life saving classes.

Some 30 boys and girls have registered for these classes with boys' classes being held on Wednesdays and girls' on Fridays. These classes will feature intensive swimming instruction which will prepare the participants to step right into the junior lifesaving program when they come of age.

Both Doogan is heading the boys' instruction whilst Linda Ross is the girls' instructor.

BOTH DRIVERS WILL BE CHARGED, SAY POLICE

Larry Morrison, 130 Palmer Road, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital on Saturday as the result of a car accident in which the car he was riding was involved.

Police said a car driven by Dennis Hague of 39 Bridge St., Belleville, came into collision with a car driven by Morrison on Palmer Road. Hogue was proceeding north on Water Street and was struck while rounding a curve.

Morrison who was a passenger in the vehicle driven by Hogue, was admitted to the hospital suffering from face and wrist lacerations, shock and concussion. Mr. Hogue suffered face lacerations and an injured knee and Clarke suffered lacerations to his face and chest. William Rond of R.R. 5, Picton, a passenger in the Clarke vehicle, was not injured.

Damage to the two vehicles was estimated at $275.

Police said both drivers will be charged as a result of action of the Highway Traffic Act.

CARS COLLIDE AT INTERSECTION

Two cars collided at the intersection of Catherine and Coleman Streets on Sunday evening.

Police said a car driven by Oliver A. Plane, 35 Murney St., who was proceeding north on Coleman St., was attempting to make a left-hand turn onto Catherine just as a vehicle driven by Cora Hodgins attempted to pass, to continue north on Coleman.

The driver of the vehicle told police she thought Mr. Plane was going to stop and she didn't see any signal. Mr. Plane said he did signal. His signal lights were checked by police and found to be in order.

There were no injuries and damage to both vehicles was estimated at $25.

CHARGES PENDING AFTER COLLISION

Ontario Provincial Police said a car driven by Raymond Robert DeFruscio, 37 Boswell St. who was southbound on highway 37, came into collision with a westbound car driven by Ralph W. Langabeer of 60 North Park Gardens, who was proceeding west on the said highway, on Sunday afternoon.

Damage to both vehicles was estimated to be between $300 and $900.

There were no injuries and charges are pending.

CHILD IS TREATED FOR FACE CUTS

A car driven by Nelson H. Taylor of 386B Sidney St., proceeding east on highway 2, came into collision with a car driven by Jack Steenburg of Glen Miller in front of Superior Propane on Sunday.

Ontario Provincial Police who investigated the accident estimated the damage to both vehicles to be about $500.

Mr. Steenburg's daughter, Jamie, 18 months was treated for face lacerations.

1,400 Canadians Die of Leukemia Every Year

About 1,400 Canadians, mostly children, die yearly of leukemia, a blood cancer, according to Dr. Stanley Taylor in the current issue of Liberty magazine.

Taylor who lives in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., suffered from a milder, but still fatal, form of leukemia. Doctors give him three years to live. His leukemia is typical of the chronic forms which generally afflict adults. He is a wild, destructive multiplication of cells. Nothing is known of its source, though science believes it may be caused by a virus.

Doctors never know how treatment of leukemia will work in any given case. Some drugs seem to bring relief of symptoms. In rare cases, all traces of the disease have been known to leave the body completely.

Taylor has lived seven years with the hope that a cure will be found in time to save his life. He has two teenage sons, and still runs his own insurance business.

"Before the illness, I was always looking forward. I seemed to be wishing away today in exchange for tomorrow," Taylor mentions. "Now each day is sufficient in itself. I never go to bed without thanking God for the day he has given me. I never awaken without being grateful for still another day of life. With all its tragedy and waste of human life, this is what having leukemia has taught me."

pled Nazi war production.

Britain's air staff later came to accept these principles, Bu Harris, say the historians, remained convinced that his 1,000-strong force of four-engined Lancasters was an improved instrument that could be used only at night against large targets.

HAVE QUALMS

Spectacular results were sometimes achieved, as the long incendiary attack on Hamburg resulted in a fire storm that killed 30,000 civilians. A similar attack on Dresden a year later produced similar qualms among Britain's leaders, including Prime Minister Churchill.

The book makes clear that Britain has not following a policy of destruction for its own sake. Harris and his airmen genuinely believed the bitter way to destroy the German war machine was to deprive the workers from their homes.

Many quarters are sure to disagree with the official judgment of the campaign and one critic of the history has already appeared in print.

Air Vice-Marshal Donald Bennett defended Harris as the most successful British commander-in-chief of the war.

IN MEMORIAM

BOCKING. — In memory of our dear son, Ronald, who was killed October 2nd, 1953.

Though his smile is gone forever,
And his hand we cannot clasp,
Still we have so many memories,
Of the boy we loved so dearly,
His memory is our keepsake,
With which we part never.
God has him safe in keeping,
We have him in our hearts.
Ever remembered and sadly missed by Mummy, Daddy, Donna and Stephen.

Match Site on C. Vermilyea Farm Visited by Hundreds

Residents of Belleville and district, their interest whetted by the fact that the big International Plowing Match is now only two days away, took the opportunity Sunday afternoon of getting a review of the match site and the big "Tented City."

All afternoon streams of cars plugged roads leading to the match site on the 4th concession of Thurlow township west of No. 14 Highway, with bottlenecks frequently developing in the area about the 40-acre tented city.

The tented city, holding hundreds of farm machinery exhibits and other displays and demonstrations along with the tents of numbers of food caterers, is on the farm of Arthur and Farley Vermilyea.

The championship plowing competitions, are being staged on the Clarence Vermilyea farm immediately to the west. Here the Canadian plowing championships will be decided starting Wednesday when the match is to be officially opened by Hon. Alvin Hamilton, Federal minister of agriculture.

Plowing competitions are also to be held on the Horace Knight and Clarence Bird farms, while acres on the Clarence Vermilyea and neighboring farms have been reserved for parking.

Today the big "tented city" is virtually erected, with the dozens of exhibitors now bringing in their displays in readiness for Wednesday's official opening

Slippery Road, Heavy Rain Cause of Crash

Poor visibility and slippery pavement, due to the heavy rain on Sunday afternoon, was the cause of a two-car accident on highway 500, approximately two miles east of the Marysville junction.

Police said a car driven by Ralph Denyes of R. R. 1, Odessa, was proceeding eastbound on the highway had stopped to allow a car in front of him, make a left hand turn into a driveway, when a car driven by Andrew Iles, R. 1, Corbyn Ont., who was also proceeding east collided with the rear of her car, causing approximately $170 damage.

Provincial police said it was raining very heavily and the pavement was slippery. Visibility being poor, police said Mr. Iles was unable to see the Denyes car in time to avoid the accident.

EARLY CHURCHILL

Churchill, Man., was named for John Churchill, a governor of the Hudson's Bay Company in the early 1600s. Of great interest to the father seven times removed of Sir Winston Churchill.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Speculative mining action maintained its two-week trend and dominated the stock market in heavy morning trading today.

Lake Dufault, McWatters Gold and Wiltsey-Coughlan all turned over at least 45,000 shares, while Paramaque headed the list with a volume of 120,300. The trend was towards profit-taking with Dufault taking the biggest individual drop—down 35 cents to $4.45. Paramque was ahead 3½ cents to 14.

Industrials sagged generally, with Steels, papers and utilities leading the market down. In steels, Canada Iron Foundries, Algoma and Steel Company of Canada all fell to ½ while B.C. Power, B.C. Telephone, Shawinigan and Calgary Power all dropped among utilities.

On index, industrials fell 1.00 to 260.37, golds .23 to 97.39 and base metals .24 to 136.85. Western oils gained .11 to 96.61 and papers .04 to 84.39. Volume was 1,102,000 shares compared with 1,031,000 at the same time Friday.

The metals market declined in the senior list with losses in the five to 50 cent range going to Consolidated Mining and Smelting, Campbell Chibougamau, Dennies, Noranda and International Nickel.

Gold trading was light with Dome down ⅛.

In west western oil trade, Dome and Great Plain gained as much as 25 cents.

Purse Falls Off Car on Highway, Returned Intact

Just how lucky can you get?

At least Mrs. Glenn Bradshaw of Stirling, Sidney township, feels she is lucky after losing her purse on the highway.

The other day Mrs. Bradshaw was preparing to come into Belleville and while placing packages in her car left her purse containing a sizable amount of money on the trunk of the vehicle. Then she drove off and never missed her purse until she got to Belleville.

She reported the matter to the police who told the loser of the purse that her chances of having the purse returned were very slim.

But J. Stirling district motorist found the purse on the highway and a day or so later Mrs. Bradshaw got it back, the contents intact.

Ottawa Police, Bank Robbers Stage Battle

OTTAWA (CP) — A wild gun battle raged near a midtown bank today as three masked men escaped with $2,000 to $3,000.

Police said one gunman was seriously wounded when his pistol went off as he was vaulting a counter in the Royal Bank of Canada branch at the corner of Bank and Somerset streets, about eight blocks south of Parliament Hill.

Police arrived at the bank minutes after the gunmen fled by car. A chase ended through Ottawa streets and a police cruiser-car knocked out of commission in the exchange of shots.

Police lost trace of the gunmen in a maze of narrow streets behind City Hall. A blood-spattered car was found in front of an apartment building and police searched the building without results.

Youth for Christ Rally Hears Minister From Texas

By GLADYS WARD

"I am a mechanic so I have to talk in that language," multi-millionaire Robert G. LeTourneau of Longview, Texas, told his audience Sunday afternoon at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium.

Speaking on behalf of the Youth for Christ, Mr. Letourneau said, "I want to tell you what makes friction and how quickly friction can destroy a machine. Try driving your car without oil and you will ruin it. Friction between man and man is terrible and is the cause of world wars. One of the saddest sights is when friction comes into the home. Sometimes there is friction between wife and man. If we could stop that we could stop friction between man and man. We need the oil of the Holy Spirit to keep us running smoothly. God wants to do something to our lives to make our lives smoother. God wants to use each of us, to touch our lives, I believe God has a job for everyone. We can help God in our hearts and friction goes, then we'll be in harmony with His plans.

"We expect a high degree of consecration from our clergy. Why don't we expect the same from the layman? We have a theory that judges the preacher does not, to reach everybody in businessmen.

"There are those who reject Christ, who are going to wait too long. He is knocking at the door and many unbelievers are troubled He will give you peace and make life really worth living.

"We are workers together with God, sometimes stresses and strains break a machine down, but by study and analysis we find that there is an abnormal strain in one part. It must be put into alignment. There are stresses and strains in human relationships too, and we need God to straighten us out. God is the Master mechanic. He made the universe and keeps it in order. He made the human machine too, and by touching our lives with His hands He mends our lives and brings harmony. You do not know what you could accomplish if you put yourself in the hands of the Master mechanic."

MAYOR BRINGS GREETINGS

Mayor A. MacLean Haig brought greetings on behalf of the municipality, stating it was a privilege to welcome a great leader and Christian witness in the person of Mr. Letourneau, as well as the many visitors from out-of-town. As Mr. Letourneau was flying back to Texas in his own plane to attend evening service in his church, the mayor wished him a safe journey and expressed a prayer that his visit would be long remembered.

Little Miss Brookes presented Mrs. Latourneau with a nosegay of flowers.

The meeting was opened with the singing of a hymn, followed by the Scripture reading of Psalm 128 by Rev. J. Spearman, and prayer given by Rev. S. Palmer. Mr. and Mrs. L. Smith sang a duet and during the service Mrs. Smith sang two solos, a song, "I Am Not Worthy," and "Come to The Saviour." Mrs. Marian Foster accompanied the singers on the organ and Miss Linda Pritchard at the piano.

Chairman for service was District Douglas Stark who spoke of the diverse areas in the area from Port Hope to Odessa. He is president of the present ministry three of the Bible schools are to be opened, and a full time club director is needed.

Birdie Wiley who attended Latourneau College, stated that co-educational school which has a liberal arts program as well as courses in technology and engineering. The school publishes a magazine called Now.

Mr. D. Steinstesbie of Picton, who is in his third year at Latourneau Bible College, spoke briefly as to testifying how God had stepped in and helped him. He urged the young people to witness by their lives and by speaking for Christ.

The meeting was closed with prayer by Douglas Stark.

Missing Craft Found Unharmed

QUEBEC (CP) — The river vessel St. Francois radioed Quebec today she has found a pleasure craft missing 18 hours on the St. Lawrence between Rimouski and Cap-aux - Coudres, 55 miles below Quebec. All eight persons aboard were safe and unharmed.

The St. Francois said the craft, the Mimi II, owned by Rene St. Pierre of St. Jean Port Joli, apparently ran into motor trouble and anchored in a small bay on the southern side of the island for the night.

New Six-Room 'Harmony' School in Thurlow Twp. Officially Opened Saturday

Close to 100 persons were present for the official opening of Harmony Public School on the fifth concession of Thurlow this past Saturday evening. Those present represented just about every age group in the community and indicated a widespread pride and interest in the newest addition to Centre Thurlow Township School Area's educational system.

The opening of the new six-room school marked another community's departure from the old one and two-room schools which have characterized Ontario's rural school system for over a half century. The advantages of this tendency towards the centralization of rural schools were outlined by the guest speaker, A. A. Dunsmore, inspector of public schools for the Ontario Department of Education.

"Through centralization rural schools now attract better qualified principals and teachers and promote better staff co-operation," he said. Through the elimination of a large number of small schools with just as the old system dictated, there now exists the opportunity for specialized instruction and for extra attention to the needs of the more advanced or the slower students which opportunity did not exist before. The provision of these advantages should be a source of satisfaction for pupils, parents, teachers, trustees and ratepayers alike, Mr. Dunsmore said, noting that the provision of modern educational facilities and opportunities called for a high degree of community pride and interest.

The speaker noted that now less than eight per cent of the Ontario public school enrolment are three-room school areas is to be found in one-room schools and just less than five per cent in two-room schools.

In concluding the speaker quoted a Chinese philosopher "If you plan for one year, there is nothing better than to sow grain; if you plan for ten years, there is nothing better than to plant trees; if you plan for a lifetime, there is nothing better than to educate men."

During the course of the evening there were a number of other speakers, including Miss Eden Harleigh Hamilton and Clarke Rollins, MLA for East Hastings. Those present were welcomed by the chairman of the school board, Clarence Chambers and both the school board and the teaching staff were introduced.

The name of the school, "Harmony", was chosen by a contest held amongst the students and pupils. Linda Ross and Lois Green were recognized for having proposed the accepted name.

Following the evening's program refreshments were served and guests were allowed to make a casual inspection of the new school's facilities.

HONORS AT HARMONY — Participating in the ribbon cutting ceremonies of Centre Thurlow Township School Area's new Harmony Public School were (left to right): Doug Radner, school principal; Cecil Dawson, who performed the dedication rites; R. A. Dunsmore, inspector of public schools, and Clarence Chambers, chairman of the board.

RCAF Women's Auxiliary Has Made Rapid Studies Since Organization in 1940

TRENTON — The official RCAF motto, "Per Ardua Ad Astra", (Through Difficulty To The Stars) has been very useful to the RCAF Women's Auxiliary service, with 10 pupils, was opened; the auxiliary raised $2,500 at a carnival to furnish the ward of the new wing to the RCAF hospital; $200 was sent to the prisoner-of-war fund and $200 was donated towards a hospital in Korea.

In 1939, with an average attendance of 50, the members collected themselves to furnishing, equipping and maintaining the nursery wing at the proposed Trenton hospital. This has been a major auxiliary project, and over the years, more than $16,000 has been allocated to this program.

In April, 1952, the Opportunity Shop at 62, King Street was opened. Volunteer workers received used clothing and other articles and sold them. Later, the shop was moved to Dundas Street West, near the town bridge.

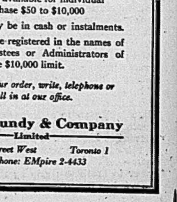
Other projects instigated and assisted by auxiliary members have been the Air Force Blue Clinic, publishing of a monthly newsletter for members; presentation of a scholarship to the first RCAF Christmas and New Year's baby, the sponsoring of the Middleton Park Girl Guide Association and volunteer canvassing for other charitable organizations.

The auxiliary has had 21 successful years during which $29,340 has been raised for benevolent purposes.

Mrs. J. E. Lutz is the 1961 president; Mrs. R. J. Lane, honorary president. Other executive members are Mrs. J. P. Scroggins, Mrs. C. LaGroix, Mrs. A. M. Huber, Mrs. K. Brown and Mrs. J. D. Arbuckle.

Fire Damages Shed and House

TRENTON — Around 5.30 p.m. on Saturday, all Trenton fire-fighting equipment was called to Victoria Ave. in Trenton where fire thought to have been caused by faulty wiring, had broken out in a frame shed back of a brick house owned by Mrs. Rhea Black. Mrs. Black was away when the fire occurred.



The shed was used for storing a quality of furniture, clothing and contents were lost in the blaze. A frame house, owned by R. J. Whitley, which stands in close proximity to Mrs. Black's home, was also damaged. Fire broke out in the roof of the Whitby house and the side of the house was scorched.

Damage to both houses was estimated at between three and four thousand dollars. Firemen fought the fire for almost an hour.

Magazine Has Tale On Trenton Woman

TRENTON — The column, "What's New With You," by Catherine Sinclair in this month's issue of Chatelaine features a story by two Trenton writers, Hilda Bonter and Nicky Marchese, about Miss Marjorie Gothard of Trenton.

Miss Gothard, who is a former high school teacher and a member of the Trenton Board of Health, has travelled extensively on Canadian Pacific ships. She is an honorary First Ship's Officer and special menus are printed in her honor when she is aboard a CP ship.

Safety Campaign Month

April is the cruelest month, says the poet, but the statistician can make a good—or bad—case for October. For some reason, industrial workers find it an extremely dangerous month and are prone to have more accidents then than in any other month of the year.

A month like that might seem a poor one to pick for a safety campaign, but events prove otherwise. Last year the Industrial Accidents Prevention Associations staged an October safety campaign and, hardly by coincidence, a reduction of approximately 20 per cent was recorded in the number of compensation cases, compared with the number in the same month of the previous year.

With an achievement like that behind them, it is hardly surprising that the members of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations have high hopes for this year's province-wide safety campaign, again being staged throughout October. The task force of over 26,000 manufacturing and industrial plants throughout the province is being urged to participate in the campaign. Nothing complicated is being requested—just that workers exercise more care and caution themselves and encourage other workers to follow their example.

Keeping it simple seems to be the key to the safety program for the I.A.P.A. A moment's lapse from the good safety habits the worker knows can cause an accident, says President F. W. Clayton of St. Catharines. The I.A.P.A. hopes by its campaign to reduce these lapses to the minimum. Its overall objective is similarly modest, to reduce injuries per thousand workers at least 10 per cent each year.

Yet success in such a drive would be highly significant. Last year industrial accidents claimed the lives of 51 workers, while 25,253 compensation cases were reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario, with the total number of accidents being a staggering 240,000.

While the I.A.P.A. is primarily interested in the reduction of accidents in industries, it recognizes that safety, like charity, should begin at home. A special appeal is being made to women to reduce accidents and save lives "by urging husbands, brothers and other members of the family to exercise care and caution, at work, at home, on the highway and at play."

Is This "Foreign to Free Society?"

Is opportunity for good health a right possessed by all? Few would brand an affirmative answer as indicative of a radical outlook. Almost two centuries ago on this continent man was declared to have a right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. It is difficult to see how the first and last of these rights could be assured if the right to the opportunity for good health were denied.

It is somewhat surprising, therefore, to find a Sudbury physician, Dr. J. J. Lynch, describing this "noble sentiment" as introducing a concept hitherto foreign to a democratic free society."

Dr. Lynch was appearing before the Federal royal commission on health, challenging remarks made by the commission chairman, Chief Justice Emmett, Hall of Saskatchewan, at the opening sessions on Wednesday. Mr. Justice Hall had said that "the view appears to be developing" that the opportunity for good health "should become available in one form or another to every citizen in Canada."

Dr. Lynch argued that the application of the statement is that the citizen has the right—I might almost say the constitutional right—to the services of certain other citizens by virtue of his claim to 'opportunity for good health.'

"Food, clothing and shelter are fundamental to good health," he said, "but may I ask which society guarantees these essentials to all its citizens as an unqualified right of birth?"

Dr. Lynch's point is well taken. But is not the correct answer that a truly democratic society should endeavor to guarantee to all citizens not only the opportunity for good health but the opportunity to obtain food, clothing and shelter? As a matter of fact, are we not already making this effort to make certain that nobody is hungry or homeless through no fault of his own?

Insofar as this is true, it is not "a concept hitherto foreign to a democratic free society." Insofar as we have failed to provide effective guarantees against want, our society falls short of being truly democratic, completely free. for those who are in the grip of poverty, without power to break this grip by their own efforts, are ruled by the oldest and cruelest of tyrannies.

The Columbia Controversy

Montreal Gazette

The latest move in the Columbia River power situation has been made by the Federal Minister of Justice, Hon. Davie Fulton.

Mr. Fulton says it is now up to Premier Bennett of British Columbia to decide whether the treaty with the United States for the Columbia River power on the Columbia will be carried out. If Premier Bennett refuses to participate in carrying out the treaty, according to the treaty that was signed in Washington by the Canadian and U.S. governments, that is the end of it.

The long duel between Mr. Fulton and Premier Bennett over the Columbia project has been an effort by each to place the other in the position of accepting the blame. On September 16 Premier Bennett said that it was Ottawa that was ready to sacrifice B.C."

His government, he said, is not against the Columbia River project. What it wants is that the downstream benefits produced on the Columbia should be sold in the United States. British Columbia would use the money from this sale to finance a power project in the Peace River area. It claims that this power would be much better cheaper, but it would make a rapid and spectacular development of the Peace River area possible.

This, however, is not according to the terms of the treaty, according to which the marketing of power from the Columbia between the United States and Canada. Mr. Fulton says he can never subscribe to the idea that Canadian territory should be flooded for the benefit of the United States.

The Federal Government believed that it was in full understanding with British Columbia before it signed the treaty with the United States. It has said that the only occasion on which any doubt arose was last December, the premier Bennett had then referred to the British Columbia Energy Board which questions involving a comparison of the engineering and energy aspects of the Columbia and Peace River projects.

But the federal Government and the British Columbia government established up a liaison committee, so that both governments might be kept fully informed of each other's views, as negotiations for the treaty with the United States proceeded. In January the federal representatives on this liaison committee asked for concurrence that the reference of this question to the Energy Board might involve doubt or delay on the part of the British Columbia government with regard to the Columbia project.

The B.C. representatives on the liaison committee gave every assurance that this was not the case. On the contrary, the reference had been designed to hasten the taking of effective action by British Columbia on the proposed treaty.

In the belief, therefore, that the federal government and British Columbia were in full agreement, the federal Government proceeded to sign the Washington treaty. It has at least to contemporary posts. His notion is that:

How many artists could tell, even after a series of exhibitions, the extent which poems have been written by hand and which composed on a portable? The machine age may indeed work to mold the poet's consciousness and affect his choice of themes, his imagery, his rhythms and so on. That, however, it tells in the typing must remain an unproved, even an untested, thesis.

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

MATTER OF PRIME IMPORTANCE

Who do men say that I am?" This was the question which Jesus addressed to his disciples on a certain occasion and which brought the thrilling answer of Peter, "Thou art Christ, the son of the living God."

Students of the Bible have always recognized this question and answer as constituting one of the most important episodes in gospel history. It lies in the significance of the word "who." Jesus wasn't anxious to find out what people were talking about his teachings, his miracles, or his ministry in general. He wanted to know whether men had caught the significance of their faith that he was the supernatural Messiah, and if they had then he knew that they had learned the one thing that would make their faith in him vital.

The perennial question of importance about Jesus is not, "Who is he?" Not what do we think about his teachings, or his deeds, or his method of history, or what is his message of modern life important at all these things are, the only really important question is, who is this man of Nazareth? If he is only a teacher or a great man, then religion cannot be built upon him. Religion can be built only on faith in the supernatural Son of God, for this supernatural Being alone can save men from their sins.

The Rev. W. Merrick and Mrs. Merrick, Mr. and Mrs. C. Mills and Miss Douglas Mills are spending a few days in Toronto.

Miss Georgie Brown has returned home after visiting her daughter in Detroit, Mich., and her sons in Toronto.

The board of the Royal Academy of Music and the Royal College of Music of which HIS Majesty King George is patron, has issued a performer's qualification they are not equipped to teach. Their primary job is to teach the child reading, writing and arithmetic well. When they try to do more than this, they usually end up doing less than that.

Parents should not be allowed to get off the hook of personal responsibility quite so easily. They cannot confuse to throw on their child or the school and expect the school to turn a selfish and undisciplined brat into a well-adjusted opportunist. Even a trained psychiatrist could not do this against the odds of some home environments.

Children who will listen responsively to talks about moral and spiritual values don't need the talks. What those values most need it won't listen. Their conduct is shaped in the way their parents behave to them, and to each other — not by the sweet sentiments of classroom moralists.

Character is built just as a building is built — from the sub-structure up. If the foundation is shaky, the building will tilt or collapse. In the entire history of mankind education has never improved the character of a single person who wasn't already looking for improvement.

Typewriter Poet's Tool?

Baltimore Evening Sun

The history of modern science is inseparable in its early days from the history of its instruments. It was not until the advances made since the Renaissance in the absence of the telescope, the microscope, the clock. Progress has made possible a constant speeding up in the power and precision of these means of investigation and they, in turn, have made possible the vast expansion of inquiry and research, even of the "purest" kind. One has only to try to imagine what physics, astronomy and biology had the microscope, the telescope and the clock not been invented to realize how great the interdependence is and how large an instrument and discovery are.

The case is somewhat different with the arts. There is no comparable "progress" in them such as there is in science, while sometimes important in their influence on the course of the emergence of the means and techniques of painting in oils — was brought by change rather than development. As for the typewriter, its influence on the quality of literature do not seem ever to have been determined by the choice of pen, whether calamus, quill, fountain or ball point. Even though one may ask, about the prevalence of the typewriter? Most of us write with it, but it has not much mattered. However, a recent article in Poetry suggests that it has, at least to contemporary poets. His notion is that:

"By the choice of type, the typewriter that, due to its rigidity of mechanical limitations it can, for a poet, indicate exactly the breath, the pauses, the suggestions of the line, through the juxtaposition even of parts of words, and of the letters. For the first time the poet has the slave and the bar a musical instrument."

'Character Can't Be Taught In Schools

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

With all good will toward the splendid young woman who was recently named the nation's "Teacher of the Year" I must sadly dissent from her suggestion that the schools should put more emphasis on teaching morals and spiritual values.

This fervent Iowa teacher, who doubtless is a superb one, has second-grade kiddies, told a conference of educators that the public schools should do more about "character building."

If there is one thing that is unteachable, it is character. If there is one thing a child cannot be given in a classroom, it is an active sense of moral and spiritual values. Character is a plant that must be nurtured from birth. By the time a child is old enough to go to school, the basic structure of his character has already been laid. The school can help him go in the direction he already wants to go; it cannot, itself, give direction.

Moral and spiritual values are gained by example — by watching what the parents do, not by listening to what they say. It is a steady, unconscious, day-by-day process.

Urging the schools to assist in directing and reforming character is an impossible imposition, writers do their best literary work after the sun has gone to sleep.

You never know just what he will do next. As for the one who talks and talks, you don't care what he does. He can go hang for all you may care.

33 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Traffic accidents accounted for the majority of the 33 fatalities in Canada during the weekend.

Twenty - three were recorded on roads in a Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday.

Four provinces, Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, could boast a fatality - free weekend. The survey does not include industrial mishaps, known suicides, slayings and natural deaths.

Ontario led with 13 fatalities —six traffic, one drowning, four in a fire, one hunting and one suffocation. Quebec followed with nine — eight traffic and an asphyxiation.

There were five deaths in Alberta, three of them in traffic and two unclassified, three traffic fatalities in Nova Scotia, two in British Columbia and one in New Brunswick.

Ontario dead:

Charles Edward Willis, 17, an air cadet at RCAF Centralia, in a car - truck collision on Highway 7 near Belleville Saturday.

Jack Lole, 63, Friday night after being hit by a car in Toronto.

William Liedtke, 53, Renfrew County farmer, by a shotgun blast near Pembroke, Saturday while hunting.

Steven Leblanco, 8, suffocated Saturday when the tunnel he was digging at Garson, near Sudbury, collapsed.

Artillery Sergeant James W. Brown, 38, drowned Saturday near Petawawa army camp, about 10 miles west of Pembroke, while fishing with his wife and son.

Mrs. Amelia Bateman, 51, London, Ont., Saturday when a car collided with a parked truck on Highway 7 near Sarnia.

Four children, Sylvia Morton, 2, Trudy Morton, 8, James Bayliss, two months, and Wendy Homer, 5, victims of a house fire at London, Ont., Sunday.

John MacRae, 50, Lucknow, Saturday after being hit by a car as he crossed a street.

Witold Swirdy, 31, Toronto, Sunday when his car failed to make a curve.

Joseph Gerald Melanson, 26, Toronto, saturday night when his car rolled over on Highway 401 near Toronto.

Anti-freeze loss like this is a great nuisance—expensive, too. Shellzone anti-freeze is engineered against loss. If it does leak, Shell stands behind it.

IRONCLAD GUARANTEE:

All Shell stations are now authorized to give their customers this remarkable new anti-freeze guarantee:

"Free refill if Shellzone leaks away— no matter how you lose it"

Once your car's cooling system has been okayed at a Shell station and Shellzone anti-freeze installed—that's it. If the anti-freeze leaks or loses its strength before next May 1st, it will be replaced without charge.

Any Shell station in Canada or the United States will do the job.

THE SHELLZONE GUARANTEE is ironclad. Once a Shell serviceman has inspected your car's cooling system and refilled with fresh Shellzone, you won't spend a cent more on anti-freeze all winter long.

If you lose Shellzone anti-freeze for any cause under the sun, Shell will replace it free. There are no exceptions. A leak, malicious damage, a faulty part, evaporation—all are included.

This remarkable pledge will be honoured at any Shell station in Canada or the United States—right up to next May 1st.

The disadvantages of pouring your own

People who pour in anti-freeze for themselves have no such guarantee against added expense. They have to reconcile themselves to other disadvantages, too.

First, there's the risk of leakage—which can take place under conditions that might surprise you. Virtually all major brands of anti-freeze have a lower surface tension than water. As a result, anti-freeze can sometimes seep out through tiny holes and cracks that are absolutely leakproof when you have plain water in your cooling system.

Complete cooling system check

Before a Shell service man puts in your anti-freeze, he checks the entire system for potential leaks. He checks hoses, clamps, plugs, drain cocks, water pump, radiator. Eleven points in all, including every connection. Not a drop of Shellzone goes in until he's sure it won't leak out.

The overdose danger

Here's another surprising fact. Did you know that too much anti-freeze can have the same effect as too little? Here's what happens when you begin to add anti-freeze. As you would expect, at first the freezing point of the mixture goes down. But as you pour in more anti-freeze, the freezing point begins to come back up.

If you went so far as to fill your radiator with nothing but anti-freeze, you'd be protected to no lower than about 4 degrees below zero. The correct combination of Shellzone and water can protect you down to minus 62°F.

When you go to your Shell dealer, you will receive the exact amount of Shellzone needed to protect you down to the temperature you specify. The Shell man looks up the capacity of your car's cooling system (this varies from make to make, model to model, and year to year.)

Then he does something you might forget. He includes the water capacity of your heater in his calculations. After he's poured in the right amount of Shellzone, he double-checks with a hydrometer. That's how he can be sure you have the protection you need.

Shellzone guarantee

Finally, your Shell dealer fills out the Shellzone guarantee and hands it to you. He can give you this ironclad guarantee because he knows the job has been done properly. And because Shellzone is a powerfully effective anti-freeze, with potent additives that prevent rust, corrosion, scale formation and foaming.

Protect your car these seven ways

The seven tips given here all deal with common causes of winter trouble. To avoid these ills and expenses, have all seven checked by your Shell dealer. And you'd be wise to do it early. In those more leisurely Fall days before the frost, he has extra time to fuss, check—and double check.

Tip #1—check plugs and points. A car with faulty points or plugs is difficult to start in winter. A strong, precisely-timed spark is vital in cold weather. Your Shell dealer can quickly have your points and plugs put in top condition.

Tip #2—check battery. For quick starts, your battery must turn the engine over briskly. If the engine reacts sluggishly when you press the starter, the spark is feeble and the gas mixture is compressed too slowly. Result—poor starting. Remember—battery must be fully charged, terminals clean, connections tight and leads in good condition.

Tip #3—check windshield wipers. Worn wiper blades slide sloppily over a windshield—leave behind a film of ice, slush, oil or dirt. This is particularly hazardous after nightfall, when a lot of winter driving is done.

Tip #4—use multigrade oil. Shell X-100 Premium Motor Oil will reduce the strain on your battery by letting the engine turn over quickly on frigid mornings. This is because it is multi-grade—effectively resists undue thickening in cold weather or thinning out in a hot engine.

Tip #5—have your carburetor checked. For example, a properly-set choke can make all the difference in how your car starts and runs—and how much gas it uses. Another point—many engines run more smoothly in winter when their idling speed is increased.

Tip #6—have your car polished. A polish job will protect your car against its arch enemy—road salt. Afterwards, have it washed regularly to preserve the finish.

Tip #7—have your tires checked. Your Shell dealer will inspect your tires for cuts, bulges and wear. Have snow tires fitted, and you'll be all ready for winter. The deeper, wider tread on snow tires often makes the difference between wheelspin and traction on slush or snow.

Weddings

TICKELL — CLARKE

Islington United Church, Toronto, was the setting of a recent pretty wedding, when Lennie Sheron, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Clarke, of Belleville, became the bride of Frederick David Arthur Tickell, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tickell, of Windsor, in a lovely double-ring ceremony, performed by the Rev. J. East.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mr. J. Harrison and the church was decorated with baskets of white gladioli, mums and baby's breath. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was most attractive in an imported, champagne-shade organza sheath, with bouffant Chantilly lace peplum overskirt. She wore a tiny matching flower hat, shoes and gloves in matching shade and carried a cascade bouquet of liver Sativanonia, Johanna "Hill and Sweetheart roses, accentuated with white stephanotis.

Her only attendant, Mrs. Robert Horwood of Belleville, was matron of honor and was gowned in a turquoise satin sheath, with matching tiny hat shoes and gloves. She carried a cascade bouquet of gladioli, coral gerberes and asters.

The groomsman was Mr. Brian Scott, of Toronto and Mr. Dale Mather of Belleville ushered the bridegroom, ushered the guests.

The reception was held at Prince Arthur House, Toronto, where the bride's table was a picture with its handmade satin and linen cloth, and three-tiered pink and white wedding cake topped with a pink rose, flanked by crystal candelabra and crystal vases of pink and white carnations.

The bride's mother greeted the guests in an imported lavender silk dress and sheath with matching jacket in three-quarter length, and corsage of roses and sweet pea, over drift 'mums and matching accessories. She was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom, who wore an ice-blue organza and lace sheath with matching accessories and corsage of soft pink roses and white carnations.

For the wedding trip to Georgian Bay and other points the bride chose an Italian silk sheath in cherry-pink with matching pink flower hat and white shoes, bag and gloves. Her corsage was of white feathered carnations.

The happy couple are residing on Dundas Street East, in Toronto, where the bridegroom is a final year student at Osgoode Hall.

Question — Some friends came to visit last Sunday, and the man immediately switched on the TV and settled down to look at a baseball game. He stayed glued to the set until dinner. I wanted to get it off, but my husband said no. For future reference: Would it be impolite to do so? — Mrs. L. Burling, Ont., N. J.

Answer—Once it's on, there's nothing you can do but root for the home team, too. Naturally he should have asked permission first, at which point you could have let him know you had other plans. But when a guest turns on TV of his own accord, it's best to do it silently, call an error and strike him out, of your plans for the duration of the season.

Question — My father has been a patient in a hospital for the past six weeks and is to be released in another three weeks to a month. The nurses have been very kind to him. He has a regular day nurse and night nurse. Others substitute when they are not on duty. When my father is released is it necessary to tip each nurse? If so, how much? — L. K., Allentown, Pa.

Answer — Nurses are professional women, and it would be in bad taste even to offer a tip. A gift is another matter. You can present the floor nurse with a big box of goodies that the entire group can enjoy, or you can give small individual gifts. Cologne, note paper, a jar of pate or an unusual charge purse are the sort of token which would be appropriate.

Boy Scout Auxiliary Board Elects Officers, Hears Report

The Belleville and District Boy Scout Auxiliary Executive met on Thursday, September 20th at Hollowray Street United Church with the president, Mrs. P. C. Gelesthorpe, presiding. There was the largest attendance on record. Mrs. Gelesthorpe extended a warm welcome to the members and the special guest, Mrs. L. Kennedy, President of the District Council.

Annual reports were given by Mrs. Dave McDonald, Mrs. Ted Mundy, Mrs. J. Blair and Mrs. Gelesthorpe. Correspondence was read regarding slides and a talk given on headlesspaded Scouting which would prove most interesting to leaders and District Council. Mrs. Gelesthorpe volunteered to have the slides, with hand-clapped children. Each Auxiliary should save these stamps.

REPORTERS NEEDED

Reports were given by each auxiliary of the past year's activities, which showed much enthusiasm in their work. All annual reports should be turned in to the secretary, Mrs. Dave McDonald, Box 122, Belleville, not later than October 31st. Reports should be prepared by the auxiliary officers. The new officers should start with a Reporter. The treasurer's books should be audited by the finance committee and three copies sent to the auditor, the finance committee, one for the executive Board and one for secretary.

Mrs. Gelesthorpe expressed appreciation of the co-operation for their support in making her office the success it was during the past year. Appreciation was then turned over to Mr. Mundy, who brought greetings from the district Council and expressed how glad he was to have such a favorable reports from Auxiliaries.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Mr. Mundy acted as nominating chairman for the open election of officers with the following results: Honorary president, P. C. Gelesthorpe; vice-president, Mrs. D. Reddick; secretary, Mrs. Dave McDonald; treasurer, Mrs. J. Nelles; contact chairman, Mrs. W. Hoakes; publicity chairman, Mrs. J. Black; supply secretary, Mrs. J. Johnson; uniform exchange, chairman, Mrs. E. Lake. Mr. Monteith then installed the officers.

Mr. Monteith announced that Mrs. Gelesthorpe was the representative on the executive board of the District Council and Mrs. MacDonald was elected to the publicity committee of District Council and that all write-ups of Auxiliary reports for the press must first be presented to her before they are published.

Mrs. Gelesthorpe and Mrs. McDonald, as installation, will attend the Ladies' Provincial Advisory Committee conference to be held in Toronto on Oct. 12.

AUXILIARY PART OF SCOUT WORK

Mr. Monteith stated that the Auxiliary is an integral part of the Scout movement and that Auxiliaries should meet with Scoutmaster committee and leaders to discuss problems. Leaders need complete support from the Ladies Auxiliary and the Scout committee as they are busy enough working with Cubs and Scouts. Suggestions for the coming year followed.

Volunteers were requested for the United Appeal. The Scouts are taking part by distributing pamphlets, which are for them for this appeal.

Apple Day is on the 8th and 9th, and Scouts will also be selling apples at the Plowing Match.

Mrs. Gelesthorpe stated she hoped the Auxiliaries would support the winter's Scout Board by attending meetings. She also thanked Mrs. Reddick and Mrs. Monteith had assisted the 14th Ladies' Auxiliary in the election of officers at their last meeting.

Lunch hostesses, 10th Belleville Ladies' Auxiliary served lunch.

Mrs. A. J. McCreary thanked Mr. Monteith for contributing the interesting address and to 10th Belleville for a delightful lunch, ending a most enjoyable and successful annual meeting.

Those who looked after registration for the evening were: Mrs. A. Janitsch, and Mrs. G. Thomas.

The next general meeting will be on Thursday, November 1st for all Auxiliary Members to be held at St. Margaret's Church On-The-Hill with 9th Belleville Ladies' Auxiliary as hostesses.

Three CWAC Members Re-united

The first group get-together for three former Canadian Army girls who hadn't seen each other in more than 15 years took place here yesterday as an aftermath of last week's C.W.A.C. reunion in Toronto.

When Mrs. Alfred Stanley of Halloway, 10 miles north of Belleville, was unable to make it to the Toronto reunion her two former buddies decided nothing would prevent them from spending their overseas war-time experiences and they arranged for their own private reunion.

The reunion of the three girls, who served together, was held Sunday on the platform of the north station following the arrival of the one train from Toronto.

When Mary (Mrs. Stanley) was unable to make it to Toronto, I got busy on the telephone and arranged our own private re-union," said Mrs. Arthur Clapp, now of Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Also making the trip to Belleville was another wartime CWAC buddy, Mrs. Ed Gray, of Toronto.

"We hadn't seen each other as a group since we left Oldenburg, Germany, back in 1944," they gray said.

Mrs. Stanley and Mrs. Clapp were girlhood buddies at Chatham prior to the war. They met the third member of the trio after they joined the service early in the war.

Mrs. Gray had a double reason for coming to Belleville. She wanted to renew acquaintances with a mutual buddy she hadn't seen in 15 years, and also wants to visit this week's International Plowing match.

Now with a big machinery company in Toronto, Mrs. Gray's husband is a former champion plowman at the International. He arranged his holidays so he could take in the big match at Belleville.

Recommended and Requested Pickle Recipes

By Mary Moore

Gentlemen the girls in this audience are here to help you. Every mail brings requests for pickles. One that came today should be a repeat of Mary Moore's Mother's Mustard Pickles which appeared in 1935.

If you want to keep on making pickles I'm here to help.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Omelette with Shrimp Sauce; Baked Jacket Potatoes with Chive Sour Cream; Crumbed Broiled Tomato Halves; Grated Raw Carrot and Peanut Salad; Jellied Orange Pears with Whipped Cream; Coffee.

MARY MOORE'S MOTHER'S MUSTARD PICKLES (requested on request from 1953)

If desired this may be kept closely covered in a stone crock in a cool place. The pickles made from this recipe represent the best of filing I received as a pickle until I was about 15 years of age. My mother was sacred to me was the filling of the pickle dish at meal time and these were the pickles. Needless to say they are unsatisfactory in appearance. Ladle into sterilized jars, seal. Makes about 4 pints.

Cut cucumbers into large chunks. Break cauliflower into pieces, peel onions. Place in crock, cover with hot brine made of the salt and water. Let stand 24 hours. Drain well. Cover with cold water, let stand 30 minutes. Drain. Add green and red peppers cut in strips. Combine sugar, flour, turmeric, mustard, curry powder and mustard seed in large kettle. Slowly add vinegar, stirring until smooth. Place over low heat, cook and stir until mixture is thick and cooked. Add well-drained vegetables and cook over low heat until entire mixture is heated through and mustard sauce is bubbling through. Immediately ladle into sterilized jars, seal. Makes about 4 pints.

Top low net score was carded by Vivian White with Ilene Durrant next. Sara Armstrong took third place honors.

Lila Gladney won the putting prize with Jean Gannon taking the "most honest golfer" award. Mrs. Hedley Soule went to Darlene Betterley.

The spring tournament was held at the Picton Golf and Country Club.

Women's Activities

MOIRA W. A.

MOIRA— Mrs. Wesley Parrel was hostess to Moira, W.A. on Thursday afternoon. The president, Mrs. Farrel opened the meeting in the usual manner with prayer by Mr. Dyson. Scripture reading was given by Mrs. Dyson from Matthew 6: 24-36 with commentary and meditation by Mrs. Allison Vandervoort.

Convener, Mrs. Blake Ketcheson introduced Mrs. Angus Mumby had charge of the program. A solo was rendered by Mrs. Mumby, "Over the Beautiful Garden of Prayer"; a reading was given by Mrs. McIntyre.

Mr. and Mrs. Dyson have just returned from their vacation in England and Mr. Dyson gave a travelogue of their trip with Mrs. Dyson showing pictures and snapshots of same. A solo was rendered by Mrs. David Mumby, "A Million Years in Glory," and after prayer a delicious lunch was served by hostess and helpers.

Bridge St. United WA Hears Description of Japanese Life

The Women's Association of Bridge Street United Church met after the summer recess to enjoy a "dessert and coffee" meeting, planned by the group convened by Mrs. E. Denyes and Mrs. S. Gilmour.

After enjoying the appetizing pies and desserts, the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. W. G. Anderson.

Reports of secretaries and conveners were heard and plans for the fall work discussed.

Mrs. S. Gilmour, in charge of the worship service, announced the theme, "Whom do we serve?" All joined in singing "Come Let Us Sing of a Wonderful Love" and Mrs. H. McCabe read the Scripture lesson from the sixth chapter of Matthew.

In her comments Mrs. Gilmour reminded her listeners that "the greatest opposing force to Christianity is materialism, whether it be be communistic or the North American variety. Man has become a slave to possessions. When things take first place there is little room for God.

"Jesus Christ said 'No man can serve two masters.' We cannot turn to God Who knows our needs and ignore them. Likewise Joshua may we say 'As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.'"

A prayer of dedication closed this thought-provoking service.

The guest speakers, Mrs. Frank Mills, of Napanee, transferred from missionary work in Islands of Japan, where she attended the 32nd International Rotary Convention in Tokyo. She travelled via the ship, Sha-San, with 1,200 people on Asian crew. Not a luxury liner, but comfortable, the service was efficient and courteous.

In Japan, the visitors found much of interest. Rice is a million Japanese must import much of their food. May and June are the months devoted to Strawberries, potatoes, onions, and beans. Peaches are grown and by 1965 the coufftry hopes to be self-sufficient.

The government of Japan is similar to our Rockies but with the exception that 80% of the Mount Fuji, the mountains are not so high.

Speaking about the islands by bus and train the Buddhist temples, Shinto shrines, waterfalls and flowers were much admired.

The Japanese people were found to be industrious, friendly, efficient and most polite. Japan is highly industrialized, its language the hardest to learn, and the standard of literacy the highest.

The visitors were entertained by Rotary Clubs in various centres, at a garden party and reception held by the Ladies' Auxiliary by the Canadian Ambassador; at the evening meetings of the Convention there was a stirring entertainment by ballerinas, Japanese folk dances, and silk dances. At one time 350 dancers presented a colorful display. The Empress attended one session when the Emperor spoke and the Emperors were entertained. Emperor and Empress attended the session when the Emperor spoke and they were introduced everyone with her charm of manner.

The people of Japan have learned to accept disaster; in 1933, an earthquake destroyed its main cities, which were rebuilt and levelled again by war in 1945. Now there are few reminders of this devastation.

The address closed with the thought that all people share one common birth and one destiny, the prayer of the W.A. is that all may dwell together in peace and unity.

Mrs. Mills was introduced by Mrs. E. Denyes, a personal friend, and thanked by Mrs. C. B. Morgan.

Will Give Talks On Survival in Case of Attack

On Tuesday evening at Queen Elizabeth School, Bayview Heights and School Association will present Colonel C. L. Smith, Commandant, Canadian Civil Defence College, and Major C. B. C. Broadbent, regional representative Emergency Measures Organization of Ontario, who will speak about survival under nuclear attack.

Bayview H-S members believe that this is very vital a topic to the public, that they are extending a cordial invitation to everyone interested. All speakers will close with a question and answer period.

See the horticulture tent at the Plowing Match in the County tent the last days and also in the Eaton tent, 10 a.m. to 12 noon on Friday.

Argyll Chapter IODE Plans Future Events

The September meeting of the Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E. was held in the Belleville Armories with the Regent, Mrs. J. Cunningham presiding.

It was decided that portraits of the Queen and Prince Philip be hung in the Armories and three schools in Belleville which the Chapter has not already supplied.

The Regent thanked those members who assisted at the "New Citizens" tea.

The half yearly parcels of baby clothes were dispatched to I.O.D.E. headquarters in Toronto for distribution.

The annual fall rummage sale is tentatively arranged for October 20th in the Belleville Armories and final arrangements were made for September 30th annual dessert bridge. Mrs. A. S. McConnell will be the commentator for the "hat show".

The Red Cross will be holding a blood donor's clinic on Tuesday, October 16th at St. Andrew's Parish House and members were asked to assist.

The organizers of the Belleville Girl Guides and Brownies for the assistance of at least 20 members of the Chapter for the Girl Guide display on Sat. October 29th. It is hoped that this display will be the most successful yet.

On June 28th the Regent, Mrs. J. Cunningham accompanied by Mrs. J. Fullerton, Mrs. E. Smith, Mrs. Sprague and Mrs. D. Riordan were hostesses at a picnic held for Chatham's adopted child at Consecon which appeared to be thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The top spoil of Grade 4, Allen Natula, was presented with a prize of $10. This will be an annual award.

The meeting ended with a social hour and refreshments were: Mrs. Leona Wilson; Mrs. Clapp; Mrs. Marion Davenport.

COMING ALONGSIDE . . . Shown above is RCSCC "Quinte's" motor launch as she prepares to come alongside the Presqu'ile Hotel jetty during the training cruise which the local Sea Cadet Corps organized for this past weekend. Cadets from Picton and Trenton Corps also participated in the cruise.

GRUNT AND GROAN . . . was a part of the sports activities held during the Sea Cadet weekend cruise. Shown above are Ron Potter of "Trent" (on top) as he applies an arm lock on Denis Mercier of "Quinte". Suitable expressions are worn by both contestants. Potter won the match.

FLEET MANOEUVRES were a part of the various exercises and training which local and district Sea Cadets received during the weekend cruise held aboard the two harbor craft (shown above) from HMCS "Cataraqui", Kingston, as well as the local corps' own power craft. The ships above are shown as they are executing a manoeuvre to come into line abreast on the starboard side of the lead ship.

Three Power Craft Carry Cadets on Weekend Cruise

Fair weather graced nearly every stage of the weekend cruise held by the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps "Quinte" aboard their own power craft and two harbor craft from HMCS "Cataraqui" of Kingston off Presqu'ile Point this past Saturday and Sunday. Nearly 40 persons took part in the operation with Sea Cadets from both the "Hallowell" Corps of Picton and the "Trent" Corps from Trenton as well as the local Sea Cadets from "Quinte".

Foul winds on the Saturday evening precluded any extensive night manoeuvres on Lake Ontario due to heavy seas but an unscheduled lesson in foul weather operations was substituted.

Prior to this time the cadets had been given instruction in steering a ship holding a course and basic pilotage during the trip from Belleville, where they embarked Saturday morning, up the Bay of Quinte, through the Murray Canal and across Brighton Bay to Presqu'ile, where they tied up at the Presqu'ile Hotel jetty for a lunch break.

During the afternoon they went out onto Lake Ontario for fleet manoeuvres and signalling exercises in moderate seas. Returning to Presqu'ile shortly before supper, examinations for those wishing to obtain the primary communicator badges were held under Commissioned Officer Earl Slack, RCN (R) of HMCS "Cataraqui" whilst the remainder of the hands engaged in a game of softball.

A hot dinner, prepared by Mr. Grant Quick and the Presqu'ile Hotel staff, was provided for the evening meal. Following the night manoeuvres cam foul weather operations on Lake Ontario the ship's companies returned to Presqu'ile and Leading Cadet Tony Craig of Trenton.

On Sunday, following church services, the cadets participated in dingy sailing races with Tony Craig of Trenton and Gerald Yorke of Belleville coxing and crewing the winning entry.

SOCCER GAME

A soccer game was also held between the Sea Cadets and the RCN(R) crews from the "Cataraqui" ships. Although this match resulted in a 0-0 score at the end of the game the Sea Cadets scored an ultimate victory since they were down their opponents to the point where they were unable to field a team for the Sea Cadet-Reserve softball game and for an evening sports program of boxing and wrestling. This was highlighted by a tag team wrestling match put on by members from HMCS "Cataraqui" which became so involved that the judges finally awarded the match to the referee, Leading Cadet Gordon Harrison of Picton.

Winners of the boxing matches were Ordinary Cadet Jim Shkrell of Belleville; Leading Cadet Ron Potter of Trenton and Leading Cadet Tony Craig of Trenton.

Communists Lose Control Powerful Electrical Union

LONDON (Reuters) — The Communists were said Sunday to have lost their two-year hold on Britain's powerful Electrical Trades Union in balloting for a new executive.

An anti-Communist group in the ETU claimed they won eight of the 11 seats on the union's executive council according to an unofficial assessment of votes cast in a county-wide poll of the 700,000 members.

This would be an exact reversal of the present, setup on the executive council - eight Communists; or pro-Communists and three non-Communists. The current council stays in office until January.

Official results of the election, ending this weekend, will not be known until early November.

The Communist - dominated ETU has been the centre of a storm of political controversy about Communist influence in British trade unions.

EXPEL AS RED

The Labor party's national executive committee expelled the ETU from party ranks Friday on the grounds that it was Communist - controlled and could not accept Labor party policy.

Four weeks ago the ETU was thrown out of the 8,000,000 member Trades Union Congress because it refused to accept measures for curbing Communist influence.

At High Court judge July 3 ruled that five ETU officials had conspired together to rig the 1959 elections for the union's general secretary.

Sir Charles Wilson, the presiding judge, ruled the election of Communist Frank Hazell illegal and declared that anti-Communist unionist John Byrne was lawful general secretary.

The finding of the court was seen starting a major re-thinking among British unionists about the dangers of Communist influence. British Communists for years have waged a see-saw campaign to gain control of unions, alternately winning and losing their grip on half a dozen major unions.

Two Arrested After Newsman Is Beaten

MONTREAL (CP) — Georges Aird and Donald Cote were charged Saturday with assault with intent to maim in the beating of newspaper man Henri Cousineau last week. Both pleaded not guilty.

Cousineau, editor of an outspoken weekly paper in Jacques Cartier, across the St. Lawrence River from Montreal, was attacked by four men. He is in good condition after hospital treatment.

Police said arrest warrants have been sworn out for two other men.

Judge John O'Meara said the beating did not appear to be one of the "routine kind" and postponed decision on bail until Tuesday.

the provincial field, and won by a byelection race to fill a vacancy in Renfrew South left by the death of Conservative MLA James Dempsey.

He defeated Liberal candidate N. E. (Nat) Lindsay by 8,026 votes to 5,784.

He was appointed to the mines portfolio Dec. 22, 1958, and was re-elected in the 1959 provincial general election.

The black - haired lawyer served as chairman of the legislature's select committee on labor relations in 1959.

HITS TACTICS

Noted for his sharp barbs in the legislature, he once accused CCF Leader Donald MacDonald of "dirty, swill - pail, pigpen" tactics.

He was recently mentioned in the trial of an provincial police officer on bribery charges. Mr. Mahoney denied as "unfounded and malicious" statements that he had used his influence to pervert justice.

As minister of mines, he directed the affairs of a department which spent about $2,000,000 annually and collected nearly $19,000,000 in taxes.

His death brings to three the number of vacancies in the Legislature. Standing there now is Progressive Conservatives 68, Liberals 22, CCF 5, Liberal-Labor 1, Vacant 3, Total 99.

One of a family of 10 children himself, Mr. Mahoney is survived by seven children, four by his first wife, the former Audrey Tertle of Toronto who died in 1941, and three by his second wife, the former Katherine Corkery of Peterborough.

burned undetected so long with the number of people in the house.

Mrs. Donna Homer said she took her daughter, Wendy, and Trudy Morton to the safety of a porch roof. When she returned for more children, the frightened little girls followed her into the smoke-filled house.

HEARS SCREAMS

"They got back in, I didn't know they were there," Mrs. Homer sobbed at hospital where she was treated for shock. "Then I heard them screaming . . . there was so much smoke . . . I couldn't do anything."

Sylvia and Trudy were the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Morton. James Bayliss, the Morton's grandchild, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bayliss.

Susan Morton, 10, and Mr. and Mrs. Bayliss are in serious condition in hospital.

Mr. Morton saved his 14-month-old daughter Perri - Lee, but two-year-old Sylvia died in her crib in an upstairs bedroom.

Mr. Morton said his son-in-law Thomas, 18, dropped the Byliss baby on a bed on the second floor when flames enveloped and badly burned him. He ran to an adjacent verandah, where his 19 - year - old wife, Sharon, was screaming for the baby.

"Tommy wanted to go back in, but he couldn't," Mr. Morton said. "We had to hold him back.

Other occupants escaped through windows of a basement bedroom.

Joseph Cowie, who lived with his family in the house, said he had returned home at 4 a.m. He said he checked the downstairs section of the house but noticed nothing amiss.

Firemen believe the fire started near the living room. Fire inspector James Fitzgerald said it will be several days before he can tell what caused it."

WON'T PAY TAX

LONDON (Reuters) — Russians whose monthly earnings do not exceed 60 rubles (about $65), will not pay income tax from today, the Soviet news agency Tass reported. Under a law approved in May last year the income tax rate was also cut.

POISON EMERGENCY

Every day, in Ontario alone, an average of 130 children are treated for poisoning.

Ninety per cent of these poisonings involve children—accidents attributed to parents who thoughtlessly leave common household products within a child's reach.

On an average, every house is equipped with 25 poisons, ranging from simple products to family medicines. Put to their proper use these products serve beneficial purposes . . . but taken internally, any one of these products could have a tragic effect.

To avoid poisoning accidents there is only one sure safeguard: regardless of its purpose, never leave any substance in a place where its contents could be accidentally consumed.

Commonsense? Of course. But accidents do happen! (Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children, for instance, reports an average of 25 poison enquiries and treatments every day.)

Fortunately, throughout Ontario there are 30 strategically located Poison Control Centres attached to hospitals and manned on a 24-hour basis.

These Poison Control Centres:

Distribute remedial information to Doctors on the toxic ingredients of virtually all drinkable and edible products;

Treat emergency cases of poisoning accidents;

Carry out planned public programs on poison education.

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO IN A POISON EMERGENCY

* If possible, establish the name and amount of the ingredient taken by the patient.
* Make sure the patient is breathing well. Turn the patient on the right side with the head lower than the hips.
* Contact your nearest Doctor or Hospital. If immediate medical advice is not available, contact your local pharmacist for the location of your nearest Poison Control Centre.

First Sod for Emmanuel Baptist Church On Victoria Ave. Turned Sunday Afternoon

Baptists assembled on Sunday afternoon at the site of the proposed Emmanuel Baptist Church in East Belleville, on Victoria Avenue, at Rollins Drive, for the turning of the first sod. The service was conducted by Rev. G. Woodcock, pastor of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, and the address was given by Rev. Eric Quirk, who will act as pastor of the newly formed congregation.

Greetings from the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec were brought by Rev. Harold Bridge, secretary of the Extension Board. The lesson was read by Dr. A. Arthur, chairman of the Provisional Board of the new congregation and Mr. E. A. Orr, chairman of the extension committee for Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, turned the first sod.

ship of the Conservative party in Quebec and was defeated by Mr. Duplessis.

He was among the defeated when the Conservatives were ousted from federal office in 1935 and entered the Quebec field, where Mr. Duplessis was toppling the Liberals under the then-new Nationale banner.

When the Union Nationale took office in 1936, Mr. Gagnon was named minister of mines, game and fisheries. During the 1939-44 period when the Liberals regained power, he sat in opposition with Mr. Duplessis.

In the new Union Nationale government of 1944, he became finance minister and held that post until 1958 when he resigned three weeks before being appointed lieutenant-governor.

Special funeral mass will be celebrated at 10:30 a.m. EDT at the Quebec Basilica by Maurice Roy, Archbishop of Quebec and primate of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada.

Mr. Gagnon, native of Standon, Que., took his law degree at Laval University and later studied at Oxford as a Rhodes scholar.

Married in 1920 to Cecile Desautels of St. Hyacinthe, Que., they had seven children—sons Andre, Robert and Jean and daughters Renee, France Marie and Cecile.

The family agreed that instead of floral tributes to Mr. Gagnon, contributions be sent to the St. Vincent de Paul Society, a service organization.

Split in Arab World May Take Long Time to Heal

CAIRO (AP)—Whatever the final result of the Syrian revolt, it already has caused splits in the Arab world that will be a long time healing.

The revolt may also ease the isolation into which Iraq was forced after the unsuccessful attempt by Premier Abdel Karim Kassem to annex Kuwait last summer.

As Arab nations choose up sides for and against the Syrians, Kassem may find new allies.

The likeliest ally is Jordan, which announced in the name of King Hussein its best wishes for the success of the revolution.

This move is almost certain to focus the wrath of Cairo's radio again on the young king, who may then look with more favor on Iraq's anti-Nasser regime.

Another delicate problem is that of newly independent Mauretania, which is claimed by Morocco. Morocco was quick to voice support of Nasser and in payment would evidently like Egypt to keep backing Morocco's Mauritanian claims.

Such nations as Lebanon and Saudi Arabia have been notably reluctant thus far to express themselves about the Syrian crisis. While such restraint may be diplomatically wise, it can hardly endear them to either side.

The Syrian revolt has heightened strains in the Arab League and this may be reflected in such places as the Afro-Asian bloc in the United Nations.

ing the world championship.

The elder Dixon passed the word that Bill had won to Eccles as soon as the family got the news from overseas and talked to reporters back home at Brampton.

Young Dixon scored 144.11 points out of a possible 200 to capture first place in the Saturday - Sunday plowing. A New Zealander, Hans Alan Magnus, was second with 140.15 points and Hans O. Sjoling of Norway third with 136.39 points.

The placings of the other competitors in the ninth world plowing championship will be announced later.

The world championships will return to Canada for only the second time in about two years, scheduled to be held Oct. 11-12, 1963 on the Conn Smythe farm at Caledon, Ont.

The new champion trained for many years, winning the Ontario plowing championship in 1959 and the Canadian title the next year. Almost from the time he was first able to walk, he watched his father plow the fields.

But during the weekend he found conditions a lot different than those he had become accustomed to in Canada. Most of the contestants admitted they had difficulty because the heavy rains had left the surface soaked but had not penetrated to full plowing depth.

Dixon was so occupied with his work he said he "didn't even have time to think" about his competitors.

Each country was limited to two entries. Dixon's Canadian teammate was 35-year-old Albert Raymond of St. Benoit, Que. Both used Ferdson tractors and Ransome plows here.

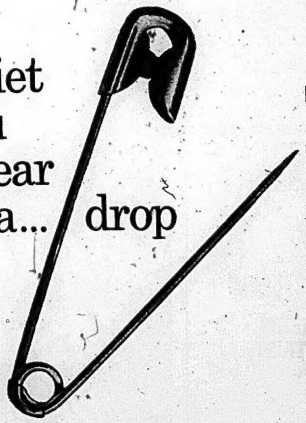
Raymond said he had tough going in his parcel of land and said he doubted he would compete in world championships again.

"Everything was too fast-and I'm not getting any younger."

Raymond, who has a 200-acre farm, and Dixon were greeted by President Charles de Gaulle along with the other contestants Saturday.

De Gaulle shook hands with each of them and said: "Long live agriculture in the world and long live each of your countries."

Dixon, father of an eight-month-old daughter, has been riding tractors since he reached his teens and has won county plowing titles for the last six years. He prepared for the world matches by imagining a jury of experts would judge his work whenever he was plowing any of the 100 acres on which he and his father raise feed for their herd of 80 Holsteins.



Dixon and Raymond both will miss the Canadian plowing championships at the Farley Vermilyea farm at Belleville, Ont., this week because they will be touring French farms.

Recent Public Opinion Polls Indicate Macmillan Govt.'s Popularity Still Is Waning

By DAVID GANCIA

LONDON (CP) — Unpopular decisions forced by international crises and domestic problems appear to have knocked away some of the popular support Britain's Conservative government once commanded.

Public opinion polls published recently indicate that Prime Minister Macmillan's popularity still is waning.

The political index compiled for The Daily Telegraph says the British leader's support appears to have plummeted to its lowest point since the 1959 general election.

The poll says that during September only 43 per cent of Britain's voters were satisfied with the leader once automatically associated with peace-making, moderation and mediation in international society.

This figure represents a drop of two per cent from the preceding month and 11 per cent from the July figure of 54 per cent.

The experts who question the validity of these surveys tend to agree that Macmillan's bright image may be getting a bit tarnished.

REASONS VARY

The reasons, they say, range from the effects of the international climate to those of the recently-imposed austerity program.

The Daily Telegraph survey says there is a growing fear of war and a "significant inclination" to show less confidence in the government's ability to handle foreign affairs.

This is probably a natural outcome of occurrences but it's a sharp contrast to the public regard Macmillan once commanded as an international statesman.

Only two or three years ago, Macmillan staked much in an attempt to keep cold - war temperatures at normal levels. He donned a fur hat and flew to Moscow; he went to Washington.

In Britain, he was given much credit for organizing a summit conference. This was the big power session which collapsed in Paris little more than a year ago.

Since then, the Soviet leaders have become more intransigent and more aggressive. Macmillan's role as a mediator faded and ultimately vanished.

DEBT ROSE

To add to his problems, Britain sailed into an economic storm. Britons bought more overseas than they sold. The nation went into debt and huge international loans proved essential to stabilize the pound.

An austerity program was launched to siphon off extra purchasing power in an effort to divert goods from British to overseas stores.

This program appears to be linked inextricably with the decision to apply for membership in the European Common Market.

The move has aroused a storm of protest from many Commonwealth members. The overseas protest has strengthened the opposition to a European link - up within the prime minister's own party.

It is against this background that Macmillan prepares to face the forthcoming Conservative party conference. It may develop into a week that could show just how strong is the support for a man the headline writers once regularly called "supermac."

PRODUCTION SOARS

COLOGNE (AP)—West European countries increased their production of manufactured goods on the average of almost 85 per cent between 1950 and 1960, the German industry institute reported today. West Germany had the greatest increase, 163 per cent. Italy was second, 126, then Austria 91..7, and France 88.9.

Outdoor Scenes Were Filmed In Middle of Jordan Desert, Almost Impossible to Work

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

JEBEL TUBEIQ, Jordan (AP) — Lawrence of Arabia's feet hurt.

"This stuff," said British actor Peter O'Toole, emptying a sandalful of sand onto the desert, "has been cooking underfoot for about 3,000 years, and it's torture to walk in it."

O'Toole plays the part of T. E. Lawrence in a movie about the legendary young officer who united the Bedouin tribes in the famed Arab revolt of the First World War.

Outdoor scenes were filmed here in the middle of a desert so remote it has never been mapped, under the stinging glaze of a 120-degree sun.

Jebel Tubeiq means "mountain of the little saucer" — a high, red plain strewn with black volcanic gravel, plagued by sudden whirling sandstorms, close to the unmarked frontier of Saudi Arabia and as remote and desolate as the moon.

ITS IMPOSSIBLE

"Everybody told us it would be impossible to work out here, and they were right," said O'Toole.

On the set, actors and even camels came close to collapse under the strain. Wind machines whipped the desert into a frenzy. The first batch umbrella the Bedouin ever saw shaded the cameras and director David Lean from the sun.

The picture is being made by the same team—Lean and producer Sam Spiegel — who did Bridge on the River Kwai, but one crew member said "working in the jungles of Kwai was a pushover compared to this."

Lawrence lived on moldy flour and stirred camel oasis water, but the movie company brought a new, caviar-style existence to the desert.

Housed in a palm - front hut was the only bar in the south Jordan, complete with pretty bartender, and the take was about $300 a night.

Passing Bedouins were dumbfounded to see electricity in a tent, or a pump where water came in by tank truck — 3,630 gallons a week — that treats a gallon.

The trucks used to carry kerosene, and for the first few weeks everything tasted of coal, said a perspiring actor.

The trucks had to grind across the sands from a well at El Hasa, 125 miles away.

Director Lean conscripted 20 soldiers from the Arab Legion and 80 Bedouin tribesmen, complete with camels, to play Lawrence's raiding party.

Camel owners trekked in from all over Jordan clamoring to get in the movie.

The Bedouin riders, who still live by fleece desert tradition, are more temperamental than the camels but there were no outbreaks of the tribal feuds.

"We almost had a mutiny the first time we put them in costume," said a wardrobe mistress. "They all wanted to be sheiks and the robes weren't splendid enough for them. The costumes are almost exactly the same as their every - day clothes."

Offered Million To Abandon Film Project

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK, (AP) — What would you do if someone offered you a million dollars to quit what you were doing?

That chance came to film producer Samuel Bronston. He said "no!"

Bronston had just begun shooting his picture, King of Kings, when the representatives of another company which wished to make a film of the life of Christ (20th Century-Fox) approached him.

"They offered to pay all my expenses—and give me a cool million dollars besides if I'd abandon my project," recalled Bronston.

"It seemed inhuman to me to give up. I had dreamed of making the life of Christ ever since I helped photograph art and religious treasures for the Vatican a dozen years ago."

HAS BIG IDEAS

Bronston, one of nine children of a Bessarabian farmer, is a small, shy-voiced man with big ideas. He graduated from the Sorbonne with a degree in political science, played the flute in the Paris Symphony Orchestra, and became one of Europe's top film salesmen before turning to producing.

There is a great market for big stories that are clean and moral and beautiful. That is what the people of all countries really want.

"And I want to cater to families—not to maniacs."

Bronston's willingness to spend almost any amount of money to achieve realism reshe awed Hollywood's tycoons. He has only disdain for rented costumes, papier mache sets, and other production short cuts. He spent $180,000 building a 100-foot tall granite Temple of Judea for King of Kings. A hurricane destroyed it overnight. Strolling about the ruins in his pyjamas, Bronston said only two words:

"Rebuild it."

COMMON OCCURRENCE

In very many instances . . . even though their present lenses afford them perfectly clear vision . . . people experience a persistent lack of COMFORT.

A surprisingly prompt relief is accomplished through a different, a more thorough, a present-date, analytical examination. Comparison invited.

Stirling district residents stream into new $300,000 Stirling-Rawdon high school which was officially opened Sunday afternoon by Mr. W. R. Stewart, assistant superintendent of secondary education for the Ontario Department of Education. School enrolment is now 265 and still growing.

Stirling-Rawdon District High School Is Officially Opened at Sunday Ceremony

STIRLING — Culmination of a four-year dream on the part of members of the Stirling-Rawdon District High School Board and of ratepayers in the Stirling district was realized Sunday when their new $300,000 high school was officially opened.

The auditorium of the modern high school was filled to capacity for the ceremony, which saw William R. Stewart, assistant superintendent of secondary education for the Province of Ontario, officially open the school.

Construction of the new two-storey school was started in June, 1960 and following a two-phase building program, was completed in time for the opening of the fall school term last month.

The new school is built on the site of the former structure, which was razed one half in January, 1957 and right or less a home-coming for L. away board members were faced with the problem of additional accommodation for a rapidly increasing school enrolment.

Building committee chairman and former board chairman, Don W. Rodgers, said there were 130 students in 1957 and this figure had now grown to 265. He expressed appreciation to the general contractors, Eastwood Construction Company of Peterborough, to the architects, Watson and Weigand of Belleville, and to the many sub contractors.

PEDGIN MOMENT

It was a proud moment for High School Principal J. L. Good, who has been at Stirling since 1936, and for members of his staff and board members.

Dr. R. B. Murray, chairman of the board, said Sunday marked the culmination of years of planning, frustration and disorder and he expressed his appreciation to members of the teaching staff and to parents for the manner in which they had endured inconveniences.

He admitted that the new school would be a burden for taxpayers but reminded them that a good education was the greatest heritage they could pass on to their children.

The Stirling-Rawdon High School District came into being

TURNS OVER KEYS

Mr. William Watson, of the firm Watson and Weingard who planned the new school, turned the keys of the building over to James Johnston, Rawdon township, Hastings county representative to the school board. Rev. W. G. Fletcher dedicated the new building.

Ten of the twelve classrooms in the Stirling-Rawdon District high school are included in the new building. The auditorium, home economics room and shops are contained in a section of the old building constructed about 20 years ago and tied into the new building.

The school opening was more

PRESENTATIONS MADE

Two former members of the Stirling-Rawdon board, E. H. Colden and J. B. Belshaw, a total of 35 years, were honored with the presentation of gold cuff links. Mr. Belshaw said he was a member of the school board at Stirling before the high school in the name of Mr. Belshaw. Mr. Good made the presentation.

Pictures were presented to the school by Lee Grills, M.P. for South Hastings, and by Rodney Webb, M.P. for Hastings - Frontenac. Other guests included Stirling Reeve Carl Bateman and Rawdon Reeve Kenneth Mumby.

Wm. R. Stewart, assistant superintendent of secondary education for Ontario, noted the contrast between the former Stirling high school and the new edifice, which he agreed had not been cheap.

The $300,000 cost would be repaid by 20-year debentures but the annual carrying charges would amount to about $26,000 of which $17,000 would be paid by the province. As a result, the school cost would not be too burdensome on the tax payers, amounting to only to about one mill for capital costs.

He said the growth — need grant structure, announced some time ago by the province would make costs even a bit easier.

Mr. Stewart noted that district high schools were able to offer a much more extensive curriculum and more diversification of subjects than had been possible under the old system. This resulted in greater opportunities for students and a wider choice of options.

He stressed the importance of education in a day when unskilled jobs were getting fewer and fewer and he urged students to remain in school until completion of at least grade XII. As many students as possible should go on to grade XIII and to university.

"A good education is getting more and more important from a practical point of view" the speaker said.

END IN ITSELF

Also a good education meant much in itself as it made life much more enjoyable. Parents were urged to take an interest in their children's school work, and encourage them to remain in school.

Mr. Stewart listed the things which a good high school should do for its students. It should help students to think; to increase their knowledge of the natural world and to instill a love of reading and of music.

Schools should also teach the main events of history and the social customs of other years and should teach students to determine what is right and what is wrong.

Also schools should teach a sense of values the value of hard work and a sense of service with freedom from prejudice.

The appreciation of the high school board to Mr. Stewart was expressed by Mrs. R. L. Hatton, only woman member of the board and one of the Stirling representatives.

During the program Miss Linda Wellman, former student, now studying modern languages at Toronto University, sang beautifully the number "Bless This House," accompanied by the 60-member, high school choir under the direction of Mrs. E. C. Hay-Ellis.

Staff members of the Stirling-Rawdon High School are: J. L. Good, B.A., principal; Mrs. Gordon Bailey, B.A.; R. M. Martyn, B.A.; J. W. Baxter, BSc; R. W. Canon, M.A.; R. C. Hemmerich, B.Sc; L. Allcorn, B.A.; P. C. Hay-Ellis, M. A.; Mrs. F. Lyons, B.Sc. (H. Ec.); W. C. Farmer, B.A.; Miss Rose Marie DeCarlo, B.A.; g. J. Crampton, B. Com.

Stirling-Rawdon District High School Board consists of: Dr. R. B. Murray, chairman and Rawdon representative; Mrs. R. L. Hatton, Stirling representative; D. W. Rodgers, Stirling representative; Harry Morrow, Sidney representative; J. Johnston, Hastings County representative; G. Gordon Bailey, secretary-treasurer.

Lee H. Grills, M.P. for Hastings South, signs guest book at opening of new Stirling-Rawdon District High School. Holding book is high school student Agnes McKeown. On the left is Stirling reeve Carl Bateman and on the right school principal J. L. Good.

Cleveland Man Mauled to Death By Big Bear

SUDBURY (CP) — Thurmon Thompson, 62, of Cleveland, Ohio, was mauled to death by a bear Friday in remote bush 100 miles north of here, provincial police said Sunday.

Police believe Mr. Thompson may have tried to photograph the bear before it attacked him.

A smashed camera and broken eyeglasses were found near the door of his cabin.

Residents of the area said he often fed bears which came close to his cabin. Deputy Chief Ranger Walter Pusstell shot the 200-pound bear he found still mauling the body.

GETS ROUGH RIDE

KIEL, Germany (AP)—Police reported a motorcycle rider in a Kiel hospital today is expected to survive after: He suffered serious injuries in a collision with a truck in a suburb; the ambulance taking him to the city collided with a streetcar; a second ambulance that picked him up collided with a car. The second ambulance managed to proceed to the hospital.

Scouts Plant 2,000 Trees On Corby Distillery Farm

The start of a planned long-term reforestation project on the Corby Distillery farm at Corbyville was made Saturday morning as members of the Canifton-Corbyville Cubs and Scouts turned out to plant 1,600 spruce, poplar and pine trees.

Next year another 3,000 trees will be planted on the 100-acre distillery property, the project to continue until a big percentage of the farm is reforested.

In a brief ceremony initialing the tree planting project, Mr. George C. MacDonald, assistant manager at Corby's, planted a young maple in the distillery park across from the main plant office on the bank of the Moira River.

Assisting in the official planting were Thurlow reeve Harry Pound and forester Ed. Edson, representing the Napanee branch of the Lands and Forests Department.

Ralph Plumpton, Corby's irrific head, Earl Dafoe, Thurlow township clerk and Cecil Ketcheson, representing the Moira River Conservation Authority, spoke briefly.

In appreciation to the Canifton — Corbyville Cubs and Scouts for their efforts in planting, Mr. MacDonald presented them with a flag through Scoutmaster Stan Kerr, while the Cubs received a shield through Akela Kay Putman.

Members of the Cubs and Scouts, most of them dressed in their uniforms and carrying troop colors, formed a V on the park lawn for the tree planting ceremony.

Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Plumpton were co-sponsors of the Canifton — Corbyville Cubs and Scouts a decade ago.

Defeat Douga Twice

Rollins Win Consolation

Rollins Construction won the Commercial Softball League consolation series and the Booth TV Trophy yesterday by avenging both nights of a double-header from Doug's Foods.

The winners took the series three games to two. The scores were 3-1 and 10-8.

Sonny Moloney stole the hurling limelight, pitching both games for the winners. He threw a three-hitter in the opener and a six-hitter in the night-cap.

Doug's Don Holmes was touched for five clouts in the first game, started the second and was relieved by J. McLaren in the second.

Doug's scored their lone run in the first inning of the first tilt and held the lead until the seventh when Moloney's homer, a walk and an error scored two runs for the victory.

Rollins tacked away the win, the trophy and the series with a six-run first-inning explosion in the second game. They added four more in the second off three hits including two doubles and a Doug's error.

Three doubles, two hobbles and two walks accounted for the winners' six-run outburst.

Joe Robitaille's homer and Jim Sheridan's triple gave Doug's two runs in the fourth. They added two more in the fifth and doubles by Malloy and Robitaille backed by Sheridan's homer gave them four markers in the seventh. But it was too little and too late.

The teams:

Rollins: Donovan, G. Duggan, Holoway, Forestell, Keller, E. Donovan, R. Vandervoort, McCurdy, Coolin, Vallance.

Doug's: B. Duggan, Malloy, McLaren, Robitaille, Sheridan, Bailey, Bird, Ed Malloy, D. Holmes, Reid.

How To Increase Your Energy

Why does the busiest man need no more rest than the idler? What happens if you ignore fatigue and push on? The secret lies in simply applying an "opener" to the deeper levels of energy which we all possess. But what is the "opener" — and how do you use it? Read the answer of famous psychologist William James, who described it "compared to what we ought to be, we are only half awake." You'll find his remedy, backed up by actual human experiences, in "How to Increase Your Energy" in October Reader's Digest. Get your copy today.

COLTS SIGN CANADIAN

HOUSTON (AP) — John Bukowski, 18, of Toronto, left-handed pitcher, has signed a bonus contract with the National League Houston Colts. Paul Richards, general manager, said Bukowski will report next spring to Houston's Salisbury, N.C. farm club.

The Training Camps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

National Hockey League clubs fanned out across the country for an action-packed weekend that featured eight exhibition games.

Frank Mahovlich scored twice for Toronto Maple Leafs in a game at Vancouver Sunday that saw the Leafs win 6-3 over Vancouver Canucks of the Western League.

In other games Sunday, New York Rangers blanked Hull-Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern Professional League 3-0, Chicago Black Hawks shut out Quebec Aces of the American League 4-0 and Detroit Red Wings won 3-0 over San Francisco Seals of the Western League.

Toronto overpowered Calgary Stampeders of the WHL, 10-3 Saturday. In other games all NHL teams scored shutouts, Montreal scored five goals against the WHL Spokane Comets and Detroit fired four against the WHL Portland Buckaroos Boston Bruins blanked the Black Hawks 1-0 at St. Catharines.

Mahovlich roared the length of the ice to spark a four-goal Toronto outburst in the third period, taking the puck through the entire Vancouver team and scoring on a low drive.

Jean Ratelle tallied the first goal for New York in the first minute of the game against Hull-Ottawa at Hull, Que. Dean Prentice made it 2-0 in the final period.

BELIVEAU HURT

Montreal travelled to Trail, B.C. to meet Spokane. The tri-umph cost Montreal an injury to Jean Beliveau, who will be out at least a week with a torn knee ligament.

An early goal by Doug Mohns for the Bruins was the only tally in their battle with Chicago. Mohns slapped a rebound past netminder Dennis Dejordy at 2:02 of the first period. The Hawks, defending Stanley Cup champions, held a definite edge and outshot the Bruins 37-28, but they couldn't get past goaltender Ed Chadwick.

A capacity crowd of 8,121 saw Toronto outlast the Stampeders in Calgary. Duff scored two goals for Leafs, while Mahovlich, Armstrong, Nevin, Kelly, Keon, Eddie Shack, Ron Stewart and Tim Horton completed the rout.

DRIVER DIES

LOUISVILLE Ky. (AP)—Jim Clark, 30, of Gibraiter, Mich., died Sunday of injuries suffered Saturday when a boat he was driving in a race on the Ohio River blew up. Clark suffered severe head injuries when the boat, Baby Hoo, came apart during the race hydroplane. The race was part of the two-day Madison Regatta at nearby Madison, Ind.

Indians Fire Dykes

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jimmie Dykes, fired as manager of Cleveland Indians, says the man who will be named today to pilot the club next year faces "suicide."

Dykes, given his pink slip by general manager Gabe Paul Sunday, said the new manager's job will be "murder because there are too many lawyers on the club."

Mel McGaha has been rumored as the mostly likely replacement for Dykes and Paul has said "there will be no surprises" at a press conference called for today to make the choice. Last year McGaha piloted Toronto Maple Leafs to the International League pennant and won promotion to the Cleveland coaching staff this season.

Referring to the "lawyers" on the club, Dykes added: "They've got to get rid of some of them, but who's gonna take 'em? Besides, the team needs a big rebuilding job. They need a first baseman and a second baseman."

Select NHL All-Stars

DETROIT (AP) — Montreal Canadiens have five players on the 20-player, all - star team scheduled to battle the Stanley Cup champion Chicago Black Hawks at Chicago Saturday in the National Hockey League's 15th annual all star-game.

The all-stars were named Saturday by Sid Abel, coach of Detroit Red Wings, who will pilot the stars.

Ten of the players were members of the NHL's first and second all-star teams picked after last season. They are goalie Johnny Bower of Toronto; defencemen Doug Harvey, New York, formerly of Montreal, Allan Stanley, Toronto, and Marcel Pronovost, Detroit; and forwards Jean Beliveau, Henri Richard, Dickie Moore and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, all of Montreal, Frank Mahovlich, Toronto, and Gordie Howe, Detroit.

Two other 1960-61 all - stars, goalie Glenn Hall and defenceman Pierre Pilote, are members of the Black Hawks and will play with their own team.

Abel selected 10 players to fill out his all-stars. They are goalie Gump Worsley of New York; defencemen Carl Brewer of Toronto and Leo Boivin and Doug Mohns of Boston; and forwards Alex Delvecchio and Norm Ullman of Detroit, Dean Prentice and Andy Bathgate of New York and Don McKenney of Boston and Claude Provost of Montreal.

Have you unintentionally "disinherited" a child?

Find out through a

FAMILY SECURITY CHECK-UP

Most fathers pride themselves on their ability to look after their families.

Yet even the most loving fathers often find that the matter of family security gets to be a helter-skelter affair.

As a result, the people you love most may be missing out on things you could easily do for them.

Needless mistakes such as this could be distressing to any family.

How can you be sure that the provisions you have made for your family will do what you intend? Now, Metropolitan, the company you look to for authoritative information on physical health, offers you a way to check your financial health—the Family Security Check-Up.

More than an interview—a service

Your Metropolitan representative has been trained in Metropolitan's own schools and is qualified by solid experience to bring you this service. He is equipped with scientifically designed charts and tables that show you, in black and white, exactly where you stand.

Call your Metropolitan man for a Family Security Check-Up. There's no obligation—except to those you love.

WHAT IT IS AND WHAT IT DOES FOR YOU

Family Security Check-Up

With the help of your Metropolitan man—

1. You check the facts: your pension plan, your home, your life insurance, your savings and other assets. You may be surprised to learn how much you're worth.
2. You weigh your responsibilities: mortgage or rent payments, education, retirement, accident and sickness emergencies; how much it would cost your family to live without you.
3. You learn where you stand. You determine your weak and strong points . . . whether the provisions you have made for your family will do what you intend. You get the facts in front of you.
4. You plan for the future. Based on these facts, you decide what action, if any, may be needed to give you a family security plan tailor-made to your own needs and ambitions —one which makes good sense for you.

Maris Sets Own Record With No. 61

Cash Wins Hit Crown

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

Roger Maris of New York Yankees will go down in the books as the man who hit more home runs than Babe Ruth in one season but didn't break the Babe's record.

The catch is the one word "season." Ruth's season was 154 games (actually 153 including a tie). Maris' season in the expanded 10 - club American League has 168 games (165 including a tie). Commissioner Ford Frick ruled Ruth's record could be tied or broken only in 154 decisions.

Maris hit No. 61 Sunday off 26-year-old reliefer Tracy Stallard of Boston Red Sox. It came in the fourth inning on a 3-2 pitch and was the only run of a 1-0 Yankee victory on the last day of the regular season.

While New York was lining up for the world series against Cincinnati Reds of the National League — opening Wednesday at Yankee Stadium—there was a desperate battle at Kansas City with 10th and last place at stake.

THE FOE 9TH

As it turned out, nobody finished 10th. Kansas City Athletics beat Washington Senators 3-2 and the two clubs wound up a tie for ninth. Jerry Lumpe slammed a home run and a single to drive in all the Kansas City runs.

Norm Cash won the batting title with two hits in three at bats for Detroit Tigers and a .361 average. Cash hit his 41st homer in the Tigers' 9-3 triumph over Minnesota Twins.

Cleveland Indians announced the firing of manager Jimmy Dykes, then defeated Los Angeles 9-5 with coach Mel Harder at the helm.

Maris was held to a single Saturday as the Yankees beat the Red Sox 3-1. Ted Bowsfield of Penticton, B.C., picked up his 11th victory as against eight defeats when the Angels belted Cleveland 11-6. Baltimore Orioles edged Chicago White Sox 4-3, the Senators beat the Athletics 5-4 and the Tigers downed the Twins 6-4 in a game called after five innings because of rain.

TAKES BOWS

Maris' homer captivated a crowd of 23,154 at Yankee Stadium. Maris' mates pushed him off the bench twice to take bows after completing his circuit of the bases. The blow also gave him the league runs-batted-in title with 142.

Bill Stafford, slated to face Bob Purkey at Cincinnati Saturday in the field world series game, pitched six shutout innings and allowed three hits. Then he came up with a 10-33 record and an eight-game edge over Detroit.

Defeat Lightfoots Twice

Tradeaus Win Title

Tradeau Motors behind the fine hurling of Harry Powers and Junior Day swept both ends of a doubleheader yesterday from Lightfoot Construction to win the Commercial Softball League championship and the Frank Follwell Trophy.

Day held the Construction crew to two hits and one run in the opener with Powers allowing but five clouts in the clincher. The scores were 3-1 and 7-1. Percy Long hurled both games for the losers losing a 4-hitter in the first but giving up eleven clouts in the second.

TRADEAUS 3—LIGHTFOOTS 1

A tight hurling duel between Long and Day featured the opener with Long walking two and whiffing five. Day strolled three and struck out the same number.

Lightfoots grabbed a one-run lead in the first on Wood's double, a sacrifice by Rowbotham and Smith's long fly to centre.

Tradeaus struck back with all their runs in the third frame. Wannamaker singled and Potter whiffed. Day hit an infield pop that dropped safely. Pilata hit a grounder to short that was good, loading the bases.

Whaling drove in a run with a high fly and John Casey's double cleared the sacks to give the winners a 3-1 lead.

From then on it was runless, hitless softball. Lightfoots looked as though they might pull the game out of the fire in the seventh. They loaded the sacks on two walks and a single after two were out but a fly to centre ended the threat and the game.

Don Wood's double and Long's single accounted for the Lightfoot clouting while Casey's double and Wannamaker's single paced the Tradeau attack.

The teams:

Tradeaus: Pilata, Whaling, Casey, R. Brooks, J. Baker, F. Murray, Wannamaker, Potter, Day.

Lightfoots: Wood, Rowbotham, D. Smith, Plane, Long, Garvin, Canping, R. Garvin, L. Dolan, Caddick, Jones.

Lightfoots	100 000 0—1 2 3

Umpires: Ebbier (P), Bawden.

TRADEAUS 7 LIGHTFOOTS 1

Four errors did not help the Lightfoots in the second game. Nor could they do much with the Power slants.

He held them to five hits one a homer by Don Woods, striking out one and walking three. Woods also hit a single.

Woods homer, a solid smash to deep left field came in the third inning and accounted for all the Lightfoot scoring.

Tradeaus grabbed a one run lead in the first inning added another in the second and backed the win away in the third with a three-run eruption. They added two more insurance markers in the sixth.

The Tradeau bats were not to be denied. They rattled eleven clouts off the Long pitching including three doubles. Long whiffed two and did not issue a walk.

Tradeau's first run came from an error and Casey's single. Singles by Murray, Wannamaker and Potter accounting for the second frame total. Singles by Whaling, Casey and Wannamaker and a ringing double by Murray sent three across in the third.

Two-base clouts by Murray and Potter and Power's single were good for the sixth inning brace of runs.

Tradeaus' four winners' big gun at the plate with two doubles and a single. Potter doubled and singled and Casey and Wannamaker each had a pair of one-baggers. Powers and Whaling singled.

Long, R. Garvin and Canning singled for the losers.

Argos Lick Stamps

Riders Clobber Tiger-Cats 47-21

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

All eyes will be on Montreal Alouettes tonight when they meet Calgary Stampeders after a weekend that saw the Stamps a loser to Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats given a thorough pounding by Ottawa Rough Riders.

Tonight's game is almost a must for the Als if they hope to make the playoffs in the Eastern Football Conference for which they will have to ease Argos out of third place.

The Stamps, leading the Eastern Conference, took it on the chin Saturday when Ottawa, led by quarterback Ron Lancaster, banded them a 47-21 defeat.

Argos, trailing the Stamps 18-8 at the end of the third quarter, scored 13 points in the final quarter Friday night to end up ahead 23-18.

The Rough Riders' triumph put them within challenging distance of the Ticats, who have 14 points to Ottawa's 12. It was the second straight loss for the Ticats after seven consecutive wins.

The Riders, defending Grey Cup champions, also put a bit of padding between them and Argos, who have nine points. The Als are in last place with five.

The game was doubly disastrous for Ticats. They lost the services of fullback Bronco Nagurski indefinitely with a damaged knee, and of end Hal Patterson and defensive halfback Ron Howell temporarily.

Patterson has a shoulder injury and Howell gashed his knee.

A record crowd of 22,400 saw the Rider victory at Ottawa. Lancaster threw three touchdown passes for Ottawa, while rookie halfback Chuck Stanley set up a touchdown with a 34-yard run and rushed a total of 187 yards in 13 carries.

Quarterback Bernie Faloney fumbled on the second play of the game and seemingly set the tone for Hamilton for the afternoon. He completed 17 of 29 pass attempts.

Lancaster completed nine of 14 aerials for 220 yards. He hooked up with veteran end Bob Simpson for two touchdowns on pass-and-run plays of 50 and 63 yards.

Ron Stewart, the league's leading scorer with 54 points, scored two Ottawa touchdowns. Gerry Nesbitt and Dave Thelen one apiece.

Gary Schreider kicked a Hazard field goal and converted all six Rider touchdowns. Nesbitt and Jim Conroy each kicked a single.

Halfback George Scott scored two touchdowns for Hamilton, with Pete Neumann getting the other. Don Sutherin kicked three converts and made both of the Tiger-Cats' interceptions.

Rain Stops Game in 12th

Kenmors Held To 5-5 Tie

By PETER CARVER

Belleville Kenmors and Kingston will go to the baseball mat again to settle the Eastern OBA junior "A" finals.

The teams batting to a five-all eleven - inning stalemate in Kingston yesterday before rain intervened.

The teams meet again on Kingston's Cricket Field next Sunday. The winners meet the survivors of the Kitchener-Oshawa Ontario semi-finals.

The Kenmors vaunted plate strength failed to assert itself yesterday. They were held to six hits, one a homer, by two Kingston hurlers. They were trailing 4-1 at the end of five and 5-2 at the end of the sixth.

Kosowicz started for the homesters and held the Kenmors to four hits and four runs in seven and two-thirds innings. Bud Aylesworth took over and after being nicked for a triple in the eighth held the Kenmors hitless and runless in two innings. They struck out seven and walked one. Larry Soden went the route for the Kenmors giving up ten clouts whiffing seven and walking five.

Singles by Locke and Goyer gave the Kenmors a first-inning one-run lead but Kingston came back with a brace of two walks and two hits. They scored three runs in the second off a walk, O'Donnell's double and Earl's single.

O'Donnell tripled after Earl singled in the sixth and a walk gave the homesters their fifth and final run.

Kingston's lone error coupled with a stolen base and a walk scored the Kenmors second run in the sixth. Forsythe's single, a sacrifice bunt and Follwell's triple tied the score in the eighth after Pat Asselstine's mighty homer had cut the lead to 5-3 in the seventh.

From then on both hurlers settled down and pitched scoreless ball until the bottom of the twelfth when the game was stopped.

A feature was a daring squeeze play by the Kenmors when Follwell, who had tripled, galloped home on Hunter's perfect sacrifice bunt.

Asselstine again starred for the Kenmors with a homer and single and a brilliant stab of a line drive. Singles by Locke, Forsythe and Goyer rounded out the Belleville hits.

Earl with three singles and O'Donnell with a double and single, paced the Kingston attack.

The teams:

Belleville: Locke, Follwell, Hunter, Goyer, Soden, Asselstine, Mavety, Mozzon and Forsythe.

Kingston: Earl, O'Donnell, Anderson, Carty, Robertson, Thompson, Cain, McConnell, Fraser, Osborne, Kokowicz, and Aylesworth.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Last year while the Trail Smoke Eaters were gathering laurels for the world championship, some rather caustic remarks about their ability to cop the global bauble came from various parts of the east.

The Smokies sought needed help from many parts of the country. Among the extra help was one Darryl Sly, loaned to the Smokies by the Galt Terriers. Sly proved a big gun in the tournament— and on the Smokies' rearguard. In fact he was the best defenceman of the whole shebang despite the fact the honor was given to a Russian.

Under the impression that the Smokies believe in the old adage, "One good turn deserves another," the Terriers have asked the Smokies for the services of Harry Smith, another topnotch rearguard of the world champions.

Perhaps the mental wounds caused by eastern pre-tournament criticism are as yet unhealed and are stronger than any sense of appreciation for loaned help, but Terrier manager Lou Gaudette says, "All I've had from Trail is a seven-page letter. It's got all kinds of advice but nothing but excuses about their inability to let Smith join us. We may have to get the CARA to apply pressure."

The Terriers are reported to be interested in Seth Martin, the sensational Trail goalie, but any move to acquire his services has failed to make any impression on, or draw replies from the British Columbia club brass.

The Terriers have opened a drive to raise $14,500 to pay the cost of extras for the world-tournament club. It is stated some $8,000 of this will go to players to maintain homes and feed families while they are on their five-week junket of exhibition games and the tourney at Colorado Springs.

At a dinner meeting the other night at which plans were discussed for the raising of funds, Gaudette, the colorful boniface of the Terriers ran down a list of player prospects. Included was Earl (Dutch) Reibel, former Detroit Red Wing star, who didn't attend a pre training camp this season and has expressed a wish to play with the west tournament-bound Terriers.

Reibel, Gaudette said, isn't prepared to accept an assignment to San Francisco and is seeking reinstatement as an amateur. If he gets it he will be available for the Canadian team, and would prove a valuable asset.

The Terrier manager told the meeting that Jean Ratelle, the Guelph junior "A" grad, who recently left the camp of the New York Rangers, might play. Ratelle has a head for figures, salary, that is, but they didn't jibe with those of the Ranger brass and Marleu Ratelle was shipped home.

Ratelle contacted Gaudette and told him he was interested in playing for Canada in the world tournament. He never signed any kind of a player form and is a free agent now he has stepped out of junior "A" ranks.

In his player run-down Gaudette told the meeting he thinks he can get the services of defenceman Jack Douglas and Joe Male of the Chatham Maroons. He felt Rudy Migay is a possibility if he can secure his reinstatement.

Darryl Sly has turned to the pros and "Butch" Martin has been released to join the Johnstown Jets of the Eastern U.S. senior league. Martin will return to play for Canada in his third bid for a world title. He played with two Kitchener Dutchmen clubs when they carried the Maple Leaf banner in world competition.

Gaudette said the Jets had given him a written guarantee to release Martin for three or four weeks previous to the event. His return will keep the Wiggy Wylie, Bob McKnight, Martin line intact.

There is a possibility Galt may get Jackie McLeod who starred for Trail last year. He is in the Saskatchewan senior loop but will ask for Galt if he doesn't return to the Western League pro ranks.

Terriers have acquired high-scoring Bobby Brown from the Windsor Bulldogs. Others who will try out are Tony Poeta, Frank Battagale and Ron Brain.

No Rematch

Paret Stops Griffith

NEW YORK (AP) — Welterweight champion Benny (Kid) Paret is looking toward Jimmy Carter and a series of non-title bouts while Emile Griffith, the champ knocked out at least four times, he is being screaming for a rematch.

Asked whether he would give Griffith a chance to avenge the split decision, Paret's manager, Manuel Alfaro, was emphatic:

"No place, no time, no how. When we had the title last time they didn't give us a chance to make any money. Now we are going to make them some."

Alfaro said he had a $30,000 offer to fight Duilio Loi of Milan in Italy and a $25,000 offer to box Brian Curvis in London in over-the-weight matches before thinking of a title defence.

"It was a terrible decision," Alfaro declared. "I told Emile he had it all the way. The other guy didn't do a thing. Emile almost had him knocked out at least four times."

Griffith, 22, born in the Virgin Islands but now a New Yorker, said: "I was amazed when they announced the decision. I hurt my left hand early but I didn't bother me too much. I want to fight him again. He boxed me right from the start. I could do that, too. But I didn't. Yet the referee turned me to the boxing."

Referee Al Berl, however, was the only official to vote for Griffith. His ballot was 10-6-1. Judge Artie Aidala had it 8-6 and Judge Tony Castellano 8-6-1, both for Paret. The AP had Paret on top 8-5-1 but nine of 12 reporters polled thought Griffith won a 4-to-4 favorite to win the 15-rounder.

Maris Refused It

'61st Ball' Worth $5,000

NEW YORK (AP) — "Boy, it was rough out there. I'm sure glad the police were around."

That was Sal Durante, a 19-year-old former sandlot second baseman who caught the ball that Roger Maris of New York Yankees rifled into the right field stands at Yankee Stadium Sunday for his 61st home run of the season.

Durante bought tickets for himself and his girl friend, Rose Calabrese, in the r i g h t field stands specifically to try to catch a Maris home run.

A west coast restaurant man, Sam Gordon of Sacramento, Calif., had offered $5,000 and an expenses paid trip to his establishment for the person who got the ball. In addition, the Seattle World Fair of 1962 had offered anyone getting the ball a trip there next year.

"I was there Tuesday night when Maris hit his 60th," Sal said. "Today, I decided to try again."

"The ball hit my hand. There was a mob around me and I was shoved, but I grabbed it again, down around my waist. Then somebody swung at me and pulled me down but I held on to it.

"I'm glad those policemen were there. They did a good job of keeping the others away and clearing the way so I could get out."

Takes in low by the Yankees, Sal was interested in the money offered him if he would trade the ball to do with as he wished. Maris told him to hang on to it for the time being. "He's a nice kid," Maris said.

Later, it was announced that restaurateur Gordon would present a check for $5,000 to Durante on a television show today.

CBS said Gordon will receive the ball from Durante, and present it to Maris in Sacramento in November. Durante will fly to Sacramento to be there for the presentation.

'Beats Everything'

'Greatest Thrill Ever Had' - Maris

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball has two home runs kings—Babbled Babe Ruth and a modern-day counterpart, Roger Maris.

By decree of Commissioner Ford Frick, Ruth still wears one crown because nobody has been able to equal his 60 home runs in the 154 - game season of 1927.

Maris' crown, however, will have to be fitted out for the bloody head of the 27-year-old Maris, who Sunday smashed his 61st home run on the final day of the American League season, extended to 163 games this year with expansion to 10 teams.

Each campaign, Ruth's in 1927 with New York Yankees and Maris' with the same club 34 years later, had one tie in addition to the games played to a decision. But neither homered in ties.

Homer No. 61 was struck by Maris off Tracy Stallard, rookie right-hander with Boston Red Sox. It was the fourth inning and Maris was batting for the second time, in the first inning he lofted a fly to left field.

Stallard's first pitch to Maris in the fourth was high and outside for a ball. The next was low and inside for another ball.

WHALES AWAY

Maris, who had vowed earlier he would come out of the dugout swinging, whaled into the third pitch, a fastball a little high and over the plate. His drive li into the lower right-field stands, some 15 rows deep and about 320 feet away, and became the first man in history to hit 61 round-trippers in a season.

"It was the biggest home run I ever hit," Maris said. "I knew it was gone the minute I hit it. I can't explain how I felt. I don't know what I was thinking of as I rounded the bases. My mind was a blank."

After Maris logged around the bases and ducked into the dugout, his New York teammates pushed him on to the field where he twice took bows to a standing ovation of 25,154 Yankee stadium fans.

The ball was caught by 19-year-old Sal Durante of Brooklyn, who will receive $5,000.

"It's great, great, great," Maris told reporters who crowded around him after the game, won 1-0 by New York on the homer.

"It's the greatest thrill I ever had. I thought nothing could match the thrill I got when I hit my 60th (in the Yankees' 159th game), but this beats everything."

PRAISES PITCHER

Maris, who had been shocked by Red Sox pitching in the first two games of the final three-game series, praised Stallard for pitching to him.

"Stallard is a good pitcher and he's got good stuff. He was around the ball enough but had to come over the plate when he felt behind 2-0."

Stallard, 24, shrugged off the reminder that he will be remembered as the fellow who dished up homer No. 61 for Maris.

"I'm not going to lose any sleep over it. After all, he hit 60 home runs off some other guys. I'd rather have him hit a home run than walk him four times. I was trying to get him t out."

Moss Wins Third

Ryan Wins Grand Prix

By JACK TRACY

ORONO (CP)—Peter Ryan of Mont Tremblant, Que., just 22 last May, won Canada's first sports-car Grand Prix Saturday with a victory over some of the world's best auto-racing talent and its finest racing machinery.

Driving a British Lotus Monte Carlo, he toured the curvig 2.5-mile Mosport circuit 100 times in two hours, 46 minutes and 44 seconds. He left behind him such world - championship contenders as Stirling Moss, 32, of Britain and Belgium's Olivier Gendebien, 37.

Second was Pedro Rodriguez, 21, of Mexico, driving in a six-cac factory team of the famed Italian Ferraris. Moss was third with a Lotus Monte Carlo, identical to those driven by Ryan and Gendebien. The Belgian dropped out late in the race with transmission trouble.

Ryan, who entered sports-car racing three years ago after both his legs had been broken in a skiing accident, won the VanderbiU Cup race at Bridgehampton, N.Y., this summer.

Saturday's race was a thriller for the 25,000 at the track 63 miles east of Toronto. Moss and Gendebien, forced contenders, traded the lead more than 30 times.

Reds Drop Sunday Pair

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cincinnati's final lineup against the Pirates handed pitching of Pittsburgh Pirates failed to boost the Reds' chances of beating Whitey Ford in the opening game of the World Series at New York Wednesday.

Joe Gibbon of Pittsburgh held the National League champions to seven hits Sunday beating them 3-1 and lefty Al Jackson stopped them 11-6 Saturday.

Bob Purkey, slated to face the Yanks' Bill Stafford in the third Series game at Cincinnati next Saturday, had a fine workout. He allowed only three hits and one unearned run in six innings against the Pirates. However, relief man Jim Brosnan was nicked for four hits, two runs and his fourth defeat in the seventh inning.

San Francisco Giants nailed down third place by beating Milwaukee Braves 5-2 in the first game of a doubleheader behind Juan Marichal. The Braves needed a sweep of the pair to tie for third position, the only place that had not been mathematically clinched before the final day of the regular schedule. They won the second game 3-2 in 10 innings with the decision going to Ron Piche (2-2) of Verdun, Que.

DODGERS BEAT CUBS

The second - place Los Angeles Dodgers, who finished four games behind the Reds, got 15 hits to whip Chicago Cubs 8-2.

Curt Flood hit his second homer of the season in St. Louis Cardinals' 2-0 victory over Philadelphia Phillies, who suffered their 107th defeat of the year. The Phils, finishing last, ended up 46 games behind Cincinnati. They won only 47 engagements, one of the worst seasons in Philadelphia history.

Clemente Wins NL Bat Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Norm Cash of Detroit Tigers and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh Pirates won the 1961 major league batting championships.

Cash collected two hits in three ties in his final game Sunday to capture the American League title with a .361 average. Clemente took the National League crown with a .351 mark after being sidelined the last five games with an arm injury.

Elston Howard of New York Yankees, who led Cash in average during most of the final month, did not qualify for the title. He finished with a .348 mark for 480 total appearances. Under league regulations, 502 total appearances are necessary for championship consideration.

Vada Pinson of the "pennant-winning Cincinnati Reds was the National League runner-up with a .343 average.

Roger Maris of the Yanks and Orlando Cepeda of San Francisco Giants won the home run and runs-batted - in championships. Maris had 61 homers, the most ever hit in a single season, and 142 RBI. Cepeda headed the National League with 46 homers and 142 RBI.

Maris also scored the most runs in the American League, 132.

Jim Gentile of Baltimore topped the majors in grand slam homers with five.

Fleck Wins Golf Playoff

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) The 1955 U.S. Open champion, Jack Fleck, dropped a 10 - foot birdie putt on the first extra hole to defeat Bob Rosburg in a sudden - death playoff in the $22,000 Bakersfield open golf tournament Sunday.

Fleck, 39, came down the stretch with a fourth - round 65 to post a 12 - under - par 276 to tie Rosburg.

Fleck won $3,500 plus a year's royalties to a Bakersfield oil well. It was his first victory since the 1960 Phoenix Open.

Gay Brewer also fired a 65 to take fourth place at 278. Jim Ferree was third with a 277.

Al Balding of Toronto had a 74 for a 284 total and a three-way tie for 10th place. He won $330.

Jerry Magee of Toronto shot a 73, giving him a 294 and a tie for 57th.

Lions Finally Take One

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The lowly British Columbia Lions smote the league-leading Edmonton Eskimos 21-9 Saturday for their first victory of the 1961 Western Football Conference season.

While Lions fans pinched themselves to prove that B.C.'s sensational last - quarter rally wasn't a dream, there were chuckles of glee from Winnipeg, where the Bombers easily disposed of Saskatchewan Roughriders 29-6. Bombers have 16 points to Eskimos' 17 and have two games more to play than Edmonton.

In their moment of triumph, the Lions, who had managed only a tie in 10 previous games, were seen by 30,210 fans, the smallest crowd of the season at Vancouver. Edmonton led 9-7 with five minutes remaining but had a much wider edge in play than the score indicated. B.C. quarterback Joe Kapp faded back to his own five-yard line and threw a 60-yard pass that fleet halfback Willie Fleming took behind two Edmonton defenders and ran for a touchdown.

Not two minutes later Lions got the ball on downs and veteran fullback Ry Bailey punched through the Edmonton line into the clear for a 38-yard touchdown to clinch the triumph.

STENGEL ARRIVES

'The Rifle' Deadly On Targets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sam Etcheverry, the "Rifle" of Canadian football fame, may be suffering from a sore arm but there is nothing ailing with his technique at quarterback.

The former Montreal Alouettes star, playing his first season in the National Football League, sparked St. Louis Cardinals to a 38-37 upset of the NFL champion Philadelphia Eagles Sunday and gave every indication he has the ability to lead his club to the league title.

Etcheverry completed 11 of 14 passes for 146 yards and two touchdowns — a 13 - yarder to Prentice Gault and a nifty 35-yarder to Sonny Randle.

Etcheverry's passes were direct, his faking difficult to detect and his selection of offensive manoeuvers sound. He provided the spark the Cards needed to rally from a 37-0 deficit in the opening half, directing the charge that set up the winning field goal.

ARM STILL HURTS

Etcheverry didn't throw any long ones — he says his arm still is sore.

"He's a darn smart quarterback," mused Eagles coach Nick Skorich. "That Etcheverry called a good game. His draw play and sweeps broke our back."

In other NFL action, New York Giants came back in the second half to dump Washington Redskins 24-21; San Francisco 49ers rolled over Detroit Lions 49-0; Baltimore Colts squested by Minnesota Vikings 24-23; Cleveland Browns stopped Dallas Cowboys 27-7; Green Bay Packers defeated Chicago Bears 24-0 and Los Angeles Rams downed Pittsburgh Steelers 34-14.

Dramatic Program Clearly Designed for Adults Only

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. network television finally has come up with a dramatic program clearly designed for adults only: Sunday night during the premiere of ABC's Bus Stop, a young girl used a four-letter word in ordering a man out of her house.

It wasn't a bad four - letter word, and it may have been the most startling thing in the series' first episode.

ABC's target: The Corrupters, on Friday night, turned out to be just another 60 - minute fighter series attempting to cash in on the success of The Untouchables. It was a pale carbon, indeed.

In Father of the Bride, one of CBS' new comedy series, started Friday night, Leon Ames plays father with the same irascible spirit he once showed in Life with Father, and we've met the young folks before in many other comedies. The show is a pleasant, inoffensive trifle.

Mister Ed, which CBS has turned into a network show on its Sunday schedule this season, is a mild little comedy full of chuckles for people who think that horses who talk like humans are a riot.

One mystery: How does mister Ed dial the number when he telephones from his stable.

Robert Taylor's Detectives turned up on NBC in its new hour-long format and Gunsmoke returning to CBS Saturday was 60 minutes long.

Recommended tonight

Robert Young's new dramatic series: Ben Casey, premiere, ABC, 10-11 EDT—series about two neuro-surgeons at practising in a large hospital.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Jack Webb is "overdressed" by the Army quartermaster in the scene from "The Last Time I Saw Archie", closing tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. Film co-stars Robert Mitchum in the title role, with Martha Hyer and Jack Warden rounding out their girl friends. The picture is "Technicolored" and filmed in "Technirama". Others are Troy Donahue, Chadwick Colbert, Dean Jagger and Connie Stevens.

AT THE BELLE — Charles Boyer and Maurice Chevalier, in whimsical portrayals, glare at each other in a Marseilles waterfront cafe, in this scene from Joshua Logan's Technicolor hit, with Leslie Caron and Horst Buchholz, the romantic interest in the film, now attracting large audiences to the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Carl Smith Tunesmiths

Two Big Nights of Country Music at Arena This Week

CJBQ Radio has arranged two big nights of entertainment at the Belleville arena during the International Plowing Match.

Perhaps one might call it a Flow Jockey Jamboree when during the great evening of dancing and fun is Carl Smith and his Tunesmiths who are coming direct from Nashville, Tennessee to Belleville.

Tall, (he's six feet two) dark and handsome Carl Smith is also known to his fans as "the Maverick Willy Fan," Mr. Romance" and several other accepted similar names describing this good looking, talented star of Country Music fame.

CARL SMITH

EARLY MUSICAL CAREER

Born on a farm near Maynardsville, Tennessee, Carl persuaded his family to buy him a guitar, then proceeded to earn money for lemons mowing lawns. He could play the instrument; when he was ten. At thirteen, following an appearance in an amateur talent show he firmly made up his mind to become a country music singer.

Carl's first job was with Radio Station WROL in Knoxville, Tennessee and came about unexpectedly when he filled in for bass player Jimmie Huskey who didn't appear for an air show. Carl was to hire Huskey for his own band.

After eighteen months service in the Navy during World War II, (eleven spent aboard ship in the Pacific), Carl rejoined WROL. He went on to sing with radio stations in Augusta, Georgia and Asheville, North Carolina, then returned again to WROL in Knoxville in 1949 to team up with Molly O'Day and later with Archie Campbell. In May 1950, he joined the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, Tennessee.

Carl soared to recording fame with a Columbia disc called "Let's Live A Little" and success immediately followed with such numbers as "Mr. Moon," "Let Old Mother Nature Have Her Way," "Don't Just Stand there." His record sales are in the millions. "Loosetalk" him Billboard Magazine's "Triple Crown Award" for staying on their popularity charts for over 30 weeks and Downbeat Magazine's award for "Best New Western Band of the Year." Carl has also recorded a number of hymns including his favorite, "Amazing Grace."

FEATURED IN SHOW

In 1957, Carl was on the road for 16 consecutive months playing one-night stands with the Philip Morris Country Music Show, a tree show featuring Carl, Red Sovine, Goldie Hill, Ronnie Sell, Mimi Roman, Biff Collie, Shirley Caddell and the Tune Smiths.

Carl's latest Columbia release is "Kisses Never Lie," which has been on the hit parade for several months. He has made two movies, "The Badge of Marshal Brennan" and "Buffalo Guns."

The big Plow Jockey Jamboree takes place on Thursday and Friday nights, October 5th and 6th, starting at 9.00 p.m. In addition to Carl Smith and His Tune Smiths, the Country Hoppers from Marmora with Ace recording star Bill McKay will also be appearing.

It will be two big nights of round and square dancing, song and fun.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER
Tuesday, October 3, 1961

General Tendencies: The morning finds you all too apt to get involved in a fixed argument over emotional or financial difficulties. Don't. Keep self-controlled and objective. The confusion does not let up during the p.m. when confusion and muddled thinking can keep you from making sensible decisions. Hold steady to truth, kindness, understanding.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — You can have financial difficulties during the day, so it is very important you keep any promises of current date and build up prestige. See that you also follow through with obligations to loved one in the evening.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Until sunset you are apt to have some misunderstanding with associates, but if you remain calm and think straight, all can be ironed out satisfactorily. Show courtesy, too. Be particularly affectionate with kin in p.m.

FAST HEALING
Always use MECCA OINTMENT

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Be extraordinarily efficient and careful in your work today, since associates and fellow workers are feeling irate and could take you to task. P.M. get abode in perfect order and take any health treatments you may need.

Those Children (June 22 to July 23) — Here is a day and evening when you are wonderful if you should go ahead with certain investments or spend a great deal on some special pleasure. Live within your budget and don't put all your eggs in one basket. P.M. have fun quietly.

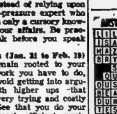
Leo (July 24 to Aug. 23) — Whatever you try to do today will not suit close ties, so don't wear yourself out, but sit and let them come forth with ideas. Do the actual work. Then in p.m. you can quietly remove yourself from pot plan you. Be courteous.

Virgo (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) — While you do not care for much activity and talk today, it is imperative you have a meeting with associates and then get out to make the sales, do the errands, make the calls that are necessary, etc. Rest in p.m. Retire early.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — If you await a better day to confer with advisers and good friends, you will avoid much of the argument and misunderstanding that will occur between you. Heed advice of associate.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) Have you attended those civic or credit duties that are so important but which you have relegated to the background for some time? If not, now is the time to get busy. Then go out to dinner in p.m. at a fine restaurant.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — While the temptation is strong to fly off on new interests and appeals, it is best you stick close to duty and be sure to carry through with any promises made. But first get all the hard work out of the way efficiently. Be wise.



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Follow the advice of a dear friend who truly knows your position instead of relying upon some high-pressure expert who at best has only a cursory knowledge of your affairs. Be practical. Think before you speak or act.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you remain rooted to your desk on the work you have to do, you can avoid getting into arguments with higher ups that could be very trying and costly for you. See that you do your best and most efficient work. Be smart.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) It is very important that you find a more efficient system for handling your work now so that you avoid further and later loss and damages, also arguments with associates or their executives. Remove doubts — get to work with a vim.

If your child is born today— he, or she, will have an opportunity in life to accomplish a great deal provided that you early teach not to get involved in so much minutes that the over-all picture is lost no matter what the project or activity at hand. Much confusion can start early in life, if special courses are not taken to clear the mind of unnecessary debris, as it were. With the right direction, then success and good character are assured.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

You Marry the Family

DEAR DORIS:—My boy friend and I are both college students. He has a long course ahead of him, (medicine), but is getting very serious with me. I think his mother does not like him having a girl friend, because she often has "an attack" on an evening when we are going to a dance, which means he can't take me.

For this reason, my mother feels his mother may try to break us up, since she is an only son and has learned to come running when she calls.

I like him very much but do not know whether this is love. I have seen unhappy marriages in my own family and this makes me afraid. Do you really think a person marries the family?—CHRIS.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR CHRIS:—You marry the family all right!

The boy who is good to his mother will be good to his wife—a mark in his favor! Also, a doctor learns to stand on his own feet. If you have a happy companionship now, it could ripen into love. Ask him to give you more time.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—What is wrong with a girl wanting to keep her boyfriend? I have an unmarried brother of fourteen staying with me. The boy is nineteen and wants to marry her (although he is not very bright and has no job). But the children's agency says no; and suggests the child be offered for adoption at 21 months.

In Sweden we would do a lot to keep mother and child together, whether or not the girl got married.—SWEDISH MOTHER.

* * *

DEAR SWEDISH MOTHER:—No professional agency says a flat "no" to this. The girl is always free to choose.

The suggestion of adoption takes all factors into consideration—the age of the girl, what is a child benefit, the suitability of the boy—whose mental age may be much below the girl's; and the eventual welfare of the baby. If, by sanctioning marriage, the agency is setting up a new unit which is doomed to failure, the future can be grim indeed for both mother and baby.

For an unmarried mother who keeps her baby, the going is rough. I have an unmarried mother of fourteen staying with me. The boy is nineteen and wants to marry her (although he is not very bright and has no job). But the children's agency says no; and suggests the child be offered for adoption at 21 months.

In Sweden we would do a lot to keep mother and child together, whether or not the girl got married.—SWEDISH MOTHER.

Another 'Mild Disturbance' Occurs at Jail in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Bordeaux jail had another "mild disturbance" during the weekend, the seventh reported in little more than a year at the troubled jail in northeast Montreal.

Compared to other "small disturbances" the jail's prisoners have staged, this one really was mild.

Forty men in a cell block for prisoners awaiting trial began yelling and smashing their furniture Saturday night, but it was over 40 minutes.

Provincial police, who sent what they called a "small squad" to the prison to help jail guards, refused to say what the special amount to be kept in the name of the Board of Trustees of a Chartered Bank in the City of Belleville, or in a Trust Company, registered under the Loan and Trust Corporations Act, 1960, Chapter 222.

UK Criticized In South Africa Campaign Talk

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—Defence Minister Jim Fouche told the South African parliament Friday Britain has pledged to protect this country's sea coasts in the event of war with the Soviet Union.

At the same time, in another campaign speech, Premier Hendrik Verwoerd was criticizing Britain's political and trade policies in Africa.

Verwoerd and Fouche, spoke at a rallies of Nasti Nationalist party in the campaign for the Oct. 18 national elections.

Fouche was asked by a member of the audience what the government intended to do about the big Soviet fishing fleets and occasional Red submarines off the coasts of South Africa.

He replied that he had concluded a preliminary treaty with Britain to protect the sea routes of South Africa against Communist attack.

Verwoerd confidently predicted victory for his Nationalist party. He charged his opposition supported policies which eventually would install Negro rule.

EXPLORER STATEMENT

Verwoerd also said he "deplored a recent statement by Daniel Sandys, Britain's Commonwealth relations secretary, when he told a Commonwealth gathering that South Africa's leaving the Commonwealth and had cleared relations because of the obnoxious policy of apartheid.

Verwoerd said:

"I could say a lot about British policy in Africa. I could say a lot about Britain's treatment of people in Kenya and the Rhodesian Federation. I could also use nasty words to express my opinion of those policies but I have refrained from them because I belong that country's own affairs. Similarly, I feel that South Africa's affairs are her own domestic concern."

Truck Driver Had Paid Fine Before Arrest

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto truck driver said Saturday he spent a night in jail figuring out that he wouldn't be there.

Stewart Forbes, 34, was confronted Thursday by a policeman and a warrant saying he had failed to pay a $2 traffic ticket which had ripened into a $10 fine during the four months since he was hit for illegal parking May 15.

"I have many parking tickets this summer I wasn't sure if I had paid this," Forbes recalled. He had only his rent money with him so he went along with the police to the constable.

He had all night in a cell and two hours scrubbing jail floors the next morning to think about it. Then he "suddenly remembered" he had mailed a $12 cheque to cry half 10 days before it was payable for not paying so.

But to get out of jail he decided to part with some of his rent money and paid the fine $2 bill. He went straight to the bank, picked up the cancelled cheque of Sept. 18 and took it to city hall to prove he shouldn't have been in jail.

Forbes, a horse was most apologetic and offered to pay any money back," Forbes said. "But I won't pay for my night in jail."

sharply because of drought and other natural disasters.

The report noted that "there is still an abundance, often a surplus of agriculturest products in the economies of more developed half of the world, side by side with continuing malnutrition and even hunger in many of the less developed countries."

Food Production Not Equal to Population Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization reported Sunday world food production has failed to increase enough to keep pace with population increases.

In its annual report, the GAO said preliminary estimates indicate production in the Communist China, was about one per cent larger than in the previous season.

But the world's increase in population was 1.8 per cent, it said.

Nevertheless, world production was 14 per cent above the pre - Second - World War level, measured on a per capita basis.

The report said production in Communist China declined

CLC Steelworkers Claim Majority Support in Inco To Take Over the Union

PORT COLBORNE (CP)—The United Steelworkers of America (CLC) claimed Sunday they have majority support in a vote over representation of some 1,300 International Nickel Company workers now under the divided International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.).

Steelworkers organizers will begin collecting initiation fees this week and apply for certification to the Ontario Labor Relations Board, an official said.

The Steelworkers, with the support of the Canadian Labor Congress, have been campaigning to take over both the Port Colborne and Sudbury locals of Mine-Mill.

The committee called for a rally for Tuesday, with CLC President Claude Jodoin and Steelworkers Director William Mahoney the main speakers.

WILL COLLECT FEES

Urbanovics said the committee will begin this week collecting $1.00 initiation fees and application for membership cards. In order to make application for certification to the Ontario Labor Board, Urbanovics will be required to show, at an earliest, he added.

Mine-Mill was ousted from the national labor organization in 1949 during a jurisdictional fight with the Steelworkers at Port Colborne. Mine - Mill won majority support at Inco here in a 1950 vote.

The two unions have clashed on other Inco properties since that decade, with the Steelworkers gaining and losing in the largest single union in the governing body.

The dispute has reached a climax in Sudbury, as well as Port Colborne. The Steelworkers are campaigning for a vote over the 17,000 - strong northern local with the support of a rebellious local Mine - Mill leadership.

The Sudbury local, which accounts for about half Mine-Mill's national membership, is led by a reform group that has withheld about $25,000 in per capita taxes from the national executive since May. The Port Colborne local also identified withholding dues recently.

Woman Shot In Store Holdup

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Rene Berkun, 40, of Toronto was shot Saturday after a gunman robbed the drug store she was tending of $100.

Mrs. Berkun was found bleeding and semi - conscious by her husband, Max, and her father. They drove her to hospital.

She was alone in her husband's store when the gunman entered and demanded money. When she hesitated, he leaped over the counter, scooped the money from the till, shot her and fled.

Neutralist Policy To Be Continued By Syrian Regime

Private Ownership Will Be Encouraged

DAMASCUS (AP) — Premier Maamoun Kuzbari today launched his revolutionary Syrian regime on a neutral course in foreign affairs.

At home he propounded a policy of encouraging private ownership.

Thus he followed President Nasser's foreign policy of nonalignment in the cold war, while putting a brake on the United Arab Republic's nationalization program that stirred unrest in Syria.

The Syrian lawyer - politician outlined his views Monday night in his first press conference since he engineered the broken the Syrian-Egyptian merger under the flag of the U.A.R.

Pledging a return to parliamentary democracy, he got a four-month time limit on the period he and his cabinet would serve, adding "I hope the time will be less."

Kuzbari termed the four-month period "a transitional period would allow the new regime "to prepare for elections and parliamentary rule."

DISCUSS TAKEOVERS

He said the cabinet will discuss the possible return of firms nationalized last summer by decrees of President Nasser. But in Nasser's agrarian reform program, the premier said, "we'll remain as is."

The government, which he called the Syrian Arab Republic, will aim for "socialist democratic socialist life" which he said would encourage private ownership, industrialization and foreign investment.

Kuzbari said the rubles in intelligence agency once headed by Col. Abdul Hamid Serraj has been closed and his agents arrested. He said Serraj was "under house arrest" since the day of the coup but slipped away.

Agents tracked him to a hideout Sunday night and took him into custody a second time "to put an end to his subversive activities," an announcement said.

Serraj, considered a key architect of Syria's strongest advocate in Syria.

Kuzbari said Syria now looks to Egypt as having the same status as any other Arab country.

SURVIVES CAVE-IN

MINOT, N.D. (AP) — Dirt tumbled down on Vernon Hanson of Minot, trapping him in a 25-foot deep ditch, lining in a 30-inch pipe Monday. But the 25-year-old workman pounded his head on the pipe end of one of the joints while about five feet of earth piled on him. Fellow workers and firemen dug Hanson out within a few minutes. He was unconscious, but fireman said his quick wits in protecting his head and face had saved his life.

Prime Minister May Address UN Assembly

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated after a cabinet meeting Monday that he may go to New York to address the United Nations General Assembly.

It was the first cabinet meeting since the end of the 1960-61 parliamentary session late last week and the first of a series of meetings leading to the opening of the next session, probably early in December.

Mr. Diefenbaker made no formal announcements after the 2 ½-hour meeting but told reporters he has been receiving letters from people urging him to address the assembly.

It would be his first appearance before the world body since he put-up-or-shut-up answer to Premier Khrushchev's demand last fall for an end to colonialism everywhere in the world.

In that speech, on Sept. 26, 1960, Mr. Diefenbaker defended Dag Hammarskjold as a wholly dedicated and impartial public servant of the world, and said Russia should quit its attitude countries free elections to determine who should be to remain in the Soviet empire.

After Monday's cabinet meeting, Mr. Diefenbaker also told reporters:

1. Constitutional change should be considered to overcome the difficulty created when a minority government is in office. No acting successor to the late Gustave Gagnon as administrator of the province of Quebec can be appointed, and the government will have to appoint a permanent successor soon.

2. No consideration has been given yet to Canadian diplomatic representation in Syria, following its break with the United Arab Republic.

3. Canada can expect another unemployment problem next winter, but this country's record has been better than that of the United States and is therefore encouraging.

4. The membership of the royal commission headed by finance to be established this fall has been "pretty well predetermined," the retired Bank of Canada governor Graham F. Towers, who chaired Mr. Diefenbaker recently, will not be one of the members.

5. He will address the Ontario Progressive Conservative party leadership convention in Toronto on Oct. 24, on the subject of "the certainty of another Conservative government after the next election."

Cabinet will meet again Thursday. Mr. Diefenbaker flies to Southwestern Ontario Today to open two fall fairs, at Simcoe and Dunnville.

DORTICOS LEAVES CHINA

TOKYO (AP)—President Osvaldo Dorticos of Cuba left Peking today after a visit to the Communist mainland. The New China news agency said that before leaving he told an airport crowd led by President Liu Shao-chi and Premier Chou En-lai and other Communist leaders, "to ignore the Chinese People's Republic's legitimate rights in the United Nations is most absurd and unjustified." His destination was not given.

POLICE EFFORTS SHOULD BE PART OF CD PLAN

Delegates Hear Issue Discussed

MONTREAL (CP)—Police efforts in civil defence could do more harm than good if they are not part of an overall program carefully worked out with other authorities, police chiefs from four continents were told Monday.

A panel discussion at the National Association of Chiefs of Police heard that Canadian and American experts agree that a comprehensive, effective plan of action for police to follow in the event of nuclear war must be worked out quickly.

About 1,800 police officials from North and South America, Europe and Asia are attending the conference.

Chief Carl L. Shuptrine of Houston, Tex., said the plan should take in the training of auxiliaries that could supplement or if necessary replace regular policemen in critical activities.

Police would have to be prepared to handle the flow of radiation monitoring, bomb reconnaissance, mob psychology, communications, analysis and looting if an attack occurs.

WARNS THEM IS SHORT

"Police departments whose auxiliary police programs have been thrown together on an emergency basis may have a minimum of time to strengthen their forces," he warned.

Several speakers at the discussion agreed that there should be a chain of command set up so police and other agencies would be ready to step in after a nuclear explosion would know who to turn to as a central authority to help to unravel the resulting confusion.

Another panel, dealing with civil defence, was told that more public co - operation is needed if crime rates are to be reduced.

Supt. H. S. Cooper, assistant director of the RCMP's operations and criminal investigations, said public co-operation is responsible for the country's reputation to the creation of an efficient police force.

"This co-operation is only established when the ordinary citizen-sees how the force earns admiration at the law enforcement representative."

Confer Title On Husband Of Princess

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth has conferred an earldom on Antony Armstrong-Jones, husband of princess Margaret. It was announced from Buckingham Palace today.

The 31-year-old former society photographer will be known as the Earl of Snowdon. He married Margaret in May, 1960.

Today's announcement comes a few weeks before the princess, 31, is due to have her first baby.

Course in Comparative Religion In High Schools Asked by Trustees

NORTH BAY (CP)—The Ontario Public School Trustees Association Monday condemned the fact that all children in secondary schools receive a course in comparative religion.

The vote came after a woman representative appealed for support from delegates to the annual convention of the association and a male trustee opposed it.

Mrs. Gordon Hill of the Chatham Board of Education told the meeting she objected to "all children in our public schools should be given instruction in Christianity."

"And since we must sign the tolerance of our minority groups," she added: "We should institute a course in comparative religions where all the great religions of the world may be taught in our secondary schools."

In June, the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees Association approved a resolution calling for religious education between Grades 1 and 13.

Opposition here came from Monday from a Roman Catholic school trustee.

"The legislation approving religious education for all public school children in Ontario was passed in 1944 and most of us were occupied with fighting the battle.

"I am not opposed to religious instruction in private schools, nor in church schools. I am, however, strongly opposed to religious education of any kind, in any form, in the public non-sectarian, non - denominational schools maintained and supported by the taxpayers for all the children of our province, regardless of race, creed or color."

De Gaulle Firm in Resolve To Stick to Algerian Plan

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle's current policies on his political critics and enemies today that he is determined to carry out self-determination for the belong Algeria, come what may.

In a national radio-TV speech Monday night the general made it clear he will not be sidetracked by bickering political and right-wing extremists who want to keep Algeria a part of France.

Much of his speech repeated the policy he has frequently enunciated to reassure the nearly seven - year - old rebellious but with emphasis on these two points:

1. He will establish a provisional executive body to run Algerian affairs until a final solution is reached through a popular referendum. By implication, he appealed to the Algerian nationalist rebels to take part in the provisional regime now in preparations for the vote.

2. He will establish a security force to see that the work of this future executive will not be hampered nor destroyed.

Should the nation again be undermined by subversion or by the operation of the government threatened by political foes, de Gaulle said, he again will assume special constitutional powers permitting him to "take measures demanded by the circumstances."

Anglican Church Considers Staging 'National Crusade'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada is to consider the desirability of launching a "national crusade."

First steps were taken Monday as the church's executive council passed a resolution recommending the setting up of a committee to look into the possibility of an "Anglican national crusade" in connection with world-wide Anglican congress in Toronto in 1963.

The resolution, passed at the opening day of the council's session here, suggests the study of the Anglican church's observance of Canada's centennial in 1967.

About 300 delegates and observers from Canada and other Canadian bishops, are attending the church council to examine the church's role in the coming years.

The committee to study the possibility of a national crusade will be appointed by the Most Rev. Howard Clark, Archbishop of Rupert's Land and Primate of the Anglican Church of Canada.

Such a crusade would probably include an educational program designed to draw the attention of Anglicans to their contribution to the Canadian nation and stress the need for their participation in the work of the Anglican Church throughout the world.

It is understood that although planning is in the prime aim, a significant consequence of a successful crusade is to stimulate interest in the church would be to bolster financial support for it.

Archdeacon R. K. Naylor of Montreal, commenting on an interview with church officials discussed Monday, said Anglican parishioners "do not yet have a sufficient sense of responsibility for their parishes."

The report showed that Anglican contributions in 1960 contributed $8,000,000 for parochial purposes, a 17-per-cent increase over the 1959 figure of $23,900,000 for mission contributions to wards extra-parochial work rose

Canadian C of C Policy Covers a Wide Range

HALIFAX (CP) — Canadian Chamber of Commerce policy for the coming year runs a wide gamut from building a look into sweepstakes.

The lottery resolution was a direct one, by local chamber of Oakville - Trafalgar, Ont., which originally intended to ask that the 1,200-member group back a plebiscite on the subject, based chamber on request Monday he one asking that the chamber conduct a referendum to find out the views of its members and boards of trade across the country. The chamber's policy committee accepted the amendation.

The 50 - man committee debated about 150 pages of declarations. Delegates were free to speak on any resolution, regardless of consideration of Monday's decisions will come at a plenary session Wednesday.

Oakville - Trafalgar also got a resolution that would urge the Queen's Day Act be revised to remove confusion resulting from various changes which have taken place since the act was established in 1871. Oakville-Trafalgar delegates said they were not questioning the principles of the act, but its usefulness.

A recommendation from the chamber in Canadian Indians, urging bilingualism in Canada was adopted without debate and with applause.

It asked the federal government to consider bilingualism "not only as a constitutional duty, but equally as a factor of national unity and of social, economic and cultural progress."

Monday's session also heard a promote "a second culture, English or French, among their members.

Sudbury suggested that consideration be introduced in regard to survival training, but there was no seconder. The declaration of support, however, urged adequate and properly trained civilian organizations across Canada. It welcomed formation of the emergency measures organization and he expanded survival role of the Canadian forces.

A Sarnia proposal that the federal government ensure only qualified persons are permitted to operate power boats was re-

Six Perish, Several Burned In Weyburn Fire

WEYBURN (CP) — Six persons were reported to have died today in a fire on the top floor of a four-storey wing of the Saskatchewan Mental Hospital here. Several were reported injured.

The fire was extinguished by about noon, EDT, two hours after it was noticed.

Fire Chief Gordon CFSL said initial reports indicated 30 persons were trapped.

At Regina, Earl Rogers, assistant director of the Saskatchewan government's psychiatric services branch, said first reports indicated the fire was "more a matter of smoke than anything else."

Officials of the hospital would neither confirm nor deny reports of patients being missing or dead.

Mr. Rands said the fire was in the top floor wing where patients are bedridden. They are physically as well as mentally ill.

The blazing wing was not attached to the main hospital building.

Number of patients in the wing was not immediately known.

Mr. Rands said there are 1,- 500 patients in the hospital.

Weyburn's volunteer fire brigade fought the fire with three pumpers.

A spokesman for Dr. I. L. W. Cameron, hospital superintendent said a statement would be issued later. Dr. Cluncey was flying to direct emergency from Regina.

Weyburn is 80 miles southeast of Regina.

FLAME LANDS SAFELY

EDWARDS BASE, Calif. (AP) A Western Airlines Boeing 720 fanjet bound from Mexico City to Los Angeles with 75 persons aboard made an emergency landing without incident tonight. Airline spokesman Phil Olson said a complete hydraulic failure had been discovered.

BUTTER PRICE CUT INTERESTS FEDERAL GOVT.

Mounting Surplus Causes Concern

OTTAWA (CP)—Fresh interest is being expressed by the government in a butter price cut as a route out of the increasingly slippery slope of the mounting butter surplus.

The fresh approach follows an indication from the farmers themselves that they favor such a solution, perhaps taking part of the loss. The processors, through the National Dairy Council, have consistently urged such a step.

It is reliably reported that another look is being taken at various levels of the government. The idea was examined at cabinet level earlier this year in the hope of finding painless means except the nuclear race, to reduce consumption.

COST RUNS HIGH

Officials stress that the problem is not only complicated and costly. Some reckon the cost of stimulating butter consumption by a price cut, making it more competitive with margarine and spreads, would run around $40-000,000 to $50,000,000.

Subsidies on cheese and some other products have been tried in the past.

Not discounted in the proximity of a general election which indicates a certain political regard for the farm vote plus an effort to avoid a political issue.

The government now buys surplus butter at the pegged price of 64 cents a pound for top grades and has accumulated such bodies in the Canadian holdings of 196,000,000 pounds.

Stocks 16 years ago totalled about 55,000,000 pounds.

Under a straight price cut to consumers, the full cost would not pay the difference. If the farmers take some of the loss, the government's share of the farmer would still run high.

For example, it has been suggested by the Dairy Farmers of Canada that the farmer might absorb two cents a pound reduction of 14 cents a pound. This would mean a 12-cent government subsidy.

Sgt. J. H. Hatch Now Inspector

TORONTO (CP) — Sgt. John Horace Hatch, now with the Essex detachment, has been promoted inspector and will be in charge of the OPP anti-gambling division, it was announced today.

Mr. Hatch succeeds Inspector W. C. Gall who died the division now comprises 19 officers.

Inspector Hatch came from England in 1910 and has served with the OPP for 30 years, mostly Belleville, Kingston and Madoc. His promotion is retroactive to Sept. 1.

30,000 Ford Workers Walk Off Job Before Strike Deadline

DETROIT (AP)—Jumping the gun on a strike deadline, workers at the Ford Motor Company's Kerr plant began leaving their jobs at 9:15 a.m. EDT today.

Workers at River Rouge, where Ford employs 30,000 men, set up picket lines around the gates the clock trying to ward off a general United Auto Workers strike. The deadline is set for 11 a.m. deadline.

Hopes for a settlement prior to then had been waning as the deadlock persisted over a new contract.

Only vague hints as to the immediate situation were available from members of the bargaining teams as they took sporadic breaks.

Sources indicated that the company and the union both had given a little on some of the non-economic issues. These include work standards, seniority, and the union's desire for a steady voice in where Ford puts any new plants.

Would 'Compel' Nuclear Giants To Heed Protest

Fears That Nuclear War Accepted as Inevitable

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada said today that in a world faced by the "Armageddon bomb" there is a danger that nuclear war will be considered not only possible but inevitable.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green, in perhaps his toughest speech in the United Nations, spoke of "compelling" the nuclear powers to quit testing weapons of vast destructive power.

Addressing the 100 - member 16th General Assembly, Green said its effect will avail nothing if mankind solves all problems except the nuclear race, he added:

"During the last two weeks of September, following recent Soviet weapons testing in the atmosphere, the level of radioactive fallout in the air over Canadian city — Toronto—jumped by as much as 1,000 times over previous readings.

The Canadian said the radiation hazard alone justifies demands for an end of nuclear weapons testing but the development of "more and more deadly weapons" was another reason.

CONTROVERSIAL

He referred specifically to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's threat of a 100-megaton bomb, equal to 100,000,000 tons of TNT, and dubbed it the bomb of Armageddon — biblical scene of the last battle.

In the face of Soviet efforts to revamp the UN structure, Green stoutly defended the integrity of the present organization although coming out for changes in the secretariat and the Security Council to provide for greater unanimity in the Council in view of increased UN membership.

The white-haired foreign minister made these other points:

1. Prompt appointment by necessary of an interim executive secretary to fill the post of secretary general until a new secretary-general is agreed upon. Without mentioning them, he rejected the Soviet Union's proposals for a multiple troika. But the appointee could have leeway in adjusting the secretariat.

2. Primary responsibility for solving the Berlin crisis rests with the four occupying powers, but the UN could play a role as an interim force if it is operating an "international regime."

TAKES OVER BONDS

OTTAWA (CP)—In a move to cut down the public debt for government bonds, Finance Minister Fleming announced today that the federal treasury has taken over, the bond holdings of the government superannuation fund. The measure, forecast in Mr. Fleming's June 20 budget speech, means that the insurance fund will henceforth hold only non-negotiable government bonds that can be cashed only with the government.

BADLY CAR SOON RECOVERED, DRIVER CHARGED

A. Bernard Collins of 160 George Street, reported the theft of his car to city police last night.

A short time later the car was recovered by Ontario Provincial Police near Odessa, being driven by Lester Kenneth Gow, 22, of no fixed address.

He was returned to the city by city police and charged with car theft.

The car, a 1950 Plymouth, was unharmed.

He will appear in city magistrate's court Friday morning, October 6.

West Germany To Cover Match By Television

The big International Plowing Match which gets underway at Belleville tomorrow is going to have television coverage as far away as West Germany.

Over the weekend two television cameramen from Documentary Programs Inc., of West Germany, arrived in the city from Washington and will remain in the area for close to two weeks.

During their visit they will take in the International to film highlights for later broadcast throughout West Germany.

Yesterday the two visitors, cameraman Juergen Schroeder-Jahn and Gerhard Rahn, visited city hall where Mayor A. M. Haig provided them with background on the city of Belleville.

H. Kern Heads Quinte Home, School Assoc.

"Meet Quinte" was the theme of the first meeting of Quinte Secondary Home and School Association held Monday evening in Quinte Secondary School. Approximately 175 members and guests were in attendance to hear a program designed to better acquaint them with the staff for 1961-62 and the installation of officers on the new season for Home and School.

E. R. Valcamp, president for 1960-61 presided over the opening exercises. The school band, under the direction of Mr. Turcotte played selections. Mr. Valcamp called the meeting to order. After the national anthem had been rendered Mr. Valcamp welcomed all present and then called on the recording sec., Miss B. Campbell for the minutes of the previous meeting. The treasurer's report was given by Mr. Mosier, Collace. The report of the nominating committee was given by Mr. L. Horton, Corbyville; Mrs. G. Locke, Belleville; Mrs. B. Leslie, Belleville; Gordon Savage, Frankford; Ross Atwell, Belleville; staff members, Miss Thurlow, Miss B. Campbell and A. Craighead.

The president, H. Kern, expressed his appreciation to the retiring executive and a welcome to the large group present. Mr. Kern announced that the next meeting of the Association would be a panel one with Belleville Collegiate and School on Tuesday, Nov. 6 to hear Mr. Lorne Hutchinson, Inspector of Secondary Schools, speak on the organization of the Secondary School Curriculum planned for Sept. 1962.

The staff members for the new year were introduced by Mr. Reid who gave a brief personality on each person's responsibilities as a member of the staff.

H. Kern called on J. Sisson, staff member who gave a very interesting and informative talk on "The Physical Education Program at Quinte". The Prime Minister of the Student Parliament and the leader of the 'Q' Party in the house, Stanley McMullen gave a review of the Student activities at Quinte. President H. Kern announced that Commencement would be held on Nov. 20 and the Graduation dinner sponsored by the Hoghe and School would be held Dec. 21.

The successful evening was concluded with refreshments served in the cafeteria by the social committee, Mrs. R. Green assisted by ladies from the membership.

MORE FLY ATLANTIC

LONDON (Reuters). — The number of transatlantic air passengers jumped in 1960 nearly 26 per cent to a record 2,000,000 persons. The 18-member International Air Transport Association reported.

Your United Appeal

The object and purpose of the Belleville United Appeal is to consolidate all welfare appeals into one annual appeal to be conducted by the General Assembly and the United States promptly gave it a thumbs down.

U.N. delegate Adlai Stevenson said the Soviet proposals "emasculate the idea of the troika—of three blocs." He said "there is no such world."

Russia proposed that the 11-member UN Security Council be replaced by the appointed General Assembly the republication of a man who would work in cooperation with three deputies now in the secretariat.

The proposal specified that the three deputies would be from Russia, the United States and one of the Afro-Asian countries.

There is no intention of the deputies using a veto, a Soviet statement said, but added that the inexperience of the chief would have to "seek to achieve mutual agreement with them" on the practical questions of the work of the secretariat.

AVOIDS QUESTION

Hammarskjold's development, the council stepped around a membership question that could have caused a major row.

Christie Doe of Liberia moved that the question of the council's consideration of membership for Outer Mongolia and Mauritania be deferred further, pending consultation.

Delegates generally had predicted that the council would continued the Soviet Union bid and nationalist China would have used the veto against Mongolia. Such a move was seen as a possible step to force on a vote to replace nationalist China in the Communist China in the assembly.

Eleven French-language states in Africa, campaigning to bring Mauritania in, are reported to have told nationalist China veto of Mongolia would bring on a Soviet veto of Mauritania. They are reported willing to vote to unseat nationalist China if this occurs.

ASSASSINATION PARTY

In other developments Monday:

1. President Joaquin Belaguer of the Dominican Republic added that the former regime of Rafael Trujillo had been behind an abortive assassination attempt against Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela. But he said the new government is striving for democracy.

2. Foreign Minister Selim Sarper of Turkey said he is against any political or ideological approach for filling the secretaryship. He said it should be seen as being against the Soviet plan.

3. Ato Ketema Yifru of Ethiopia said the cold war is being inflicted on Africa's new states and urged formation of a Regional Organization of African States to solve the continental problems.

4. Foreign Minister Besvoui Louis Lansana of Guinea demanded a complete end to colonialism in Africa and accused Portugal of "massacres" in Portuguese Angola.

Barbershoppers Have Full Agenda

Belleville's local Barbershop Chapter is off to a big and enthusiastic start this fall. The first three meetings have been highlighted by the singing Belleville Barbershoppers gave, big plans for the coming year. Chapters only registered quartet, the Keynotes, who have entertained the Belleville area for four years, are assisting diligently for the coming quartet competitions to be held the latter part of October in Hamilton, Ont. Belleville Barbershop is proud of their Keynotes and wish them every success in their coming venture. Another quartet has been practising for several weeks now, so far has not made an official chapter appearance, hence the names of these four lads will be temporarily withheld.

REHEARSAL DIRECTOR

Mr. Alf Evans has retired as chorus director of the Belleville Barbershop chorus. For many years Alf has been a melodious and diligent leader of the Belleville chorus and many public chorus appearances. Now Alf just prefers standing with the boys and enjoying in Barbershop style.

During the summer months a chorus committee has been inaugurated headed by Ross Shannon, for the purpose of preparing the chorus for the competitions which it hopes to enter next April. The chorus is now being directed by Mr. Don Seamish and several new numbers are already well under way in order that the chorus and quartets may entertain audiences in the Belleville area as they have in the past.

NEW FACES

The Barbershoppers are pleased to have new faces singing with them. New faces seen recently are: Mr. Jack Barton, Belleville; Mr. Ken Wood, Napanee; Mr. Roy Brant, Deseronto; Mr. Jim Atkinson, Bayside and Mr. Jack Lowe, Belleville who is once again back in the fold.

Because of the chorus' big plans for the coming year, an invitation is being made to increase the chorus membership and a cordial invitation is extended to any men who wish to join the singiest group of men in the area, interested should phone Mr. Bob Park, WO 2-3296, president; or Mr. Dalton Kaye, WO 2-9493, membership chairman; or come in person to St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill church any Wednesday evening, 8.30 p.m.

Woman Injured En Route to Visit Son

Mrs. Kathleen Sury of R.R. 4 Trenton was admitted to the Trenton Memorial hospital Saturday morning as the result of a car accident, en route to visit her son, Tom, who is a patient in the Belleville General hospital as the result of being injured in a car accident on Highway 7, Friday night.

Ontario Provincial Constable William Wills said a westbound car on Highway 2, driven by Kenneth Brown of R.R. 4 Belleville, signalling to make a left hand turn, had stopped to let an eastbound car, driven by Mrs. Kathleen Sury, pass before turning. Another westbound car driven by Colman Lavisky of 131 John St., Belleville, tried to stop in an attempt to avoid striking the Brown vehicle, skidded into the path of the Sury vehicle, and the two cars collided.

Mrs. Sury and Mr. Lavisky were both admitted to the Trenton Memorial hospital. Mrs. Sury who suffered certain chest injuries is reported to be in satisfactory condition.

IN MEMORIAM

McQUAID. — In loving memory of a dear brother, who left us October 3rd, 1953.

When God called home, our dear brother,
It was so sudden, we were not aware.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought we'd see him never.
Just to hear his laugh, to see his smile,
For he was with us such a little while;
We loved him dearly, lies our loss,
And words are powerless to ease him.
Sadly missed by sister Rita, brother-in-law Stanley and children.

McQUAID. — In loving memory of a dear brother, Joseph Wm. McQuaid, who passed away October 3rd, 1953.

He is gone but not forgotten,
And in memory always kept
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Those days when we were best.
Days of sadness will come o'er us,
Tears will flow down our cheek,
But there will be no sorrow,
That he's with the heart complete.
Sadly missed by mother and family.

McQUAID. — In loving memory of a dear brother, Joseph and uncle, Edmund McQuaid, who passed away October 3rd, 1953.

Ever remembered by brother, Edward, Sheila and family.

Children's Aid Society Subject Of Rotary Talk

Rotarian Don Adamson, case work supervisor for the Belleville Children's Aid Society, gave fellow club members his classification talk yesterday afternoon at the regular weekly dinner meeting of the Rotary Club in the Hotel Quinte.

Giving a brief history of the Children's Society, which was founded 69 years ago, the speaker emphasized that in protecting children from neglect and taking care of neglected children it was the aim of the Society to keep the family together whenever possible.

The Society is financed by contributions and grants from the Children's Welfare Branch, the municipality and the United Appeal. Mr. Adamson, who is also a magistrate, has put in many hours, advised.

In taking care of its duties the Society maintains a person on duty 24 hours a day, 365 days a year so that immediate action can be taken once the Society is advised of a child in need.

Supplementing the native Canadian talent in the annual "Night Children", produced by the National Film Board which is an extensive creative coverage of a typical night's work by the police worker in Toronto and the action takes and the follow-up required when a complaint or report is lodged with the Society.

Mr. Adamson stated that the same conditions prevail in this community and district with a change of locale being the only basic difference worthy of note.

During the course of the meeting Rotarian George Lanning, recently returned from a trip to the United States, presented the club with club banners for Rotary Clubs of Stirling, Scotland and Finnsbury, St. Pancreas and Hexham, England. He advised the members that he had received a letter of welcome from Rotarians wherever he visited in the U.K. and that their hospitality was overwhelming.

Two new club members were introduced. They were William George Slack of the Canadian Pacific Railway and George Hoag of the American Optical firm.

The birthdays of members Dr. Lloyd Campbell, Allan Case and Bob Brannon were celebrated by the club.

President Virgil James announced that the district governor, Dr. Ralph Hamilton, would be making his official visit to the club on October 23rd.

Admission Will Be Charged For Match

In reply to numerous inquiries as to whether there is an admission charge to the International Plowing Match, the answer is "yes."

Admission charge to the Match is 50 cents per person and 50 cents for parking cars.

Mr. Ed Lawrence, secretary-manager of the International, stated that the above charge has been standard for the event for a number of years.

Reserved locations to the grounds go to the local plowing match committee which has had the responsibility of arranging the many special events and other attractions.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Speculative interest lagged and fell to trials moved to the forefront in moderate morning trading today.

Volume in most of the recently active penny mines was down from its usual figure, and price changes were negligible. The lone speculative stock to show any marked change was the favorite Lake Dufault—down 30 cents to $4.35 with a volume of 22,830 shares at 11 a.m.

Losses among key index stocks brought the industrial index down, but the market as a whole actually rose. Utilities and refining oils accounted for the upward swing with widespread fractional gains predominant.

On index, industrials fell .57 to 595.73, golds .27 to 87.87 and base metals .49 to 186.44. Western oils rose .30 to 97.70 over the 11 a.m. volume was 733,000 shares compared with 1,182,000 at the same time Monday.

In the senior base metals Sunnay, Denison, International Nickel and Rodeo Bay Mines and Smelting all dropped as much as ⅛ while Ventures and Falconbridge gained a point and 1¼ respectively.

Trading in both golds and western oils was light with few changes.

Speculative mines shot to the fore in heavy trading Monday with Lake Dufault down 45 cents on the basis of a poor assay report.

The report said that in the 1,327-to-1,548-foot level, only 1.30 per cent copper per ton was found, and merely "traces" of gold, silver and zinc. Lake Dufault slipped 45 cents to $4.35 and turned over 139,233 shares.

Other penny mines showed dull and traded heavily. Chief among these were Willsey-Coughlan, 161,700 shares, McWatters, Gold, 237,600, East Amphi-Gold, 253,900, and Paramaque, 294,300. Changes, however, were in the range of a few cents.

The industrial market sagged earlier in the day but recovered on the basis of strong gains in foods, banks and financial institutions, papers and refining oils.

The worst losses went to Goodyear Tire, off 2, Canadian Breweries, down $3 and 3/4.

On index, industrials rose 2.27 to 596.80 and golds .39 to 87.40. Golds fell .18 to 88.14 and base metals .32 to 186.95. Volume was 3,510,000 shares compared with 5,843,000 Friday.

Most base metals were weak with fractional losses predominant. Gold trade was light with Kerr-Addison, McIntyre Porcupine and Campbell Red Lake all up fractionally.

Western oil trading was weak.

Council Annoyed at Delay In Work on Police Station

TRENTON —Mayor D. James MacDonald told council that he protection to personal property" committee, headed by Councillor Ross Burtt, had visited the police station upon a number of occasions and had finally decided upon a course of action. Plans have been drawn up; arrangements had been made with a contractor; local newspapers had carried details of the plan. But, said the mayor, "obviously something had forgotten to acquaint the chief of police with the committee's plans.

With arrangements made for the contractor to start tearing out walls last Wednesday, the mayor had shown the reconstruction plan to Magistrate T. Y. Wills, chairman of the Police Commission, last Tuesday afternoon. Magistrate Wills had in turn, submitted the plan to the chief of police. Chief F. J. Taylor said that he hadn't heard of the plan and could not approve it as yet. He asked for a two-week delay in order to study the plan.

"Where does the administration of justice have anything to do with what council spends on improving the police station?" queried Councillor Lloyd Worrall. "Where does council sit in relation to the police department? There's no consistency in the police commission."

PLAN NOT NEW

"This plan isn't new," said Councillor Burtt. "It's the same plan we discussed last year. I can't see why they should have anything to say about improvements. The chief and the men have complained about present conditions."

"In August of 1959 the police association complained about unsanitary conditions," Councillor Worrall reminded council. "Then we started trying to give them what they've asked for for years," said the mayor.

"We're sure sure to get the plan approved," said Councillor N. J. McNair. "Taylor has wanted a whole new outfit for years. I think we should go ahead and improve the building. We (the committee) didn't ask Taylor to follow us around. He doesn't own the building. We've frustrated his plans to get a whole new outfit. I'd start the work and let them get in junction."

COULD QUIT

"They've shoved a lot of files into the women's cells," said Councillor Burtt. "That wasn't necessary. Seems Cecilia I've worked for didn't consult me about improvements. If I didn't like it, I had the right to quit.

Taylor's been there too long. He would be more appreciated if he took off his uniform and mingled with the people."

"Council is only trying to give the men what they've asked for," insisted the mayor.

"Did we get the police commissions' permission to fix the leaking roof last year?" asked Councillor D. R. Fraser.

"No," answered Councillor Burtt, adding: "We didn't consult them about improving the heating either. Taylor's complained about cold feet for the past five years."

"I think they could destroy the old files if they got an order from the Attorney General's office," said the mayor.

"They could put them on film" suggested Comptroller O. W. Leary.

"What happened to the police and a half we took off the meters when we hired a meter maid?" asked Councillor Burtt. "That pretty lady is doing a wonderful job, but where was the extra man and a half put?"

"The desk in the chief office is worth more than all the furniture in Probert's office in Belleville," said Councillor McNair. "Who's boss, around here?"

WHO IS BOSS?

"They say that if you want to find out who's boss, you should start something," said Councillor Burt.

At the suggestion of Councillor Burtt a letter will be sent to the police commission telling the members that council is ready to improve conditions for the men and prisoners, if and when the commissioners are ready to approve of the plan. The commission will be told that the money for this program is available this year but may not be available later on.

Council had planned to install concrete floors in three offices, move women's cells in order to make a lunchroom for the policemen, and re-located toilets.

School Entered During Night

TRENTON — Inspector R. J. Rutherford of the Trenton Police department said today that sometime during the night, vandals had gained entry to Principal Charles School on Dufferin street by breaking a window and damaged the school property to some extent. The inspector said that nothing was taken from the school.

Consecon Man To Stand Trial For Negligence

TRENTON — Following a preliminary hearing into the circumstances surrounding the death on August 12, of Edward Reeves, 26, of Oshawa, Reginald Keith O'Hara, 23, of Consecon was ordered to stand trial before judge and jury during the spring session of the county court, Magistrate T. Wills presided at the hearing in the town hall here Monday.

O'Hara was charged with criminal negligence following the fatality.

Police allege that O'Hara was the driver of the car which struck Reeves as he walked along Water Street in the city on night of August 12. Evidence brought forward by Dr. D. Sargent, of Trenton, who performed an autopsy on Edward Reeves, indicated that Reeves had suffered skull and chest injuries, that his lungs had been punctured by broken ribs and that he had sustained other injuries.

Thomas Lally, of Belleville, representing the defendant asked if the charge against might not have been dead from some other cause when the accident occurred. This was possible said Dr. Nugent.

Crown Attorney Graham, Q.C. called Sgt. Gordon Steenburg, investigating officer, Constable David Camp and Dr. Rogers of the Attorney General's department. Dr. Rogers testified he had examined blood samples from the deceased man and from the accused and that in the case of Reeves, 2.2 parts per 1000 of alcohol were present and that in the case of O'Hara, 1.7 parts per 1000. Dr. Rogers said that, in both cases, this was enough to produce a condition of intoxication.

Joseph Wannamaker, 17, of Trenton and Ernie Grezzano, 17 and Gino Cassetta, 17, of Consecon, who said that they had been passengers in the car driven by O'Hara when the accident occurred, also gave evidence.

The actual speed at which the car driven by O'Hara was travelling when the accident occurred could not be determined, it was stated, because the speedometer was out of order. The car was the property of Reginald Alyea of Consecon. Witnesses set the speed at 30 miles per hour.

Witnesses, for the most part were agreed that Water Street is badly lighted. Constable Ross Crown witness, Harold Dennis, who lives in the vicinity of Water Street, accidentally said that he considered the lighting adequate.

Property bail for O'Hara was set at $5,000.

Must Have Vote To Get Franchise Says Council

TRENTON — Bill Hanthorne of Carrying Place, who recently started a bus service for Trenton residents living on the east side of the river, has written to council asking if council has any objection to him picking up high and public school students and if approval else has a franchise on this bus service for the town.

Replying to Councillor O. W. Larry told council that if the Hanthorne application is for one a franchise on bus service, the matter must be brought to the ratepayers in the form of a by-law.

Mr. Hanthorne will be informed that if he wishes to submit a bid for the franchise before November 1, so that the question can be put before the voters in the December election.

Councillor C. V. Graham told council that he had been in touch with Mr. Hanthorne re bus service intends to start up an east-side bus service on Monday next.

"This puts a new complexion on the matter," said Councillor Worrall. "If Hanthorne gets discouraged and quits; Rathbun may quit too, then the people who want the bus for their children will be right back where they started from."

"If they both apply for the franchise, we'll have to choose and we can put a penalty clause in the contract. If the operator quits he'll have to pay the penalty," suggested Councillor Fraser.

Council Briefs

TRENTON — The public works' committee of town council will install a "cinder path" type of sidewalk up Sidney St. as a temporary measure until proposed recreation work on the street is completed. Last night, council voted to apply for permission to borrow for the necessary funds to install sewers on Sidney and Front Streets. Following this work, Sidney Street will be resurfaced and sidewalks installed.

The town solicitor will be instructed to employ whatever means necessary to evict tenants from town-owned property which has been condemned as unfit for human habitation."

The public works' department received permission to buy a sander; cost, $1,000.

Councillor Worrall told council that a brochure of the town is being prepared by committee to show the proposed literature to council at an early date.

The traffic committee will be asked to examine Bleecker Street at Front and Division Streets and see if it should be made smaller, or re-shaped.

Finding to their embarrassment that a sewer from Sidney Street to Byron Street had been installed across private property without an easement, council will pay to have the sewer encased in cement so that the land owner may proceed with the erection of a house over the sewer.

The town solicitor will be empowered to collect back bills owing to the town by whatever means he deems expedient. Five such accounts were read out at last night's council meeting.

Youth Admitted To Hospital After Accident

TRENTON — Douglas Hickerson, 20, of 7 John Street, Trenton, was taken by ambulance to Kingston General Hospital Sunday night following a head - on collision on Trenton hospital. Hickerson sustained head and chest injuries earlier in the day when the car in which he was driving went out of control on the wet pavement near Scarborough, east of Toronto. He was examined in a Toronto hospital and allowed to proceed home. At Trenton, however, he became ill and was taken to the emergency ward.

Driver of the oncoming, three-year-old niece of the injured man, is in Trenton hospital with a broken leg, his family in the same accident.

Four other occupants of the car were shaken up, but otherwise unhurt.

FIRST TURKEY SHOOT

Open warfare on turkeys was proclaimed last Saturday when a large number of local sharpshooters met at the Bellevue gravel pit to participate in the Trenton Police Association's first turkey shoot of the season. Winners of turkeys were Asa Copeland, Edith Murray, Raymond Brown, Russ Michael, Ron Trumbly and Bud Sashoness.

One local woman, holding a ticket on the draw, watched in consternation members filter out prizes on the market square with horrified fascination.

"Good heavens," she exclaimed, "I'm glad I didn't win. Nobody, but nobody, told me the turkeys were alive."

Next shoot will be held on the last Saturday in November. Same place, nearly 23 rifles with open sights permitted.

Swimming Pool Issue Referred Back to Board

TRENTON — Town council will forward copies of letters from the Ontario Municipal Board and a local barrister to the Trenton Board of Education. The Trenton lawyer, Robert Gazely, interpreted a section of the secondary school act for the ratepayers wherein it is stated that council is not obligated to give a school board more than one half of the dollar for capital expenditure, including the composite school.

Councillor Fraser pointed out that the board could take the issue to a vote of the people, but he said that he thought the school board would not care to risk a defeat and delay could be the addition to the high school this long.

If council refuses to give more than one mill (around $13,000), the board must pay the remainder of the cost of the pool, $70,000.

Councillor Worrall urged council to find out if "a vocational school" could be considered "a secondary school."

The letters will be sent to the board with a request: "council trusts the board will give further thought to the construction of the pool."

WILL USE THOR

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration disclosed Monday the powerful and proven Thor Delta rocket will be used to launch Britain's first scientific satellite. A spokesman said the Thor Delta also will be used to launch Canada's ionospheric satellite into a polar orbit from the Pacific missile range in California.

WILL BROADEN WEEK

Trenton council last night voted to proclaim the week of Oct. 15 to Oct. 21 as "Business and Professional Women's Club Week" and also Y.O.N. Week as it was felt that activities of the two organizations would not necessarily conflict.

Oct. 26, will be United Nations Day and council agreed to encourage local activities marking the 16th birthday of the U.N.

SLIPTREY RIDE — Brothers Benny and Bernie Ramsay spotted a young whale in New Brunswick's Miramichi River and decided to ride it. They rowed out, climbed aboard and Bernie fixed a loose halter around the 18-footer as it lazed in a few feet of water. Benny paddled to the shore and Bernie refused to budge. It finally disappeared after dark. (CP Wirephoto).

Well, because their activities contribute extensively to the development and welfare of the youth of our community the Navy League is worthy of support through our United Appeal.

Through their two corps, the Navy League Cadets (ages 12-16) and the Royal Canadian Sea Cadets (Quinte) (ages 14-18), they offer to any of our boys a well supervised program of training that helps materially in the building of a good character.

Maintenance of the League's "SHIP" or premises and equipment on South Front St. and sundry operating expenses are borne by the local Unit. In the past, the funds so required were obtained through the League's own annual public appeal.

Through United Appeal, these funds are still supplied by public generosity but our Community has one less money raising campaign to contend with — a great benefit to everyone, the donor, the canvasser and the agency.

Welcome, Plowmen

To bid one's guests welcome is no more than common courtesy. To make them feel welcome is something else again. We have more than enough confidence in Belleville and Hastings residents to feel certain that, if we voice a welcome to visitors to the International Plowing Match, they will match the words with deeds.

No host, however, can make a gathering congenial if his guests do not bring to it congeniality. It is a cliche to say that we get out of life what we put into it, but it is true and never more so than on those occasions on which we gather together to enjoy ourselves. Paradoxically enough, pleasure is most elusive when we pursue it the hardest. It therefore augurs well for the success of the International Plowing Match and for the enjoyment in store not only for our guests but for ourselves as hosts, that this should be an event which, if not unique, is certainly unusual in its nature. Here is a contest which has its roots not in some demanding but unprofitable physical ability, or some equally demanding, but equally impractical, application of the powers of the mind, but which lies instead one of the oldest and most essential skills.

Those plowmen who first decided to contest, one with another, to determine who could best turn the fertile soil must have been imbued with a deep love of the land, and with a strong and wise appreciation of the virtue of laboring on it, that the mouths of men might be filled, that women might be delighted with the bounty of the earth and that babes might grow strong by reason of the nourishment provided by its fruits.

Where else today, except at a plowing match, will you find men seeking acclaim by demonstrating the skills of their trade or profession? The answer to a true copy is perhaps the logrolling contests of lumberjacks, but it is only necessary to name this rival to realize how far it falls short of meeting the required standard. There are many shows in which the products of the various skills of men and women are exhibited—but few in which the entries are not the cold, scientifically pre-selected, instead of the product of work being done before the eyes of judges and spectators.

Because it is based so firmly on a basic skill in a basic industry, the Plowing Match provides its competitors and its spectators with a field of interest far above that of mere pleasure-seeking and for that very reason few events are so deeply enjoyed and attract so many people from such great distances. The Tented City and its displays, parades and other attractions connected with it add a frosting of glamor and excitement to the event. However, the essential worth of the match and the reason for its steady and continued growth is that it was solidly founded on the most important source of wealth and the fountain of well-being for the human race—the soil and the gifts which, properly tended, it so lavishly showers upon mankind.

Disarmament

Amid what can only be termed the confusion of proposals, counter-proposals and rejections which have been the most prominent characteristic of the disarmament dilemma betwixt the United States and the U.S.S.R., a most important factor has seemingly been overlooked.

Even assuming that a bilateral agreement of some concrete form might evolve from the discussions, there is absolutely no guarantee that world peace will be assured. In fact, assuming that the two nations involved actually do reach the point where disarmament, both nuclear and conventional, is attained, the position of world peace will probably be in greater jeopardy than it ever has been since 1945.

This is due to the simple fact that Red China, one of the most militant advocates of Marxist philosophy of the spread of communism by revolution, has been left completely out of the picture. There is absolutely no guarantee that Russia can assure or effect disarmament by this nation, which, actually, is her major competitor in the business of spreading communism.

Unless positive action is taken to include communist China in any discussions and actions on the subject, disarmament will offer no advantage but, rather, will precipitate and create a more dangerous situation than ever.

Disarmament, as it is being currently discussed, is basically unrealistic no matter what proposals either the United States or the U.S.S.R. might offer or agree upon.

Disarmament can only be considered a cure if it is universal in its application.

The greatest pleasure I know is to do a good action by stealth, and to have it found out by accident.—Charles Lamb.

Never Heard of Sir John

By Gerald Waring in the Vancouver Sun.

A Conservative friend of mine, one of those true blue Tories who never misgovern but who resent the socialistic socialism of the present government made a pilgrimage the other day.

All his life he has revered the memory of Sir John A. Macdonald, and driving along the St. Lawrence River he decided to satisfy a long-held desire to visit Sir John A's grave and pay his respects. My friend is an unusual Canadian. He sets great store by tradition and our links with the past.

So, bowling along No. 2 west of Kingston, he allowed when he saw the sign, "Cemetery" and pulled into a service station. Could they direct him, he asked, to Sir John A. Macdonald's grave?

The attendant looked blank. "Never heard of him", he said.

My friend was aghast. "But he was the first Premier of Canada! He was responsible for Canada being the nation it is today!"

"That's no recommendation", the gas dispenser retorted. "Try the hotel."

* * *

At the hotel they knew Sir John's grave was somewhere about, but they were able to pinpoint it for my friend only after consulting the elderly employee from the direction of the cemetery.

Twenty minutes later, after buying a handful of flowers from a roadside stand, my friend stood reverently in a little, well-kept rural cemetery looking down on a simple headstone raised but little from the greensward. It bore simply a name: John Alexander Macdonald.

There were many fathers of Confederation, he mused, but this memorial to one of them more than were those of the real father of this country — the politician-statesman whose genius for reconciling and unifying the oft antagonistic forces of British North America a century ago created this country of Canada. And unknowingly he had the correction of a minister edifice the Canadian wealth of Nations.

* * *

He was as much the father of our country as George Washington the first President of the United States. Every American knows Washington's birthday; Feb. 22. It is a national holiday in the U.S.

Who knows that Sir John was born on Jan. 11? Or, seemingly, cares?

If the federal government wants suggestions for ways to mark Canada's centenary, it could do worse than make Sir John's birthday a statutory holiday.

But if we don't do well by Sir John's memory, we'll do better we do well by the national historic treasure he left us.

There are 573 statues of Sir John's personal papers in the Public Archives. They are available to those doing historical research, but the gems among them, like a draft copy of the BNA Act annotated with proposed amendments written in Sir John's hand, are never seen by the public.

* * *

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has suggested that one of the projects for the centennial celebrations may be a Freedom Train, a travelling exhibit of documents and mementoes left by those who have contributed to the forging of this nation of today — everything from Champlain's astrolabe to Diefenbaker's Bill of Rights.

The suggestion is not a splendid one. And thereafter these national treasures should not be recorded in the attics of a dispersed among museums.

They should be housed as a permanent collection for Canadians to see and revere in a section of the Parliament Buildings, perhaps, on a Gatineau mountaintop overlooking the capital.

Strictly Personal

Greatest Task Is to Discover Yourself

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

People are always asking Michael what he wants to "be" when he grows up, and he is always telling them. Right now, he wants to be a welder. Last week it was a garbage collector; the week before a crane operator.

When Thoreau was 9 years old, somebody asked him what he would be when he grew up, and he answered promptly "I'll be myself." He was right too — the most gloriously independent thing to be alive.

How many of us in the adult world can say we are ourselves? How many of us even know what that means? Instead, we are subsumed under our jobs, our social positions, our functions as husbands and voters and homeowners.

To be oneself does not mean to run wild, to ignore obligations, to rebel for the sake of rebellion. The adolescent beatniks seem to think it does, but in fact, to see oneself first and foremost as a person, not as a part of a person, not as a husband, or a male, but as a living organism composed of body and spirit.

Thoreau had a lifelong passion for asserting his own identity as a person; and this passion made him live as much poetic in the eyes of his contemporaries. When he sequestered himself in Walden Pond, many of it was not (as so many people think) to learn more about Nature, but to learn more about Thoreau.

Most of us live locked tightly within our partial little loyalties, and thus never realize what the fullness of a human being should be like. We see through the world sideways, like a crab, seeing it only from the oblique angle of our particular social status, our native background, our special occupation.

But to be distinctively human means not to have a woman's eye or a worker's eye or a clerk's eye view. It means to share with God a panoramic view of the world, including oneself; it means rising above the accidental prison of our personalities, and trying to discover what is human being should really be like.

This is a difficult task, but it is the only worthwhile task in life. Compared to it, making money is frivolous, and having fun is dull. When Michael grows up I most of all want him to be Michael — whether he is collecting garbage or dividends.

Archbishop On Alcohol

Brantford Expositor

The Archbishop of Wales, Most Rev. Edwin Morris, has set off a considerable and, one gathers from press reports, rather warm controversy by publishing a pamphlet entitled "The Christian Use of Alcoholic Beverages." In his essay His Grace calls beverage alcohol "a gift of God" and "one of the good things of life."

Those who use spirituous liquor in fact commit no sin, he says, if the prelate; those who are opposed on principle, as such use and who have to deal daily with the tragic results of the misuse of alcohol, have been prompt and vigorous in their replies. Particularly is this the case since the archbishop's pamphlet appeared, by coincidence, on the eve of a campaign for the Sunday opening of pubs in the Principality. The fact that there are "enormous fiscal reality.' According to his light and within the bounds of strict logic, Dr. Morris is right. The unhappy truth is that the drink problem is not moderation, millions of others drink to excess. The Temperance Council of the British Churches in Wales, the Free Church Council of Wales and the Fellowship of the Cross in Wales has issued, in rebuttal, a joint statement in which they ask: "Does not the Archbishop feel a Christian obligation for the 100,000 chronic alcoholics and the 350,000 people in its falcoholism') earlier stages?" Of course he does, and the prelate's comment doubtless will be that he was referring to the Christian use of alcohol, in which moderation is implicit.

The argument, in this respect, can get nowhere. The trouble is not with the moderate drinkers but with those who cannot drink moderately or who are incapable of doing so. The problem is, and will be, how best to protect the latter from themselves.

Another indication of the severe weather that has been enjoyed during the past month is the fact that apple trees in the Belleville district have been noted in full bloom. Mr. Jack Bush of Dundas Street, while working at I.T.S. No. 5, formerly the Ontario School for the Deaf, noticed a flowering apple tree literally covered with perfectly developed apple blossoms. Mr. Bush picked several blossoms and brought them to the office of the Ontario Intelligencer as proof of his story.

Emblematic of their efforts in raising over six hundred dollars which was sent to the Chinese Red Cross in Toronto, for the alleviation of the suffering of their nationals as refugees, the Chinese Merchants Club of Belleville was presented this week with a handsome silver trophy, suitably engraved by Dan Mahoney, Provincial Federation of Ontario.

Employees of the city Public Works Department reported wilful breaking of caution lanterns and defacing of observations as warning to the public. Two such lanterns on Victoria Avenue, one at Bridge, where the city sidewalk is being repaired.

The roar of the Duck Bridge Artillery heralded in the Thanksgiving week-end festivities and busy here this morning. Reports of gunfire echoed along the bay front, shortly before Old Sol had pulled a pink cover of leave the eastern horizon. According to the sound of the barrage of bird - shot down, the hunters were about as plentiful as the birds.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON EARNING

The only things we own are the things we earn. The gambler earns nothing.

The man who earns is also a philosopher. The philosopher is the man who stirs the kettle of ideas and plants his seed so that he may reap. He discerns. He often does fool. He thinks he is smarter than he may get the reaction to valuable truths. But he always gets the price. In the end, he is a true earner.

No one ever gets anything for nothing. Everything has to be paid for if it is kept.

Success is paved with pitfalls, full of tears, full of hardships. Many ride upon the carved steps of others, but they only know the crest of the wave for a little while. They live to learn the futility of that which they falsely think belongs to them.

The world is made up of litters and leaners. The litters are the earners. They are the salt of the earth.

Earners work in straight lines. They cut no short cuts. They make up time and are rare Society of Strong Men and Women. They are the true leaders.

A man takes great pride in the thing which he knows represents his own hard labor. He knows that there is where his life—no matter how clever—will ever find opportunity to break in or steal.

No one will ever approach Perfect Contentment in this world, but he who honestly earns will enjoy many a shadow of its genuine self.

To Your Good Health

Husband Is Afraid To Admit "Boil" Is Cancer

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has a growth on the oesophagus which he refer to as a boil. The union health centre told me it is cancerous and that there must be a complete laryngectomy.

"He has been going through choking, coughings, headaches. I have to feed him strained baby foods, coups, eggnog and soft noodles.

"He will not go to the hospital. He stopped smoking because of too much burning, but he has not stopped drinking. I can see that it is very painful when he swallows the whisky. (It is painful, too, when he swallows his food, but more so with liquor.)

"When I ask him why he drinks so much, he said it gives him a lift and he thinks the alcohol will burn the boil off. What can I expect?—Mrs. M. G."

I cannot possibly be less than blunt. This is the truth. You know that. It is probably cancer.

I'll skip the matter of whether it is on the larynx or the oesophagus. There is a difference of opinion over medical technique. Two union health centres have good, conscientious doctors, and we have no quarrels with them. Basic fact is the welfare of their patients comes first!

Whether a doctor works for a lot of patients in a union health centre, or has a nice few on Park Avenue, he runs into exactly the same sort of fear-ridden patients. One of that a "boil" is really cancer, some patients become secretly terrified and refuse to admit the truth. (In fact, the patient will say "lets go" and admits that he's scared to death, is easier to save.)

Still better, of course, is the patient who gulps, shuts his eyes and prays that he's wealthy few on Park Avenue, he runs into exactly the same sort of fear-ridden patients. One of that a "boil" is really cancer, some patients become secretly terrified and refuse to admit the truth. (In fact, the patient will say "lets go" and admits that he's scared to death, is easier to save.)

3. Green warmly commended President Kennedy's "flexible" disarmament plan, which Canada helped formulate. But details need not decide now between rival American and Soviet plans—the important thing is a resumption of negotiations.

4. Space travel has made impressive laws to govern outer space—a matter on which the U.S. and Russia have made no progress. Green outlined several proposals, including "means for registering and identifying space launchings."

5. The UN is facing bankruptcy and peacekeeping efforts in The Congo "and the Middle East are imperilled. Canada has the "greatest understanding" for those UN members who would pay but cannot, but no sympathy for the few who can pay but will not.

6. Canada invites greater participation in the world-wide reflective effort; spoke it intimated in 1959 to promote greater understanding of the hazards of mediation.

Green's policy speech was released to the press before delivery.

MOST INSIDE

The Canadian declarati

"In my view, this assembly and world opinion must insist that there be no further testing of nuclear weapons. The time has come when it is not sufficient merely to express concern and to record blame.

"We must find means of compelling the countries responsible to cease the testing of nuclear weapons. Whatever success we may achieve in respect of other grave issues will, I fear, be of little comfort to mankind if we fail to dispel forever the ominous and lower clouds of radio-activity which hang over this and unborn generations."

Green said in his summation: "At this session the outlook is darkened by the grave dangers the world is facing and by the serious internal problems of this organization.

"Peoples everywhere are watching these developments fearfully. They are asking themselves whether nuclear war, which in recent years has been considered unthinkable, now is not only being considered possible but is accepted as inevitable."

Some of the points in the speech had been touched upon earlier in Parliament by Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Green but today's talk enabled him to put Canada's views directly before key ministers and ambassadors from around the world.

NEEDS AGREEMENT

Canada's proposals on Berlin have already excited some world comment, after they were first outlined by Diefenbaker, and Green stressed again that UN action would depend on four-power agreement.

One possibility was that the UN might be asked by the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France to create a regime for East and West Berlin. Khrushchev has demanded that West Berlin be made a "free city," and he held out the possibility of UN troops being stationed there but not in East Berlin.

On radiation, Green said Canadian samplings have shown there is "real cause for the gravest concern."

"Whereas in the week ending Sept. 10 the fallout level recorded anywhere in Canada was 30 disintegrations per minute per cubic metre, in the next week the following high readings were recorded: Ottawa—90 units; Montreal—100; Fredericton — 140; Windsor — 260; and Toronto—470."

Green singled out Russia's nuclear blasts in the atmosphere but stressed Canada opposes such tests anywhere—including the U.S. blasts conducted underground.

URGES CHANGE

FREDERICTON (CP) — Arthur G. Sullivan, president of the Canadian Construction Association, said Monday night many public bodies are using tendering and contract documents that have been virtually unchanged over the last 50 years. He said these contain clauses "completely unfair" to the contractor. He urged public bodies to adopt the Canadian standard forms of construction tender and contract.

Approval was given to a Sudbury resolution recommending fuller utilization of forest stands by encouraging new woodworking industries and the growth of present industries to fully utilize the annual forest growth.

A Brantford proposal for establishment of a federal department of industry, headed by a minister, was defeated.

J. E. Sexsmith of London, Ont., said there is too much government spending. Delegates from Windsor said there is already a department of trade and commerce and a minister responsible; no council has been established.

The sale of annuities and the operation of post office savings accounts—by the federal government, should be discontinued, the grabby committee of the chamber urged.

AIMS PUBLICITY

The recommendation was contained in a declaration on the subject of government in business. It asked that auditor-general's reports be published the full costs of the various government enterprises competing with private business.

A recommendation on national health and welfare services said that future financial assistance by the federal government should be directed only to those areas in which the expense of illness is clearly beyond the means of the individual.

Federation said it attained and the preservation of personal health should be a primary objective for the Canadian people and what to this end the effort of the individual is vitally important.

The St. Catharines delegation made a strong appearance on the floor a more definitely worded declaration. It said the welfare state and accompanying increasing taxation is inhibiting industrial expansion and diminishing job opportunity. It added that any extension of government medical plans would hinder the freedom of the patient to choose his own doctor or dentist and would depress the standard of practice.

St. Catharines' suggestions were opposed partly on the ground that they might embarrass recommendations which the chamber will submit to the royal commission on health services. Its proposals were defeated.

KOREA'S FALLOUT UP

SEOUL (AP)—The South Korean atomic energy agency reported today it detected up to 16 times as much radioactivity as normally permissible for human beings in rain that fell Saturday. The Syrian Arab Republic, he said, has formally applied for membership in the United Nations and also in the Arab League. Nasser has a strong voice in the league and is sure to oppose Syria's application.

"We are not with the West or the East," the premier declared. "Syria is with every country that extends the hand of friendship."

Kuzbari said foreign consuls here have been handed official notification of the new regime and he hopes for more recognitions.

Jordan, Turkey, Nationalist China, Guatemala and Iran were the first to recognize the Kuzbari government.

Kuzbari said the first he knew of the coup last Thursday was "When I heard the shooting and from the radio." The military command, he said, had pledged "not to interfere in politics" and promised to restrict its activities to defence measures.

SAYS CASUALTIES FEW

The premier listed one killed and "two or three" wounded in the revolt, when he said, Fleet Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer, the U.A.R. commander, fired on Syrians who sought to arrest him. Total casualties, he asserted, were "not worth mentioning."

Revolutionary troops, Kuzbari said, gained full control of Damascus within four hours after the coup was launched.

An air of tranquility hung over the capital as Kuzbari spoke. Shoppers jammed the streets, bars and the streets were calm.

The premier scoffed at claims by Egypt of fighting here and in the northern city of Aleppo.

The new regime, he said, found 3,000 persons had been illegally imprisoned by Egypt and released most of them. He said the others were still under investigation.

Wartime Air Chiefs Hit Back at Book

By WILLIAM DUNN

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's wartime air chiefs hit back Monday in a bitter controversy over a new official history of the bombing offensive against Nazi Germany. The history claims the aerial campaign was a "costly failure" for three quarters of the Second World War.

Sir Arthur (Bomber) Harris, ex-chief of Royal Air Force and wartime chief of the Bomber Command, joined with Air Vice-Marshal Donald Bennett in protesting against alleged inaccuracies and omissions in the history entitled The Strategic Air Offensive Against Germany, 1939-1945.

Harris emerged from his self-imposed obscurity at his Thamesside home to condemn the history as "biased from cover to cover."

He told reporters the night bombing attack by the RAF that killed more than 1,000,000 Germans contributed decisively to the Allied victory.

SAYS UNGRATEFUL

Bennett, who commanded the famed RAF Pathfinder force, said "This cool, critical and inaccurate history is, to say the least, an astonishing act of ingratitude."

The 1,700-page, four - volume history was compiled by the late Sir Charles Webster and Dr. Noble Frankland, director of the Imperial War Museum and a former member of the Bomber Command.

The authors wrote that the Bomber Command started "terror raids" on cities because it was incapable of hitting anything smaller.

The authors also came under fire Monday from other air chiefs including Air Marshal Sir Robert Saundby who has a book ready for publication next month that aims at refuting the history.

Saundby told reporters the authors dwelt "disproportionately on the difficulties and failures" of the aerial campaign.

Balance of Terror Should Continue Says Scientist

KINGSTON (CP)—A leading Canadian political scientist suggested Monday night that the best hope of peace for the moment is to continue the present balance of terror between East and West.

"If we had not had nuclear weapons in the last 15 years, the West and Russia would quite likely have been at war before this," said Dr. J. A. Corry, political scientist and principal of Queen's University here.

He was speaking on the subject of disarmament to the final banquet of the United Federation of Canadian University Students' annual congress.

As he spoke, his speech was translated into Russian by one of two visiting Soviet students for the benefit of the other, who speaks no English.

Dr. Corry said continued development of nuclear weapons will hold the West and Russia at an impasse, forcing them into a search for peaceful settlement.

UNTIL CHINA RISES

"Time changes the face of every problem," he said, "and the tension built up between the West and Russia — the cause of the arms race — could conceivably be affected by the rise of China as a great power."

Dr. Corry maintained that Canada's role is to show that western society deserves the right to survive, and that it gives the opportunity to live freely and without inequality.

One Russian student pleaded for greater understanding between students of the Soviet Union and Canada, and an effort to promote peace by disarmament.

Yuri Mashin and Alexandre Lebedev of Moscow University were attending the congress as observers.

Mr. Lebedev told the meeting in English: "We think it is high time to put an end to a situation that creates tension and could unfortunately lead to a new world war."

Walter McLean, 27, of Toronto was elected president of the 83,000 - member NFCUS.

How To Increase Your Energy

Why does the busiest man need no more rest than the idler? What happens if you ignore fatigue and push on? The secret lies in simply applying an "opener" to the deeper levels of energy which we all possess. But what is this "opener"... and how do you use it? Read the answers of famous psychologist William James, who says: "Compared to what we ought to be, we are only half awake." You'll find his remedy, backed up by actual human experience, in "How to Increase Your Energy" in October Reader's Digest. Get your copy today.

Weddings

LUCCIOLA — DUFF

A very pretty autumn wedding was solemnized in Hastings Presbyterian Church, Hastings, Ontario, by the Reverend J. Rutherford on Saturday when Bonnie Jean Duff, of Hastings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Duff, was united in marriage to John Arthur Luccilola, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Luccilola. Baskets of mixed flowers adorned the chancel, and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

The traditional wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Peter Swarts, who accompanied Mr. Peter Swarts in his rendition of "O Perfect Love" before the ceremony and "Walk Hand in Hand With God" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked charming in a bridal floor-length gown of white lace and satin featuring a modified bodice having a round-cut neckline accented with sequins, and long sleeves pointed over the wrists. The satin skirt fell in graceful folds. Her shoulder-length veil of silk illusion tulle was held in place by a mohair tiara studded with tiny crystals and seed pearls. She carried a white Bible crested with feathered chrysanthemums.

The matron of honor, Miss Ken Adams, sister of the bride, and the two bridesmaids, Miss Lois Dickey and Miss Sharon Luccilola, were identically gowned in deep blue silk organza enhanced with rounded necklines and tiny sleeves, emphasized with a fully bonfant under-skirt over taffeta, caught at the waistline with single roses. They wore pearl bow style headdresses accented with single roses and complemented with over-the-face veils, white accessories, and carried bouquets of yellow 'mums.

The little flower girl, Miss Vicky Blackburn, young niece of the bride, was demure in her short white nylon frock, with linlac sash ending in a large back bow. Her headdress was a tiny sprcy of 'mums, and she carried a cascade bouquet of mauve 'mums.

Mr. Donald Jackson of Belleville, was groomsman, while Messrs. Fred Duff, brother of the bride, and Gordon Donnely, both of Belleville, were ushers.

The reception, which followed the ceremony, was held in the church parlors, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a royal blue brocaded taffeta with beige accessories and corsage of pink carnations. The bridegroom's mother chose a gown in sheath style of magenta crepe with matching accessories, and corsage of white 'mums.

For the wedding trip, the bride wore a two-piece ensemble in brown, with green accessories and corsage of yellow 'mums.

Guests attended from Toronto, Belleville, Ida, Tallaway, Campbellford, Hastings, Orono, Cresswell and Keene.

Mr. and Mrs. Luccilola will reside at 49 Graham Street, Belleville.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained at miscellaneous showers held at the homes of Mrs. William MacCallum; Mrs. Trevor Duff and Mrs. Lois Dickey as hostesses, all of Hastings, and at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Donald Jackson, Belleville.

Club Activities

C.A.'s

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle C.A.'s held the regular meeting the evening of September 26th. Vice-president Gordon Smith opened the service with the C.A. chorus and Mrs. Les Reilly led in prayer.

The Scripture reading was read by Robert Grant, Psalm 30. President, Keith Helm led the song service followed by Miss Gloria Reilly leading in Testimonies. Miss Lois Wright led in choruses. The offering was received by ushers-ette Linda Fisher and Gloria Reilly. Mr. and Mrs. Keith Heim sang a duet, "All That Thrills My Soul Is Jesus". Mrs. Fred Spring brought the evening's message from Hebrews, Ch. 25-26 and Exodus, 10-26, speaking on "Compromising".

Fatigue That Overtakes Mothers of Big Families Now Concern of Doctors

VANCOUVER (CP) Doctors in Vancouver's Metropolitan health unit, whose main concern is children, are trying to find the solution to another problem — the fatigue that overtakes mothers of large families.

Hundreds of women here suffer from it, they say. Pills were not the answer and perhaps the solution lay in more kindergartens for the kids and more nurseries for the older children.

The school board is operating 23 new kindergartens this year. But Community Chest cuts in the health unit budget will reduce the number of nurses open for summer camps.

Dr. Helena Willits, Vancouver medical officer of health whose special interest is the schoolchildren, says:

"When you think of the work load of some of the mothers, it is no wonder they are fatigued, especially if they have four or five children and they are not in school. Even modern appliances don't help enough.

"A lot of working mothers actually had two jobs. When they came home they started a second job, they had another day's work at home.

"I think we said it is shocking the number of women who are raising families alone and have to go out to work while someone else looks after the children.

Dr. Jean Shepherd said that in addition to physical tiredness, emotional problems sometimes are involved in fatigue.

The problem is worst in the Mole Hill district in the East End, Dorothy Shields, supervisor of No. 1 health unit. The families there have many children and little help.

Dr. Susan McMaster, who heads the city's newest health unit, is one of those who feels sending more children to camp might help. It was essential that mothers have at least some time free of the children they are raising a family, especially when there was little money and many children.

Beautiful Fabrics Basic Ingredients of Clothes

By PEGGY MASSEY

PARIS (Reuters)—The painstaking work that goes into the creation of just the right fabric for just the right dress passes unnoticed by most women attending Paris fashion shows.

A designer may inspect as many as 50 seemingly similar bolts of black fabric before choosing just the right crepe he needs to create that "little nothing dress" the customers ask for so regularly.

The untrained eye judges the cloth on a wider, without realizing that fabrics and silhouettes are as closely related as Siamese twins. Had Balenciaga's "little black nothing" been made in any other fabric than the one chosen, the incomparable result might look like something lumpy ingredient of Paris fashion. The substitution of an unsuitable, or poor quality fabric is the reason why "line for line" copies of French models, no matter how skilfully reproduced, often lose their original flair when made from the Paris couture salon to the department store.

Paris couturiers are acknowledged lovers of luxury. To create the new winter collections, designers have used the finest and most costly fabrics in the world.

This season, the emphasis on luxury and rich fabrics reached the highest pinnacle. Evening fashions in solid paved embroidered metallic patterned silks, or the "18-carat gold look" of gold and black beading, suggest that the gold reserves of the world have become the inspiration of fashion.

And with rising French labor costs for embroidery and handwork, the richest needs may be met by his own gold bullion vault to buy them.

Secondary H-S to Hold General Meet

Moira Secondary Home and School Association will hold its first general meeting Thursday evening in the school auditorium.

The program will be "Back to School for Parents".

Since the teaching staff is giving time to be in the classrooms parents should attend, and, avail themselves of an opportunity to become better acquainted with the teachers, the curriculum and the school routine.

Refreshments will be served at the end of the program.

'Parents' Role In Education' Talk at H-S

The September meeting of the Bayside Home and School was held the evening of 25th, with the new president, Mr. George Miller in the chair. Mrs. M. Cowan read minutes of secretary. The treasurer's report showed a balance of $163.48.

Before the meeting, the parents met with their children's teachers.

Mr. C. Bird had on display four pictures which are to be given to the rooms making the most progress in music.

Mrs. J. Palmer volunteered to act as one social convener.

Mr. Hartwick spoke on behalf of the Boy Scout Association. He urged the support of the fathers. Mrs. Fell, Mr. Gibson, Mr. G. Jones, Mr. Harvel and Mrs. Heyward are on the advisory committee.

Mrs. George Caves said a girl Guide Captain was needed.

Mr. Denyes' room won the room count.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. Bird introduced the guest speaker, Mr. R. A. Dawson, inspector of Public Schools, who spoke on "The Role of the Parent in Education". He said in part that "the attitude and behavior of a child at school depends on home training, and that parents should teach their children to take their place in the world, make decisions and adjust to their environment."

Mr. Miller thanked the speaker.

A social period followed with lunch served by Mrs. Fell, Mrs. Miller, and some other mothers.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. LeTourneau are shown beside their personal plane at Trenton Airport following the close of the recent Youth for Christ meeting at the Belleville Collegiate where Mr. LeTourneau was the principal speaker on Sunday afternoon. They are about to leave for Longview, Texas, to attend the evening service at their home church. The LeTourneau family is holding open house and presented to her at the meeting by little Miss Heather Brooks.

Belleville Presbyterial WMS Meets in Bridge St. United

Mrs. George Carlisle of Stirling, presided at the fall executive meeting of the Belleville Presbyterial W.M.S. held at Bridge St. United Church, when the dates of the fall rallies were set, and various plans were made in the final stages of the annual meeting in May.

The opening devotional was led by Mrs. Dale Finkle of Foxboro, using as her topic, "The Fruitful Vine," as related in John 15:1-8.

Mrs. R. G. Coulter, treasurer, reported that although Belleville made its allocation last year when most other presbyterials failed, this year's allocation still had more than half to raise.

Mrs. Davis, stewardship secretary, appealed to the ladies to continue to be faithful stewards. The literature secretary, Mrs. P. MacMillan, introduced the book by Jessie packet which will be used in 1962 also. Mrs. H. Pierson, of Wellington, announced that there will no longer be a publication of Missionary Monthly but the items contained therein may be included in the United Church Observer.

Mrs. C. R. Hicks, of Wellington, reported that there are 22 C.G.I.T. groups in the Presbyterial. Mrs. Don Williams, Belleville, reported 12 Explorer groups affiliating this year. There are 10 Mission Bands throughout the area and four Baby Bands. Miss Hettie Ungar, candidate secretary, said that she had been busy carrying out skit shops in Trenton and Picton and expected to be busy at various organizations.

Mrs. Nesbitt McGillen, Christian citizenship secretary, spoke at St. Andrew's W.M.S. in Oshawa recently at their meetings. Bridge St. W.M.S. was thanked for the noon meal.

RALLY DATES

After lunch, the rallies were discussed. The following rally dates and places were decided upon: Belleville West, October 18th at Bridge St. United Church; Belleville East, October 25th, Shannonville Union Section, October 20th, at Hazards; Prince Edward, October 23rd, at Consecon; Napanee North, October 24th, at Napanee; Napanee South, October 25th at Bethel Church.

The next executive meeting has been invited to meet at Foxboro United Church, January 22nd, 1962, to review the final reports for 1961 and to wind up any old business. Nominating reports will have to be compiled and forwarded to Conference Branch by early February so their executive which meets in Kingston can deal with them. The date on the report forms will be changed to December 31st.

Mrs. Carlisle closed with the farewell message of the Dean of the School for Leaders at Whitby, Ontario. "Let this be a high mountain, Jesus calls us to minister and bring through the new organization".

Install New St. Joseph's PTA Officers

The recent general meeting of St. Joseph P.T.A. was opened by the Rev. J. J. Buckley, Spiritual Director.

Mr. Fleming introduced the new executive, parent-teacher councillors and class mothers, and Sister Mary Noreen introduced the teachers.

Mr. Fleming thanked Mrs. Poremba for the very fine work in typing the P.T.A. Bulletin. Also Mrs. E. Barrett for convening the parish picnic.

Mr. G. Tugnut and Mr. Flemming gave brief reviews of the purpose of P.T.A. meetings, which do not consist only of parent - teacher interviews, but are to be informative and educational as well. The P.T.A. also is not a money organization., Mr. Tugnut gave a little talk on how the organization of Parent-Teachers Federation was formed.

Father Buckley installed the new executive.

Attendance prize was won by Sister Mary Noreen's room.

Mrs. D. Bone read the correspondence from the Catholic Aid Society and Council of Parent-Teacher Association and Mr. Melchior read the treasurer's report.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. Fleming introduced the guest speaker, the Rev. J. J. Buckley, Spiritual Director. The topic being, "The Christian Family Apostolate." He advised strongly that all parents belong to one of the Apostolate as there are many from which to choose. Also obtainable was the Catholic Family Hand Book which will be available at the back of the new church on bases of a lending library or may be purchased through the Canadian Register for $4.95.

Father Clancy thanked Father Buckley for his enlightening talk on the Christian Family Apostolate.

The meeting was adjourned by the president.

Refreshments were supplied by the mothers of room 7, convened by Mrs. Sharland. Her helpers were Mrs. Laroche and Mrs. Ford.

DRY CLEANING SHIRT LAUNDERING BY Woodland

Penny Banner, Wrestler, Prefers Fighting 'Dirty' To 'Clean' in Ring

CALGARY (CP)—Penny Banner, a friendly, candid person, is a 37-year-old woman wrestler who admits she prefers fighting "dirty" to fighting "clean" and has always been tagged "the bad girl" in any match.

Penny shares her interest in wrestling with her husband, Johnny Wendt.

She is blonde, five-foot-eight and at 167 pounds is trying to gain weight.

"Believe me, at 147, it hurts when I hit the canvas," she says. "It'd be a weigh 135 or 136. Johnny likes me better the more I weigh."

Sixteen months ago, she bore a baby daughter, Wendi, and her weight sank to 135.

She says her life as a married woman is not secondary to her wrestling. In fact, when she gave up the legal name of Banner to become a Wayner, she also gave up $12,000 to $13,000 annual income. Now, wrestling only three nights a week and while on tour with her husband, she says she makes about $6,000 a year.

During her ring career, which began at 18 she has received chipped teeth, had her nose broken three times, dislocated her elbows, had her knee caps "thrown out" and was laid up for six months with a dislocated hip.

Wendi travels with her parents when they are not at their St. Louis home and ranch here with them on a recent tour.

Penny says being a woman wrestler is better than a college education—"You get to see much of the world."

She plans to retire in about five years, but until then she intends to keep fighting "dirty."

"After, all," she says, "boss are better than no audience reaction at all."

DOES NEEDLEWORK — Dr. Walter F. Copp, a London, Ont., physician, took first prize in the petit-point needlework class at the Canadian National Exhibition. His winning entry, a bouquet of flowers, contained 72,000 stitches and took 400 hours to complete. Dr. Copp works on a new design which contains 75 colors and has so far occupied 275 hours. (CP Photo).

Dr. Walter Copp Beats Women at Own Game

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Entrants in the petit-point needlework class at the Canadian National Exhibition last month had mixed feelings—they liked the winning design but were surprised that a man had made it.

"It was somewhat embarrassing," grinned Dr. Walter F. Copp, the winner, at his home here today. "It was the women's division."

The winning needlework of a bouquet of flowers, measuring eight by 10 inches and containing 72,000 stitches, took 400 hours to complete.

It is not the first time Dr. Copp has beaten women at their own game. The picture that won first prize at the CNE was given top award in its class at the 1960 Western Fair in London.

Dr. Copp became interested in needlework while visiting a patient two years ago. Intrigued by the petit - point pattern taking shape in the patient's fingers, he decided to try it himself.

He admitted his success may be linked with the precision his profession demands. "I'm a little fussy."

Dr. Copp now expects more competition. His wife is taking up the hobby.

Two Special Main Dishes

By Mary Moore

The two dishes I have for you today have some special qualifications. The one called Veal and Noodles en Casserole serves from 10 to 12 and contains meat, noodles and vegetables. Thus it could be a one-course main dish for a big crowd. I know one girl who is going to serve it for Thanksgiving Dinner after the football game.

The second is economical but has an epicurean touch that raises it high. By careful shopping you may be able to buy the pound of haddock fillets at 35c.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Broiled Lamb Chops; Mint Jelly; Baked Butternut Squash; Green Beans; Tossed Chef's Salad; 1000-Island Dressing; Peach Betty with Rich Milk; Tea.

VEAL AND NOODLES EN CASSEROLE:

3 pounds veal, thinly sliced, 6 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon thyme, ¼ teaspoon marjoram, ¼ teaspoon oregano, 2 teaspoons salt, few grains pepper, butter, 8 ounces medium noodles, cooked, 1 pound tiny onions, cooked, 1 package frozen peas, cooked, 5 tablespoons butter, 6 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 1 cup water, 2 chicken bouillon cubes, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, salt and pepper to taste, ½ cup toasted slivered almonds.

Dredge meat with combined flour, seasonings and spices and brown in butter. Layer noodles, browned meat, onions and peas in large casserole. Make cream sauce from butter, flour, milk and water. Season with chicken cubes, lemon rind; add salt and pepper to taste. Pour over casserole. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 45 minutes, until heated through and bubbly. Garnish with almonds. (See note below.)

HADDOCK FILLETS REMOULADE:

Dip 1 pound fresh frozen (thawed) fillets of haddock in ½ cup salted and peppered milk. Coat with fine breadcrumbs. Place in greased dish and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 to 25 minutes. Cream together ¼ cup mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons prepared (French) mustard, 2 to 4 tablespoons finely chopped parsley. Remove fish from oven and spread mixture over fillets. Place under hot broiler for 1 or 2 minutes until tinged with gold and bubbly.

NOTE:

The same method may be used for making Chicken and Noodles en Casserole as for the Veal Casserole above. Trim raw meat from chicken breast bones and slice each breast into 2 slices with very sharp knife. Use instead of sliced veal. Proceed as in recipe at top.

BEST METHOD

Smoked and cured pork, such as hams, should be cooked at 170 degrees Fahrenheit for best results.

PARENTS AND TEEN-AGE PARTIES

When girls get to the party-giving stage, they usually face this problem: Should parents be present or should they do a fade-out for the evening?

The Sweet-Sixteens we asked about this were quick to point out, forthrightly, that any "problem" involved was on the parents' side. They were unanimous in their wish to be left certain about what task to take, while the youngsters, themselves, were only too happy to have their parents stay home and help out unobtrusively of course.

Many parents seem to feel that their presence will put a crimp in the party and that the young guests feel they're being too closely supervised.

But while teen-agers do seem to prefer to have the "old folks" around, they don't want complete control taken out of their young hands.

As far as planning a party is concerned, a young girl gets a particular kick out of whipping up refreshments with an individual touch, making up own decorations and plotting the evening's games and entertainment.

Now where does mother fit in? When the doorbell rings on party night, the average teen-ager likes to have mother right beside her to greet her friends. But, once the party gets rolling, it's time for mother and dad to bow out quietly.

Like older hostesses, the teen-ager needs a helping hand when it comes time to serve refreshments, and mother fills the bill nicely in this department. But the youngsters we spoke with vetoed the idea of mom doing scullery work in the bargain. They assumed full responsibility for cleaning up when the party was over.

In the meantime, though, they pointed out that it was comforting to know that parents were close by in case any snag developed or some of the kids started to get noisy or out of hand. Not that parents were expected to act like policemen, but they could smooth things out with a word or look.

In effect, teen-agers look to their parents for support, and for leadership in good manners. They can't set their sights higher.

Picket's Feet May Never Be the Same

SALMON ARM, B.C. (CP)—Mrs. Margaret Hare's feet may never be the same but she says she would do it all over again if she had to.

Eight hours a day, five days a week for 23 months, the 53-year-old grandmother picketed a Salmon Arm store with two other women.

Their strike for higher pay started Oct. 6 1959, and ended in defeat, blistered feet and aching arms.

Carrying placards, they had trudged thousands of miles along a short stretch of sidewalk in front of Beer's department store.

"But at least we tried," said Mrs. Hare. "We didn't like doing it but we'd do it again if we had to."

Nine women store clerks walked the picket line when the strike started after a conciliation board recommended increases to $1.15 an hour on a pay scale ranging from 85 cents to $1 an hour.

TIME TO TALK

Before long, winter snow and rain and the heat of summer in this farming community in British Columbia's southern interior discouraged four of the strikers, leaving Mrs. Hare and her close friends, Mrs. Marjorie Collins and Mrs. Mae Hooper.

"Everybody thought we were crazy and often passersby said so, but we stuck it out," said Mrs. Hare.

"Nevertheless we had some interesting talks as we walked up and down," she said. "We exchanged cooking recipes; discussed our home life, fashion, in fact almost everything."

At the end of it all the trio looked forward to the easier life of the homemaker with a minimum of exercise.

Bill Wells, local secretary of the Retail Food and Drug Store Clerk's Union, said the picketers were paid a dollar an hour.

The strike was lost, he said, but the fight against the store will continue through pamphlets and other appeals for support for the pay demand.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mr. I. V. — He's refusing a full scholarship to study in Norway.

Elnar V. — I'd rather have an American degree, no matter the cost.

* * *

Mr. I. V. — My son is in his senior year of high school. Through my union he can get a full tuition scholarship to attend college in the land from which I came — Norway. The sum of money offered would cover tuition, room and board and incidental expenses. I'm prepared to pay his passage and provide his clothing.

To my surprise and disappointment, Einar is turning down the chance. He says he doesn't want to leave his friends and face a strange country. How can he call it strange? He'll find dozens of relations there. All these years I've been dreaming of the time my son would enjoy the wonderful opportunity I had to give up at his age!

* * *

Elnar V. — I'm an American and I want an American education. Dad's been trying to interest me, for years, in that union scholarship. He's told me of the ice skating and skiing in Oslo, of the holidays in Sweden and Denmark, and what it would mean to him for me to graduate from a Norwegian university.

But America is where I want to live and work. Over there I'd have difficulty with the language, and then when I returned I'd have to learn things all over again in English. Also, I don't want the eye of the whole union on me as "their" boy. I'll feel on the spot. Let Dad pay what he can to help me through a state university here. I'll work for the rest.

The Council — We're with Einar, mainly because in the words of Kahlil Gibran to all his parents, "His goes not backward nor tarries with yesterday." Einar is entitled to his own dreams. He must not be tied to his father's.

Mr. V. is attempting to go to the Norwegian college in his son's name. But no one can hope to fill in the gaps of his own life vicariously — unless, of course, his son's activities happen to coincide with his own unrealized desires. Ask a man if he plays a musical intrument. He answers, "No, but my son does!" and his face lights up, as though that makes it a Yes. There's some redress when someone near and dear can grasp the plum which eludes us.

But Einar's heart isn't in this trek to the land of his father's for a diploma. He rebels against the loss of time, contacts and continuity in his preparation for an American career. And he's uneasy at the prospect of being the union's fair-haired boy who must make good to justify its investment in him. He'd like to make good for his own sake.

Even though his marks and attainments in high school were high enough to earn him the honor of a middle-full scholarship, he can fall flat on his face in college if a ferment of revolt seethes within him and saps his energy.

Let Einar make his own decision. Some boys might seize a chance like his to live in the country where their roots lie, make new friends and master new skills. But Einar views this as a hindering detour. He's eager to bow in the direct line toward an American A. B.

As a smorgasbord, however, Einar might plan to take a summer course in Norway, or a graduate degree later on. Meanwhile, Mr. V. should not withhold his aid, approval and pride. Fathers are but the bows, conclude the gentle Gibran, from which their sons are sent as living arrows.

What every wife should know about her husband!

Like most married women you probably hesitate to talk to your husband about his life insurance. You dread thinking of existence without him. Yet, much as you hate to think of it, you probably know a number of young widows who have a real problem maintaining a home and bringing up their children.

Perhaps he is aware of your reluctance to talk about life insurance—and hesitates to bring up the subject.

You owe it to yourself and to your children to discuss with your husband what his present life insurance programme would provide in income to raise your family. Further, what his permanent personal policies would be worth in case of emergencies.

We suggest you and your husband enlist the friendly and helpful advice of The Excelsior Life representative in your neighbourhood—who.

Has selected and trained to help people with problems such as yours to plan their own "Blueprint for Security".

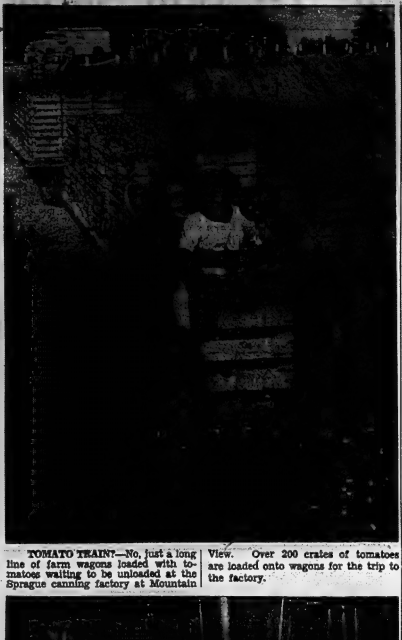
Autumn Visit to Virginia

By GLADYS WARD



Back in school days our first assignment in English composition in September was to write an essay on "How I spent my summer vacation." This used to have us cherishing the eraser off our pencil, because we couldn't think of one interesting thing to relate. Holiday days of summer just drifted by, and suddenly it was September and we were being polished up to go back to school and what was there to write about! Now, however in retrospect, I'm sometimes sorry we feel a compulsion to write about how we spent our vacation, and I would title it "Autumn visit to Virginia."

September is a delightful time to take a motor trip. The frenetic pace of holiday travel is over, the weather is cool and the scenery is colorful.

Our route took us by way of the Ivy Lea bridge through New York state, Pennsylvania where we took the turnpike, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, to Kilpoke where we took the ferry across Chesapeake Bay to Norfolk. The ferry carried about a hundred cars, trucks and big transports, and had a dining room, lunch counter, washrooms and lounge room. The Bay was quite choppy, for the land-and-sea-fog took to cross, and one, at least of our party was glad he had taken dramamine. Norfolk is a place where you have to pay to get in and again to leave it, either by tunnel under Chesapeake Bay, or by boat over it. There was no other way to get out, but we didn't discover them.

LEFT COMPANIONS

We left our travelling companions, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lawrence of Norfolk, where they visited their daughter Nadine, her husband Lieut. Donald Gray and son Peter. Lieut. Gray is spending three years in engineering department at the Navy base, and he took us on a tour of the base, where new aircraft carriers, submarines, destroyers, supply ships like it seems to us all the smaller craft around her getting supplies. Although, never good at remembering statistics, we recall that aircraft carriers were manned by 4,000 men, and that other figures for the men in engineering in the TOMATO TRAINT—No, just a long line of farm wagons loaded with tomatoes waiting to be unloaded at the Sprague canning factory at Mountain View. Over 200 crates of tomatoes are loaded onto wagons for the trip to the factory.

A trip through the washing tank is the first stop for tomatoes on receipt at canning factory. Here worker at Mountain View plant dumps a crate of tomatoes into the scalding tank.

Tomato Growers Rushing To Harvest Last of Crop

With possible killing frost not too far away, tomato growers in the Bay of Quinte district are going all out to wind up the tomato picking season as quickly as possible.

To handle the rush many factories in the area worked Sunday to handle the flood of tomatoes being stripped from the vines.

Despite exceptionally hot weather during the ripening season, the tomato crop this year is said to have been very good, with the quality of the late season crop bettering that of tomatoes picked earlier.

Due to several factories being closed in the area, possibly fewer tomatoes are currently being grown in Prince Edward county than was the case a few years ago. A number of privately-owned factories still run tomatoes and during the past few days are being rushed to handle the late crop being hauled in.

There was sharp debate and serious criticism over the cutting from the 1962 of several missionary projects because of lack of funds.

Rt. Rev. Tom Greenwood, Bishop of Yukon, noted that many of the remote, sparsely-settled dioceses have to rely on additional financial aid for specific projects.

"If you kill the project, you kill the missionary appeal," he said.

Rt. Rev. George Luxton, Bishop of Huron, said "many of the things we consider vital to the church" are being thrust aside.

Rt. Rev. Walter Bagnall, Bishop of Niagara, defended the staffs of Church House as doing a "tough, lonely job."

He told the council this was the kind of linen which should be washed in private, referring to earlier criticism about Church House.

"This type of treatment of the headquarters of the Canadian Anglican Church, might cut our throats," he warned. "If this kind of thing goes on, no one will want to work in Church House."

Describing the central office as the "heartbeat," he added its staff deserve something better than to "receive a kick in the teeth."

PLAN NEW REVIEW

Earlier it was disclosed that world Anglican leaders plan to take a "fearless look" at their church's ability to meet the new challenges of the nuclear age at the congress in Toronto in 1963.

Details of tentative arrangements for the congress were disclosed in an interview by Rt Rev. R. S. Dean, Bishop of Cariboo, program committee chairman.

"My hope is that the Anglican church will try to take a fearless look at itself in the light of the world in which we live," he said.

"We live in a new world with new potentials. We must examine the effect on man of the atomic world and its scientific advances. We need to know how to communicate with the new man of our era."

Bishop Dean also said the congress will closely study its relationship with younger Anglican churches in the newly-independent countries of Africa and Asia.

A plea for increased allowances for Anglican church pensioners was made at the meeting of the church's executive council by Very Rev. E. B. N. Cochran, Dean of Nova Scotia.

Ven. R. D. Mess of Walkerton said it was "sheer nonsense and mere sentimentality" to keep on passing "pious resolutions" about pensios and expect the pension board to raise money out of a hat. The proposal was referred to the pension board for further study.

PLANS SUNDAY EDITION

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Publication of a national Sunday newspaper is planned by the Wall Street Journal, its editor, Vermont Royster, told a business news seminar here Monday.

Winners of door prizes at the recent showing of Pontiac and Buick cars at Elliott Motors are seen being presented with prizes by Walter T. Elliott. Left to right are: Bill York, Belleville; Mrs. Ralph Nichol, Belleville; Walter Elliott; Mrs. Stanley Sills, Belleville, and Vincent Baker of Foxboro. At the rear are: Bob Clifford, district manager for General Motors and David Bowman, district service manager, who drew the winners' names.

North American Common Market Is Proposed

HALIFAX (CP) — A North American common market developed slowly over a period of some 50 years was suggested Monday by Joseph Jeffery, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, to the opening luncheon of the chamber's annual meeting.

Mr. Jeffery, who said he was speaking for himself and "some friends who have had occasion to discuss the subject," and not on behalf of the chamber, declared that Canada is in for a trade war "the like of which we have not seen in our life time."

Stating that it is likely Britain will enter the European Common Market, he urged that Canada take early and very active steps to counteract the consequences.

"The Canadian economy," he said, "is gradually being hemmed in from three sides—from the Far East and fast-growing industrialized economies of Japan, China, Hong Kong and India have wage costs one-tenth of ours; from the south the giant United States market is largely denied to our manufacturers by high tariff barriers; and from the west it is almost certain that for reasons of economic self preservation the United Kingdom must join the European Common Market. In other words, we face the imminent danger of relative economic isolation and the question is: What should we do about it?"

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Professional wrestling, harness racing and horse-shoe-pitching are special attractions being staged here for sportsminded visitors to the International Plowing Match this week.

Memorial Arena manager Jack Dickens in conjunction with the Frank Tunney Sports Enterprises of Toronto, has arranged a special wrestling card for Wednesday, October 4th.

The main bout brings together four of the roughest, toughest grunt-and-groaners in the business. It is a tag-team affair with Stanley Stasiak, "The Arvida Assassin," and "The Great Kudo," a masked judo expert, combining their talents against Tony Marino, the idol of city and district fans, and Gino Marello, a 300-pound giant from Italy.

This event will be the second meeting of the four-some. Two weeks ago their bout ended in a free-for-all battle, culminating in the declaimed Marino-Marello team pursuing the victorious toughies to their dressing room where it is alleged they settled their differences the hard way.

A feature of the bout is the fact that two referees will see action when the "Terse Twosome" start hostilities. Just to see that everything is fair and shipshape the two officials will enter the ring with the four wrestlers and the result should be some of the greatest ring fireworks shown seen here in many a time. All six men will be in the ring at the same time.

For those who prefer the thrill of harness racing to that of professional wrestling the Quinte Riding and Driving Club is staging an outstanding meet at the Fair Grounds the same evening. Post time is at eight o'clock.

With a large number of plowing match enthusiasts hailing from the rural districts of the province, Quinte Driving Club officials believe a high-class harness meet will appeal to them as well as lovers of the sport from the immediate area.

With this in mind they have arranged outstanding races which will bring here the top harness horse flesh of the district and province. We have one of the finest half-mile tracks in this part of Ontario and an outstanding grandstand. Betting privileges will be available and Driving Club officials, with a proud seasonal record behind them, are looking forward to one of the best meets held here in years.

While horseshoe-pitching does not enjoy any outstanding prominence in this area, it is veied a highly popular sport in other parts of the province.

International Plowing Match officials with this in mind have arranged for a horseshoe-tossing championship which gets under way Friday, starting 12.30 p.m. at the match site.

Each plowing association in Ontario is allowed one entry consisting of a two-man team. They must provide their own horseshoes, without as some way quipped, the horses attached.

The game is extremely popular in Western Ontario. Estimates on the number of men pitching "shoes" in Waterloo county run as high as 1,500. At least 500 participate regularly in league play in Waterloo, Perth and Oxford counties.

The official "coomunique" from the Plow match public relations man says the "rules governing the contest are just about the same as those worked out when two neighbors drove a couple of stakes in the ground and started flinging the iron circles around the dawn of social history."

We beg to interrupt, sir. Regulations differ to those of 50 years ago. A game used to be 51 points. Today it is 50 points. Pegs or stakes must be one inch in diameter, be 15 inches above the ground and with a three-inch incline toward the opposite stake. The pitcher's box must be five feet square, with the stake in the exact centre. Official shoes—horseshoes, that is—must weigh 2½ pounds with an opening 3½ inches or less. Caulks, heel and toe are a prescribed height.

WANT TWO GAMES

NEW YORK (AP) — A committee made up of owners and player representatives Monday recommended that a second major league all - star baseball game be played next year. The recommendations will be passed on to the major leagues' annual meeting to be held in December at Miami, where final action will be taken.

That Doesn't Bother Reds

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees, with or without Mickey Mantle, are 12-to-5 favorites to win the world series against Cincinnati Reds.

Mantle who hit 54 home runs during the regular American League season, is recovering from minor hip surgery and is a questionable starter in the first game of the best-of-seven series Wednesday.

If Mantle hasn't recovered enough, manager Ralph Houk will send Hector Lopez to right field, with Roger Maris moving over to Mantle's centre - field spot.

Whitey Ford (25-4), the Yankees' top money pitcher for 10 years, will take the mound against Cincinnati Jim O'Toole (19-9). In the opener, starting at 1 p.m. EDT before an expected crowd of 70,000 at Yankee Stadium. Both are lefthanders.

Times weatherman forecasts rain Wednesday with temperatures between 60 and 70 degrees. Should rain force a postponement, the first game would be played Thursday after the second game here Friday.

MANTLE NOT WELL

Mantle discouraged with his rate of recovery and said the way he feels now, he won't be able to play the opener.

"But," he said Monday, "even if I miss the first game, that doesn't mean I won't be right for the rest of the series. Maybe it will get better quicker than I think."

Mantle's dour outlook was not shared by Yankee team physician Dr. Sydney Gaynor, or Houk.

"Of course he feels weak and sore," said Dr. Gaynor. "he has a wound that size to heal. Knowing Mickey and how he responds to treament, I think he'll play."

Houk said he will not scratch Mantle's name from the lineup until just before game time.

"Sure, Mickey isn't feeling right," said Houk. "But that's to be expected."

ONE DOUBTFUL RED

Manager Fred Hutchinson, who says he is not perturbed about the top - heavy odds against his Reds, has only one doubtful starter. He is catcher Darrell Johnson, who has a strain in his left side.

Hutchinson, who likes to platoon his team, said he will make most of his switches depending on the park, rather than the opposing pitcher.

"I see that we're not supposed to have much of a chance," Hutchinson said. "Well, we surprised people all season and it's likely that we have one big one left."

Most observers figure the only chance the Reds have of springing the same kind of upset as Pittsburgh Pirates engineered against New York last year is for their pitchers to silence the Yankee long - ball hitters. At the top of the list of Yankee sluggers is Roger Maris who had 61 homers during the regular campaign.

REDS HAD HITTING

The Pirates had little pitching depth and were clobbered by the Yanks in three of the games. But superb hurling performances by Vernon Law, Harvey Haddix and relief ace Elroy Face pulled them through.

The Reds depend on O'Toole, Joey Jay and Bob Purkey, along with two fine relievers — Jim Brosnan and Bill Henry. Ken Johnson, a lefthander, also will be available in relief.

It is only in the stolen base department that the Reds show to advantage. They have stolen 69 bases to 39 for the Yanks.

The first two games will be played here. Friday will be open. The series resumes Saturday in Cincinnati where the third, fourth and (if necessary) the fifth games will be played.

Name McGaha Indians Manager

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indians Monday named Mel McGaha as their manager for 1962 and promised the new pilot, youngest in major league baseball, that he'll have the final word on player trades.

McGaha, 35, reached the Tribe this year as first base coach after piloting Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League to a pennant in 1960.

At a press conference, where he also was announced as signing will not be rehired as a coach, Cleveland general manager Gabe Paul said: "We are going to trade three or four players if necessary to get a good power hitter. Appling came here last year from Detroit with Minnie Minoso for a song. Jimmie Dykes, who was released Sunday.

"I won't make any deal without the agreement of the manager," said Paul. "There will be a lot of changes."

McGaha said he can get along with all the players on the club, including volatile centre fielder Jimmy Piersall.

No Ferraris In U.S. Grand Prix

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — The decision of the Ferrari factory not to entry its cars in Sunday's U.S. Grand Prix race means that 1961 world champion driver Phil Hill and two other drivers were cut of the international event, a spokesman said Monday night.

Malcolm Currie of the Watkins Glen Grand Prix Corporation said the news that Hill-ician racing car factory will Giddens Hill and his fellow American, Ricardo Giuffrer, as well as Italy's Giancarlo Baghetti.

It was reported last week that Enzo Ferrari of the automotive firm has decided to withdraw his cars in the race after the death of Ferrari driver Wolfgang von Trips in the Italian Grand Prix in Monza last month. Von Trips and 14 spectators were killed when his car careened into the stands.

Hill has already clinched the world driver's championship with 34 points to spare.

The withdrawal of the Ferrari cars leaves a formidable field of 19 drivers, including England's Stirling Moss and Australia's Jack Brabham, the 1959 and 1960 world champion.

RELAX RULES

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Golf Association announced Monday night that the top 20 non-professional winners will be exempt from qualifying for the national open championship next year. For the 1961 open, the three leading PGA money winners were exempted. As in the past, the list also included those to win the championship also will be exempt, along with the 10 lowest scorers in the 1961 Open, exclusive of the five champions.

Stamps Take Larks In Dull Game

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP) — Calgary Stampeders overcame a string of bad breaks under the steady hand of quarterback Eagle Day and punched out a 6-2 win over Montreal Alouettes Monday night, closing out the East - West play in the Canadian Football League's interlocking schedule.

Attendance was 19,686.

Day's work stood out in a ragged game marked by seven fumbles, a bare handful of big-gain plays and some of the weakest punting of the season.

The Montreal attack, after a pair of big games with Gerry Thomopkins at quarter, reverted to its unsophisticated muddle and the club was left with a pitifully bleak playoff outlook.

Centre Barry Mcose of the Als clumsily pulled a post-game clean, seized it up bluntly.

"We played a lousy football game," he said. "We had plenty of breaks. We didn't deserve to win and even hang in there as we did. We're no where near the rest of them. That's all there is to it."

The breaks Mcose referred to included five fumbles by Calgary and a costly blocked punt-offs from Day. Four were recovered by Montreal.

EAST HAS EDGE

Despite Monday night's outcome, for the 20 inter-conference games played with the CFL this season the East emerged with a wide edge—11 wins with seven losses and two ties. In points, it was 422 for the East and 356 for the West.

It was Calgary's fourth win in 10 games and gave the Stampeders possession of third spot in the Western Conference. The Als, finishing with 5-5 in nine games, stayed four points behind Toronto's third-place Argonauts in the Eastern Conference. They have a five-point lab that covers a tie.

All of the scoring came in the opening half.

George Haase, a 205 - pound tackle from Georgia in his second season with the Calgary, kicked a pair of field goals for his club's six points.

Day accounted for singles by Italian-born Gino Berretta and Montreal veteran Bill Bewley. A missed field goal attempt netted Bewley's point.

The Stampeders' half of his 16 pass attempts—four to end Ernie Warlick—for 122 yards and drove for 38 of Calgary's net pickup of 181 yards rushing.

Five Teams or Else - Kingston

Senior Hockey Doomed?

OSHAWA (CP) — A Kingston representative told an Ontario Hockey Association organizational meeting Monday night Kingston is not interested in a proposed senior league if there are to be only four teams.

Toronto failed to file an entry or send a representative to the meeting, leaving only Napanee, Belleville, Oshawa, and Kingston interested.

Harold Langabeer of Kingston said he will discuss the four team situation with his sponsors and let the OHA know by Thursday if his entry stands. If it doesn't, the proposed loop is doomed.

Lorne Cook of Kingston, former OHA president, was chairman at the meeting. Oshawa was represented by Wilmo Bradley and Ev Edwards, Belleville by Jean Paul-Lamirande and Napanee by Lee Douglas and Ernie Gibbard.

Loses to Erskine by Foul

'He Walked Into My Head' - Chuvalo

TORONTO (CP) — George Chuvalo of Toronto was offered a rematch four days with Welsh heavyweight Joe Erskine, who was awarded a fifth round decision Monday night because the Canadian fouled him.

Erskine, who claimed that Chuvalo butted him "several times" before referee Sammy Luftspring disqualified the Canadian, said in the dressing-room that he was starting to weaken Chuvalo with body-punches when he scheduled 15-rounder was called at 1:37 of the fifth.

Said manager Benny Jacobs: "Chuvalo is a strong fellow, but we're not used to that rough stuff."

Four stitches were needed to close a cut above Erskine's left eye, a notably sensitive spot. At least partially because of tenderness there, Erskine was out of action since last March when Henry Cooper of England took the British and Empire heavyweight title from him.

Jacobs couldn't see much percentage in another fight now with Cooper, since the two have already fought six times and each has won three.

"Now we'd like to meet Sonny Liston," the manager said. Liston, however, is under suspension by the National Boxing Association following a brush with Philadelphia police.

Chuvalo had a different version of what caused the disqualification.

"We were both trying to get our heads under each other. He walked right into my head and all I know is that when I looked up, the referee was holding Erskine's hand up."

It was a tame fight for a crowd of about 4,000. There were no knockdowns, although Chuvalo was frequently booed for rough tactics.

Chuvalo, eighth-ranked heavyweight in the world who lost his Canadian title to Robert Clercaer of Montreal last month, weighed 205. Erskine's 212½ pounds included a hefty midriff.

The 37-year-old Chuvalo continually beat his 34-year-old opponent to the punch. The Welshman cushied with light left flicks to the head throughout the fight while Chuvalo, a power hitter, countered with hard lefts and rights to the stomach.

Patterson May Fight In London

LONDON (AP) — Promoter Jack Solomons said Monday he hopes soon to announce a world heavyweight title fight in London next May or June between champion Floyd Patterson and Henry Cooper, the British titleholder.

But in New York, Cus D'Amato, Patterson's manager, insisted he will have no comment on this or any other fight until Patterson fights Tom McNeeley, undefeated and unranked youngster from Arlington, Mass.

The latest rumor is that Patterson and McNeeley may fight in Toronto Nov. 20.

D'Amato said: "There have been a lot of obstacles placed in the way of that fight. I expect promoter Tom Bolan to have an announcement soon on the site and date of that fight. I never go beyond one fight. When that's over we can talk about the next one, not before."

If the Patterson - Cooper fight materializes, it will be the first world heavyweight title bout ever staged in Britain.

But Maris Has 61

Looks Like Babe Has Edge!

NEW YORK (AP)—Did Roger Maris of New York Yankees break Babe Ruth's record when he hit his 61st home run?

Ford Frick, commissioner of baseball, ruled during the season, when Maris was well ahead of the Bambino's record 60-homer pace of 1927, that a player would have to hit more than 60 homers within 154 decisions to surpass the Babe's record.

American League President Joe Cronin, said: "As far as I'm concerned it will be a record if it's done in 162 games (the expanded American League schedule)."

There is yet a third jury—the baseball records committee, scheduled to meet in Tampa, Fla., at the major-minor league meeting in December. The committee previously has checked and verified records and established rulings for setting records that have been accepted in baseball. The seven-man committee is reported leaning toward acceptance of Maris's feat as breaking Ruth's record.

The question may never be settled satisfactorily for all concerned. To set the record straight, however, here are the comparative figures for Maris in 1961 and Ruth in 1927.

Maris, who compiled a .269 batting average compared to the Babe's .356, actually reached No. 60 before Ruth on the basis of total appearances (counting walks, sacrifices, etc.) Roger hit his 60th in his 684th appearance at the plate, the Babe in his 689th.

Maris played all but two of the Yankees 162 games, hitting a homer every 2.65 games, while Ruth, who missed four of New York's 155 games in 1927, hit one every 2.52 games.

Maris was officially at bat 590 times, hitting a homer every 9.7 times up, while Ruth, with 540 at-bats hit one every nine times. Maris, with 698 total appearances, averaged a homer every 11.4 appearances to 12.3 for Ruth, who had 668 appearances.

May Hold 'Big' Fight In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — New York fight promoter Al Bolan said Monday night negotiations are continuing for a world heavyweight title fight in Toronto Nov. 20 between champion Floyd Patterson and Tom McNeeley.

But he denied published reports that said a decision has already been made to hold the fight here.

"We are working towards having the fight in Toronto," said Bolan, vice - president and matchmaker of Championship Sports Incorporated. "I wouldn't be here if there wasn't a strong possibility."

'Squatters' Line Up For Tickets

NEW YORK (AP) — The doorstep camping for world series tickets went into full swing at Yankee Stadium Monday with a Chicago man and a Brooklyn fan both claiming original squatters' rights.

The two men arrived at the ticket window early Saturday morning and were quickly joined by other fans who hope to be able to purchase bleachers tickets for Wednesday's opening game between New York Yankees and Cincinnati Reds.

The first two to arrive at the scene with sleeping equipment for the long vigil were Ralph Belore, 47, of Chicago, and George Schneider, 42, of Brooklyn. The ticket window opens Wednesday.

Ben Casey Is New Entrant Into Hospital Sweepstakes

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YOK (AP)—ABC's entry into the hospital sweepstakes, Ben Casey, came into view Monday night. While there's a marked family resemblance to NBC's new Dr. Kildare, this one is more medical, more preoccupied with operating room scenes and medical procedures.

The opening show was in a familiar context, with Casey, played by Vincent Edwards, is the young resident in neuro-surgery and is on the verge of losing fired because, in his dedication to the healing art, he has insulted older doctors, caused nurses to resign and ordered too many instruments for the hospital budget.

To make things worse, he has gone against the advice of his superiors with the first of a series of brain operations on a young boy.

As if that wasn't plot enough, Dr. Casey at this point gets himself bitten by a woman patient dying of rabies. He has an allergy to rabies shots so he can't take any treatment and for 30 days doesn't know whether he will survive. Meanwhile, the operation must complete the surgery on the little boy.

I knew Dr. Casey didn't have rabies, because nobody would bother to kill off a character after whom a series was named in the first show of the season. I wouldn't recommend it for the average hypochrondiac or anyone with nerves, but it was a good, fast-paced and interesting show.

Beliveau Said Out For Month

MONTREAL (CP)—Jean Beliveau, Montreal Canadiens' star centre who suffered a knee injury Saturday night, was exhibition game with Spokane Comets at Trail, B.C., will be out of action for "at least a month" and possibly longer.

Montreal Forum physiotherapist Bill Head, who examined Beliveau on his return to Montreal Monday, said tests and x-rays had shown an injury to the ligaments but it did not appear that an operation would be necessary.

The injury leaves Canadiens coach Toe Blake in serious trouble with his NHL opening game against New York Rangers only eight days away and two of his stars sidelined with injuries. Centre Dickie Moore is still nursing an old knee injury which was aggravated in a pre-training camp crackup and is a doubtful prospect for the beginning of the season.

The injury also means that, for the first time in seven years, Beliveau will miss the NHL all-star game this Saturday at Chicago.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — A scene from "The Naked Maja", in color and featuring Ava Gardner and Anthony Francisca, now playing the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. Second feature also in color "The Barefoot Contessa" stars Humphrey Bogart, Ava Gardner and Edmund O'Brien.

AT THE PARK — Walter Pidgeon and Joan Fontaine, fellow-scientists aboard an atomic submarine-of-the-future, must decide how to save the world from destruction by fire in the science-fiction fantasy chiller "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea", a 20th Century-Fox adventure in CinemaScope and DeLuxe Color starring Barbara Eden, Peter Lorre, Robert Sterling, Michael Anasra and Frankie Avalon, opening Thursday at the Park Theatre. On the same program in Technicolor "The Ladies Man", starring Jerry Lewis.

Sport Snapshots

Canadian Press Sports Editor

Senator Harland De M. Mol- will be awarded a penalty shot on any late penalty shot has Any player who is tripped or impeded from behind, become one of the rare sights in National Hockey League games. The Montreal Canadiens' owner confesses he doesn't know why, but notes that there have been "quite a few" occasions when a shot should have been called, but wasn't.

Fans around the six - team league agree with the senator. The NHL apparently does also, because it has taken steps to rectify the situation. So it should be interesting this winter to note how the referees react to it.

There hasn't been a penalty shot called without squawks and the referees who dared to call them have been soundly razzed.

Statistics issued by the NHL support the senator's contention, made in a letter a few days ago to League President Clarence Campbell. Since the 1953-54 season, only six penalty shots have been called, four of them resulting in goals and one the winning goal.

FIVE SEASONS FREE

None was called in five seasons — 1953-54, 1954-55, 1956-57, 1958-59 and 1960-61. Here is the breakdown on the others:

1951-52: Jan. 1, at Chicago, Maurice Richard of Canadiens scored on a penalty shot in the first period. Montreal won the game 3-0.

1953-53: Oct. 16, at Montreal, Boom Boom Geoffrion of Canadiens scored as Montreal beat New York Rangers 3-1; March 5, at Detroit, Gordie Howe scored as Red Wings walloped New York 7-1.

1955-56: Dec. 16, at New York, Ron Murphy of Rangers failed to score. Rangers beat Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3.

1957-58: March 8, at Montreal, Dickie Henry of New York Rangers scored in the third period for the winning goal as Rangers beat Canadiens 3-2.

1959-60: Nov. 8, at Boston, Larry Leach of Bruins failed to score. Boston beat Chicago 5-3.

ELIGIBLE SHOOTERS

Last June the NHL said that any player who has an opportunity to score a goal and is tripped or impeded from behind, will be awarded a penalty shot Any player who is tripped or impeded from behind, on a breakaway by the team captain of the non - offending team" could take the shot.

This resulted in one of the shakiest calls in years in the Chicago - Boston game when Leach failed to score.

A Black Hawk stick was involved in that play. Leach got the stick of Bronco Horvath of Bruins on a breakaway. Referee Dalton McArthur skated over to the Chicago bench, instead of the Boston bench, and told the amazed players to pick a Boston player to take the shot.

Andy (Weekend Magazine) O'Brien got the story of the incident from Horvath himself. Chicago general manager, and Scotty Bowman, then coach of the Bruins.

HEATED ARGUMENT

"The amazement didn't last long," O'Brien wrote. "The players sensed a go-ahead and decided to make the most of it. An argument ensued between them. They got into a heated argument among themselves while referee Dalton Mc Arthur and Referee Art Erickson, Bruins with only a goal ahead at the time, should take the shot.

Meanwhile, over-in front of the Chicago net, Horvath was eagerly warming up.

The decision in Hawks' bench was finally resolved by Goalie Glenn Hall. He said he'd rather not have a shot on him.

"When the decision was announced to the Bruins the fuss popped all over the place, Schmidt was madly waving a rule book but didn't dare step on the ice—as automatic $500 fine. Behind him, Lynn Patrick, general manager, shoving Schmidt, yelling, 'Go out, I'll pay your fine.'

"McArthur acted firmly and decisively. He waved Leach toward the puck. Leach moved in, shot and Hall turned the shot aside. Boston went on to win, which saved a protest."

There are all sorts of dangerous scorers in the League now—Toronto's Frank Mahovlich and Red Kelly; Canadiens' Bernie Moore and Henri Richard of Canadiens; Bobby Hull of Chicago; Howe of Detroit—but the referees are in for a hectic winter if they call the penalty shot by the book.

YOUTHS LOSE BOAT

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Four luckless Toronto youths, who abandoned their unbeaconed seconds before Atlantic breakers dashed it to pieces against rocks Saturday south of here, are being cared for here by the Red Cross until a way can be found to get them home. The four, Bill Goursky, Roy Gawd and brothers Bob and Brian Griffin, lost everything in the wreck of their 40-foot schooner GaSant Four. They had planned to sail the craft to the Caribbean.

AT THE BELLE — Anya—Boyer—Buchholz—Caron: While her mother, Georgetta Anys, and his father, Charles Boyer, accuse Chin, Horst Buchholz and Leslie Caron cling to each other in this scene from Joshua Logan's screen production of "Fanny" for Warner Bros., ending tonight, at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Pirie Says He Was Paid As Amateur

LONDON (AP) — Gordon Pirie's public confession that he was paid $2,800 as an amateur runner this year has sparked off another row in the world of track and field.

Pirie made the confession in an article in the People—a British Sunday newspaper.

Pirie, 30, British Olympic runner in 1952-56-60, still holds the world record of 7:32.8 for the 3,000 metres. He turned professional in late September.

"It is only a matter of time Gordon denied he had broken the rules," he said. Jack Crump, secretary of the British Amateur Athletic Board. "Name the promoters who pay—if there are any."

Pirie's admission that he has been paid money for running as an amateur follows the suspension of Swedish miler Dan Waern, alleged to have received more than legitimate expenses under amateur rules.

In April Mike Agostini of Trinidad, former holder of the 100-yard, 220-yard and 200 - metre world records, came out with a Pirie-like article suggesting that so-called amateur track stars can earn as much as $10,000 a year in Europe.

Pirie suggested in the article that Sweden was the place where "shamateurs operate."

OWNED BREWERY

BRANTFORD (CP) — Frederick George (Major) Bizzi, one of Brantford's most popular citizens, died Monday at his home here. He was 88. Mr. Bizzi owned the Bizzi Brewing Company for many years before selling it in 1944.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Mystery Guest, a three - year - old filly, captured the featured Harmonian Purse at Woodbine track Monday.

The victory enhanced Mystery Guest's chances at Saturday's $30,000 Breeders Stakes.

Mystery Guest defeated Rococo Rogue by half a length in the 1¼ mile test. Recitatif finished third.

Mystery Guest paid $16.20 to win. The quinella of Mystery Guest and Rococo Rogue paid $45.60.

The daily double of Nearail and Von Rich paid $85.50. A crowd of 6,935 wagered $332,-238.

ANNOUNCES PARDON

BURGOS, Spain (Reuters) — A pardon for political and criminal prisoners was announced Monday night as Generalissimo Francisco Franco left for Madrid after two days of celebrations marking the 25th anniversary of his coming to power. There now are about 20,000 prisoners in Spanish jails. Of these, less than 2,000 are political prisoners.

Search for Paradise Over But Life Won't Be Same

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Blinkhart's search of paradise is over, but his life will never be the same.

This is a "sequel to the dispatch I wrote from Tahiti last February about the Hollywood orthodontist who chucked a good-paying job to live in the south seas.

Lee is back in civilization, once again peering into little mouths and straightening teeth.

"I've changed, though," he remarked. "Tahiti taught me one lesson, a big one. Down there I learned to live simply. All you need is a place to sleep, food to eat—raw fish included—and good friends.

I know now how unimportant is the ratrace for material ism that most people get caught up in here. I get tempted to buy a fancy new sports car, then realize the joy of owning it will wear off in two weeks."

Last year Lee left his $1,200-a-month job to pursue the dream that every American male has of Tahiti. He had studied up on the life, and at 27 he was unmarried.

IT DOESN'T MATTER'

At first he had the usual tourist's view of paradise. Lee was dazzled by the scenery and the girls. Then he was depressed by the strangeness of the surroundings. But then he was swayed by the Tahitians and he accepted their philosophy of "it's pea pea." (It doesn't matter.)

Lee managed to support himself by working for the Manhoy on the Bounty company. One production side and he saved the studio $30,000 one day by quick work on the teeth of Marlon Brando's native leading lady, Tarita, when she was needed for a closeup.

Despite his fearlessness for Tahitian life, Lee admitted he was ready to leave before the end of the seven-month period foreigners are allowed to stay. Why?

"Because I had been spoiled by civilization," he said with some regret. "The life is great for the first few months. But then you feel the need for some intellectual stimulus.

"I still can't find it in Tahiti. I suppose there are some books there, but I never felt like reading."

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Wednesday, October 4, 1961

General Tendencies: Now, you have a fine day in which to do those things which will give you greater stature in the community in which you reside, and which will give you the chance to put into motion a very comprehensive plan of action for the future. So be sure now to "think big" and you get big results from any such actions. Entertain tonight.

Aries (March 21 to April 19). Every opportunity is yours during day hours to impress others with that excellent flair for originality that you possess. Evening is ideal for seeking the type of pleasure that most delights you. Be carefree, happy.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20). You will see that close ties have excellent ideas that will benefit you, and it behooves you not to be opinionated and reticent. Listen carefully to them and then show appreciation as well. P.M. enjoy own home and fireside.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21). Much can be gained this day by being very courteous and appreciative of others; fine qualities and talents. Tonight can then be very pleasant in the company of good friends you haven't seen for quite some time. Be happy.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21). — Raise your level of consciousness now so that you can comprehend the finer and greater things of life and bring them within your immediate orbit. Also, be very practical in all that you do. Get budget in order.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21). Every opportunity is yours now to improve health and appearance by placing yourself in the hands of the right experts. Then attend those social functions that will be a stepping stone to greater success in the future.

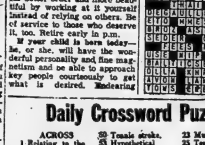
Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22). — Follow your intuition now since they can be very advantageous for you. However, be secretive or some conniving individual can steal the chances that are yours. Be money that rightfully belongs to you. Be alert.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22). — A wonderful day for going after what is closest to your heart in personal affairs and being successful through positive action and thinking. P.M. be with comrades and meet interesting people, too.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21). — While yesterday was not good for any civic or mundane affairs this instead is an ideal time for all such. Be tactful with higher-ups in stating what your ambitions are where policy and office matters are concerned. Be thorough.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21). — Every opportunity is yours now to cultivate new friends, look into new interests and go to new places. However, be on the qui vive for any fine ideas that are given you by new contacts. Put into operation without delays.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20). — You get weekly affairs organized better so that you increase income, you can then do something especially nice for the one you love the most in this world and who expects a nice surprise after such a long time. Be charming.



Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19). Charming and intelligent partners are now in a mood to carry through with any practical plans you may suggest. However, be more friendly than you have been in the past, since they are apt to misunderstand your stoic manner. Explain.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20). It is imperative you roll up your sleeves and get surroundings in far better order and more beautiful by working at it yourself instead of relying on others. Be of service to those who deserve it, too. Retire early in p.m.

If your child is born today—he, or she, will have the wonderful personality and fine magnetism and be able to approach key people courteously to get what is desired. Endearing words and encouragement to "think big" will do wonders for this child, but curb any tendency toward extravagance which could otherwise ruin an excellent chart. But a generous outlook toward life is a must here for greater success.

WHAT'S SO

about $700.00 down to one month's rent? We have been helping with this financing for some time. Even just the down payment is one we can build a home for you for $10,000.00. A 3-bedroom bungalow. Take a look, let us prove that it can be done. Here are a few hidden charges. We pay all applications and mortgage expenses.

CHARLES STREET

Solid brick. Easily duplexed. Let your tenant help pay your mood of 4 room home. Already 2-bedrooms, but could be 3. Close to Bell. Close to much demand. Close to separate schools but public is close.

DON'T BE

because the lovely little Loyalist home sold so fast. After all, it's the unbelievable sale price. It just couldn't last. Why not phone us and build one for you just like it and have it in time for the new year. Imagine the comfort and joy you will have in the new year when you move into your very own home. At the low, low cost of downpayment, is the ideal wedding gift for the new bride.

SPINS TALES — Pioneer Ed Anderson of Dawson Creek, B.C., loves to spin tales about life in the North before the arrival of the Alaska Highway and the oil boom. Anderson, who now operates a garage in Dawson Creek, also guides hunters and fishermen into the Peace River area where he once hauled supplies by sled and riverboat. (CP Photo).

Ed Anderson, Dawson Creek Pioneer, Can Tell Tall Tales Of Early Life in the Wilds

By JIM PEACOCK

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP) — Ed Anderson is quite a tale-spinner.

Sit around the old pot-bellied stove in the narrow, dimly lit back room of his garage for an hour or so and he'll tell you all manner of stories.

About bush pilots Wop May, Jee Richthofen and Grant McConachie, for instance. Or of a trapper who cut off his frozen toes with a hunting knife and built spread of gangrene.

About a six-year-old girl who suffered severe burns in a cabin fire, then, survived a 40-day trip down the Parsnip River at break-up time. And about Ed Anderson — land operator, trucker, farmer, hunter, sales-man, guide and garageman.

"I hauled gas for Wop May and the other boys when they flew out of here in 1929," he said on a recent afternoon. "Later, when I was running the Dawson Creek taxi, they used to congregate around the taxi office in the evenings.

One night, Wop May didn't show up. The boys waited half the night, wondering what happened to him. Early next day, he flew in with the tail of his airplane missing. He said the wolves had ripped it off.

"They hadn't. He'd had engine trouble and had to set down in the bush and he took that tail off on a tree-covered hill. But he patched her up and brought her back in the morning."

HAD BELLYFUL

Ed Anderson was born in the United States, but moved to southern Alberta as a young man. In 1928, he went back to the U.S. from his farm at Youngstown, Alta., "I'd had a bellyful of that country. Ten years without a crop."

He went to work for a cater-pillar tractor company and in 1929 was sent north on a servicing job. He never got back and he's been to stay.

When the 1929 stock market bust came," he said, "I figured I was in Canada at least could shoot a moose and eat."

So he settled in Dawson Creek, then a handful of 90 miles from the rail line into the Peace River country from Ed-

NOW! A NEW WORLD OF WORTH!

CHEVROLET

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

NEW FROM DIESEL TO DAZZLE!

'62 CHEVROLET JOBMASTER TRUCKS!

WITH NEW High-Torque power

Here they are—handsome, functional '62 Chevrolet trucks powered to work harder in every weight class. Hefty new V8's with the highest torque in Chevrolet history. New Diesel brawn for 15 imported medium-duty models. And, now, Chevy's hard-working High-Torque 261 Six is available in light-duty models.

There's a wider choice of power, a wider choice of torque, across the board. For heavies, there's the new High-Torque 409 V8*, with 16½ per cent more torque than ever before available from Chevrolet. Big news in the middleweight class is the new, imported Chevy-GM 4-53 Diesel. In the light-duty lineup, the High-Torque 261 Six* adds new sock, new savings in extra-tough applications. All told, you can pick from nine farin'-to-work, ready-to-save '62 Chevrolet truck engines.

Handsome new work-styling includes forward-sloping hoods that allow drivers to see as much as 10½-feet more of the road directly ahead. Chevrolet's famous Independent Front Suspension gives you the smoothest riding, easiest working trucks in the business. Rugged new I-Beam front axles are optional* on heavyweight models.

You'll find a total of 198 models in the new '62 Chevy line—including the work-proved, versatile Corvair 95's. Every model is built to out-haul, out-last and out-value any other truck at anywhere near the price. See your Chevrolet dealer!

*Optional at extra cost

New CORVAIR-95 CORVAN. Sure-footed rear-engined hauler that totes 191 cu. ft. of cargo on an easy-handling 95" wheelbase. Whitewall tires optional at extra cost

New FLEETSIDE PICKUP. Most modern version of Canada's most popular pickup. Bodies are grab-light and up to 9 feet long.

New Imported SERIES 80 DIESEL. Diesel savings and sure Chevy durability. New 17,000-lb. tipped rear axle now available on DBI-41 models.

New SERIES 80 TANDEM. Best choice for the big ones! Has extra-rugged K-braced ladder frame and true-tracking Eaton-Hendrickson tandem bogie.

On the eve of the opening of the 1961 International Plowing Match to be held north of the city this week, Dr. J. Russell Scott, chairman of the Hastings County Plowing Match committee, expressed his own personal welcome and that of his committee members to the many match competitors and visitors who will be in the area.

"On behalf of the Hastings County Plowing Committee, I take great pleasure in welcoming the plowing contestants, visitors and exhibitors to the International Plowing Match," he said.

"Each of our local committee chairmen and committees, have worked hard to complete the arrangements for this great event and we hope the program meets with the approval of the visitors and that the 1961 Match will be remembered as another fine achievement for the Bay of Quinte district.

"Individual thanks cannot be expressed to all the people who have been so helpful in planning for the event. I can only say that the co-operation of all county organizations has been tremendous. Without it the final result would not have been possible."

Indian Band Plans Hayride To Big Match

What could possibly be the world's largest, modern day hayride got underway west of Toronto late this morning as a small band of Indians from the Mohawk Indian Reservation commenced a ride scheduled to end early Wednesday afternoon in time for the official opening of the International Plowing Match north of Belleville.

At approximately 11 o'clock this morning, Mohawk Chief Melville Hill and four members of his band dressed in full regalia mounted a tractor-drawn hay wagon at Long Branch for the long ride to Belleville.

At noon the band will stop at Toronto city hall where Chief Hill will present an official Plowing Match hat to Toronto mayor Nathan Phillips. The ride will then continue on toward Belleville, stopping overnight along the way and arriving at the Plowing Match site early Wednesday afternoon.

Accompanying Chief Hill on the long hayride will be Thomas Brant and John A. Brant, and two 16-year-old Indian maidens, Mary Claus and Caroline Brant.

PRICES GO UP

It is estimated that higher retail prices for milk and cheese that went into effect Sept. 1 will raise Norway's price index about 1.1 points.

Match scene at last year's International shows competitor who has about completed the crown of his land. Most of plowing at the International is now done by tractor, but also there are classes for horses with both gang and single plows.

Hastings County and the city of Belleville this year are hosts to the International Plowing Match, the first time it has been held in the county in the 48 years of its existence.

The big plowing match and machinery exhibit is being held this week, Wednesday to Saturday, on the Horace Knight and Vermilyea farms north of Belleville.

Official opening ceremonies will be held tomorrow (Wednesday) at 2.00 p.m. in the big 40-acre "Tented City" near the administration building. Hon. Alvin Hamilton, Federal Minister of Agriculture, will officially open the plowing match.

An annual event since it was held for the first time back in 1913, the International Plowing Match has grown from 13 entries, and a few hundred spectators to approximately 400 entries and up to 100,000 spectators.

This year's International, favored by a central location and good highways, is expected to attract close to 125,000 visitors.

Wednesday's opening ceremonies at the big match culminates three years of work on the part of the Hastings County Plowing Match committee headed by Dr. J. Russell Scott of Belleville.

Since Hastings county was chosen as the 1961 match site, the local committee members have attended dozens of meetings and have spent countless hours in working out the local details for the match. One of the biggest chores was preparing the site for the big match.

A feature of the opening day of the match will be the county warden's competition. In the Wardens' match, to commence at 2.30, Hastings county Warden Harleigh Hamilton will vie for plowing honors with close to 20 wardens from other parts of the province.

This is the first year there has been a wardens' competition.

DISTRICT EVENTS

Opening day will also be Central Ontario day for district plowmen. Local classes for plowmen from Hastings, Durham, Northumberland, Prince Edward counties will vie for honors.

Open classes will also commence on Wednesday, while on Thursday and Friday the Canadian championship will be decided with two competitors from each province entitled to compete. Last year's winner of this event was William Dixon of Brampton. Robert Timbers of Mount Albert, Ont., has been a three times winner of the event in recent years.

On Friday the Junior championship will be decided in a contest sponsored by Eaton's of Canada for contestants under 18 years.

Also on Friday will be the horseless ploughing competition, while in the evening at the Armouries the city of Belleville is host for a civic dinner.

Saturday, the final day of the Match, will see the plowing competition for mayors and reeves. Reeves this year are being included in the competition for the first time.

Rumour has it that Mayor A. M. Haig of Belleville may not try his hand at the plow, but for health reasons will delegate his plowing chores to one of the city aldermen.

Saturday will also see the inter-Secondary School competition when high school boys will compete for plowing honors. Local high school students have been practicing for this event and a week or so ago took expert instruction in plowing from a former International Plowing Match winner.

There will also be a horse show for horses actually taking part in the plowing match.

DAILY PARADE

Adding a bit of color the plowing match program will be a daily parade through the streets of the "Tented City".

Heading the daily parade will be an Ontario Provincial Police car, and officials of the Ontario Plowman's Association and local plowing match committee, riding on wagons hooked by tractors.

Air Force bands from Trenton Air Station and No. 6 RD will alternate each day in the parade.

Also in the parade will be the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Band; the Quinte High School Air Cadets and their band; the Seaforth Light Highlanders Leader Band and local drum majorettes. The parade program is in charge of Ralph Plumpton parade committee chairman.

3 MILES NORTH OF BELLEVILLE — WEDNESDAY - THURSDAY - FRIDAY - SATURDAY — OCTOBER 4-5-6-7

Hon. A. Hamilton, Federal Minister of Agriculture, Will Officially Open Plow Match

With every inch of available exhibit space taken up and further applications being refused, indications are that this year's International Plowing Match, to be held near Belleville, October 4 to 7, will break a[ll] previous records.

[J.] A. Lashley, Secretary [Ma]nager, has announced that [h]on. Alvin Hamilton, Minister of Agriculture for Canada, will officially open the match on Wednesday, October 4.

Several features have been incorporated in the program this year. In addition to the Mayors' class, Wardens of various Counties will have an opportunity to display their plowing skill. A good entry is expected in both events. Another innovation will be a program of special interest to the ladies, with a demonstration of flower arranging being scheduled for Friday. In addition to the usual parade and bands there will be a horse-shoe pitching competition for the devotees of the barnyard sport.

Farm machinery companies have taken up a large part of the exhibit space with all types of mechanical equipment being demonstrated.

This year will mark the 48th year of the International and it will be the first occasion on which the event has been held in Hastings County. It is expected that entries in the various classes will be as high as ever with special interest being shown in the High School class which will be held on Saturday.

The Canadian Championship match will be held during the International when competitors from several Provinces will compete for the championship. This year, for the first time, Saskatchewan will have an entry in the big event. The two winners in the Canadian Championship class will compete in the World Match in Holland next year.

This year's match will be the first occasion on which competitions will be held on Saturday. It is expected that many urban people will take advantage of this fact to attend the show and competition.

This farmstead of Horace Knight, 4th concession of Sidney township, will be admired by thousands of visitors to the International Plowing Match this week.

Knight Farm to Be Used At Plowing Match Is Run Along a Western Pattern

The traditional bromide for the young easterner seeking the security of personal success was once to "Go west young man." What it might have been for the westerner has passed unrecorded. For Horace Knight it was simply to reverse the process — he came east.

The end result of his move can be seen in all directions at his Spring Hollow farm — now being readied to stage the 1961 International Plowing Match.

The Knight farm — now a carefully plotted 325 acres, four miles north of Belleville — has been in the family for generations — but its transformation into a thriving food producing unit dates from the lean era of Depression Days.

In 1934, Horace Knight retraced the journey made by his father almost thirty years before, from the fourth concession of Ontario's Thurlow Township to Saskatchewan. Generations earlier, the Knights had helped homestead the concession and the present farm was among their holdings.

By birth a westerner, Horace first rented out property in Thurlow to try his hand at farming — Eastern Ontario Style. That pattern he still follows — versatile farming, including whole milk, canning crops and grain.

In 1941, he re-purchased the present farm after it had been briefly sold out of the family and began resettling the land once again under the old family name — but with contemporary aims.

In this respect, his thinking may have been slightly tinged by his background of Western space-consciousness. He began rolling up fences and blending the acreage into larger units — and this, he holds is one of the keys to survival in farming.

"We've got to have bigger fields to put the machinery to work," he says. "The guy with the larger fields is the one who is going to get the contracts."

Commercial aspects aside, it was also his work along that line of reasoning that made Spring Hollow farm a natural for the coming Plowing Match.

At present, Horace now is cultivating a parcel of 44 acres — just stripped of a bumper pea crop — which will be the stage for the actual challenge workouts in October. And with little trouble, another 50 adjoining acres can be made available for the event.

Locally, Horace Knight also agrees some big things are a future possibility for farmers of this area. Highway 401 — only recently opened through to Toronto — now provides a speedy transport link to the mushrooming metropolitan market. If nothing else, he figures the provincial capital will make increasing demands on the whole-milk producer. But here too may be indicated a problem for the individual farmer.

At present, Spring Hollow has a Holstein herd numbering 100 head — a count Horace has held steady for years.

Can he expand to meet the possibility of a greater milk demand? That may be the problem.

"Help is too hard to get and too uncertain. And here, we already have everything there is in the way of machinery." But that's in the future. For the present he confides — as will every farmer — "Nobody is going to make a fortune out of farming, but you can make a good living — as good as any job I know."

"I have advised young fellows who like to farm to go ahead. Darn it, I've been happy on the farm." And the truth to this is given by Spring Hollow farm.

No farmer can hide his temperament — it's an open display in the results of his work.

The thousands expected at the Plowing Match in October will see a model farm — run by a westerner, who came home to Eastern Ontario.

THEN... NOW

In 1817, while the ox-drawn plow still furrowed the face of virgin land, the Bank of Montreal became the first bank to work with Canada's pioneer farmers... helping them lay the foundations of the nation's agricultural economy — the corner-stone of our present industrial greatness.

Today, Canada's first bank is still working with farmers in every line of endeavour. Through low-cost Farm Improvement Loans, the B of M is providing the funds farmers need to purchase new equipment and livestock... to install new plumbing, heating, electrical and irrigation systems... to erect new buildings and fences... to finance a variety of practical farm projects.

In short, just as it worked with the pioneers of yesterday to build the Canada of today, so the B of M continues to work towards building an even greater Canada of tomorrow.

Special OPP Force Will Be On Hand to Direct Traffic

With a four day crowd estimated at upwards of 125,000 expected for the International Plowing Match being held here this week, a special force of about 50 Ontario Provincial Police will be on hand to direct traffic in the plowing match area north of Belleville.

Provincial Police headquarters at Belleville say that additional officers from five outside police districts will be brought in to patrol the area during the period of the match.

The extra O.P.P. officers will be billeted at the Army Camp at Picton, from where they will proceed to the plowing match site each day.

Main duties of the police will be to keep traffic to the plowing match flowing smoothly.

Most of the outside traffic coming in for the match is expected to come east and west along 401 highway from where it will be directed north along No. 14 highway and along Sidney Street to the parking areas adjoining the match site.

Local traffic en route to the match will come mostly down 14 and 37 highways and along 14 from Prince Edward county.

CITY POLICE TO HELP

Provincial Police will be working in co-operation with city police in the control of traffic, but city police do not expect too much congestion as result of the plowing match crowds.

"Most of the traffic will come along 401 highway north of the city," Police Chief Walter Probert said.

However, extra police will be on duty to assist in directing traffic during the four days of the match.

Traffic direction will not be the only duty of the provincial police. Each day after the crowds have left the grounds a special night detail of police will be on duty at the 40-acre tented city site to keep an eye on the hundreds of booths and other displays.

Plowing Match May Set New Record

Accessibility may be the success formula for a record attendance at this year's 1961 Plowing Match just north of Belleville.

If the match doesn't break its own attendance records the reason won't be lack of good roads.

Centre of events will be the fourth concession of Thurlow township and the farms of Farley Vermilyea and Horace Knight.

Knight's Spring Hollow Farm will be used for the actual plowing contests while a 40-acre tract on the neighboring Vermilyea land holds the Tented City of exhibits and services planned for the match. Two of the province's main highways are immediately south of the site.

Highway 401 provides a speedy trip to Toronto and is open east for a further 15 miles.

The scenic attractions of highway two are a little farther south while visitors from northern regions are served by another main route — highway 7, just 25 miles north of the plowing match site.

The Vermilyea and Knight farms are easy to reach in the Belleville area. They are located immediately west of highway 14 on a paved township road.

A five-minute car jaunt from the site places any service needed before the visitor.

Belleville is an agricultural centre. Its businessmen and bankers have dealt in a big way with the farmer since the community started. The farmer's plow has underwritten much of its success as a thriving Ontario corporation.

BELLEVILLE

This farm home of Arthur and Farley Vermilyea is directly across the road from the plowing match "Tented City". The "city" is on the Arthur Vermilyea farm, but much of the match plowing is being done on the Clarence Vermilyea farm immediately to the west. As well as plowing the Clarence Vermilyea farm will be reserved for parking.

Hard Work Still Key to Success on Farm Declare Descendants of Norman Family Which Came Here After U.S. Revolution

Contemporary commercial practice has surrendered the family business to the corporation as an economic enterprise —in all but farming. In the right hands, the family farm can still thrive—in the hands of Thurlow township's Vermilyeas, the family farm is literally a growing enterprise.

Now, the Vermilyeas, who have been tilling the land a mile north of Belleville since 1790, are grouped as a family in a new, if fleeting, enterprise.

Three generations of them have prepared the 40 acres on which has mushroomed as the "Tented City" of the 1961 International Plowing Match. They are temporary landlords of the canvas subdivision housing the exhibits and service amenities for the plowing contests on the Spring Hollow Farm of their neighbor, Horace Knight.

The three generations — father, son and grandson — continued the daily chores of operating their 80-acre holding of mixed farming while tackling the new job with relish.

"It's an awful headache," said 11-year-old Arthur Vermilyea, the active patriarch of the family unit, "and its an awful responsibility . . . but worth it. We feel honored that our place has been chosen."

The Vermilyeas made their own choice of permanent location hot on the heels of the American revolution.

In common with all true farmers, their sense of responsibility in the present and future stems from a sharp awareness of their own past. The present-day Vermilyea family are keenly conscious of their roots.

Originally of Normandy farm stock, they first settled in the New World in what is now Northern New York state. With the end of War between England and the American colonies, as farmers they aligned themselves with tradition. This meant emigration.

As United Empire Loyalists, they headed north and settled near the Bay of Quinte and there they have remained since. The present-day Vermilyea household dates from the land settlement of Than Vermilyea conferred by George III. The original farmstead is operated by Arthur's brother Clarence. Early in life, Arthur expanded the holding in the family name by purchasing adjoining holdings — now the homestead for himself; his wife; son, Farley and Farley's children. The link through nine reigns with the present day family unit is a matter of common-place conversation for the elder Vermilyea. He traces with ease the grapplings with settlers, by the first family settlers. To assure livelihood, the first Vermilyeas made an annual seven-day round trip to Kingston grinding mills by ox-cart with their basic crop — wheat.

Today, communications are still a matter of lively comment for Arthur Vermilyea.

Good roads mean fast transportation and cheaper marketing.

"Good roads always help trade."

Highway 401 now links the area to Toronto by a two-hour drive and Toronto means big markets.

But he joins Farley in noting contemporary drawbacks to the happy possibilities — notably farm labor. Even in the machine age, availability of farm workers is another key to expansion of individual farm business. Says this veteran who has seen the farming economic revolution, machinery does not perform such basically important farm chores as fence-building.

LIKES HARD WORK

Herein, also, is a clue to Arthur Vermilyea's hardiness and refusal to let age limit his activity, perhaps the most important link that holds the Vermilyeas together as a family unit.

It can be summed up in two words . "hard work."

His son Farley says bluntly: "If he sat down on a chair for a year he'd be done."

The elder Vermilyea agrees: "It's no good sitting on a chair waiting for the Lord to take you."

No matter how extensively machinery may revolutionize farming, to Arthur Vermilyea personal physical development is a must for the farmer.

"Nothing," he says, "can replace muscles. Even all that machinery."

And carrying that theory down to the coming generation of Vermilyeas, Farley points to his son William. Sharing in the family chores of a progressive farm enterprise, the boy is now a star athlete in high school sports. Both father and grandfather attribute his success to the muscular stamina reached by hard work in day-to-day farming.

And the elder Vermilyea extends the theory even to the womenfolk of the family.

In preparation for the Plowing Match the family farmhouse has undergone extensive ulterior and exterior redecoration. While the men labored on stone facings and inside decoration, the women set to with garden chores. The result now is a showpiece of farm domesticity facing, directly onto the site of the "Tented City."

"Many women would think that a lot of work," Arthur Vermilyea says, pointing out the newly-planted trees, shrubs and flower beds. "Our women do not think too much about it."

However, results show they personally think enough about it to frame their attitude to the 1961 Plowing Match a serious business — a serious family business.

Super-Bomb Could Ignite Countryside From Hamilton To Belleville and Pembroke

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The 100-megaton nuclear bomb that Soviet Premier Khrushchev says his scientists are building could possibly ignite an area equivalent to almost all of southern Ontario.

Fires could rage over a distance equivalent to that between Hamilton and Belleville and as far north as Pembroke on the Ottawa River.

Its blast could dig a crater about 300 feet deep and about two miles wide, officials of the U.S. Civil Defense Agency estimated today.

Detonated in the atmosphere, it could bring destruction and fire to an area extending outward more than 60 miles in any direction from the detonation point — providing atmospheric conditions were favorable.

The bomb itself, as an incendiary weapon, would explode with a blinding light in the form of a fireball three miles in diameter with temperatures of about 18,000,000 degrees. Everything within a distance of 12 miles in all directions would be completely destroyed.

Basement bomb shelters would offer little protection within an area extending out about 30 or 35 miles from the detonation point, officials said. But beyond that distance, shelters, especially those beneath two or three feet of earth, might provide adequate protection.

These were merely tentative estimates, officials said. Refined calculations now are being worked out by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and may be ready in about three months.

While the tentative figures would indicate the 100-megaton bomb—equivalent to 100,000,000 tons of TNT—would bring great devastation, U.S. military planners do not consider it an efficient weapon.

They say explosions of a series of smaller bombs, equivalent to 20,000,000 or 30,000,000 tons of TNT each would destroy a country's resistance more effectively.

YOUR HEALTH IS YOUR FUTURE

As Minister of the Ontario Department of Health, I am pleased and proud to invite you to visit our exhibit at the International Plowing Match opening tomorrow.

It will give you first-hand knowledge about such services as public health nursing, mental health facilities, rehabilitation, Tuberculosis prevention and many more.

Your health is your future — and your future depends upon your health. So take advantage of the necessary and helpful information we offer about Ontario's health services.

I hope you will accept my invitation.

Sincerely,

Matthew B. Dymond, M.D., Minister

Labor Opposes Wage-Freeze In Britain

BLACKPOOL (CP) — Delegates at Britain's Labor party convention have taken a solid stand against the government's wage-freeze austerity move.

The 1,300 delegates put up a solid front against the move Monday as they drafted a policy program.

The stand was expressed by Frank Cousins, general secretary for the Transport and General Workers Union and its 1,000,000 members.

He said he is against wage restraint, proposed by Prime Minister Macmillan's government, "in any form, shape or climate."

The government move is designed to make British industry more competitive in world markets. It has brought protests recently from a broad section of workers, including school teachers, who have staged one-day protest strikes.

Disc-Shaped Flying Object Seen on Ground

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A civilian pilot reported an unidentified flying object south of here Monday and seven persons on the ground said they also saw it.

Waldo J. Harris, a Salt Lake City insurance man, said he spotted the disc-shaped object as he was taking off from Utah airport.

"I first thought it was an airplane," he said. "But when I got airborne, I noticed that it was still in the same spot and had no wings or tail."

The Federal Aviation Agency said its radar scopes didn't pick up anything that could have been the object.

William Dixon, 26 of Brampton, Ont., is seen with trophy as winner of the world plowing match held recently in Grignon, France. The 26-year-old Ontario dairy farmer won out over 31 other contestants with a total of 144.11 points out of a possible 200.

Ontario Plowmen's Body Stages Big Match Annually

The big International Plowing Match being held north of Belleville this week, is an annual event sponsored by the Ontario Plowmen's Association with this year's event being given a big assist by members of the Hastings County Plowing Committee.

Favored by a better than average location with highway routes leading in from all directions, the match this year is expected to draw upwards of 125,000 persons who will tax to capacity motel and hotel accommodation in the area.

The big plowing match has been an annual event for the Ontario Plowmen's Association for the past 46 years and each year seems to attract bigger and bigger crowds. Watching Canada's best plowmen at work is only part of the attraction, with thousands coming mainly to see the farm machinery displays and other attractions in the big "Tented City".

HEADS GROUP

Alston Campbell of Burford, in Western Ontario is the Ontario Plowmen's Association president.

Honorary president is Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, with Robert Campbell of Churchill and Stanley Hall, MPP, of Streetsville, as vice-presidents. F. A. Lashley, Department of Agriculture, Toronto, is secretary manager and Clarke Young of Unionville is treasurer.

There are 25 Association directors. Thurlow Reeve Harry Pound is one of the associate directors, while Griffin Ketcheson of R.R. 1, Foxboro, is a junior director.

The International has been an annual event in Ontario for the past 46 years but this is the first year it has ever been held in Hastings county. Back in 1933 is was held in the Cobourg area.

Next year's match is being held at Owen Sound and the 1963 competition — a world match — is being held in Peel county. In 1964 the match will be held in Peterborough county.

LOCAL COMMITTEE

Dr. J. Russell Scott of Belleville is chairman of the Hastings County Plowing Committee with Horace Knight of R.R. 5, Belleville, as vice-chairman. Sidney MacDonald of Stirling is secretary and Ben Bleecker, Holloway, treasurer.

The agricultural group of the committee consists of Harry Pound as chairman with Vincent Healey of Stoco, John Wills of Marmora; Clayton Hall of Plainfield, Ray Hannah of Fort Stewart, Victor Hughson of Coe Hill, and Harleigh Hamilton, warden of the county.

Executive councillors include Jack McArthur, Belleville; branch of the Royal Bank of Canada; Melville Hill, Deseronto and Norway Maracle, Shannonville.

Local committee chairmen are: lands — Farley Vermilyea of Belleville, health and sanitation — George Whitman of Belleville; tractors — James Reynolds, Foxboro; teams and horses — William J. Woods, Tweed; parking —Roger Ness, Belleville, lunches — Harleigh Hamilton; wagon tours — Kenneth Twiddy; demonstrations — James Spry, Bonarlaw; farmstead improvements —Miss Jane Gay, Ivanhoe — county exhibits — Clarence Bird, Belleville; banquet — Earl Dickmeother, Belleville; tented city — Roy Sills, Holloway; publicity — Phil Fisher, Belleville; historical — T. G. Wrightmeyer, Belleville, and billeting — George Haggis, Belleville.

LOCAL BOY RETURNS

PATERNO (Reuters)—Milan industrialist Michaelangelo Virgillitio returned to his birthplace in this Sicilian town Saturday night to donate an $800,000 jewel-encrusted crown for the local statute of the Virgin Mary, distribute 100 dowries to Paterno girls and donate 6,000 gift parcels to the town's poorest families.

INTERNATIONAL PLOWING MATCH

3 MILES NORTH OF BELLEVILLE — WEDNESDAY-THURSDAY-FRIDAY-SATURDAY — OCTOBER 4-5-6-7

This is the farm home of George Burkitt, Fourth Concession of Sidney near Frankford which took county honors in Class I of the Hastings County Farmstead Improvement Contest. Seventy-five county farmers took part in the contest. Above class was for farmsteads kept in good condition during past years.

Farmstead of Wallace J. McInroy, of West Huntingdon, won the overall prize in Class II of the Hastings County Farmstead Improvement contest which was held in connection with the International Plowing Match. Class II was for improvement made during this year.

75 County Farmsteads Take On New Look as Entrants In Improvement Contest

Many farmsteads in the Belleville area took on a fresh and brighter appearance this summer as owners engaged in a paint-up clean-up campaign as entrants in the Hastings County Farmstead Improvement Contest.

The contest was held in connection with the International Plowing Match being held this week north of Belleville. Close to 75 county farmsteads were entered in the contest, which was divided into two classes—one for farms where improvements were made this year, and another for those farmsteads already attractive because of previous improvements and continued care.

Competing farmsteads were judged on a township basis with a winner being declared in each class. Then over-all county winners were declared.

The farmstead improvement contest was in charge of a special committee chaired by Miss Jane Cay of Ivanhoe. Mr. Harry Sirett of Brighton was the judge.

The Ontario Plowman's Association initially sponsored the competition. However, individual townships contributed extra prize money while in addition agricultural societies, Women's Institutes, horticultural societies and Hastings county and Junior Farmer Clubs as well as private enterprises also contributed with a total of $1,300 in cash donations and a quantity of merchandise being in the kitty.

County winner in Class I for improvements made this year was the farmstead of Wallace McInroy of West Huntingdon, while the farmstead of George Burkitt, 4th concession of Sidney township near Frankford, was declared the winner in Class 2.

General appearance of the farm in addition to the appearance of the farm buildings, was taken into consideration in the contest.

As result fences were cleaned up and fence posts along driveways and across fields took on a brighter hues as owners applied the paint brush.

Formerly drab unpainted barns and other farm buildings also saw paint applied, the buildings blossoming out in red or white coats, according to the owners' fancy.

And many farmers' wives realized long time ambitions of having the old farm home modernized.

As result sun porches, screened verandahs, dormer windows, new paint and other improvements were the order of the day.

Pictures of the two county prize-winning farmsteads are seen in the accompanying photos.

"75 YEARS OF VALUE"

Ontario Plowmen's Association president, Alston Campbell of Burford (centre) checks plans for "Tented City" with Sid MacDonald, local plowing committee secretary, and Arthur Vermilyea, on whose farm it is erected.

Many Wardens Will Compete On Wednesday

Some wardens may have been accused of plowing a wide furrow through their local political scene in the past, but, just how well they can turn the sod in an open field is another matter. Visitors to the 1961 International Plowing Match at Belleville, will have an opportunity to discover the answer to this question for themselves, on the first day of the big show.

Warden Harleigh Hamilton of Hastings County has received a number of "takers" to his personal plowing match challenge for the Wardens' competition. For a number of years the big match has featured a mayor's challenge class, but this is the first time that the chief magistrates of Ontario counties have had the gauntlet thrown at their feet.

Judging by the number of acceptances to date, Warden Hamilton will not have the cat's touch he may have been expecting when agreed to take on his contemporaries across the province. Many wardens have reflected that they will be on hand with their coaches, advisers and campaign managers for the explicit purpose of becoming the first plowing champ in the new Wardens' class and if grass roots campaigning is of any help in wielding the plowshare, then this event could be the crowd pleaser of the day on Wednesday.

Seven provinces will be represented in the 1961 Canadian Plowing Championship to be held near Belleville, Ontario, October 3 and 4, say officials of the Canadian Plowing Council, sponsors of the competition. These top plowmen must both sod and stubble during the two days of the contest.

The winner will be awarded the Esso Silver Plow, emblematic of Canadian plowing supremacy.

This year the contest will be conducted in conjunction with the Ontario Plowmen's Association, and will take place at Ontario's fairnational Match just north of Belleville in Hastings County. F. A. Lashley, secretary of the Canadian Plowing Council, reports that local arrangements are well in hand, and plowing conditions should be excellent.

This contest will also decide the two plowmen to represent Canada in the 1962 World Match to be held in Holland.

"It's unwise to pay too much, but it's unwise to pay too little. When you pay too much you lose a little money, that is all. When you pay too little, you sometimes lose everything, because the thing you bought was incapable of doing the thing you bought it to do. The common law of business balance prohibits paying a little and getting a lot . . . it can't be done. If you deal with the lowest bidder, it's well to add something for the risk you run. And if you do that, you will have enough to pay for something better." —John Ruskin.

MODERN OLD-TIME CABIN — Erected on the spot at the International Plowing Match site is this tidy log cabin which will house articles of pioneer interest for visitors to the plowing match. Exhibit will be in charge of Thomas Wrightmeyer, Belleville antique dealer.

Pioneer Articles Will Be Shown In Log Cabin at Plowing Match

Possibly the newest old fash. ioned log cabin in the Belleville area these days is the one which has been erected at the International Plowing Match site in which articles of pioneer interest will be exhibited during the four days of the match. Sponsoring the exhibit is Thomas Wrightmeyer of Belleville who has collected many fine pieces of historical interest for the showing.

Included in the exhibit will be examples of pioneer home lighting equipment loaned by Dr. William Paul of Tweed, while Mr. Smith, local Bell Telephone employee, is loaning early-type firearms for the show.

Indian lore will be provided by Mr. McIvella Gill, member of the Mohawk Indian Reservation at Tyendinaga.

And possibly one of the most interesting parts of the exhibit will be an old horse-drawn stagecoach which at one time actually hauled passengers between Belleville and Trenton.

Man Who Tried To Kill Verwoerd Takes Own Life

BLOEMFONTEIN (Reuters) — David Pratt, wealthy English-born farmer who tried last year to assassinate Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd, has committed suicide at a mental institution here, it was announced Monday.

He was found dead in his cell with a sheet tied around his neck Sunday—his 54th birthday.

Pratt was committed to Pretoria jail Sept. 26 last year after a Supreme Court jury found him to be an epileptic and mentally disordered.

At an earlier hearing Pratt had told the court of his "immense feeling of relief" after shooting the prime minister at a farm show in April, 1960.

Mayor of Tented City Old Hand At Leading Co-operative Plans

Being a community leader, particularly in his own farm community is veteran sheriff Roy Sills, Thurlow township farmer.

As chairman of the Tented City committee for the 1961 International Plowing Match near Belleville, Mr. Sills combines both functions as mayor of the canvas municipality. For four days his committee must assure municipal services — from power to police protection — for 40 acres of tents housing displays and refreshment stalls.

Organization on the farm front is the particular sphere of Roy Sills. A farmer by heritage, he has one of the most highly organized farm operations in Hastings County. Once the owner of 200 acres divided over three holdings in his native Thurlow township, today he still works the original homestead, on the township's ninth concession, he purchased from his father as a young veteran returned from World War I.

His diversified production — hogs, milk and canning crops — is an example of what he terms the sensible attitude to farming. More Ontario farmers should follow this lead set in the eastern end of the province, he says.

Although he won't admit it personally, Roy Sills has devoted much of his time to helping set leads for his fellow farmers.

"Farming isn't only a business, it's a way of life," he says and to preserve the life, sound business organization is necessary.

ROY SILLS

CO-OP ADVOCATE

A firm believer in the farm co-operatives, he holds that the farmer must also process — and if necessary — wholesale his own produce.

Processing is the key to the farmer's survival on the business front.

"The time is coming when the farmers are going to have to run their own processing plants. I think that is what the farmer will have to do," he says.

He was one of the founding directors of the most ambitious farm co-operative ideas in Ontario: Farmers' Allied Meat Enterprises. And the Sills family is pledged on more shares in F.A.M.E. than any other in the province. Not only are four of the Sills boys stockholders but a six-month-old grandson — Roy also — is the youngest shareholder in Ontario.

The backing of FAME culminated many years of support for organized farm fronts by Roy Sills.

His interest was first sparked 15 years ago with the formation of the nearby Foxboro Co-op — now a flourishing enterprise. Then followed the Quinte Co-Operative Medical Association a health plan designed specifically for rural areas; local organizations for the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association; and an active part in the knock-down fight three years ago for organized marketing for hog producers.

At its height, he still found time to contest a local issue of contract obligations with canning interests by taking a successful test case to county court on behalf of district farmers.

Although farming may be a way of life it is not the whole community, a fact that may be evidenced from his full-time application in other fields. He has a record of long service on the Bay of Quinte High School Board and he also is a local campaign worker in local Liberal politics.

FARMING EXCITING

But personally, he believes farming is the only way of life with its own individual excitement.

"With farming" says Roy, "there is always an element of risk. The farmer is the biggest optimist there is. He is always gambling with the weather, but he always has something to look forward to."

And, for Roy Sills among the things the farmer should look forward to is the practice of marketing co-operatively.

"The idea now is for the farmers to run their own business".

"If we are smart enough to grow the stuff, we ought to be smart enough to process it and sell it".

He now heads the co-operatives effort necessary for running the International Plowing Match Tented City 1961.

FEMININE PLOWMAN — Miss Gail Orcle, 18, Peterborough bank clerk, the only feminine entrant in today's International Plowing Match, poses on her tractor before the match commences.

International Plowing Match Commences With 58 Competing in Morning Classes

Weather cloudy skies and with a noticeable drop in temperature, the International Plowing Match got underway north of Belleville today. Shortly after nine o'clock the forerunner of a four-day attendance expected to reach over 100,000 had started to pour into the "Tented City."

Shortly before 10 o'clock plowing competitions in the junior, county and provincial classes got underway, with a total of 58 plowmen competing.

There were 13 entrants in class 9, the Ontario championship class for adults.

ONE WOMAN ENTERED

The opening day plowing activities saw only one member of the female sex entered, she is 18-year-old Gail Orde, daughter of Walter Orde of R.R. 11, Peterborough, who is competing in her 4th International Plowing Match. She competed in her first International junior match at the age of 14.

Today Miss Orde was competing in the county classes with five men as opponents. Only Hastings county entry in the class is Douglas Harry of Trenton.

Competitors plowed in stubble this morning and this afternoon will be required to plow sod.

In addition to the county classes and the Ontario championship classes, there were three classes for juniors, 18 to 26 years, 16 to 19 years and 12 to 15 years.

On the job at strategic points this morning were members of the Ontario Provincial Police directing match visitors to parking areas.

FREE HAY RIDE

Once out of their cars visitors got a free hayride, thanks to the county Junior farmers' organization who are manning tractors and wagons to transport visitors between parking areas and the Frontenac County Plowing Match.

Prior to the opening of the plowing competitions the tractor area north of the "Tented City" was a hive of activity as close to 60 competitors received their assignment of tractors. Many of the competitors brought their own plows with them.

There were only two horse plowmen in today's local competitions. These were from Wolfe Island and were sponsored by the Frontenac County match.

The International Plowing Match is being officially opened this afternoon by Hon. Alvin Hamilton, Federal Minister of Agriculture.

Also this afternoon will see the Wardens' plowing match when Hastings County Warden Harleigh Hanton takes on visiting wardens in the International match to decide the best warden plowman.

Only Hastings county entrant in the class was Douglas Harry of R.R., Trenton.

This is the fifth time which Miss Orde has competed in the International. She entered the junior classes when she was but 13 years of age and modestly admitted that she has been raising chickens with the money.

This year she arranged her holidays so that she could come to Belleville and compete in the International.

Lone Woman Competitor Consistently in the Money

An 18-year-old Peterborough bank stenographer and machine operator was the only feminine competitor in a field of 58 contestants as the first day of the International Plowing Match got under way north of Belleville today.

The lone woman competitor was Miss Gail Orde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Orde of R.R. 11, Peterborough, who was competing in the county classes. She was competing in class 11 for tractors with three or more furrows.

'I Get a Thrill Every Time I Put on a Yankee Uniform'

By TOGI BERRA

NEW YORK (AP)—For the last few years fellas keep asking me what world series mood I get when I get the biggest thrill. I really couldn't answer that one. I get a thrill every time I put on a Yankee uniform.

I'm 37 now and I guess Lou Gehrig said it best when he said "I'm lucky to be a Yankee."

The world series scheduled to start today against Cincinnati is my 12th. It used to be that I looked forward to the winner's share. But as you get older your sense of values changes and you realize money isn't everything.

I see where I've earned $71,841 extra for playing in 49 world series games. You know, I never added it up.

To me it's more important to be playing. I have no idea what I'd like to do when I'm finished playing. I don't even think about that. And I have no plans about retiring.

This series means a lot to me because this will be the first time I've started in one as an outfielder. Oh, I played some outfield last year and in 1947, when I was a rookie of 22 and the Dodgers ran wild on the bases in the first two series games as a catcher.

In the third game I pinched hit for Sherman Lollar and became the first player to hit a pinch home run in a world series.

But I don't like to look back and maybe when I get older those dozen records I hold will mean much more. It's still nice to have fellas come up to you and remind you of them.

Experience means a lot in a series. It may hurt Cincinnati.

The Reds don't have one player who ever played one inning in a world series.

I see where Freddie Hutchinson of the Reds is starting Frank Robinson in left field in the first game. I think that's a smart move. He played right field most of the year. Maybe Hutch is putting him out there because he's pitching a lefty, Jim O'Toole, and

Prime Minister Makes Day Tour of Southern Ontario

SIMCOE (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker returned to Ottawa early today after a one-day tour through Southern Ontario communities, spending a school children and fellow Conservatives alike to optimism about the future.

The main purpose of the trip was to open the 131st Norfolk County Fair at Simcoe, which Mr. Diefenbaker did with the thunder of a five-pound ham from his seat in a yellow show wagon.

Speaking mainly to the 3,000 school children among the 7,000 persons present, Mr. Diefenbaker remarked: If you do not believe that the world will be a better place, then you will lack the will to make it so."

At Dunnville, where he spoke to 400 in a meeting arranged by the Haldimand County Progressive Conservative Association, the prime minister said Canada appears to be in a period of steady improvement in the general employment situation."

He said Canadians have fared much better in employment opportunities" than Americans during recent unemployment, quoting August figures that he said showed 6.9 per cent unemployment in the United States and 4.8 per cent in Canada.

Earlier, at a luncheon in Simcoe, he said he was pleased with progress being made to institute a world food bank, remarking that the need to feed mankind has become a condition of Canada's survival.

When the stomach is gnawing, the head has not got time for knowing," he said. "The trappings of democracy are strangers to those, who survive on trimmings."

At Hilsonburg, Mr. Diefenbaker stood on the town hall steps to address a crowd of 1,000, even moving higher up the steps when children in the audience yelled that they couldn't see him.

There, he appealed for co-operation between racial groups and nations.

This is a country in which anyone, regardless of racial origin, provided he will give all for Canada, can rise to any height."

Prospects for Agreement On UN Secretary Brighter

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Prospects appeared a little brighter today for East-West agreement on naming a United Nations secretary-general.

Informed American sources expressed guarded optimism that a formula might be announced—perhaps by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko meets U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk in Washington later this week.

Editorial Affairs Minister Howard Green of Canada, in a major policy speech to the 100-country 15th General Assembly Tuesday, stressed the urgency of picking a successor to the late Dag Hammarskjold in view of the uncertainties confronting the UN in The Congo.

This could be done on an interim basis until the longer-range solution is being worked out, Green said, but the appointee should have the authority to make decisions and keep going the essential work of the UN secretariat.

Soviet delegates were giving the impression that they only demand on the naming of a temporary successor to Hammarskjold. That would be screened by the Security Council, where Russia holds the veto power.

But if the selection is left to the General Assembly alone, as two weeks ago in emergency sessions, the Soviet Union will refuse to recognize the new secretary-general. It said he were a Russian," doe high Soviet official Valerian Zorin, has veto in the General Assembly.

Latest speculation centred on a plan for an acting secretary-general with five deputies — two nominated from the Soviet union and the Western bloc, the other three from Latin America, Asia and Africa.

There was no indication whether such a plan would be acceptable to the Russians.

Quebec Royal Commission Hears Stories of Kickbacks

QUEBEC (CP) — The Salvas royal commission into contracting practices under the Union Nationale administration opened for the funeral today of Lieutenant-Governor Onesime Gagnon and its search for evidence of a petition seeking to block the commission's work.

A decision on whether to grant a petition for an injunction was reserved by Chief Justice of the Court. The petition was made by Mr. Joseph Boulanger, Union Nationale member of the legislative council — Quebec's junior cabinet ranking — and by Cabinet of Premier Jean Lesage have usurped its power in establishing the royal commission and that rights and privileges of Union Nationale members had been violated.

If granted, the injunction would block the work of the royal the commission's probe of purchasing practices under the Union Nationale.

It would also have the effect of preventing the commission's board from making a report on the 1957 sale of Hydro-Quebec's Montreal Light, Heat and Power system to the Quebec Natural Gas Corporation.

At Tuesday's sitting the name of the late premier Maurice Duplessis was linked to the deal by a witness, Mr. Jacques Nesault, 36, a Montreal businessman testified he received a $600 cheque endorsed by Sico Paint Company from the owner's estate in 1958.

Roy testified he went to see two other political personalities, including Mr. Duplessis, because he needed money. He received $5,000 in other cheques for $611, from Automotive Products Limited, and $779 from Charles Cusson Limited, which he said came from the premier's office.

Roy said Duplessis was not active in politics, said he thanked Aurea Cloutier, Mr. Duplessis' secretary. Roy's home town is in the riding of Trois-Rivieres, then represented by Mr. Duplessis.

Rene Benard, who said he was chairman of the UN party organization in St. Sauveur rid, long for five years, testified he received some $6,000 directly from Mr. Martineau. Benard, a Montreal contractor, said he knew the amounts "by heart." He said he had told Mr. Martineau that he could not continue as party chairman because he wouldn't collect. Mr. Martineau told the to stay on and will reimburse you." Benard testified.

He received cheques of $1,200 from Lorenzo Audet, manager of a Montreal paint company, and Charles Lacoste, he said.

Lorenzo Audet, manager of a Montreal paint company, testified he received $3,367 in kickbacks between 1955 and 1958. Roy, testifying earlier, said he gave him a cheque for $1,500 which was cashed by Brandram-Henderson.

"I think it was a reward for working in electoral fund," he said. He had been in charge of Roy's campaign in Montreal Saint-Henri in the 1956 provincial election.

Maurice Tetu, a commercial traveller who said he had been involved in "only one occasionally" said he had received money directly from Mr. Martineau and from Armand Archambault, UN member for Quebec-East, who is a former cabinet minister. He was uncertain which cheques had been given to him by which man. He said he received a total of $2,234.

Tetu said Roy, who sold heavy machinery to the government, said he had been told to pay $1,000 to persons designated by Aldred Hardy, former UN member for Montreal-Cartier.

Jacques Nesault, 36, said he received $53,166 in commissions from Roy Simmons Limited company, for which he is a salesman, for the Quebec district manager, and that the money was paid into Machinerie Royale, a company controlled by other accounting purposes."

Nesault testified in connections was paid by Duke Equipment to Standard Supplies Service, Montreal. Nesault said he paid $17,000 to $18,000 from Machinerie Royale to persons named by Hardy and about $3,000 was Standard Supplies.

Nesault said he had been out of pocket but "if a person gives commissions and in business each year and if I have paid asks you to do a favor, you don't ask questions."

FIVE SUSPECTS WERE IN STORE BEFORE ROBBERY

Havelock Owner Gives Evidence

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Five Girt - shop owner Minnie Williams testified at a preliminary hearing Tuesday that two of five men charged with the $232,201 Havelock bank holdup August 31 were in her store opposite the bank two days before the raid.

Miss Williams said the two men, whom she identified as Roger Meloter, 32, and another calling himself George Wilson, 36, did not answer when she asked them whether they wanted souvenirs.

Miss Williams said they spoke a few words together in a language she did not understand or recognize.

"I didn't like the looks of them," she said. "I didn't take my eyes off them while they were in the store."

The five, charged with armed robbery and possession of a stolen car, are Yvon Lalonde, 31, his brother Jean Claude Lalonde, 23, Roger Martel, 41, and Meloter, all of Montreal, and Wilson, of Ottawa. Police say Wilson's real name is Marcel Lalonde.

All except Yvon Lalonde are further charged with possession of another stolen car and with shooting with intent to wound while evading arrest. Wilson faces a single charge of breaking and entering a cottage in the Stoney Lake area, 15 miles north of here, during the period of the robbery when searchers were combing the area for the bandits.

The five entered no plea and elected trial by judge and jury.

George Milliken, manager of the Havelock branch of the Toronto - Dominion Bank, testified the "approximate" total taken by the four men who held up the bank was $232,201. This consisted of $99,000 in cash, $105,850 in bonds, $38,712 in stocks, $6,639 in travellers cheques, money orders and other items.

The hearing is continuing.

Young Soldier Instantly Killed When Hit by Car

KINGSTON (CP) — A young soldier was killed near here Tuesday night and two comrades were injured when his flying body when a car struck the youth from behind.

Killed was Norman Morgan, 18, of the Parry Sound district, Canadian Signal Corps recruit about two miles east of here.

Injured were the youth's body was hurled into them were Robert Bertrand, 18, of Sudbury, and Ronald Wareham, 19, of California, both signalmen at the camp.

Garceau is semi-conscious in hospital, suffering serious head injuries. Wareham is in good condition, with a broken wrist.

Morgan was on his way to walking west on Highway 2 from the school's main gate when he was struck from behind. driven by John Armstrong of Kingston, who was not injured in either car and struck Morgan from behind.

Second Plane Party Is Stranded As Airline's Fleet Cut by Third

LONDON (AP) — A charter flight of Canadian Pacific Airlines was told today they faced an indefinite wait for repairs to their plane, grounded by the second left without transport, and the same charter airline within a week.

The Oakdromans, members of the Oakdrome Country Club in Los Angeles, were scheduled to leave from Gatwick airport Tuesday afternoon on a flight operated by President Airlines of Los Angeles, did not appear.

"I'm afraid you'll have to come back again later," booking clerk W. F. Beard told the disappointed throng. "I understand that only airliner available is having a maintenance check in New York. They hope to get off for London some time tonight."

The travellers had spent the night at hotels and with British friends and relatives.

A second touring party — 98 Irish-Americans from Quicago—finally took off for Ireland on President Airlines charter plane early today after a seven-day wait at Shannon airport in Ireland.

The Los-Angeles group, including many British wives of Americans stationed in the United Kingdom, had also had a one-month holiday in the U.K. but appeared to have enough money left to pay for meals and lodging. The airport authorities allowed those short on cash to sleep in the airport lounge.

Their flight to take place at Shannon but it was detained following settlement of a $4,000 bill for fuel and landing fees. The airline wired a draft for the amount and departed for takeoff clearance Tuesday.

In Los Angeles, Glen H. Taylor, owner of President Airlines, said the fleet troubles began when one of its planes crashed at Shannon last Sept. 30. The crash wiped out one-third of the company's three-plane fleet.

Taylor said the airline had about 700 tourist passengers in Europe at the time and the two remaining planes "are working overtime on regular schedules."

Nkrumah Jails Dozens For Plot To Murder Him

Opposition Members Among Those Arrested

ACCRA, Ghana (Reuters)— Dozens of opponents of President Kwame Nkrumah were under arrest today following allegations by the government of a plot to assassinate Nkrumah and some members of his cabinet.

A government statement listed 46 persons who were in custody, but opposition United party leaders J. B. Danquah and Obetsebi Lamptey escaped the roundup and were being sought.

Among those arrested was 38-year-old lawyer Joe Appiah, deputy leader of the parliamentary Opposition since 1958. He is married to Peggy Cripps, daughter of the late Sir Stafford Cripps, former chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Stafford Cripps.

Other well - known names among those arrested included Kwame Nkoma, city editor of the Ashanti Pioneer, a newspaper opposing Nkrumah; and P. K. Quaidoo, once a Nkrumah supporter and now an outspoken parliamentary opponent of the government.

SAYS DANGEROUS

A government statement referred to "clandestine and dangerous activities of certain individuals and groups in the interest and endanger the security of the state."

The statement said the acts included "violence, secret meetings, the taking of oaths to assassinate the president and certain members of the government, false alarms, sabotage and lockouts."

The arrests brought to almost 300 the number of Nkrumah opponents who are being held.

While the roundup was under way, Britain's Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys had a secret meeting in Accra with Nkrumah Tuesday in an effort to "clear the air" before the Seven visits Ghana next month.

There have been strong attacks in the British press recently against Ghana following a cabinet shakeup in which Nkrumah removed Ako Adjei and the appointment of a new Ghanaian envoy to London who has a record of anti-British activities.

Press Principal Agency Says Medical Officer

TORONTO (CP) — The medical profession has everything to lose and nothing to lose in quarreling the press of Canada with "integrity, courage, imagination and a great sense of public service" doctor said Tuesday.

Dr. John Bowie, Windsor medical health officer, told the Ontario Public Health Association that the profession's relationship "the press is the principal agency which the average man receives the information he needs to judge the actions of his rulers and make up his mind on public issues."

FEDERAL EGG SUPPORT PRICE INCREASED CENT

Payment System To Be Continued

OTTAWA (CP)—A one-cent-a-dozen increase in the federal price support for grade A and extra-large grade A eggs and the announced Tuesday by Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton.

The new support Police for the period Oct. 1 this year to Sept 30, 1962, will be 34 cents a dozen basis Grade A large.

The deficiency payment system of another support for eggs will be continued.

Under this program, the agricultural stabilization board will make a deficiency payment based on the price by which the national average price received by producers for Grade A large eggs for the 15-month period is less than the support price of 34 cents a dozen.

Payments to any other producer during the support year will be limited to 4,000 dozen Grade A extra large, Grade A large and Grade A medium eggs. In previous years Grade A medium eggs were not included.

BELOW AVERAGE

The new support price is below the estimated national 3-year average price of 34.5 cents for Grade A large eggs in the year ended Sept. 30. The announcement said the support level represents about 97 per cent of the average price received by producers over the last 10 years.

Mr. Hamilton said inclusion of Grade A mediums will increase the quantity of eggs on which support protection is available to resolve assistance.

The support price may be hedpegged at 34 cents a dozen because the egg market had been slightly higher for the last year.

But Mr. H a nillton warned against over - optimism on the part of producers, saying a substantial increase in production could bring lower market prices and thus be detrimental to the long-term interests of producers.

St. Columba Anniversary Is Observed

The first anniversary of St. Columba Presbyterian Church was observed on Sunday. Five congregations gathered to hear outstanding messages from Rev. Malcolm A. Mark, superintendent of missions for the Synod of Toronto and Kingston. Special music was provided by the junior choir under the leadership of Mrs. R. Brain and Mr. W. Bowles.

Mr. Mark challenged the morning congregation with the inspiring subject, "On Taking Positive Action." He spoke of the need for missionary zeal in this changing world, and referred to the Church's program of extension in the growing cities of Canada. He urged each and every member of the young congregation of St. Columba to press forward with the dedication and courage that was displayed by the Christians in the early church.

At the evening service which brought together the congregations of St. Andrew's and St. Columba, the sermon topic was "My Fellow-Workers." In this sermon Mr. Mark spoke of the world-wide nature of the Christian fellowship, and paid tribute to the humble Christians who, by their faithful service, radiate the spirit of Christ.

Following the evening service the minister of St. Columba, Rev. N. Hutchinson, presided over a social hour when a short program of sacred music was presented. Soloists were Mrs. R. G. McKee and Miss Sherrill Taylor, and there were selections by a mixed quartet, Mrs. M. Hutchinson, Mrs. R. Taylor, Mr. W. Bowles and Rev. N. Hutchinson. A reading was given by Mrs. J. R. Bell. Mr. Randolph McLean, minister of St. Andrew's Church, brought greetings on behalf of his congregation. He referred to the part that has been played by St. Andrew's in sponsoring St. Columba, and gave assurance of the continuing support of his people. Refreshments, served by the ladies of the congregation, included a first anniversary cake.

The building committee of St. Columba has been engaged in the study of architectural plans for the church sanctuary, and it is expected that a proposal will be presented to the congregation in the near future.

Peterborough Firm to Build Moira Secondary School Addition at Cost of $369,136

Subject to department approval of final administrative details, construction of the proposed addition to the Moira Secondary School is expected to get underway within the next few weeks with a completion date set for September, 1962.

Mr. Roy Dulmage, secretary-treasurer of the Bay of Quinte High School Board, announced yesterday that the contract for the new school addition had been awarded to Eastwood Construction Company Ltd., of Peterborough, at a cost figure of $369,136.

The new addition will provide five regular classrooms, one chemistry laboratory, three drafting rooms, and one occupational training shop for boys.

The addition will provide accommodation for 280 students bringing total classroom space at Moira to 1040.

Also included in the contract are extensions to the present cafeteria and to the heating and the boiler room for the installation of an additional boiler.

Alterations will also include changing of one dressing room into an occupational training shop for girls with one half of the present machine shop to be used as a carpenter shop and the other half added to the electrical shop.

Other approvals for grant purposes include an amount of $134,000 for equipment, furniture and other accessories and an additional amount for architect's fees.

Architects for the addition are Barrett and Rieder, Toronto.

Prior to the calling of tenders, department approval had already been received for an expenditure of $500,000. The amount of the actual tenders price, plus equipment and other costs is approximately $533,000 well below the figure which had been previously approved for grant purposes.

The Moira school addition was approved following the announcements earlier this year of a stepped up vocational training program, cost of which was to be shared by the Ontario and Federal governments.

Engineering Institute Enjoys Colored Travelogue of Jamaica

Members and friends of the Engineering Institute of Canada were reminded of their summer vacation at the opening meeting of the Institute held on October 2nd in the Y.M.C.A. Grant, P.Eng. M.E.I.C. gave a talk on his impressions of Jamaica.

Mr. Grant, who was introduced by Mr. S. Sillito, spent two weeks in Jamaica during July of this year, this was his first visit to the country. Mr. Grant, together with his wife and some friends, flew to Jamaica via Nassau in the Bahamas, to Montego Bay, Jamaica, which became their base during the stay.

JAMAICA MOUNTAINOUS

Jamaica is roughly the same size and shape as Lake Ontario having an area of about 4000 square miles. The country is very mountainous and volcanic in nature although unlike Canada has no lakes. The total population of Jamaica is 1¾ million and consists mainly of negroes with a fair number of Chinese and Indians. The economy of the country is apparently poor, and as wages are low the unemployment is high, the majority of the population have an extremely low standard of living. Fortunately, seasonal temperatures do not vary considerably in the region of between 70 degrees to 90 degrees, except in winter, when at night although humidity is extremely high.

Mr. Grant made many interesting trips from Montego Bay around the coast and also inland. He commented on the fact that construction was mainly concrete and explained that this was for protection against rot and also because labour was in an earthquake zone.

Workmanship generally was rather primitive with little attention being paid to detail. The diet of the negroes consists mainly of fruit and root vegetables supplemented by fish, and the chief export of it was noted that Canada exported a large amount of wood coal to Jamaica. Some fishing is done by the local inhabitants using primitive canoes fashioned out of a single cottonwood log and in which they go out to sea for distances of up to 25 miles.

COLORFUL SLIDES

Mr. Grant showed many excellent colored slides which showed the luxuriant and colorful growth in the country and also scenes of interest such as the Straw Market where all types of straw hats, baskets and mats are sold although he reminded his audience that all purchases have to be bargained for if a fair deal is to be made.

Many interesting and sometimes humorous anecdotes were added to the talk by Mr. Grant which illustrated the typical life and thinking of the average Jamaican which brought home the fact that low wages and high unemployment in the country almost forced one to feel that tourists to their country were fair game.

F/L A. C. Pickering thanked the speaker on behalf of members and guests, the meeting terminating Institute of Canada for his most interesting talk.

Civil Defence Experts Tell How to Survive Atom Bombs

Last evening at Queen Elizabeth School, under the auspices of Bayview Home and Schools Association, Colonel C. I. Smith, Commandant Canadian Civil Defence College, at Arnprior, Ont., and Major C. B.-C. Broadbent, regional representative of the Emergency Measures Organization of Ontario, spoke on the vital topic, "Survival Under Nuclear Attack."

Colonel Smith who was introduced by Mr. L. A. Kells, prefaced his remarks by stating that "it was a terrible thing for people not to be able to go on living a normal life, watching their children and their children's children grow up." But it cannot be, with the threat of a nuclear war hanging over them. No one would be surprised if war was declared tomorrow, Crisis come and go, and the need is to study the reasons for this state of affairs. None want war and it is doubted that Russia wants war — she is doing very well in the cold war.

"Was never happens on a planned basis, usually just about one hour's miscalculation. There is no getting rid of it but there can be changes; there will be wars and wars, a recurring cycle of devastation and strife. It is wishful thinkers since we have always been away from war centres, and it is difficult for us to appreciate the fact that war could still come to us. We will have no choice at all in the matter. We think that the war will hit the United States, but not us, nothing but wishful thinking."

ALL-OUT NUCLEAR ATTACK

"The first phase of war will be an all-out nuclear attack, no warning whatever. After the blast, both sides will take a terrible toll on the way in. However, Canadians are not going to sit down and cry and will take it in stride. There will be many killed, but enough will be able to carry on. If war does come, democracy will win because its leaders never run and there's always some one to step into the breach. Our scholastic system digulges leadership, whereas Russia is dictatored, where many are ruled by the few; they develop technicians, not leaders. Chaos would exist there".

The weapons used will be nuclear and germ, most terrible and very costly, delivered by missiles, aircraft and bombs, the latter giving two hours warning time, but there is but 15 minutes with the missiles which are used to hit bases or control centres.

"Those not in the target area must protect themselves from radioactive fall-out. If you're bombed, there will be no need as you won't be there. We do not fight for enemy, but the effects of the attack."

In speaking of what is needed to safeguard oneself, Colonel Smith stated that a great deal of this must be done at home.

"The Civil Defence organization can do little but plan, but it does train key personnel and instructors. At present there are 125 taking training at Arnprior College, with 54 nurse educators learning their roles in the safety of the home. Engineers are learning to find safety factors, with a view to instructors teaching local people what to do to preserve the water supply and food from fall-out. There is a rescue force to save people from collapsed buildings, with some from every province paid by the federal government, as at Arnprior College. The federal government pays 75 per cent of the costs of civil defence in an area; the rest is value lary.

Each province has developed a survival plan, according to the varying needs in each area, and each area has a survival plan with shelters placed in safe areas. The role of the armed forces is that of survival training, with more militia to be trained in the warning system and supply communications, with reporting posts, now numbering about 2,000, to form a nuclear turret.

FALL-OUT SHELTERS

"The problem is safety from the radio-active dust, if the problem is known, it can be confronted, plans can be made to avoid it. All want to live. Three out of five will perish, but if people know what to do, many will survive. Fall-out shelters may be made in basements of existing homes, with a cost of $44, which may be collected from banks on the Home Improvement Plan.

"In the last steps are: see that all windows and doors fit tightly, as it is the radio-active dust which clings, not the ray. If the home is old use quilts to hang over windows and doors; lay in a supply of food for a week or two weeks, also water in tight containers. If in the country, place a cellophane covered pail of water to keep dust out. The ray goes through but will not harm. A water boiler, 30 gallon type, is a good water supply, but first turn off the intake tap. If you have no shelter, and no time to make one take shelter in a basement, or a corner, and cover with a table piled with heavy material, books, bricks or lumber. Remain there for 48 hours, lying down, or until notified you can come out.

Major Broadbent, introduced by Colonel Smith, spoke of what had been done and accomplished in Civil Defence by the government. Major Broadbent's area stretches from east Quebec to Port Hope, taking in the surrounding territory. The main advantage in this is that the government recognizes the responsibility.

In 1950 Ontario re-organized Civil Defence, which is now known as the Emergency Measures Organization. All sections are responsible for the safety of the people regarding continuity of what to do in an emergency. Contacts are now made with neighboring counties, towns with emergency services and cities, making for greater ease in safety and rescue measures.

"We are not apathetic", said Major Broadbent, "but we as citizens can do much, if we try, and assess the danger. From it, what is needed and how we can trun ourselves by knowing First Aid, and Home Nursing Care."

Many helpful booklets are available to the public for assistance in knowing what to do in an emergency, one of which is "Your Basement Fallout Shelter", and another "11 Steps to Survival". These booklets may be had free of charge by writing to 191 Wellington St., Kingston.

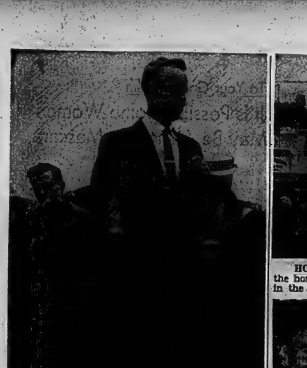
Your United Appeal

Before, during, and after the first public meeting at which the Belleville United Appeal came into existence, the Belleville and District Labor Council took a keen active interest in the principle and operation of the United Appeal. Labor representatives are active and valued members of both the board and the campaign committee.

That Canadians were like the pioneers of old, and would stand up to the test, if war should come, they having "great knowledge of the danger; by having faith in themselves, and by maintaining co-operation in time of stress."



Following the talks, a question and answer period followed.

Approximately 75 were in attendance.

FAST STEPPER — Although step dancing is normally a light-hearted affair this contestant at the Madoc Fair shows that as far as he concerned the competition warrants serious concentration. Joe Perry of Cloyne won the event.

HORSE SENSE?—Whether or not the horses thought much of being out in the drizzle they were on show just the same and above may be seen one of the classes of fine horses as they are judged.

Splendid Exhibits, Varied Program Delight Visitors At Madoc Fair on Tuesday

The rain came down at Madoc Fair yesterday and so did the attendance figures, although not the number of exhibitors was up and the quality of the fair was maintained at its usual high level, rain or no rain. Fair board figures show that 1,482 persons had paid admittance to the grounds. Last year's fair, blessed by fine weather, drew close to 2,200 people.

Despite the weather those present seemed to enjoy themselves and the grandstand show, handled by Tommy Maass and featuring local, home-grown talent, drew a large crowd of spectators which nearly filled the natural amphitheatre and the area in front of the stand during a constant drizzle.

Old-time fiddling, step dancing, musical and vocal numbers presented by the stage contestants proved not only that rain did little to dampen enthusiastic fairgoers but that older patrons could get up and jig or fiddle with the youngsters without ceding an inch. This was introduced in the men's step dance contest where seventyish Robert O'Brien of Coe Hill herded a stiff-as-a-board Perry of Cloyne, a mean stepdancer in his early forties.

Exhibits were well presented in the cattle and horse sections and the ladies' new arts and crafts fine turnout in nearly every class. The women's exhibits showed that Madoc district women have a very deft hand when it comes to knitting and preparing a very appetizing cake or pie or to turning their talents toward needlework.

The midway offered a number of rides, booths of chance and side shows and was crowded during most of the afternoon. The attractions were supplied by Green Bros. Amusements of Toronto.

Winners of the grandstand contests were: ladies' nail driving: Mrs. Howard of Belleville; step dancing (boys or girls under 13): Robert Whyte of L'Amable and Karen Francis of Croakton; step dancing (lady or gentleman): Joe Perry of Cloyne; old-time fiddling: Bill Taylor of Madoc.

A prize was presented to Mr. and Mrs. A. Wheatley, L'Amable, whose family of 15 children, all at the fair, qualified them for the largest family in attendance award. A Miss Story from Stirlingville, Newfoundland, received the prize for the person to come the farthest distance to the fair.

Develop Sense Of Gratitude Rotarians Told

TRENTON — Speaking at the Trenton Rotary Club on Monday night, Rev. J. T. (Jack) Irwin, a member of the club, urged his listeners to "hang onto the this thread of thanks" in order to give meaning and purpose to life. Mr. Irwin said that the "world of today is in an appalling condition," and that a man might very well ask, "what does the future hold for me?" and "Is there anything to which we can look forward with joy and expectation?"

He said that the one antidote to this defeatist attitude was to develop a sense of gratitude for life itself. He said that to attain durable joy, one must share one's possessions and blessings with others.

Mr. Irwin was introduced to the club members by Grant Rathbun and thanked by O. M. Newton.

Guests at the meeting were J. C. Mackie and D. C. Cook from the Picton Club and "Mac" MacLean, Belleville Rotarian.

Erle Aldersey was reinstated as a member of the Trenton club. Mr. Aldersey attended the club before moving to Barrie in 1938. Past-president John Gerrett presented Mr. Aldersey with a lapel button.

President R. McDonald told the members that he and Clarence Saylor would visit past-president W. H. Ireland in the hospital.

There will be no meeting next Monday night on the Thanksgiving holiday.

Obituary

JAMES WARREN POWERS

TRENTON — On Monday, a service was held at the funeral Funeral Home for James Warren Powers of 1363 Bridge Road, Oakville, Mr. Powers died at his home last Friday, June 24.

The service was conducted by Rev. George Watt of St. Paul's United Church of Oakville.

Bearers were Lyle and Arnold Tackaberry, Clelus Dyer, Carman Carter, Ormond Hubbard and Ross Tackaberry.

Honorary bearers were Will Carter, Gordon Lovell, Ross Crosby, Arthur Tackaberry, William Horsley and Adam Hunsinger.

Mr. Powers was born in Mount Crawford and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Henry Powers. He had lived in Willowdale for 30 years prior to Oakville four years ago. Mr. Powers was a retired retail grocer and was a member of St. Paul's United Church in Oakville.

He is survived by his wife, the former Mary E. Clendinis, a daughter, Mrs. Victor (Evangiana) Tripp, Toronto, a son, Charles Powers, Oakville, and his sister, Mrs. Nettie Hutchison of Warkworth and ten grandchildren.

maybe it's because Robby can cover more ground than the three men Hutch has been platooning.

It will be interesting, I think, to see how this works out because we have some pretty good right handed hitters. Fellas like Ellie Howard, Moose Skowron, Bobby Richardson, Clete Boyer and Hector Lopez can manoeuvre that ball to the opposite field pretty good.

And Mickey Mantle will bat right - handed, if he plays. Which makes a lot when he's hurt and this is one series he doesn't want to miss. Mick needs only one series homer to tie Babe Ruth's record. Wouldn't that be something—to have Roger Maris hit 61 homers in one season and then have Mantle come along and do something else!

If today's game is rained out it figures to help both Mantle and Maris. They haven't been able to relax since the all-star games.

Murray Twp. Residents Will Fight Proposed Annexation By Trenton Town Council

TRENTON — On Monday night, a number of Murray Township residents met with Reeve Douglas McMaster, deputy-reeve, Fred Bruyea, township clerk Angus Gunter and township council members Leo McAuley, Norman Flindall and Keith Johnson, in the York Road schoolhouse to discuss ways and means of fighting the proposed annexation of Trenton council to annex almost 600 acres of township land bordering on the town.

Mr. Flindall told the council that it had moved too slowly in instigating measures to forestall annexation. He said that a petition against annexation had been taken up a year ago, and that council had taken no action. When it was found that Trenton council had retained the services of a municipal solicitor versed in the fine points of annexation law, who had been earmarked by the township council to represent Murray, the council members had not looked about for another lawyer.

Sub-divider W. Sidor raised the only dissenting voice at the meeting regarding annexation. He said that the township could not provide his customers with proper schools and sewers.

Angus Gunter said that the township was prepared to provide school accommodation when it was needed. He said that Murray township was financially more able to provide schools than was the town of Trenton. Mr. Gunter said that septic tanks cost far less than the $200 Murray township residents must pay the town annually for sewer service. Mr. Gunter added that septic tanks did not pollute the Trent River the way a sewage system did.

Mr. Sidor reminded the assembly that Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation would not provide a mortgage loan when septic tanks were used.

COULD USE BED

Don Day said that a "lagoon weeping bed" could be used to supplement the septic tanks.

Mr. Day told the township residents that Angus Gunter was offering $5 for pelts of any surveyors seen skulking around Murray township.

The meeting was chaired by Ivor Gardiner, president of the Murray Ratepayers' Association.

The upshot of Monday night's meeting was that Reeve Doug McMaster was authorized to ask Trenton solicitor Robert Bowerman to be lawyer who is an authority on annexation problems to fight the town on the issue.

In a telephone interview with a Trenton Intelligencer reporter yesterday, Reeve McMaster said that Trenton council had yet to contact Murray council to explain the town's attitude towards the annexation move. Mr. McMaster said that he was "disappointed" in town council's attitude.

In September, Trenton council gave third reading to a by-law approving an application to the Ontario Municipal Board for the annexation of around 750 acres of land in Murray and Sidney Township.

Fawn's Carcass Found on Road

TRENTON — On Tuesday, George Warner, game warden for Lower- Hastings County, said that he had picked up the carcass of a fawn on Highway 2 west of the Glen Miller cut-off, around 8 a.m. Tuesday morning. He said that the fawn, which weighed around 130 pounds, and was the largest he had ever seen, had evidently been struck and killed by a car and then run over several times during the night. Mr. Warner said that motorists should watch for deer crossing around the Trent River at this time of year. He said that a car could be badly damaged and the occupants injured if it struck a larger deer.

Planning Expert Addresses Board on Annexation Issues

TRENTON — H. N. Percival of Project Planning Associates, Toronto spoke to members of the Trenton and Southern Planning Board last night. Project Planning Associates are employed Trenton's official town planners.

Speaking about the application of the official plan to areas under consideration for annexation by town council, Mr. Percival urged the town planning board not to "let sleeping dogs lie in Murray Township". He said that the township residents would have been aware of the town's need for expansion and would have seen that annexation was necessary if the township authorities had co-operated with the municipal planning board.

"As it is" and Mr. Percival, "we may have a small fight on our hands since the annexation. If there is no co-operation from the town, the same condition will exist in another ten years, when further annexation may be necessary."

Mr. Percival suggested that subdivision in Sidney Township might be persuaded to "play ball" with the board for future planning purposes.

He reminded the board that it was an advisory body only and was set up to guide town council in its decisions regarding planning.

Mr. Percival discussed subdivision control and existing zoning by-law, the road system and the application of the official plan in general.

He suggested that the board should concern itself with advertising signs, within the town limits, the appearance of the town, and make some attempt to have these standardized.

Mr. Percival said that a plan should be prepared for the proposed annexation and the boundaries be completed. This plan could then be presented to the proposed annexed areas in the hope that legislation which would aid Ontario communities of "shack" conditions could be forthcoming.

Trenton has an unfortunate mixing of development," said the speaker.

"We find good sites side by side with housing which can be termed 'shacks'." Mr. Percival said that there was a definite need in Trenton for homes in between the $13,000 class and the "shack" type of dwelling.

Speaking of the approach to the town, Mr. Percival said that there were no signs to speak of on the highway between Toronto and Cobourg which would make the public aware of the fact that Trenton was on the route.

He suggested that town streets should be improved as quickly as possible and that during the winter thousands of hydro wires should be done away with as many as possible would allow. Curbs should be put on the streets resurfaced, and trees planted as quickly as possible.

Board members were urged to assist council with all stages of development in the town; lend moral support to the newly-formed Committee of Management, and to be on hand to force staging as laid down by official plan; allow only east-to-west business expansion in the westerly annex-ation; lend moral support to the town engineer's programs; and generally make Trenton a better municipality and so on, aware of their interest in town development.

Present at the meeting were board chairman Dr. W. A. J. L. McDonald, town clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry, board members Mrs. Harriet Simmons, Bruce Jackson, John Forbes, town engineer Eric Alderson and his assistant, Aris Hoornweg.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Speculative interest sagged and industrials moved to the forefront in moderately heavy morning trading today.

Volume in most of the volume leaders was down from low and marked price changes were few and far between. Consolidated Red Lake was the lone exception to the rule as it climbed more than 1,000 shares and advanced four cents.

Steels, foods and utilities were the only widespread technical gains predominant.

On index, industrials gained .73 to 286.60, base metals .08 to 108.43 and western oils .19 to 97.81. Golds fell .38 to 87.31 and the 31 a.m. volume was 109,500 shares compared with 733,000 at the same time Tuesday.

The base metals market was steady amid rising prices. In the senior list, Noranda and Gunnar rose between five and 15 cents, while Geco lost ¼.

Gold trading was light with few changes.

In west western oil trading, Pacific Petroleum gained ⅝.

Speculative issues gained a little and industrials lagged Tuesday. Trading was heavy.

Dobaltic Mines advanced 20 cents on a volume of 108,740 shares to make up for a Monday's loss, while price hike and high volume went to Wilrey Coughlin, heading Hollinger - Coughlin, heading Hollinger - Lake and Central Porcupine.

Two industrials — Imperial Life and Empire Life—backed the trend and jumped $3¼ and $10 respectively to new highs of $155 and $140 in light trading.

Foods, refining oils, steels and utilities all showed gains in general industrial decline with widespread fractional losses following most groups. Steels were weak with Dorrington, Steel Company of Canada, Algoma and Page - Hersey all off as much as ⅜.

The day's worst loss went to Moore Corporation—down 3⅝ to 54¼.

On index, industrials fell 1.36 to 285.27 and golds .45 to 87.24 while base metals rose .02 to 108.34 and western oils .22 to 97.82. Volume was over 4,307,000 shares compared with 3,530,000 Monday.

The base metals market was depressed in the senior list. International Nickel led the pack down with a drop of 2⅛ in moderate turnover. Gold trading was light with Kerr - Addison up .05 cents.

Western oil trade was weak.

What Price Human Lives?

According to the official history of the RCAF Bomber Command's activities during the Second Great War, its attacks on Germany were a costly failure.

These attacks failed to break the will of the German people and their effect on Germany's war production was remarkably small, say historians Sir Charles Webster and Noble Frankland.

The assessment of the value of these attacks must be left to the experts, who, we may be sure, will differ as experts always do.

What may amaze some laymen is the renewed evidence of how cheap life is held during wartime. The whole Bomber Command operation cost the lives of 55,000 aircrew members. Yet 60,000 German civilians perished in a fire storm which swept Hamburg as the result of a week-long series of incendiary raids by the RCAF. This is over half the number of people who perished at Hiroshima, as the result of the first atomic bomb. If we are to believe the historians, this tremendous toll of lives, which was only a portion of the total inflicted during the course of the whole war, had little effect on the morale of the German people or on their ability to produce goods for their country's war machine.

A similar willingness to accept the deaths of a tremendous number of people as of no decisive influence during wartime can be seen in a report from Washington on the power of a 100-megaton nuclear bomb. Such a bomb, we are told, would "possibly ignite an area equivalent to almost all of southern Ontario," from Hamilton to Cobourg. Yet U.S. military planners do not consider it an effective weapon, saying that a series of smaller bombs would destroy a country's resistance more effectively.

One cannot help wondering, though, whether an opinion such as this may not be based on a false analogy. While 55,000 people died in Hamburg, there were many thousands who were not only spared but who were unscathed. Even basement bomb shelters, we are told, would offer little protection within an area extending out 20 to 30 miles from the detonation point of a 100-megaton bomb such as Khrushchev has talked about.

H-Bomb and Hammarskjold

Stratford Beacon - Herald

Three real lines of parody, from "The Song of the Aldermanian Mustangers," are quoted by Prof. James Eayrs of the University of Toronto, in his new book, "Northern Approaches."

"God rest ye merry gentlemen, when you are all in bed.

"A friendly little H-bomb is trotting overhead."

"It's there to kill the Russians when the rest of us are dead."

This is such a comically horrible thought that it should help anybody to snap out of the moral doldrums, and get back to a practical view of all the Russian-induced flap about nuclear war.

The next truck that goes by on the street may suddenly jump the curb and crush you against the building. At the same time your wife has the breadknife in her hand, she may get bored with slicing bread, and slice your throat for variety. The next little twinkling satellite that sails through the sky may unload an H-bomb right on your head. Both trucks and H-bombs can all kill you equally dead.

Any or all of these things could happen, and in fact probably won't. Normal expectation is that the truck-driver will go right along in his own coffee shop, the bread will get sliced instead of you, and nuclear energy will go on developing us some more hydro up at Kincardine.

• • •

Prof. Eayrs' new book is chiefly on another subject. He could not have foretold that soon after the publication of his book, which deals with views on Canadian foreign policy, Secretary-General Hammarskjold would be killed in a tragic plane crash, and leave the top office of the United Nations vacant. Almost prophetically, however, he wrote the following paragraph:

"The Secretary-Generalship — in the formal words by the (United Nations) Charter, and as conceived by the present incumbent, is an office incompatible with contemporary international relations. The holder of the office is regarded as the conscience of mankind; and as Mr. Hammarskjold has said mankind has not one conscience, but several. He is required to be at once a faithful servant of an Organization of which professedly peaceful members explicitly reject the principle or impartiality. He was intended to be the World Moderator; but the world with which he has to deal has little moderate world, where the language of reconciliations and accommodations is still spoken, since lost its meaning. We may wish Mr. Hammarskjold well, but we should not expect much or much of him, — still less of his successor."

The task attempted by Mr. Hammarskjold, as Prof. Eayrs sees it, was to find a role he could never be completely successful, because of the distrust and jealousies within the United Nations would always obstruct the development of such a role. On the other hand, as the late Secretary-General demonstrated, as long as he was alive to do so, his efforts to serve as a "conscience" were never a complete failure.

Now we can expect weeks and perhaps months of bluster and indignation in the United Nations, while Russia tries to block the appointment of any successor until she gets one on with the job in the Hammarskjold image. It is unfortunate that before the post of Secretary-General of the United Nations is again filled, Mr. Khrushchev will be rattling his nuclear-tipped H-bombs over that issue as he has been doing over the Berlin issue.

It would be foolish to predict the outcome of the debate over choosing a new Secretary-General, but it is probably safe to predict that the outcome will neither be as good as we hope, nor as bad as we might fear. If Russia hopes to wreck the United Nations, she will fail short of succeeding enough votes in the General Assembly to do it, if she hopes to get a strong pro-Western appointee, we will fall short of success. The final agreement will be something less than complete success for either side.

In the meantime, we can rely on two assumptions. The first is that the Russians do not want a nuclear war, and the second is that they hope they can frighten us by threatening nuclear war. If we let ourselves get panicked to extremes, either of foolhardiness or of fear, we are playing Moscow's game and working against ourselves.

Strictly Personal

Syd Replies To Ponderous Questions

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Today's essay is devoted to answering ponderous questions from the readers of this column.

"Dear Mr. Harris: Do you believe a boy and girl should marry on a short month?"

No — if God wanted the short months to be full they'd be able to marry each other. He would have made them all the same length.

"Dear Mr. Harris: What is your opinion of the recent novel, 'Exodus'?"

Sorry, but I am still working my way through Genesis.

"Dear Mr. Harris: How can I get my 16-year-old son to mind me?"

I answered this same question several years ago, but am happy to repeat it for the benefit of newcomers: Shrink his head to the size of a walnut, and start over, differently.

"Dear Mr. Harris: How can we prevent Fidel Castro from moving into our neighborhood?"

Strike back by moving to Puerto Rico.

"Dear Mr. Harris: In view of the fact that I hope to enter the medical profession, can you recommend any books for me to read?"

Dear doctor: I have met personally seven to twelve the Wall Street Journal, three to one.

"Dear Mr. Harris: Who, in your opinion, is the most representative American of our time?"

Lawrence Welk, the hope of the free world.

"Dear Mr. Harris: Do statistics show that capital punishment does act as a deterrent to crime?"

Every statistic that has been gathered conclusively proves that not a single person who has suffered capital punishment has been indicted a second time.

"Dear Mr. Harris: Our 3 year-old son likes to put on dresses and walk around the house in them. Should we be concerned about him?"

Not necessarily — he's probably just a little more envious of pants most of the day, and is just making a natural inference.

"Dear Mr. Harris: Don't you think a little fear is healthy for the nation?"

A little depression is like, a little pregnancy.

Recession Election

Brantford Expositor

Hon. Robert Menzies of Australia has called a general election for December 9. He appears to have no option.

The last vote was in November, 1958, and the Australian constitution demands an election every three years — not every five as in Canada.

Also it is to be a recession election; Australia has had an economic slump, Canada not being alone in this undesirable respect.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

SOMETHING TO PONDER

A woman who has spent several months recovering from a very desperate illness told me how a college friend recently came to her bed and contributed more to her recovery than doctors and medicine.

It seems that the sick woman had several times during the last few months shed her discouraging hope and had often complained bitterly about what it seemed to be her desperate state. Imagine her surprise when this college friend, whom she had not seen for many years, called on her one afternoon, and being pressed to tell something about herself replied that since leaving college she had lived a very active life, had gone from riches to poverty, had fought tuberculosis for twenty years, and was now resigned to the fact that within two years she would be totally blind. Yet she was the head of a great religious movement carried on by the women of her denomination and intended regardless of what her state would be, to go right on doing her useful work after she was blind and to make the best of it with good cheer.

The sick woman did considerable thinking after her guest had left that afternoon, appraising her own problems of life and came to certain conclusions with reference to her own state.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 4th, 1941

Enrolment for night classes at the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School is now assured as the opening approaches at the school by holding the customary two classes per week. It was announced this morning. A very fine type of men are taking instruction in the machine and welding courses, according to the Principal; and as more machines then has been the case in former years, will get endeavoring to increase their knowledge of mechanics.

All in all we will heartily support the statement made regarding the unending struggle for clean streets. Like a town clean is not the exclusive duty of a municipal council. Public co-operation must be given readily and continuously; for it can be said for the perfectly organized and ideally equipped cleaning force will be defeated by a few careless litter louts.

Mr. and Mrs. George and Miss Alice Ross of Ottawa and Mr. and Mrs. W. George of Toronto spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. E. George of Burnham Street.

30 YEARS AGO

October 4th, 1931

After practice, the members of the choir in Bridge Street Church held a party in the auditorium of the church in order to say farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carson, who have been valued members of the choir for some time, and who are leaving here to reside in Toronto. A handsome Sheffield tray was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Carson by Mr. Appleton on behalf of the choir. Brief speeches were made by Mr. H. Reid, chairman of the church music committee, Mr. Percy V. Bird, organist and choir master, Mr. Fred Sprague gave a very amusing skit in which he impersonated members of the choir.

Summer like weather made yesterday an ideal day for pleasure trips: the maximum temperature was 76 degrees and the minimum was fifty degrees. Today the maximum was 72 degrees and the minimum was 53 degrees.

40 YEARS AGO

October 4th, 1921

Hundreds of Shriners, wearing their ceremonial Fez caps visited this city. H. Freeman Ketchelson was named as the City Councillor for 1921.

Over one hundred candidates became members of the Shrine. The Belleville Centre of Toronto arrived by special train, headed by their famed Ransens Band.

The Presto Music Club held its annual meeting and Mr. S. Anglin was elected President, and Mr. James Scotch was elected Secretary - Treasurer. Interesting programs for the season have been arranged.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Owens, of George Street celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding, and received congratulations and good wishes from many friends.

50 YEARS AGO

The new rifle ranges constructed east of the city by Thomas Manley, have their taken over by officers of the 15th Regiment. Lieut-Col. Thomas Stewart of the 15th Regiment, Capt. Clarke and Capt. Hughes of the District Headquarters staff took part in the ceremonies.

The city baseball league exercises most last evening to conclude the season's business. After all expenses were paid, upwards of $100 remains on hand in the league. This is, indeed, a creditable record.

Scots Prize Common Sense

Ottawa Journal

"If the law supposes that," said Mr. Bumble . . . "the law is an ass, an idiot."

If strictly legal logic and plain common sense fall out of step, which should set the pace?

The recent talk by the Lord Advocate of Scotland, Mr. William Grant, to the Canadian Club of Ottawa, suggests that Scottish practice sometimes comes too highly to let the law make an ass of itself. The Lord Advocate, who is the head of the administration of criminal justice and public prosecutor, explained some differences between the English system of criminal law and that which Scotland preserved under the Act of Union of 1707.

He admitted that the peculiary Scottish verdict of "not proven," which seems to contradict the principle that an accused person is innocent until proven guilty, "is not a verdict which is entirely easy to defend in strict logic".

But "one does get the case where the jury feels that the evidence is that the accused probably is guilty, but feel that there is just not enough corroboration to warrant a conviction." Scrupulous justice may require that he go free of punishment, but common sense would be reluctant to let him die of moral blame, and so the "not proven" verdict, though it frees the man, does not free him of stigma.

The civil law practice and relatively little of Scotland's criminal law is based on statute:

"Our fundamental basis" is the Common Law . . . In this we differ substantially from England where, even though there is no criminal code, the criminal law is based largely on statute."

He felt that this gave Scottish law a rare degree of flexibility. The Lord Advocate said he had an inherent power to punish acts which were obviously in the law to adapt over the years to changing social conditions and attitudes.

One provision of Scottish law that has not changed with the times gives the Lord Advocate the unique privilege of pleading in court with his hat on. The precedent was established by a Lord Advocate who appointed three of his sons to plead in the High Court of Justiciary. When he appeared before them to plead he refused to have his head for his own children, judges or no. That is a kind of common sense that Scotland prizes.

Slender Pretext

The Times, London

The Russians have thrown aside pretence of caution and manufactured a diplomatic dealing by their decision to resume nuclear testing.

As Lord Home said, it is a plain reversal of their declaration two years ago that they would not start testing again unless the Western powers first did so, and for this reversal French testing is the most slender of make-weights among the excuses offered.

To Your Good Health

It Is Possible Some Women May Be Allergic to Mascara

By Joseph G. Steiner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is it harmful to apply cosmetic pencil for the eyes to the lower lashes as part, above the lower layer of lashes, on the moist membranes?

"When I put it on the lashes, even though the black liner gets into the eye, I don' feel it.

"But I am concerned because I notice that if I cough up phlegm in the morning, or if I have a cold or runny nose, I can see streaks of this liner in the mucous.—Bunny."

Part of the answer lies in what you pointed out yourself: You are getting the color into the moist membranes of the eyes. The system keeps them that way. Eyes are constantly lubricated with a film of moisture. (With a cheek it would be even to blink them if they were dry!)

So where does this moisture go? Any excess (unless you cry) drains gradually into the nose and then to the throat.

You don't feel a "foreign body" in the eye because the dark color is a dye, not a gritty, sharp particle.

I don't know of any reason why the dye would be harmful except to the occasional person who may be allergic to it. But why use so much liner, or dye? I don't mind the tenuous idea that ladies use to make us look at them. But I'm not impressed with the "mascara" eyes that look like the lid of a shoe polish can.

• • •

"Dear Dr. Molyner: I wear a bearing aid. Sometimes when this thing opens up and I hear all the noises around. Do you think an operation letting more noise reach the inner ear would help?—Deaf Ear."

The question isn't as easy to answer as you might think. Obviously your trouble is not due completely to any defect in the nerves. (This may or may not be part of the problem.)

However, whether one of the various possible ear operations will help depends on where and how loud sound waves are being interrupted. Consult an ear surgeon.

If you don't know such a specialist, either have your regular doctor refer you to one or else phone or write to your county medical society which will direct you where to go. (The usual practice is to give you the names of two or three top-notch ones, after which you can select one of them.)

• • •

"Dear Dr. Molner: My first baby, four months old, was born with a tight membrane on the left side of her neck. She cannot turn her head all the way, and she keeps her head on the right side. What causes this, and what can be done? —Mrs. K.M.T."

This sounds like torticollis, which is a technical word meaning "wry neck." It is, as you guess, an overly tight muscle on one side, but the cause is not known.

Treatment by a specialist in the first year is simple and also is most effective — after that it becomes more difficult and there is less promise of success.

You ought to discuss this with your family physician, so he can refer you to a specialist —if, that is, he confirms your observations. I suspect from this sort of trouble is not apparent during an ordinary visit to the doctor's office, but becomes obvious when you can see the child all day long and from the way the head tends to turn only one way.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A scandalized acquaintance has shown me two paperbacks he picked up in a local cigar store. They are pretty dirty. It seems to me the publishers and authors of these books are in a par with the people in Paris who manufacture and peddle the dirty postcards. One small difference is that the peddlers of dirty postcards at least have the decency to sidle up to you, looking as sleazy as possible. You don't see Mr. Hefner hanging tures on the cigar store shelves.

I tried to console my friend with the thought that the people who buy these dirty paperbacks are on a par with the people who buy the dirty postcards in Paris. But that was not much help to him when he bought the books.

There has been learned discussion of the literary value of these books. I noticed that the authors of these books are not in a par with the people in Paris who manufacture and peddle the dirty postcards. They are quite proud of their calling.

I wonder if any of the authors of these lusty studies of human nature have ever tried to write a story about these same characters by the time they are thirty or forty. What happens to those rowdy-dow emancipated younglings when they are middle-aged? When you renounce the homely, old-fashioned curtues and morals, what is probably die-aged? When you renounce say, virginity?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SOLITUDE

There isn't a human being who doesn't need solitude—but there are many who can't appreciate it when they have it.

In the truest sense, however, there can be no real solitude, for to make solitude beautiful and full of warmth, there must be companionship with God as well as to heal the tired and restless hear' of him or her who would seek it.

Solitude in a hotel room, far from loved ones, may have its commended, nor is it to be sought.

But solitude "Out Where The West Begins" or amongst the pines and the rocks, where one can stretch is to feed the soul on honey.

Solitude under a tree by the banks of some running stream, with the scent of wild flowers and the song of wild birds about, and a book in hand enlarging the marks of some fine grained mind—that is solitude—both to be sought and enjoyed.

Kiwanians Hear Two Reports On Convention

Local Kiwanians were given an interesting account of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime regional convention, held recently at Quebec City, by club president Dr. Robert Brain and Kiwanian Ken Burkitt at the club's weekly dinner meeting in the Kiwanis Centre yesterday afternoon.

The convention stressed the building of more responsible citizens as a necessity to the democratic way of life and the various efforts of a number of the some 160-odd clubs represented were noted.

Another feature of the convention was a series of panels on the various Kiwanis activities, committees and problems. These panel sessions brought forth some very interesting discussions and provided those present with many new ideas, the speakers said.

The Belleville club received the district award for achievement work in its size category for the year 1960, members were advised.

It was also noted that the 160-odd Kiwanis clubs within the district had raised a total of approximately $2,350,000 for their projects during the past year.

Two new club members, Robert Alexander of the Ideal Automatic Vending firm, and Jim Thompson of Seagram's, were introduced to the members and formally inducted by past president Harold Carruthers and president Dr. R. Brain.

It was announced that the club had taken over Eric Cooper's Christmas toy project, due to the fact that it has grown too large for the originator and his staff of volunteers. This project is to commence next week and carry on four nights a week until Christmas. Last year over 4,000 toys were repaired and distributed, President Brain said.

Members were advised that vice-president George Hume was presiding supreme for 1962 and gave the gentleman a standing ovation. The annual election of the rest of the club's 1962 executive is still underway.

PREPARATION — Robert Feeney, left, of Wolfe Island, one of two entrants plowing today with horses, sets coulter of his walking plow. Mr. Feeney is competing in Frontenac county branch match.

TAKING AIM—Jim Huffman, 14, of Armellasburg, competing in junior class for 12 to 15-year-old boys and girls, takes aim as he strikes out his land at International Plowing Match. There were five entrants in his particular class.

Arts, Crafts Courses Are Arranged

During the recent arts and crafts registration week, considerable interest was shown in more advanced study in ceramics. Due to these numerous requests, Mrs. John Grant, president of the Arts and Crafts Club, has arranged for an advanced course of study, starting Thursday, October 12, from 2 to 5 p.m. The teacher for this course will be Mrs. J. M. Gibson, of Colborne.

Mrs. Gibson was educated at the Vancouver School of Decoration and Applied Arts and has studied ceramics under the well known Togliatte. In 1948-50-51 she attended the Wayne State University of Detroit. She also studied under Lynn Zetki and Murray Douglas, well known ceramists. Mrs. Gibson has taught ceramics in Centralia.

Much enthusiasm was also shown in the other groups. The schedule for the classes is as follows: Monday evening — floral arrangements, G. L. Ayre, instructor; Tuesday evening — mosaic tile, Mrs. J. Grant, instructress, and ceramics — Mrs. Gordon Davies; Thursday afternoon — art, Pearvo Airola; advanced ceramics, Mrs. J. M. Gibson; Thursday evening — art, Pearvo Airola; leathercraft, Miss Marion Gelsthorpe.

Anyone interested in advanced ceramics or any of the other classes is invited to come to the Recreation Centre or for further information, to contact Mrs. J. Grant of Crestview Avenue.

Mr. Grills made the presentation of the hat in Ottawa last Friday.

Man Is Found Unconscious In His Car

Ontario Provincial Police Constable J. F. Shanks of the Madoc detachment is still baffled this morning as to the cause of a one-car accident on county road No. 8, near Madoc, Monday night.

Constable Shanks found a man lying unconscious in an automobile. He was identified as Donald Ferguson, 25, of 3 Ramsay St., Trenton. He was taken to Belleville hospital and the extent of his injuries have not been determined said Dr. D. Scott.

Constable Shanks said the vehicle had apparently been in an accident or had gone out of control. He said they were not sure as to what actually did take place and will not know until able to talk to Ferguson.

Moments in History

In 1883, the yacht "Atlanta" brought fame to the city of Belleville. This speed craft was built and owned in Belleville, was taken to Chicago to win the yacht race for the North American championship on fresh water and brought home the coveted Fisher Cup. Skippered by "Jimmy" also Belleville-built and owned, defeated the Chicago entry in a race at Belleville and became the champion and holder of the Fisher Cup. This all happened some fifteen years before the incorporation of the Belleville company began supplying Belleville residents with electrical power for lights and industry. Today, the Moira-Schuster company is still performing this valuable service with speed and efficiency. Why not let Moira-Schuster attend to your heating needs this winter? White Cane Club Enjoys 'Games Night'

The October recreation meeting of the White Cane Club was held at the Kiwanis centre on the evening of October 2nd.

The president, Pat Barrett-stock, brought a few items of business before the members before the games were commenced. A new member Kay Dix, was introduced and welcomed into the club.

Mr. Artie Scott reported on the progress of the blind bowlers and mentioned the great need of sighted, interested volunteers to act as playing coaches and markers. The success of this project depends largely on at least two sighted persons, familiar with marking, hurring get to lend a hand.

A resume of the Belleville White Cane Club activities, written by Mrs. Violet Wade, was read by Mrs. Robins from the Canadian Council of the Blind's periodical, "The CCB Outlook".

Miss Laurie Towner, Mrs. Maud Hollins, Mrs. Gladys Selcoth and Mr. Walter Wells assisted with the games. Throwing the beanbag was won by Mrs. Sam O'Shea for the women and Mr. Gerald Mistacle for the men. Beanlelle was won by Mrs. Fleury Allen and Mr. Percy St. Onge. Scrambled names of candies was won by Artie Scott.

Vocal duets were provided by Mrs. Maud Hollins and Mrs. Twiddy with Mr. Phil Burton providing supper music.

A lovely lunch was served by the Kiwanis Queens, to whom Miss Theresa Chalmers extended thanks on behalf of the club bringing a most pleasant evening to a close.

Wife Preserves

Asters, shellacked, will be preserved in cold on imaginative note in window headpieces and usually floral pieces.

Mr. and Mrs. Jan Willem Lutgendorff are pictured following their recent marriage in Marantha Christian Reformed Church, Stirling, Ontario. (Photo by Lumbers Studio, Belleville.)

LUTGENDORFF — JONG

A lovely wedding was solemnized on Saturday, September 23rd, at 2.30 p.m., in Maranatha Christian Reformed Church in Stirling by the Reverend J. E. F. Dressehuis, in a double-ring ceremony when Luberta de Jong of Stirling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Weiger de Jong, became the bride of Jan Willem Lutgendorff, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Lutgendorff, Leeuwarden, Holland. Lovely baskets of pastel-toned gladioli adorned the chancel, and white satin bows the guest pews.

The wedding music was provided by Mr. John de Vries, with Miss Edith de Jong, sister of the bride, as soloist, who sang, "How Great Thou Art."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Weiger de Jong, the bridge was radiantly charming in her full-length bridal gown of silk nylon tulle fashioned with fitted bodice of imported lace trimmed with delicate hand-beading of sequins and seed pearls, and full-length lily-point sleeves. The bouffant skirt was accented by lace appliques. Her headdress was a Spanish-type mantilla of imported lace with crown of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white and red carnations, and wore a single strand of pearls.

Miss Edith de Jong attended her sister as maid of honor, wearing a delicate mauve silk organza with bouffant tiered skirt enhance dwith tiny matching bows. A mauve rose with baby's tulle veiling at headress and bouquet of white and pink Sweetheart roses, with pastel-shaded streamers completed her ensemble.

Miss Lammie Klompmaker, cousin of the bride, and Miss Martha Schenkels, also a cousin, were bridesmaids; the former in pale green silk organza with bouffant skirt, and matching headdress, while the latter was attired in pale pink silk organza with bouffant skirt and matching headdress.

The little flower girl, Miss Olga Bounsa, was sweet and demure in a pink and mauve frock accented by matching back bow. She carried a little cascade bouquet of white Shasta daisies and ivy, and wore a floral headdress.

Mr. Klaas Zylstra of Frankford was groomsman, and Mr. Frank Davidson of Belleville and Mr. Hauri Klompmaker of Stirling were ushers.

The reception was held in the I.O.O.F. hall in the traditional Dutch fashion with a three-tier wedding cake centring the bride's table, topped with a tiny bride and bridegroom.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, who was attired in a magenta shade crepe sheath with matching jacket and yellow rose corsage, beige velvet hat with matching shoes, purse and gloves.

For the wedding trip to Gaspe, Quebec, by motor, and other northern and eastern points, the bride chose a mauve dress with matching jacket with white accessories.

Out-of-town guests were present from Holland, Welland, Peterbrough, Toronto, and Brampton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Lutgendorff are residing at 31 Emily St., in Stirling.

Plenty of Work No Worries Is Secret

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Mrs. Matilda (Aunt Tilt) Rogers, 111 Sunday says her secret of longevity is "plenty of hard work and don't worry."

"I used to go into the cleanings and chop, grub, pile and burn—just like a man," she recalls. "And oh, the days I've plowed in the corn and worked in the 'baccer — all such as that—the young gals this day wouldn't know anything about it."

Although Mrs. Rogers now is a bed patient in a Waynesville rest home, she reads without glasses, and her mind is alert. She still eats three meals a day.

Mrs. Rogers is the matriarch of a clan of 284 living descendants—five sons, four daughters, 65 grandchildren, 79 great-grandchildren, 125 great-great-grandchildren, and six new great-great-great - grandchildren born since she turned 110 last year. She says she hopes to see the sixth generation of her family before she dies.

Her oldest child is a son, Will Rogers of Waynesville, aged 92.

KUM DOUBLE CLUB

HOLLOWAY — The Kum Double Club met on Wednesday evening for its regular meeting at the home of Alvin and June Donaldson.

Reg and Betty Workman prepared the worship service, using the theme "Harvest Time". The Scripture was read by Mary Hallbauer. Merle Bateman gave a reading "Selection From the Good Tree". Two poems, "September" and "Autumn Days" were given by Eva Robson and Audrey Kelly. This portion of the meeting was closed with prayer by Betty Workman.

Lola Morgan, presiding over the business. Twenty members responded to the roll call and the birthday money collected. A Hallowe'en dance is to be held at Tobe's on October 27th with Holloway to assist with preparing the lunch. The Couples Club rally is to be held November 26th at Colborne United Church.

A donation of $10 left to the Kum Double Club by the late Mrs. Annie Hough was gratefully received.

The next meeting is to be held at the home of Coleman and Verna Townsend on October 11th.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

Gourmet Uses Canned Foods In All Meals

TORONTO (CP) — Colette Mercier is a gourmet from Fresno who, perhaps as it may seem, approves of the North American custom of using canned foods.

"I'm very much appreciate canned foods," she says, adding, however, that "I never serve something from a can without doing something to it."

A canned soup is unlikely to reach the dinner table in its original form, even if it's only cream or parsley that has been added.

Mme. Mercier came to Canada five years ago and is a regular assistive of the Institute of European Wines.

To help in her job of promoting French, German, Portuguese and Spanish wines, she has formed a gourmet club that has grown to a membership of 26 in 18 months.

About once a month she has the members to her home for a wine - tasting party. Several times a year the members attend special dinners. Although the meals are prepared by hotels, the menu is arranged by Mme. Mercier.

Bemersyde IODE Enjoys Supper, Talk

CAMPBELLFORD — Forty-five members were in attendance for the September meeting of the Bemersyde Chapter IODE, which was held at the summer home of Mrs. Florence Benor.

Following an enjoyable supper, the meeting opened with the Regent, Mrs. George Vice, in the chair. The summer's correspondence was read by the secretary, and the resignation of two members accepted with regret. The treasurer, visitors and group leaders gave their reports, showing most had been successful in their projects.

Mrs. Vice welcomed the honorary Regent, Miss E. B. Ferris, and two honorary members, Mrs. Verna Rutherford and Mrs. Florence Beatty.

Mrs. D. Carswell, Commonwealth relations convener, read an interesting article, "How Canada Can Help Africans To A Better Life."

The article stressed the need for a small private peace corps to bring medical aid, compassion, understanding and education to Africans to help overcome ignorance and poverty. Hard work and poor conditions have to be endured by these modern missionaries of life. Another way in which Canada could help is through the adoption of African schools and by encouraging student visits addressed by educational groups.

In relation to this article, Mrs. Don Bennett told of a young African man who had been brought over to study in Canada by a man in Belleville, and who was receiving financial help from the Men's Club of St. John's United Church. Mrs. Bennett stressed that this man would be only too willing to speak on conditions in Africa, possibly at a later meeting.

VISITORS ENTERTAINED

The chapter was honored to entertain two guests from Peterborough who were introduced by Mrs. Florence Benor. They were Mrs. M. Clarke, of the 27th Regent and Municipal Chapters, and Mrs. F. Murray of the Major Bennett and Municipal Chapters.

Mrs. Murray spoke briefly on the organization of the Municipal Chapter, and Mrs. Clarke spoke on Civil Defence, of which she is co-ordinator for the Municipal Chapter.

The meeting closed after Miss Dorothy Kingston thanked the hostess for opening her home to the Chapter.

Group 1 will be in charge of the October meeting.

Question: I have a problem that's been bothering me for a long time. Whenever I take a girl out to dinner, (everybody she sees soup and dessert (dig), you know) and orders only the appetiser, entree and coffee. While this may be satisfying to a slim young thing, I'd like to order the full dinner, but hesitate to appear rude. Must a man refuse courses just because his date does?

M. J., New York City.

Answer: No. If one half of a couple prefers to have a complete dinner, the other should sit quietly by while the extra courses are served and consumed. No need to starve, just because your companion has a smaller appetite.

Question: When a couple becomes engaged, should the girl's parents invite her fiance's parents to their home to become acquainted, or should the boy's parents take the initiative?

Chicago, Ill.

Answer: The man's parents usually call in person on his fiancee's parents as soon as they're told of the engagement. If a personal visit is impossible for any reason, then the man's mother should telephone or send a note to the girl's mother saying how pleased she and her husband are about the good news.

W.M.S.—W.A.

FRANKFORD—The W.M.S. and the Evening Auxiliary of Frankford, United Church held their joint meeting on Wednesday evening in Rose Lowery Hall.

The program for the evening was in charge of the Evening Auxiliary. The president, Mrs. J. Beach, opened the meeting with a few words of welcome to all, followed by a short reading entitled, "An Autumn Season."

Mrs. G. McLay, W.M.S. president took charge for a brief business period. Mrs. J. M. Dafoe gave the secretarial report.

Mrs. W. Morrow gave the treasurer's report. The offering was received by Mrs. Morrow and Mrs. Tomecek.

Mrs. J. Beach took charge of the program. Mrs. Tomecek, Evening Auxiliary secretary, gave her report and roll call and the treasurer gave the financial report.

A worship period was in charge of Mrs. Beenan, who read the Scripture from St. John 17, 20-24.

A vocal solo, "Near To The Heart of God", was sung by Mrs. Claude Moran.

An interesting introduction to the new Study Book, the theme which is, "Churches For New Times", was given by Mrs. Roy Osterhout, after which a tape recording was given on the same subject.

Mrs. W. Morrow sang a lovely soprano solo, "Keep on Trusting," followed by Mrs. Preston Hess, who gave a reading entitled, "The Ceaseless Task".

Mrs. Carl Austin gave a piano solo and Mrs. Way gave a reading, "Today Won't Come Again."

SLIDES SHOWN

Miss Sandra Morrow showed beautiful slides portraying her trip to the West Coast during the summer holidays which were enjoyed by everyone.

The W.M.S. ladies served a delicious lunch. Tables were set and all enjoyed salads, jellies and cookies which were provided.

Mrs. A. Rain expressed appreciation to the W.M.S. to which Mrs. G. McLay replied.

Cannot Get Him Back

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—Six months ago I broke off with my boy friend because my older brother, who has always been my adviser, thought he was the wrong person for me.

I told my friend that I did not love him enough to marry him. He was grand about it—said that if I thought someone else could make me happier than he could, he would not stand in the way.

Last night I saw him at a football game and all the old warm feeling for him came back. I could tell by his expression that he felt the same way. How do you know when you are in love? Do you think there is any way I could get him back?—HATTIE

DEAR HATTIE:—Don't be so afraid of life that you let love pass by. There is no set formula for knowing Cupid, but there has to be physical attraction, some common interests and a certain companionableness that makes you feel understood. Then love can grow.

If he still has no other girl, write him a letter. Tell him you were wrong to break off and need more time to make up your mind.

Then make your decision yourself, later.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—Am I called upon to take in my husband's mentally retarded brother? I have five children of my own. My husband failed in business so I went back to teaching for a while, because the older children took care of the younger ones.

Now a lawyer tells me it is right for my husband to support this brother. Yet his father left the farm to the oldest sister, so that he would have a home with her. She has never married.

We have more money now, as my husband has a good job, but this "boy" (who is actually older than I am) is very backward and almost impossible for me to manage. —PUT UPON.

DEAR PUT UPON:—There's no law to say you are responsible for your brother-in-law. In most provinces there is legislation providing allowances for disabled persons, and he may be eligible for this.

If his own sister will not take him in and you and your husband have come to the end of your rope, you need social and medical advice about what to do. If he is eligible for placement in a home for retarded person, this may be the answer. Get in touch with the welfare officer for your district.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I am a widow of 35, and am going with a bachelor of 40. He is a likeable person and a nice companion, but he has one bad habit. He is always late.

When I arrange to meet him after work, to go out to dinner; I sit in the restaurant and wait half an hour, sometimes longer, before he turns up. He never apologizes or mentions it.

When I say: "I thought you were lost!" he replies "Oh no. I came straight from the office." As if that settled everything. I don't think I can keep on standing this. Is there anything I can do? —WEARY OF WAITING.

* * *

DEAR WEARY:—Try being late yourself. An hour late. See if a Wearied Willy can take the hint.

DEAR DORIS:—I am having an awful argument with my mother. She is making me an evening dress (my first one) and I want it to be strapless. All the girls are wearing them. She thinks the dress could be sleeveless but that the band over the shoulder should be wide. Otherwise, she says, it looks "undressed." I think the other way looks overdressed. What do you think? I am 16.—FIRST FORMAL.

DEAR FIRST FORMAL:—Half a century ago, a dress short enough to show the ankle was considered immodest. In dress style, we go by what is being done.

A strapless is perfect for young, pretty shoulders. Perhaps a chiffon stole softly around those shoulders would keep the dress from seeming too extreme, since you are very young and this is your first formal.

Your mother will come to like the idea of her little girl becoming a young lady. It can be a shock at first.

Trip's End

by Mary Moore

In fourteen days I flew to twelve planes without one delay. I think it probably is some kind of a record, but it may be routine. The fact remains I did it and it gave me a wonderful feeling of security and confidence in the integrity of our national airline and I'm proud of it. Thinking of patriotism, I overheard, in a restaurant in Saskatoon, from a table of four men: "Give me pork chops every morning Vern." "Yes, I eat hot wheat cakes, cereal because I like it, it's quick and it's patriotic."

The question I heard offered began: "Mary, when you get home will you send me your recipe for ..." I've been asked for Caesar Salad "put it in your column now" (see below); red-red chocolate cake; different ways of cooking chicken. (In a big Western store, one of my friends bought three 21-lb. broilers for $1.51.) One of the editors I saw did not ask for a recipe, but offered to give me his recipe for cream of cucumber soup.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Beef and Rice Balls (porcupines) with Creole Sauce; Fried Eggplant; Buttered Beets; Cabbage Salad with Roquefort Dressing; Orange Meringue Pie with Cocoanut; Coffee.

One night I had for dinner Lobster Cardinal, which I am sure I can reproduce. Even though the waiter was hovering like a mother hen I was able to analyze it bite by bite. It was fresh lobster in halved lobster shell, but it was so hot and delectable I decided it could be made quite presentable and comparatively inexpensively from canned lobster and, of course, could be served in ramekins or ovenproof sea shells.

So as a result of my flying trip this column is getting a shot in the arm. I'll try to keep pace with this jet age - I flew from Winnipeg to Malton by jet in two hours - if this gal's engines are up to it.

Now I have some lovely family news: My daughter Marianne has another little boy. He was born on September 19th while his wandering grandmother was in Vancouver. The telephone company may have been happy that day over the long distance call to Ottawa, for as soon as Herbie told me Marianne was fine and that I had another grandson, I spoke to everybody else in the house. The other grandparents are doing the honors this time, having travelled from Castlegar B.C. to look after and get acquainted with Gary, Davey and Sue, while their mother was in hospital and little Daniel Herbert was making his debut.

CAESAR SALAD (serves six somewhere)

(Note: The craze for this salad has swept through the United States and has entered Canada. Some salad lovers wonder what romaine is, for it is the main ingredient. Romaine is more strongly flavored than other varieties of lettuce and has an elongated head with long spoon-shaped leaves.

If you cannot buy it locally substitute inner part of head lettuce or Chinese lettuce or French endive.) Nine cups (3 average heads) torn-up romaine (or lettuce or endive - see above), 1 chopped garlic clove, ½ cup fine olive oil or other salad oil, ¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese, 1 egg (raw or coddled 1 minute), ¼ cup lemon juice, 1½ to 2 cups ¾" bread cubes. Soak garlic in oil 2 hours or overnight. Wash, dry and chill romaine. At serving time tear into bite-size piece. Remove garlic from oil and add one-quarter of the oil to greens along with the pepper, salt and cheese. Drop the raw or 1 min. coddled egg on top and pour lemon juice over the egg. Toss. Brown bread cubes to gold shade in remaining oil. Add cubes and oil, toss again and serve.

Fashion Favorite

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The brown crepe dress is in for quite a whirl, judging from store purchases and the fashion magazine selections. So this one is very much in the sartorial scene both as to color and fabric as well as line.

The long torso bodice is semi-fitted, with a simple neckline and cap sleeves. Tailored bows above the straight, seamed center front panel of the crisply flared skirt are a softening touch.

The skirt is lined in taffeta, the same fabric as the bows.

Historical Research Talk Given at WI

BONARLAW — Mrs. Ross Dickie was hostess for the Women's Institute on Wednesday afternoon with 23 members and visitors present.

The president, Mrs. G. Burkett opened the meeting in the usual manner. It has been decided that a canning will take place in the community for the blind.

Mrs. James Spry and Mrs. R. Heath were the conveners for historical research. Miss Jane Gay was the guest speaker and gave a splendid address on historical work and gave a description of her visit to Upper Canada and the many pioneer objects on display and stressed that all W.I. members should make an effort to visit Upper Canada Village.

Mrs. Dickie took the women on a tour in the hamster house where several thousand of these are kept, and gave a talk on the care and feeding of hamsters. Mrs. Everett Heath put on a contest of pictures of prominent men and women.

The hostess and assistants served refreshments.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday, October 25th at the home of Mrs. Gerald Brodsworth, program will be on Canadian industries with Mrs. A. Reid and Mrs. W. McInroy as convenors.

Women's Activities

ST. MARK'S W.A.

BONARLAW — The September meeting of St. Mark's W.A. was held at Oak Lake at Mrs. R. Woodcock's cottage. All sat down to a delicious potluck dinner at noon.

The president, Mrs. W. J. Barlow called the meeting to order at 3 p.m. The Litany and prayers were given by the Rev. Fleming. The Bible reading from the second chapter of Philippians was read by Mrs. Heath Johns.

The president welcomed all present and thanked Mrs. Woodcock, Eight members and two visitors were present.

It was decided to hold a quilting at Mrs. Mel Thomas' the latter part of the month. The "Little helpers" secretary Mrs. Jack Wood reported she had attended a meeting in Stirling.

Correspondence was read including a letter from Springbrook W.A. inviting the members to attend their annual banquet.

Mr. Fleming reported on promotions, re-painting the basement of the church. It was decided to have a travelling apron to try to raise some extra funds and to send it to all church members.

Mrs. Woodcock was in charge of the program and through the kindness of Mr. Clare West, the Moira Conservation film was shown which was most interesting.

Mr. Fleming thanked Mr. West for his part in the program.

Friends Honor Bride-to-Be At Shower

FRANKFORD — Mrs. Jack Hube, Mrs. Roy Bower and Mrs. Abe Wilcox were co-hostesses on Wednesday evening for a "Cup and Saucer" shower at the home of Mrs. Madge Bailey, in honor of Miss Nancy Bailey, an October bride-to-be, with 32 ladies present.

The home was decorated with pink and white streamers for the occasion.

A corsage of carnations and mums was presented to Nancy. She received many lovely china cups and saucers and thanked her kind friends for their gifts.

Refreshments were served by Miss Betty Lou Tower, Miss Patsy Brown, Miss Joanne Duncan and Miss Judy Lawrence.

The Experts Say

Many Canadian Women Said Buying Hairdos

By EDNA BLAKELY

TORONTO (CP) — Some women not only have a party dress for special occasions, they have a party hairdo too—and it's sitting at home ready for any occasion.

The hairdo is a wig and a Toronto firm (Toronto Human Hair Supply Company) says more and more Canadian women are buying wigs because of their convenience. Approximately 60 per cent of the company's business is the result of loss of hair due to sickness or accident.

The wigs are made to measure and are as easy to put on as a bathing cap. Nylon wigs, which weigh about five ounces, are sold for as low as $35. But a hair consultant Jack Sharpe recommends item for partial use only. If a wig is a necessity he advised a human hair wig which weighs about 2½ ounces and costs approximately $200.

Each human hair is individually put onto a silk backing and each wig represents about 30 to 40 hours work. Ursula Artman, one of eight women employed at the Toronto Company, learned the trade in Bremen in northwest Germany.

The hair is straight when it arrives and it is permanently curled by a special process. It needs to be cleaned about once a month at a cost of $2.50 to $7. It usually takes from three days to a week, necessitating use of a second wig.

The hair can be set in various styles although it is best to have it combed gently around the face to hide the hairline. It doesn't matter if the wig is combed on or off the head, it's a matter of preference—but a wig shouldn't be slept in.

Mr. Sharpe says a well-cared-for wig should last three to four years and with two wigs, they should last twice the time. A nylon wig, used occasionally would last about five years.

IMPORTED FROM EUROPE

Dark-colored hair is imported from Italy and the blonde, white and gold colors usually come from Germany. The color is apt to fade but the original shade can be restored with a rinse.

Eyelashes and eyebrows are also made and are co-ordinated with the wig for those who have lost all their hair.

If a hairpiece or toupee is made, the hair is blended to match the natural color of the person's own hair.

Samples of the wigs were on view at the recent charm and beauty show at the Canadian National Exhibition, Paris. Other exhibitors gave instructions about makeup, hair styling and hair coloring.

Milton Bloor and Bob Cummings, instructors with two Toronto hairdressing schools, said the smaller headline was indicated for fall and winter hair fashions.

"The bouffant look is gone, Mr. Bloor said. The newer flick-to-the-head styles gave a more lasting quality to a set, Mr. Cummings added.

A color consultant told women that red and brown tones are the fashionable hair colors for fall and winter.

Nadine S.—Is there any thing worse than a moody man?

Gordon S.—I'm only human. She needs a robot, or a god.

Nadine S.—Living with Gordon is like playing Russian Roulette. You never know when the explosion will come. Of course, it doesn't kill anyone but it sure kills the pleasure of a meal, a visit or an outing.

I can have a lovely dinner ready and a pleasant report of my afternoon to go with it, but if the least little thing has gone wrong with his afternoon — gangway? I must keep out of his way and let him gripe, curse and revile everyone and everything.

But then, when luck is with me, he'll have a fine day and be all smiles and good cheer. Even our dog knows that he'll either be patted and stroked each evening or kicked out of the way.

Gordon S.—Nadine is too touchy. I can expect me to turn into a machine that purrs and smiles when she presses a button? I just act natural. When things have gone sour on me I act sour. What else?

There are days when everyone's on the ball, everything clicks nicely, and so of course, I'm in fine shape when I get home. But then there are those clinkers when nothing, from the eggs in the morning right on through the car in the evening, comes through. I'm not going to keep all that a secret exactly!

We've been married three years now. Nadine might as well accept the fact that I'm human and I have my moods.

The Council—One medical generalization that is often repeated is that there are two types of men — those who get ulcers and those who make others get them. With Gordon wearing his moods on the outside so freely, he may not join the former group. And Nadine, in self protection, can't let him fall into the latter.

No, there's a third type consisting of men who become the masters, rather than the slaves, of their moods. They neither bury them and become ulcer-prone, nor do they hurl them about in socially offensive ways. These are mature, effective people who have acquired balance and bounce. They can shoots ups and down philosophically.

Both Gordon and Nadine have a way to go in learning to handle moods. And marriage gives them plenty of time, as well as plenty of material for the course. Somewhere along the way they'll find the middle ground between uncontrolled "real things" (indulged in by Gordon) and over-inhibited "acting" (requested by Nadine).

To Gordon we recommend more predictability and equanimity. Nadine is entitled to know what to expect and be able to count on some stability of mood, regardless of the superficial events of the day.

But to Nadine we stress the recognition of and respect for the effect of mood. In a recent experiment, some boys at a summer camp were asked whether they felt any prejudice against minority groups. Most said no. Then, a long-awaited trip to the movies was called off and the questions was asked again. Suddenly, the kids were full of hate! Actually this is but a transfer of anger to a safe target.

Again, an illustration: Some sixth-grade children participated in a spelling bee, prior to viewing a mystery play. Those who did well loved the show, while those who had been given too-hard words were bored. "Getting to know you" will be the theme song of the S.'s for many years, because that's how long it takes to know the man behind the moods.

GROWING TOWN — Cars roll along the freshly graded main street of Fort St. John, one of the oldest white settlements in British Columbia. The frontier town with a population of less than 1,000 in 1951 has grown to 6,000 as a result of the oil boom in the area. (CP Photo).

Oldest White Settlement In B.C. Still Wearing High Boots, Shirt of Frontier

By JIM PEACOCK

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP)— Fort St. John is one of the oldest white settlements in British Columbia, but in large measure it's still wearing the high boots and open-necked shirt of the frontier.

It's no skimpy rust, mind you, and any suggestion of that sort is as likely to get you run out of town as if you were to malign Frank McMahon, the Americans or the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

For Fort St. John has grown fat and strong with the help of all three and it is taking on an air of city sophistication with its residential subdivisions, its supermarkets and growing miles of sidewalk.

Its population, however, remains predominantly one of hardy, informal outdoorsmen, made up of farmers, laborers, tradesmen, lumbermen and professional engineers who spend more time in the field than in an office chair.

The streets are still dusty when it's dry, muddy when it's wet. The rapidly expanding telephone service is erratic as facilities are strained. And much of the recreation is centred in the facilities of the three modern hotels that flank the main business thoroughfare.

STARTED LATE

For all its age, Fort St. John is barely out of knee pants in its development, most of its growth having come in the last five or six years.

Established as a fur-trading post by Simon Fraser after Alexander Mackenzie made his epic boat trip up the Peace River in 1793-94, it grew slowly for 150 years.

Until the U.S. Army pushed through the Alaska Highway in 1941-42, it remained an isolated, little-known community 50 miles of dirt road north of the rail line at Dawson Creek and 620 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Even as late as 1950 it had fewer than 1,000 residents and served as a tiny agricultural service community and stopping place on the Alaska Highway.

Today, nearly 10 years after Mr. McMahon's Pacific Petroleum Company brought in its first gas well in the area to spark an oil boom that still continues and four years after the PGE line was completed from Vancouver, Fort St. John is a community of 6,000.

Its trailer camps and shack towns are fast giving way to modern housing. Makeshift business places are being replaced by buildings that give an air of permanency.

FAST BOOM STAGE

"We have a good hold here now," says H. G. (Pappy) Gelbreath, service station operator and president of the Chamber of Commerce, who came here from Georgia with the start of the oil hunt. "I don't think you can call it any longer a boom town."

The farming community, long the economy's backbone, has grown steadily since the opening of the Alaska Highway and its bridge across the Peace River 10 miles south at Taylor. It has moved ahead even more rapidly since the PGE came through in 1957 and in the last two years has attracted many American ranchers seeking room to expand.

But it was petroleum that brought Fort St. John to the attention of the outside, prompted its population growth and built it so rapidly. Pacific Pete's discoveries brought other companies into the region seeking petroleum riches. They also brought secondary industry that maintained the population here when the bulk of the search crews moved further north.

Today, more than 200 Fort St. John residents are employed directly by McMahon companies—Pacific Pete's refinery at Taylor, and the office and field locations of Westcoast Transmission Company which transports natural gas to southern markets.

With agriculture expanding on such a scale that regularly produces 30 bushels of wheat to the acre—the national average is 12; with a possible new beef and pork market in Alaska that would bring a packing plant here; with an expanding tourist trade, and with growing service industries, Fort St. John residents feel their future is assured.

The people look with anticipation to Hudson Hope, 80 miles west, for another boom, bigger than any in the past, when work begins on the dam that will harness the power potential of the mighty Peace River.

Newspaper editor Dan Murray says the country's hot and cold weather extremes, high transportation costs, growing educational taxes burden and little-developed side roads are drawbacks but they can be overcome.

"This is a wonderful country and we've got every reason to believe in the future."

Owners of Stolen Paintings Offering Big Sums of Money For Return, No Questions

By BERNARD GAVZER

NEW YORK (AP)—It's been a grand summer for art thieves. In all, 76 important works have been stolen in the United States, France and Britain, with a market value of at least $5,000,000.

Does this mean the underworld has gone aesthetic, giving up girlie magazines to peer into the free eyes of a Picasso female?

"If professional thieves are involved, they're after one thing: money," says Emmlington T. Block, vice-president of the McLaughlin Company of Washington, a brokerage firm specializing in fine art insurance. "These works are too well known to be offered to a reputable dealer or collector, so the probability is that ransom would be sought."

Ransom—and the profession of lofty motives—figured in the latest theft to amaze the art world, the snatching of a Goya portrait of the Duke of Wellington from London's famed National Gallery.

The act is an attempt to pick the pockets of those who love art more than charity," a ransom note with Robin Hood overtones said. It asks $332,000 —the amount paid by the gallery and a foundation to an American collector who had paid the same price but yielded to an outcry to keep the painting in Britain.

Insurance companies dislike talk of ransom.

But an agent for Austrian insurers of Eight Cezanne paintings stolen in August from the Vendome Pavilion at Aix-en-Provence, France (market value $2,000,000) has declared: "We want those paintings back and we're willing to pay—no questions asked."

Millionaire collector G. David Thompson, whose house in the Pittsburgh suburb had looted of six Picassos, two Legers, a Dufy and a Miro—estimated value $363,000 to twice that amount late in July, has offered $100,000 — no questions asked.

One possible market would be among greedy collectors.

"I can think of collectors," says a top museum official who has been with several leading museums and galleries, "who would knowingly purchase stolen works. They are like misers. They would be satisfied to hide a painting and then gloat over it all alone."

In July, 37 works by Matisse, Utrillo, Dufy and other modern were stolen from an exhibit at St. Tropez. They are valued at $2,000,000.

"Just a Second"

"You're much thinner, dear, I expect it's the hard work you're doing on that tunnel."

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

WHITES DISTRICT — The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Linn of Bayside was made festive over the weekend when the family joined with Mr. and Mrs. Linn to celebrate Mr. Linn's 72nd birthday, on Sunday, with a turkey dinner.

Sgt. Carman Linn, Mrs. Linn, Carole, Bobby and Margot of Oakville spent the weekend with his parents, while Mrs. John Linn, John jr. and Miss Paula Aubin, of Kingston, were Sunday guests.

His many friends extend best wishes and hope that they may spend man, many such happy occasions together.

SINGER ALLOWED BAIL

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP)—Italian opera tenor Giuseppe Zampieri, 40, scheduled to make his season's debut Friday in San Francisco, was released on $1,050 bail today after his arrest on a hit-and-run charge. Police arrested him Sunday and identified him as the driver of a car that struck and injured a pedestrian, George de la Montanya, 74.

Demorestville

DEMORESTVILLE — Debbie, Tommy and George were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Beasley, Glenora.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Storms spent the weekend in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Marsh were guests for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Don Turcotte.

Demorestville Pair last Wednesday included school parade, a baby show, followed by a dance and choosing of the beauty Queen at night.

Mr. Jack May and Betty are spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sellans.

Canadian Girl Student One Of Party Living, Working With the People of Africa

FREDERICTON (CP)—When Ruth Wood arrived in the West African nation of Guinea she found the cha-cha and rock 'n' roll already popular.

Now, thanks to the efforts of the 22-year-old Canadian student, at least some of the Africans also know how to do the Charleston.

Miss Wood was one of 18 Canadian students who participated in Operation Crossroads Africa, an American-sponsored project which she describes as "a relationship in depth with the African people."

The project was set up in 1958 by a New York clergyman to give North American students a better basis of understanding with the people of Africa by working and living with them.

Ruth did just that for six weeks.

She worked from 7:30 to 6 each day, hauling sand from a pit 50 miles away to a tiny Guinea village where the students were building a reception centre.

"We cut wood in the forest and carried it on our shoulders for over half a mile, and lugged buckets of water, sand or gravel to mix cement. I got so I could mix cement really well in a hurry."

Equipment was scarce. "Altogether there were about 40 Africans and Americans working together on the building but we had only three shovels. I was told there were only 15 tractors in the whole of Guinea."

Each day she ate with an African family. After dinner Africans would gather to be taught songs and dances, watch films or just talk about conditions in the French - speaking nation, a former French colony with 3,000,000 population.

Miss Wood, a University of New Brunswick science graduate who entered Harvard this fall on a scholarship, says the project offers "one of the best opportunities a college student could have."

Each American student—there were 136—pays $900 of his own expenses, but it cost Miss Wood $215. The Board of Men of the United Church sponsored the Canadian participants.

Ruth said there is a "tremendous national spirit in Guinea." In lieu of taxes each African gives one working day a week building roads or new schools.

She said they are all aware of racial discrimination against Negroes in the United States.

"It is the ambition of Guinea students to come to the U.S. to study but they are afraid. Consequently, there are more likely to go to Moscow, Bulgaria or Germany.

"Fidel Castro and Patrice Lumumba would be two shining examples for them of what a country's leader should be. But they adore President Kennedy because of his youth."

She said education and health are the biggest problems. There was a great need for doctors and nurses.

Under the terms of the program, Miss Wood must give a speech each week for a year on experiences. But his doesn't scare her. "It was a tremendous opportunity for me and I consider myself lucky."

Fullbright Would Support De Facto Recognition of East Germany and Compromise

By HAROLD HEATON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator William Fulbright says he would support de facto recognition of the East German Communist regime if other conditions for a Berlin settlement proved satisfactory.

The chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, a powerful voice in U.S. foreign policy, said in an interview the Western powers should seek a compromise with Russia that would enable West Berlin to remain free "under the best guarantees we can get."

He also advocated location in West Berlin of some United Nations agencies, such as the World Health Organization or the Food and Agriculture Organization, so that non-aligned countries attending such meetings could see for themselves the contrast between East and West Berlin.

The Arkansas Democrat, whose recent trademark on Berlin aroused resentment in the state department, reiterated his view that the Kennedy administration and the previous Eisenhower administration had been "damsfed slow" in attempting to resolve the Berlin dispute with Russia.

State department officials privately share the Senator's statements and maintained they may undermine the Western negotiating position and embarrass the Kennedy administration.

Mr. Fulbright said he had no intention of prejudicing current negotiations. He was merely expressing a personal view, mainly on the origin of the dispute.

He added, however, that Senator Mike Mansfield, Senate majority leader, shared his view that the West had delayed too long in attempting to settle the Berlin issue. Mansfield also supported de facto — informal — recognition of East Germany as part of a Berlin settlement.

Fulbright and the Kennedy administration have been at odds before, particularly at the time of the Cuban invasion failure. Fulbright had advised Kennedy not to go through with it.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk supported the president's decision to encourage the invaders through arms, instructors and aircraft.

The latest Fulbright view that aroused Rusk's associates was his statement in London that Kennedy had failed to call a sail down full legal rights to ground routes between West Germany and West Berlin at the time of Allied occupation in 1945 and West Berlin is 110 miles inside Communist territory.

School Trustees Taken to Task By Inspector

NORTH BAY (CP) — School trustees often ignore their responsibilities, J. D. Tyndall, inspector of public schools in North Bay and district, said Tuesday.

Mr. Tyndall, speaking to the Ontario Public School Trustees' Association convention, said too many trustees are interested in keeping out of trouble rather than keeping an eye on the "watchwords of truth and fearlessness."

He said trustees "should be everything the word implies . . . including the responsibility of analyzing your whole school system continually to find out if it is actually serving the purpose for which it was planned."

Mr. Trusler asked his audience: "Do you, as a trustee, get up each day and give any thought to what you can do to improve the development of children? is your constant thought about the child or about the tax rate?"

He asked "is there not a tendency today to regard a low level of mediocrity? We require leaders today that do not conform to the mediocre."

Mr. Trusler said he has had complaints about the fifth grade a year for education but the same people never said anything about the depression of 3000 to $1,000 a year on their cars.

Worker Saves Fourteen as Fire Kills Six

WEYBURN, Sask. (CP)—The courage of a 21-year-old employee who locked himself and 14 patients in a room when flames licked through his escape route was credited with limiting the death toll in a fire Tuesday at the Saskatchewan Mental Hospital here.

Six elderly patients were suffocated as a result of the overnight fire. Provincial health and fire officials started separate investigations.

Vic Messer, an employee at the hospital for only three weeks, found his escape route through a corridor blocked by heat and flames and herded 14 patients into a dormitory ward, locking the doors.

He kicked a crack beneath the doors with a blanket to keep out the smoke, tried in vain to smash a window of solid safety glass, then waited until firemen chopped through the wall to rescue the group.

The six victims were suffocated in the overnight fire, a fire which apparently started in an isolation room opening onto the hall, Fire Chief Jack Brown said.

No other patients were reported seriously affected by the fire. Three are known to have overcome by smoke, recovered.

BARELY DRESSED

Sixty-four patients were evacuated successfully by the staff of the 1,500-bed hospital from two wards on the fourth, and top, floor of the hospital in this town 100 miles southeast of Regina.

Stanley Rands, deputy director of the provincial health department's psychiatric services branch, said damage to the building was confined mostly to that done by smoke and water.

Dead were: Frank Leonard, 71, Estevan, Sask.; Stuart McGilbery, 76; Welwyn, Sask.; Charles Alfred Ayre, 72, Churchbridge, Sask.; Gordon Archibald, 61, Regina; Thomas Sinclair, 67, Carnduff, Sask., and Oliver Talseth, 73, originally from Norway, with no known relatives in Canada.

Anglican Church of Canada Administrative Setup Will Receive a Major Ovehraul

OTTAWA (CP) — The administrative setup of the Anglican Church of Canada is in for a major overhaul.

Wide organizational changes were approved Tuesday at the annual meeting here of the church's executive council.

They will be studied further at next year's general synod in Montreal.

The changes recommended include an overhaul of the general synod, the legislative policy making body of the church—the holding of synod meetings every two years instead of three, and the replacement of the present provincial synods by new national executive councils.

Delegates to the meeting heard the head of the church in Canada urge many Anglican church union, and a plea from the West Indies for more missionaries.

Most Rev. Howard Clark, Archbishop of Rupert's Land, and Primate of All Canada, said: "We have that union (of the Christian churches) to come in our lifetime."

Rt. Rev. R. Hunt, Suffragan Bishop of Toronto, said the church must be prepared to meet the challenge of union.

"We must be prepared with great efficiency and effectiveness."

Convening of the general synod every three years would permit the legislative body to deal more effectively with the affairs of the national church, he said. It would also bring the church more into line with the United Church, which meets every two years and the Presbyterian church, which meets annually.

Composition of the synod would be reduced to 200 members from the present 300 representation from the larger dioceses.

The missionary, religious, education and social service departments would be separately headed at a joint executive council meeting and the council would be abolished to be replaced by a large council committee to be called the national executive council.

Under electoral college, which chooses the primate, would be the general synod itself. At present, only 84 of the synod's power houses are represented in the electoral college.

The church was urged by Archdeacon T. P. Crostlewaite of Toronto to use "imagination and creative insight" to persuade wealthy church members to leave bequests to bolster church finances.

He said there was lots of such money available and the church was making only half - hearted attempts to get a share of it.

William Wright, Bishop of Algoma, predicted there will be great bequests to the church and only "a few" will give individual personality ourselves." There was a growing number who "sow" those who might give, he said, to fear that their money would be spent on buildings rather than in direct human assistance.

The executive council approved resolutions authorizing the setting up of a new curriculum "designed to meet the present day needs" of Anglican schools and the appointing of coordination and expansion of the religious education of the synod; the synod's leadership training program for clergy, lay readers and teachers; and the appointment and setting up of regional training centres to meet the "urgent administrative training for lay workers and centres for short - term training of clergy, lay readers and laity.

Canon A. H. Dovis, the missionary society's general secretary, said the Anglican church in the "Far East" is calling "desperately" for Canadian assistance.

He said there are some 1,- 000,000 Anglicans in The West Indies and Guiana served by only 300 clergy. By contrast Jamaica had one ordained minister to each Anglican served by 300 clergy.

Tedious Bargaining Likely Before Ford Strike Settled

DETROIT (AP)—Ford Motor Company, its plants closed by a United Auto Workers' union strike, today apparently faced long and tedious bargaining before the automobile firm can return to full production.

Negotiations on a 3-year wage schedulad to resume at 10 a.m. EDT today.

The UAW went on strike at Ford Tuesday morning in support of new contract demands. A national money package had been reached, but non-economic matters proved to be the stumbling block.

Ninety-six days of negotiation failed to bring agreement and the 130,000 production workers walked out. Ford operates 30 plants in 20 states. Half of its employees and 32 of its plants are in Michigan. Normally about 30 per cent of Ford autos sold in the U.S. are Ford products.

WON'T AFFECT AT ONCE

On Oakville, Ont., a union spokesman said the strike would not affect production at the Ford plant there unless it lasts a month or more. There are sufficient American-made parts at Oakville to last several weeks.)

Malcolm Denise, Ford vice-president labor relations and top management negotiator, said:

"The issues on which we are apart are of great importance. Based on outward appearance we have a considerable distance to travel.

UAW President Walker P. Reuther said he thinks all that it could to avoid the strike, say, ing: "We have been at the bargaining table for 95 days, more than adequate time to settle our problems and settle a fair one."

The economic package closely approximated the union's "guideline" pattern, with General Motors, reached two weeks ago.

Reader's Digest Lost Round In Prolonged Court Fight

OTTAWA (CP)—Reader's Digest Association (Canada) Limited has lost a round in its prolonged court fight against a $1,000,000 federal magazine tax.

The Supreme Court of Canada in a unanimous judgment Tuesday rejected an attempt by the magazine to introduce the 1956 budget speech of former Liberal finance minister Walter Harris as evidence to support its contention that the tax is unconstitutional and discriminatory.

The nine-member court ruled that the budget speech of Mr. Harris is not admissible in court as evidence to interpret a law. Legislation is either discriminatory or unconstitutional.

Mr. Justice J. R. Cartwright in his reasons for judgment said that if the witness Mr. Harris later's statement should be admitted there would appear to be no ground on which anything said in either House (the Commons or Senate) between the introduction of the bill and its final passing into a law could be excluded."

The court upheld an appeal by the federal government against a decision of the Quebec Court of Appeal that Mr. Harris' speech and other evidence could be introduced by Reader's Digest. The Quebec Appeal Court had reserved an earlier decision by Chief Justice W. B. Scott of the Quebec Superic. Court, in the Reader's Digest case before it, solves a 30-per-cent excise tax that the former Liberal government imposed, effective Jan. 1, 1957, on the gross advertising revenues of Canadian editions of foreign magazines. The tax was repealed 18 months after it became effective by the present Progressive Conservative government.

After Reader's Digest refused to pay the tax, it was taken to court by the federal government. In opposing payment of the tax, the magazine said it is entitled to the same exemption from excise tax that is enjoyed by the Canadian market is much too small for a satisfactory rate of growth."

Mr. Crump said "our problems cannot be removed by tariff action. Canada must export. The danger is further discrimination of the Canadian market to those of foreign manufacture is that other countries may retaliate and this will damage our export markets for many Canadian raw materials and some processed goods. The cross of Canada is to find room for people who will need them in the future, three speakers at the Canadian Chamber of Commerce annual meeting said Tuesday.

New thinking is needed in government, business and labor to reach fields in taxation, trade, education, research and production, they said.

Speakers in a session on "Canada's economic ills" were Dr. John J. Deutsch, vice-principal of Queen's University; N. R. Crump, chairman and president of Canadian Pacific Railway; and A. J. Little, Toronto, chairman of the Canadian Tar Foundation.

Dr. Deutsch put the needed growth at between four and five per cent annually in real production compared with the growth in gross national product of around two per cent in recent years.

Dr. Deutsch and Mr. Crump both turned down protectionism as an answer to Canada's problems. Dr. Deutsch said:

"The answer to the problems of trading blocs and of increasing trade competition is not to let in a retreat to some new form of economic isolationism, but to adopt policies that will enable Canada's much too small for a satisfactory rate of growth."

Mr. Crump said "our problems cannot be removed by tariff action. Canada must export. The danger is further discrimination of the Canadian market to those of foreign manufacture is that other countries may retaliate and this will damage our export markets for many Canadian raw materials and some processed goods. The cross of Canada is to find room for people who will need them in the future, three speakers at the Canadian Chamber of Commerce annual meeting said Tuesday.

"Old conceptions and traditional skills are becoming obsolete with amazing rapidity," Dr. Deutsch said, "and this calls for an entirely new approach to the development of power."

Mr. Little said the recent tax amendment granting a form of accelerated depreciation to companies was a step forward as an incentive that is timid and inadequate, but bold and imaginative."

He said Canada needs a national plan and suggested a planning department which might be modelled on the department of finance or of trade and commerce, but which could be under a separate ministry of economic development.

Mr. Crump said the European Common Market presents both problems and opportunities for Canada. On the opportunity side was the rapidly increasing prosperity of the European member countries. In certain areas demand might increase at a faster rate than can be supplied from within the market.

Faster Economic Growth Needed in Canada Chamber Told by Three Speakers

HALIFAX (CP) — Canada's economy must grow faster if jobs are to be found for people who will need them in the future, three speakers at the Canadian Chamber of Commerce annual meeting said Tuesday.

Baptist Attacks Prime Minister For His Speech

DEEP RIVER (CP)—Rev. R. C. Plant Tuesday criticized a fellow Baptist, Prime Minister Diefenbaker, for "failing to provide leadership" on the matter of nuclear Canadian shelters.

Mr. Plant, 43-year-old minister of, the multi-denominational Chalk River, Ont., parish, said Chalk River, nuclear research centre, and other communities should spearhead construction of large public shelters for protection against fallout. "Supposing a bomb could not afford private shelters."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated in a Commons speech Sept. 28 that the government may be considering the construction of public shelters. He said such a program would cost at least $1,000,000,000.

Mr. Plant said the government was misguided in promoting home shelters. Elaborating on his views on the matter, he told a reporter:

"I do not believe that a Christian could find family fallout shelters morally acceptable Private shelters are a symptom of the economically - fit only, neighbor turned against neighbor and a denial of the question, 'Am I my brother's keeper?' "

The minister, an RCAF adjutant in the Second World War, said he hoped reporters had misquoted the prime minister's Commons speech of Sept. 28.

Mr. Diefenbaker was quoted as saying, while speaking of the Canada shelter being built in the basement of his official Ottawa residence: "That is where I shall be when and if war should come. That is where I shall stay."

Steelworker Wins $18,000 In Damages Against Doctor

HAMILTON (CP) — Steelworker Otis Langer, 30, had been awarded $18,000 in damages against a Hamilton surgeon accused of writing Langer's wife that his "hands were in the loveliness of your wife's breasts."

Ontario Supreme Court jury found Tuesday in an affirmation of affections suit that Langer's wife, Lois, had committed adultery with his former patient, Dr. Lawrence Crolo.

The jury of three men and three women deliberated for more than two hours, then returned $3,000 damages for embarrassment to Langer, $15,000 for mental strain resulting from his wife's adultery with Crolo and $3,000 for the loss of companionship.

Mr. Langer sued Dr. LaCroix for $100,000 for the affections of his wife and criminal conversation (adultery).

The jury found that Mrs. Langer's affections for Mr. Langer were alienated by the acts of the doctor. The jury also noted, in answering questions, that Mrs. Langer continued to perform household services and cared for their nine - year - old son James.

Mr. Langer said he launched the suit after finding 81 love letters he said were sent by Dr. LaCroix to his wife while she was in Austria in 1958. He said the affair began after she went to the city for surgery in June, 1958.

Mr. Justice J. F. Donnelly instructed the jury to consider the letters carefully and said there was no need to be an expert to discover some of the meanings.

He said a defence lawyer's claim that the letters were not a contradiction in terms and should not be considered.

Herbert F. Parker, lawyer for Dr. LaCroix, suggested in his summation that Mrs. Langer and Mrs. Langer "put their heads together" to make a claim against the doctor.

Dr. LaCroix, and Mrs. LaCroix, who had been present throughout most of the hearing, were absent when the jury presented its findings.

After the court rose, Mrs. Langer left with defence lawyer's desk, placed a plastic bag on it and said: "Give it to Otis."

Objects in the bag appeared to be the books and pictures of Dr. LaCroix and his family which Mr. Langer had testified he found in a travelling case at his home. The items were not produced during the trial.

Communism Represents Self As 'Wave of the Future'

MONTREAL (CP) — International communism is trying to weaken the West by "instilling an attitude of defeatism," the No. 2 man in the United States Federal Bureau of Investigation said Tuesday.

W. C. Sullivan, the FBI's assistant director, told 1,800 police chiefs from four continents that communism is trying to "present itself as "the wave of the future" that will wash over all opposition.

"The communists believe that global preaching is shifting in their favor," Mr. Sullivan told the annual conference of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

"Propagandizing on the theme that communism is not only inevitable but also invincible, the world Communist movement is intent on riding a psychological wave into a future which it confidently predicts will see the total victory of communism."

TRY TO BUY TIME

Mr. Sullivan said communism is offering the world "peaceful co-existence as a clever tactic, designed to buy time for the Communist conspirators to consolidate their gains and to control Communist parties for soft spots in the non - Communist world."

"Peaceful co - existence" exploited the "natural and sound instinct" for lasting peace in the hearts of free men everywhere.

Communism is operating the most extensive network of subversion and espionage ever seen in the world in its bid to subvert or over - throw non-communistic governments, Mr. Sullivan said.

"The scope and scale of the espionage directed against the free world are obvious when you consider that during recent years some 360 individuals in 31 different countries have been convicted of espionage in behalf of the Soviet Union.

"It has been estimated that Communist-bloc countries have some 300,000 men and women trained in intelligence work operating throughout the world."

ESCAPE DEATH

HAMPTON BEACH, N.H. (AP)—Two men testing a Hallowe'en prank narrowly escaped death Tuesday when the air from a jet hit the concrete structure. William Kennedy, 34, a restaurant - operator, and a friend, Robert Moore, 22, had planned to stay inside for five minutes with the machine and then out after the men completed over an intercommunication system in the Kennedy home that they were having trouble breathing.

DRIVEN TO FREEDOM — West Berliners stand around a portable crane truck after a 24-year-old East German driving through a concrete wall to escape into West Berlin. East Berlin police fired at the truck, hitting it several times, but the youth escaped uninjured. The break was made at the Heinrich Heine Strasse checkpoint on the American sector. . Hillier

Hillier — Congratulations are extended to Mr. James Alexander who exhibited cattle at Picton Fair and carried off numerous awards.

Mr. Eldon Carson entertained at his home on a recent Saturday evening in honor of William McKenzie, a bridegroom-to - be. Young men were guests. Bill was presented with a floor lamp and he replied thanking his friends for their kindness.

Mrs. Humphries of Oshawa spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. Clapp who is convalescing at home.

Mr. Cecil Young, Picton, visited with his mother, Mrs. W. Young over the weekend.

Friends of Mr. Selby Clapp are happy to know she has returned from Picton Hospital where she underwent surgery.

The little granddaughter (Peggy Josephine Power) of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wannamaker was struck by the milk truck on her way to school last week. She was treated for bruises, cuts and disorders, at Prescott hospital where she was taken by ambulance. After a few days she was able to return to her home in Petawawa.

Mrs. S. Vancoit visited Mrs. Thompson on Sunday and they enjoyed motoring to visit Mrs. Tregenza's farm home, with the family.

Mrs. R. Yoe is in Picton hospital for treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Kristofyna accompanied the latter's mother to Montreal on Saturday; on her return trip home to Holland neighbors called before she left to wish her bon voyage.

Mr. Leonard McCartneys children spent the week-end on Thursday for this season's enjoyment.

TO BUY STOCK

CALGARY (CP) — Approximately 200 heifers and 125 bulls of Hereford and Aberdeen-Angus stock are expected to be bought in Alberta by a delegation of three Russians now touring purebred beef herds in southern Alberta. The delegation arrived here during the weekend after purchasing some of their stock in Ontario.

BONARLAW

Two Delegates Will Attend FU Convention

BONARLAW — The September meeting of Local 371 of the Ontario Farmers' Union was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thompson. President Murney Bateman was the chairman.

The meeting opened and a letter from the head office was read concerning the Ontario Farm Union Convention in October. The convention will be held in London this year and all members are urged to spend at least one day there and see what the Union is trying to do. Ella Mumby and Jeanne Williams were appointed as delegates to the convention.

Jeanne Williams gave a report on a county board meeting. Final arrangements were made for the Union booth at the Plowing Match. Local 371 is to have two people in the booth each day. Plans were also made for the county convention held in Tweed on Friday, Sept. 29th, all members are urged to attend.

Several resolutions were dealt with and it was brought up that last year the government paid canned pork at a loss and at the present time canned pork from Denmark and bearing the same label is being sold in local stores. A resolution about this situation was to be brought up at the county convention.

The next meeting will be the annual meeting and will be held in the Orange Hall, Springbrook.

The meeting adjourned and Murney Bateman thanked Ralph and Ruth for the use of their home.

Refreshments were served and a social period followed.

REJECTS RED PROTEST

ANKARA (Reuters)—Turkey has rejected a Russian protest against a recent NATO exercise in this country and told the Soviet Union NATO is "defensive." It was announced here. The protest was against operation Checkmate Two last month.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Copeland are spending a week with her sister, Mrs. Asa Quick and Mr. Quick of Windsor.

Mrs. W. A. Jeffery was a Friday caller of Mr. and Mrs. Casey Ketcheson.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sanderson and family of Oshawa were overnight guests on Friday of Mr. R. M. Brown and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Copeland are glad to announce the birth of a new granddaughter Gladys Lillian Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Copeland.

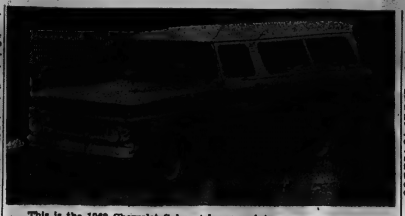
Mr. and Mrs. Casey Ketcheson spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ketcheson of Trenton.

Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson and Miss Kathleen McPherson of Belleville were Saturday guests of Mrs. W. A. Jeffery.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Trice, Stephen and Cathy of Belleville were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Curtis.

Sunday tea guests of Mrs. W. A. Jeffery were Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Sickle and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Curtis were Saturday evening visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pearson of Trenton.



The Bayside Home and School held their first meeting of the season on Thursday evening with a good attendance at Bayside School. The president, Mr. George Miller presided.

Communion service was held on Sunday morning at White's Church with the Rev. T. F. Townsend officiating. Church and Sunday School services will be held at 9.30 and 10.30 a.m. next Sunday.

It was also the 35th wedding anniversary of her oldest son Mr. and Mrs. Burleigh Hamilton of Humber Summit who were present. Those attending were from Port McNicholl; Wooler; Kingston; Toronto; Robelton; Weston; Kearney; Humber Summit; Oshawa; Pickering; Hiwtsdale and Cordova Mines.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maynes and Mrs. Albert Maynes spent a few days in Toronto the past week.

Mrs. Lloyd Williams is visiting her mother in Blue Sky, Alberta.

Nine-Hole Golf Course At Phantom Lake Hewn Out of the Solid Rock

By DUNCAN HOLMES

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP)—The golf - minded of this Manitoba mining town play their game to Saskatchewan.

The nine-hole course at Phantom Lake is not much more than a good golf drive from the provincial border that runs through Flin Flon's western outskirts.

One of Canada's most northern layouts, the Phantom Lake course and a nearby recreation centre complete the city's already intensive athletic schedule.

Constructed in three years over musseg and glacial rock the course reflects the determination with which golfers seek a place to play. And with smoke blowing occasionally from the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company's nearby smelter, it is amazing how the grass stays green.

With company and volunteer help, the course grew from an idea in 1951 to a 470-member club 19 years later.

Before 1951, enthusiasts had bashed thirty informal way over sometimes-patchy fairways and around doglegs that skirt natural rock piles.

Greens of Washington bent grass sparkle like many way those on courses in better climates, browning only occasionally under the acrid pummelling of the heavy smoke.

The rocks are one of the Phantom Lake hazards. To combat them, most members carry what they affectionately refer to as a "rock iron"—any club that can no longer be called new, its only purpose being to blast balls from the granite.

Players have the advantage of winter rules all season long—from May 1 to Sept. 30—when the lie may be improved on the fairway without penalty.

Jim Wardle, an enthusiast at the course from the beginning, told of items that calmly walk out from the rough and stalk off with played balls.

ALL-NIGHT TOURNEY

One player, Wardle said, lost his first drive to a fox, his second to a divebombing raven. Other members at the course substantiated his story. As make as 35 mangled balls were once discovered lining a fox's lair.

Because of its location north of the 53rd parallel, Phantom Lake takes advantage of the summer "midnight sun" during Flin Flon's annual Trout Festival. Each July 1 players tee off at 8 p.m. in a dusk-to-dawn tournament.

Stroking the first nine holes between 8 and 10 p.m., players then retire to fish fries and other activities until 4 a.m., when it's light enough to resume playing golf. The journament ends at 7.

Johnny Chiurka, formerly of Transcona and Winnipeg, handles professional duties at Phantom Lake. His best for 18 holes over the wily course was 67.

FACE TA XLIENS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Liens for unpaid 1950 income taxes were filed Monday against bandleader Bob Crosby, actor Stuart Erwin, and the wife of each. Internal revenue agents said the Erwins owe $3,352 and the Crosbys $2,000.

COURSE HAS HAZARDS — Golf pro Johnny Chiurka makes a putt on the green of Phantom Lake golf course at Flin Flon, Man., one of Canada's most northern courses. Built over musseg and glacial rock, the nine-hole layout took three years to complete. —CP Photo

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gordie Howe and Norm Ullman made a triumphant return to Detroit Red Wings' exhibition tour Tuesday night, contributing four goals and four assists between them as the Wings crushed Edmonton Flyers 9-3 at Red Deer, Alta.

Both had been out of competition for nearly two weeks with injuries. Howe nipped in one goal in the first period and two in the third and Ullman scored in the first, with each assisting on a pair of goals.

It was one of three exhibition games pitting National Hockey League clubs against Western League opposition. At Spokane, Wash., Toronto Maple Leafs beat Spokane Comets 5-1, while Montreal Canadiens dropped a 3-2 decision to Calgary Stampeders—the first such reverse in western competition this season.

Another exhibition contest saw Chicago Black Hawks whip Sudbury Wolves of the Eastern Professional Hockey League 6-1 in Sudbury.

NEVER LOOK BACK

At Red Deer, Detroit took a 4-0 lead in the first period against their Edmonton farmhands and never looked back. It was 6-1 at the end of the second.

Ed Litzenberger, Marcel Provonost, Vic Stasiuk, Lloyd Haddon and Al Johnson counted the others for the Wings. Edmonton's replies came from Lanzy Jaffrey, Len Lunde and Roger Delorey.

Rookie goalie Cesare Maniago was in the Montreal nets in the second period when the Stanleders fired home three goals, two during penalties to Montreal defencemen Lou Fontinato, Norm Johnson, Jim Brown and Lou Jankowski counted for Calgary with Claude Provost scoring for Montreal in the first period and Marcel Bonin getting the other late in the third.

Two players — Eddie Shack and Red Kelly — accounted for all of Toronto's scoring at Spokane. Schack counted three times and Kelly twice, with veteran WHL performer Colin Kilburn getting the Comets' lone reply early in the third.

At Sudbury, Bobby Hull was responsible for three of the Chicago goals, two of them within 34 seconds in the final period. Ken Wharram, Reg Fleming and Ab McDonald also scored for the Stanley Cup champions, and Ed Stankiewicz got Sudbury's only reply in the second period.

Judge Doesn't Like 'Reds Murder Yanks'

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A Supreme Court justice from Pennsylvania said today he has asked Cincinnati Reds to change their name.

Justice Michael A. Musmanno suggested the change in a 700-word letter to Fred Hutchinson, manager of the team, which goes into the world series against New York Yankees Wednesday.

Musmanno said he is afraid "America is in for some terrible scares," because it is "inevitable that one headline or more will scream: 'Reds murder Yanks.'"

Musmanno said there was a time when "red" was accepted as a contraction of "Redskin" but that today in the public mind "a Red is invariably regarded as a member of Khrushchev's kleptomaniac klanavern."

In Cincinnati, Reds general manager Bill DeWitt commented:

"I haven't heard anything about it but I'll say this, Fowal Crosley always wanted the team to be known as the Reds. And if that's the name he wanted, it's good enough for me."

Powel Crosley Jr., maiority stockholder in the club, died last spring.

Canadian Signs With Chicago

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Catcher Dave Pook, 18, has signed a contract with Chicago Cubs of the National League, it was announced Tuesday.

Pook played with St. Thomas Tom Cats of the Ontario Baseball Association Junior A circuit and with St. Thomas Elgins of the Senior Inter-County Baseball League.

GRID INJURY FATAL

CALGARY (CP)—High school student Paul Rees, 16, injured three weeks ago in a football practice, died in hospital Tuesday. He had been in critical condition since suffering brain damage and skull fractures when he made a diving play to recover a ball.

Moore Leads NFL Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Halfback Lenny Moore of Baltimore Colts has grabbed the lead in the National Football League's scoring race.

The former Penn State flash went on a 36-point spree against Minnesota Vikings Sunday to boost his total to 42 points.

The rise of St. Louis Cardinals' Prentice Gautt in rushing and of New York Giants' Y. A. Tittle in passing also marked weekend activity.

Gautt, who carried only 36 times for 159 yards in 1960, now has 61 rushes for 345 yards. He's third behind Cleveland's Jimmy Brown, who has 69 charries for 291 yards, and Green Bay's Jim Taylor, with 47 for 288 yards, according to the NFL figures released today.

Tittle has climbed out of nowhere to second place in passing, a department led by Sonny Jurgensen of Philadelphia. Jurgensen has completed 46 of 81 passes for 702 yards and Tittle 36 of 53 for 438 yards. Tittle has the best completion average with 64.2 per cent.

Sam Etcheverry, who left Montreal Alouettes for St. Louis after the end of last season, is ninth in passing. He's completed 20 of 36 attempts, an average of 55.6 per cent, for 230 yards. His average has been 6.05 yards.

Del Shofner of the Giants leads in pass receiving with 21 receptions for 377 yards and Yale Larry of Detroit in punting with 13 for a 43.9-yard average.

Provincial Bodies

Fish, Game to Merge

By KEN CLARK

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's 10 provincial game and fish associations plan to form a national body this month in order to mount a unified assault on wildlife problems.

The move was announced Monday by Paul Murphy of Winnipeg, secretary-manager of the Manitoba Game and Fish Association.

The national organization is to be officially launched at a meeting of representatives from the provincial association in Montreal Oct. 22-26. It will bring the estimated 300,000 members of Canadian sportsmen's clubs under unified leadership.

Absorbed into the proposed organization will be the Western Canada Yukon Council, a loose federation of hunting and angling clubs in the four western provinces and the Yukon.

TO FOLLOW U.S. PLAN

The organization will be patterned after the American Wildlife Federation, which has been in existence for years.

Mr. Murphy said the new association, as yet unnamed, will allow game and fish clubs to handle conservation and other problems on a national scale for the first time.

Mr. Murphy, also managing editor of the Wildlife Crusader, a Canadian outdoor magazine, said commercial interests in certain parts of Canada have destroyed wildlife areas for short-term gain.

The federal government's policy on recovering arable land by draining marshes likely will get close scrutiny from the association. Many game and fish officials feel this government policy is seriously reducing nesting grounds and hatching areas for waterfowl.

The new body also is expected to examine predator-control, relations between landowners and sportsmen, methods of preserving wildlife sanctuaries and educating hunters and anglers in sound conservation methods.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Blue Light, winner of the 1961 Queen's Plate, finished a far - off fifth Tuesday in Woodbine's featured seventh race. He suffered a cracked hoof Aug. 5.

Ektoro the Great won the featured event handily, finished six engths ahead of second-place Boraga and payed $5.10 to win. Chape On was third.

The quinella of Happy Harry and Knuckle Duster paid $57.70.

Harry Hotspur, winner of the first race, combined with Bonanker, winner of the second race for a $61.20 daily double. The crowd of 3,774 wagered $351,179.

Meanwhile, 15 fillies are entered in today's 10th running of the Princess Elizabeth Stakes. The 1 1-16 - mile race will have a purse of $13,750.

First Note, winner of the second division of the Carleton Stakes, will represent owner-breeder Frank Conklin of Brantford.

Reds' Hopes Are On Robinson, Pinson

Sport Slices . . .

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

By the time this is being read the Murderers' Row of the missile-tossing Yankees will have lived up to advance odds and blasted their way to an opening victory or the Cincy Reds got over their stage-fright and upset the popular apple-cart.

The general opinion, and that is shared by some rabid National League fans, is that the terrific power of the Yankees, single-shot or barrage, will swing the victory pendulum to the Bronx Bombers.

They could be wrong. The Yankees, Maris and Mantle to the contrary, and you can toss in Roger Howard, Skowron and Blanchard, have been beaten, and can be beaten.

The pitchers? The world series guessing game has been going on for many years. Who will be the key hurlers in the world's biggest baseball show? In former years managers used a little skullduggery, mystery and whimsey to keep the opposition guessing. A prize example of this was the way Connie Mack hid Howard Ehmke under the grandstand, announced another starting hurler then brought Ehmke out at the last minute. What did he do? Struck out twelve for a series record and won the game.

But this series is different. Rarely in the colorful history of the blue ribbon classic has the mound picture been so clear on each side. Seldom have the opposition managers, this time Houk and Hutchinson, been so sure of what they can expect.

The Reds knew they would have to face Ford. Terry and Stafford in turn. With Luis Arroyo in every key relief spot. The Yankees knew long beforehand they would face Cincy starters Jim O'Toole, Joey Jay and Bob Purkey. In the bullpen were the Red relief aces Jim Brosnan and Jim Henry.

The Yankees have the edge in world series pitching experience. Whitey Ford has seen seven classics, come and go—and who will ever forget Ralph Terry in the 1960 epic? He was the hurler, someone said, that cost the Old Perfessor his job as manager of the Bombers.

It was in the bottom of the ninth and the score tied between the Yankees and Pirates. Bill Mazeroski stood at the plate. Casey called in Terry in relief. He murmured: "Pitch him high and outside." Terry did. Mazeroski clouted his first pitch into the world blue yonder for the game, the series, and the end of Casey.

That is one side of the bullpen picture. This year it could be different. This is a series for the Mexican bean ball and the long-hit clouters. There could be a monotonous parade of pitchers to and from the bullpen. The bullpenner could very well be the series hero.

Both the Yankees and Redlegs have strength in the "pen." And some known it better than Whitey Ford and the Reding starters. Even the most rabid Yankee fan will admit Ford would not have piled up his imposing record this year if it had not been for the sterling work of Arroyo.

Never since the days of "Fireman" Joe Page have the Yankees had such effective relief work as that turned in by Luis. He has a fine record of his own, not to mention the "life-savers" he won for the Yankee southpaw ace.

The Reds seem to have the edge in numbers' with Brosnan and Henry, a lefty, stacked up against Arroyo. But Luis, the records prove, can work every day during the series and be effective.

While the tremendous Yankee power is a big asset, and the Cincy hits could very well blast the Bomber starters, it could be that a bat Brosnan or Arroyo could sway victory one way or the other. They have the class to get the job done.

Not Forgetting Mr. O'Toole

By JERRY LESKA

NEW YORK (AP)—Menaced pitching front line, is to shackle by rain, the world series is not only the home-run power of scheduled to start today with Maris and Mantle, but also the New York Yankees still solid booming bats of Howard, Yogi favorites over Cincinnati Reds Berra, Moose Skowron and John despite Yankee Mickey Man- Blanchard, each of whom has tle's doubtful status. bolted 20 or more homers this season.

A postponement would push the opener back a day to Thursday and be a big help to Yankee manager Ralph Houk, who then might be certain by the service of the ailing Mantle.

With or without Mantle—recovering from surgery on an abscess on his right hip — the Yankees are a 13-5 choice over the National League champion Reds, who are confident they can repeat Pittsburgh Pirates' 1960 series upset of the favored Yankees in seven games.

The pitching opponents are Ineffective Yankee Whitey Ford, the majors' best winner with a 25-4 record, against Cincinnati's Jim O'Toole, a 19-year-old who won his last eight decisions for a 19-8 record.

USE LITTLE BALLYHOO

The Reds have made little noise since they arrived in New York two days ago, and that's the way they won the National League pennant—with every one wondered how they could win without a bangup catcher or the h a b i t u a l batting strength through the middle, except Vada Pinson, in reality they kept piling up the victories.

Houk Tuesday went to great lengths to inform sports writers how the games are scrutinized scouting reports on the Reds. Manager Fred Hutchinson of Cincinnati simply said: "We went over the Yankee lineup, it was just a routine thing you do for a world series—we know the job we have to do and we'll try to do it."

A great deal of confusion existed over the condition of Mantle, who, for the second successive day, said that; although he felt improved, he was uncertain he could play.

Houk listed two starting lineups — one with Mantle, who slammed 54 homers batting cleanup behind Roger Maris (61), and the other without Mantle, installing catcher Elston Howard as cleanup man, shifting Maris from right to Mantle's center field spot and placing Hector Lopez in right.

There was only one hitch in the Cincinnati probable lineup. Hutchinson said he would await game time to decide whether Darrell Johnson, who hurt his side 1 s h a t t i n g practice last Friday, would be his starting catcher. Johnson said Tuesday he was ready to play but if he can't, Jerry Zimmerman will catch.

Cincinnati's hopes rest in Frank Robinson, a .323 hitter with 37 home runs, and the Pinson, who has a .343 batting mark and was a key man in the Reds' late pennant drive when Robinson went into a prolonged slump.

Hutchinson is gambling heavily on O'Toole, who pitched nine innings for Cincinnati and did not allow a single home run over his last 101 innings, covering 16 games. Only three left-handed batters hit homers against him all season.

"O'Toole can possibly go three games for us in this series," said Hutchinson, "He's a left-hander and he may give the Yankees trouble."

The big problem for O'Toole, Joey Jay (21-10) and Bob Purkey (16-12), who form the Reds' ia in the world championship."

Looks Like 'Wrap' Night At Arena

Tonight is "wrap-it-up" night at Memorial Arena.

Tonight "wraps up" the wrestling season. Hockey is just around the corner.

Tonight Gord Great Kudo and his baddie buddy-body Stanley Stasiak, expect to "wrap up" Tony Marino and his pal 300-pound Gino Marcello.

Marino and Marello expect to do a spot of packaging themselves.

No matter who does the "wrapping" two men-in-this will put his hand to see the strings are tied properly.

In other words there will be six men in the ring at the same time, and that should make for the jolliest old free-for-all ever seen in the squared circle here.

Tonight is a "grudge" match". La Kudo and Stasiak won the last match with skull-duggery. The Double M's chased them to the dressing room after the slugfest.

With four men throwing left-field punches and two others dodging 'em, there's bound to be fireworks.

And don't be surprised to see Tim Geohagen, Farmer Boy Townsend, Man Mountain Campbell and Ali Bey whose sides still get in on the act.

That should make for a real rip-sorting fistic farewell to the sport for 1961.

Campbell meets Farmer Boy and Timothy takes on Ali Bey in the pre-battle festivities.

Galt Gets Amherst Goalie

GALT (CP) — Galt Terriers announced Tuesday they will take goaltender Jacques Monbourquette from Amherst Ramblers of the Nova Scotia Senior Hockey League, to the world hockey champions in the Colonels Springs, Colo., in March.

Monbourquette, who guided the Ramblers to the Maritime championship last year as playing-coach, is a former all-star regular netminder, Harold (Boat) Hudgin.

Right winger Bobby Brown of Windsor and winger Joe Malo of Montreal also will join the Terriers.

Galt manager Les Gaudette said Hurley and Monette will alternate during a pre - championship tour of Western Canada but "we would have to give Hurley preference over Monette

Many Former Stars

New NL Clubs Gets Player Lists

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets and Houston Colts, the two new National League baseball clubs, will be able to form their teams from a list that includes former league stars Robin Roberts, Gil Hodges, Red Schoendienst, Sam Jones, Richie Ashburn and Johnny Antonelli, The Associated Press has learned.

The selections from the lists of 15 players made available by each of the eight established clubs will be made by Houston and New York the day after the world series.

Although the lists are in the hands of officials of the Mets and Colts, they will not be officially disclosed by the league.

The AP has learned however that the list includes such name players as pitcher Roberts and infielder Pancho Herrera, both of Philadelphia Phillies; infielders Hodges and Norm Larker and pitcher Roger Craig, Los Angeles Dodgers; infielder Schoendienst, St. Louis Cardinals; pitchers Jones and Billy Loes and infielder Eddie Bressoud, San Francisco Giants; outfielder Ashburn, Chicago Cubs; pitcher Anion e l l i, Milwaukee Braves; and pitchers Clem Labine, Vinegar Bend Mizell and Bobby Shantz a n d infielder Jokesy Logan, Pittsburgh Pirates.

REDS' LIST DELAYED

Cincinnati's current list, The AP learned, contains only the names of those not eligible for the series. It is reported that Gus Bell, Dick Gernert and Jay Hook may be among those made available once the series ends.

Each new team must take 16 players who have played two years with a major league club, or have played three years in the minors.

Selections from the lists will be announced Wednesday.

Series Briefs

NEW YORK (AP)—Figuring the series:

Luis Arroyo, Yankee relief ace, will be seeking revenge against Cincinnati. The Reds dropped him early in 1958 after he had won his only decision. He was sent to the International League and from there to Milwaukee, moved to Jersey City, from where he went to New York last year, Arroyo had a 15-5 record with the Yanks this season.

The Reds had a big edge over the Yanks in stolen bases during the regular season. Cincinnati stole 69 times and New York 29. The Reds also hit into fewer double plays, 137 to New York's 153.

The last time Cincinnati was in the world series in 1940, Reds' manager Fred Hutchinson was on the other team—Detroit Tigers. Hutch batted .500 on hitting in a 4-0 loss in the sixth game, Cincinnati won in seven.

Ken Johnson is the only Cincinnati pitcher who ever faced the Yankees this season. While with Kansas City he worked 2-3 innings against them on June 15, giving up one hit and no runs. The Reds purchased him from Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League in July.

Yogi Berra of the Yanks will extend two of his series records just by having his name written in the starting lineup today. He has played in the most series, 11, and the most series games, 68. Berra also holds the series record for most times at bat (245), runs (39), runs batted in (30), hits (68) and singles (47).

Son of an Irish Cop!

O'Toole Has Butterflies?

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim O'Toole, 24-year-old son of a Chicago policeman, had the most important assignment of his career today and he admitted he had "butterflies."

Currently the hottest pitcher on either team, O'Toole was manager Fred H u t c h inson's choice as opening-day pitcher for Cincinnati Reds against New York Yankees.

"I'll feel the butterflies, all right," conceded O'Toole, a soft-spoken six-footer. "But I always feel them in any game until I get a batter or two out. Then they go away."

O'Toole is the youngest of Hutchinson's big three, and the least experienced.

But he had a winning streak of eight games at the end of the season and did not allow a single home run in 101 innings of his last 16 games. That's what Hutchinson needs against the Yankee long ball hitters.

O'Toole never has pitched in Yankee Stadium before and, like practically all the Reds, he has no world series experience.

"After I get rid of the butterflies, I think the pressure will be more on our hitters against pitchers than on me," he said. "And speaking of p r e s s u r e, don't think the Yank hitters won't have plenty of it."

This is only O'Toole's third full season with the Reds and he finished with a 19-8 record. Last year, he finished with a 12-12 mark and in 1959 it was 5-8.

"I think a lot of my success hinges on my fast ball," said O'Toole. "It's live and I've always had it. But when Ed Bailey was our catcher, he liked me to throw a lot of breaking stuff. When he went to San Francisco the other catchers kept me pouring the fast one in."

Jersey Franchise Moved

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) The Jersey City baseball franchise in the International League has been moved to Jacksonville, it was announced Tuesday night.

Sam Wolfson, president of the Jacksonville Baseball Club in the Class A South Atlantic (Sally) League this season, made the announcement.

He said agreement has been reached in New York for Jacksonville's release from the Sally League and entry into the International.

Jacksonville's International League entry will have a working agreement with Cleveland Indians, Wolfson said.

Meets McNeeley Dec. 4

Patterson Defends Title In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Grey Cup weekend in Toronto has been promised a fitting climax — a world heavyweight title fight between champion Floyd Patterson and challenger Tom McNeeley of Boston.

Promoters of the fight told a press conference Tuesday that the 15 - round bout will be held Dec. 4 at the 15,000 - seat Maple Leaf Gardens.

The first world heavyweight title fight ever held in Canada, it will be held two days after the annual Grey Cup game between eastern and western football champions.

Promoters will be the Bolan brothers of New York, Tom and Al, president and vice - president respectively of Championship Sports Incorporated, which has closed - circuit television and radio rights to the fight. Co - promoter is Frank Tunney of Toronto.

Tom Bolan told reporters all obstacles in the way of the fight have been cleared through Marv McKenzie, Ontario athletic commissioner. Among the agreements is one that McKenzie appoint an out - of - province referee.

WAR DESERVE IN BOSTON

It was a dispute over referees that brought the fight here. Originally scheduled for Boston Nov. 13, the fight was cancelled when the Massachusetts Boxing Commission would not agree to Patterson's request for an out-of-state referee.

The fight will be shown on television in Canada and the United States, Bolan said, with a blackout in a radius of about 200 miles of Toronto.

Gardens ticket prices are not final, he said, but "it is likely the top will be $30 and the low $10."

The actual signing between Patterson and McNeeley will take place within two weeks in Toronto.

Patterson is expected in Toronto about a month before the bout to complete his training and McNeeley will arrive some time later.

Bolan said that Peter Fuller, McNeeley's manager, is putting up $1,000,000 in cash prior to the fight to guarantee Patterson a return bout within 120 days should McNeeley win. The Boston fighter has won all 25 of his pro fights, 12 by knockouts.

Eastern Scoring Race

GARY SCHREIDER

Stewart, Schreider Tops

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Don Stewart, the little halfback with the big scoring punch for Ottawa Rough Riders, is getting closer to the Eastern Football Conference scoring title he missed last year. He picked up two touchdowns against Hamilton Tiger - Cats Saturday and boosted his total to 54 points.

Last week he led Don Clark of Montreal Alouettes and Ti-cats' Garry McDougall by six points. This week he has a 12-point bulge over teammate Gary Schreider and halfback George Scott of Hamilton, tied for the runner-up spot.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show that Schreider has converted 30 of Ottawa's 35 touchdowns this year. The remainder of the halfback's points come from four field goals.

Legend: T-Toronto; O-Ottawa; H-Hamilton; M-Montreal.

Doug Johnson carded a 25 score in the Quinte Trap and Gun Club weekend shoot. Next was Gary Cranston with a 24.

Other scores were Dick Thomson, Don Dalrymple, George Razzis, and Bob Peakes, all with 23; Ray McKinnon, John Walsh and Denny Rogers, 21; Garry Bunnett and George Hammett, 21 and Jim Kennedy 20.

Gerry Goyer To Play With L.A.

SASKATOON (CP) — Twelve veteran players will carry the hopes of the new Los Angeles Blades in the 1961-62 Western Hockey League season.

The Blades, along with San Francisco Seals, are entering their first WHL season.

Seven of the 12 were brought from the defunct Victoria Cougars by coach George Agar, who coached Victoria last season. They are goaltender Marcel Pelletier, defencemen Don McLeod and Jim Hay, and forwards Gerry Goyer, Jim Powers, Doug Macauley and Doug Anderson.

The other five are defencemen Ralph Keller of Vancouver Canucks, Bill Burega of Calgary Stampeders and Les Hunt of Seattle Totems and forwards Bruce Carmichael and Danny Belisle, both with Vancouver last year.

Blades open the season at home Oct. 13 against defending champion Portland Buckaroos.

And The 'Babe' Would Not Object

MONTREAL (CP) — A baseball fan was an obvious participant in a poll conducted by The Gazette to determine what name Montrealers would like Princess Margaret and the Earl of Snowdon to give to the baby they expected.

His suggestion, if it's a boy:

Roger Maris Armstrong-Jones.

Troika of New Programs Make Appearance on TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A troika of new programs made their first appearances on network television Tuesday night. One was promising, one remindscent, and the third, an oft-told tale.

The promising one was CBS' The Dick van Dyke Show. It is a situation comedy of the classic television mold: The young couple consisting of the mother-known-best wife and the husband who is just an overgrown little boy.

But it was dreamed up by Carl Reiner, a good, comedian turned writer, and the boyish husband is played by a talented rubber-faced, rubber-boned comedian named Dick van Dyke, so it looks as if there's a new TV family around for the audience to clasp warmly to its collective bosom.

If you close your eyes during ABC's animated cartoon Calvin and the Colonel, visions of the old Amos 'n Andy Show will distance the present. And with good reason. Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll, who were Amos 'n Andy, play the colonel, a fox who tries hard to be wily, and Calvin, a bumbling, strong-backed bear.

Although this is alleged to be one of the cartoon shows for adults, it would fit better into the late afternoon children's hour of TV.

ABC's The New Breed is another hour - long police action story. Its gimmick is the glorification of career policemen with college degrees.

Recommended tonight

Perry Como Show, NBC, 9-10 EDT—variety show returns for another season.

Mrs. G. Goes to College, premiers, CBS, 9:30-10—start of a comedy series starring Gertrude Berg and Sir Cedric Hardwicke;

Splendor in the Grass Not A Movie for Children

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's preview time.

Splendor in the Grass is a collaboration of Elia Kazan and William Inge and reflects the talents and tendencies of both.

It is an important move and bound to be a leading contender in next year's Oscar derby. It provides the emergence of Natalie Wood as a top actress and introduces Warren Beatty, an important new actor.

Miss Wood, Beatty and the rest of an excellent cast are the pawns of Kazan and Inge.

No director is better than Kazan at transforming the complexities of modern life into dramatic form. When he fails, it is because his characters become harsh and bloodless, as they sometimes do in Splendor.

SELDOM MISSES

Inge seldom misses — four hits out of five trips on Broadway. But his backward view of small-town life on the plains seems limited.

The male characters, especially fathers, get a fresh deal in Inge plays. Come Back, Little Sheba, Picnic, Bus Stop and Dark at the Top of the Stairs are strewn with misfits, failures and numbers.

Splendor hits the jackpot. One father is a brutal, bravado money-maker, the other an inarticulate muddler. The young men are mostly sex-mad.

Still, Splendor is an arresting study of an ancient problem, sex before marriage. It has highly charged and shocking scenes and a love story that is engrossing, though more bitter than sweet.

Parents may quarrel with the picture's theme: Natalie's chastity makes her lose Beatty and her mind as well. It is not for children.

REVIEWS DEFENCES

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy met with his defence chiefs Tuesday to review military preparations of the United States and its allies. He was briefed Monday by State Secretary Dean Rusk on the diplomatic side of the Berlin crisis.

British Press Regrets Tony Has Accepted a Title

LONDON (Reuter) — Disappointment and regret were the overwhelming sentiments in the British press today on the news that commoner Antony Armstrong-Jones has been given a title.

One newspaper, the mass-circulation Daily Mirror, says it plans to go on calling him "Mr. Jones" or, more simply, "Tony."

The Queen Tuesday bestowed the title of Earl of Snowdon on the 31-year-old former society photographer who married Princess Margaret last year. Margaret is expecting her first baby soon.

The earldom of Snowdon was chosen to note Armstrong-Jones' Welsh origins. Snowdon is the highest mountain (3,560 feet) in Wales and is in County Caernarvonshire, where the new earl's father, Ronald Armstrong-Jones, is a county deputy lieutenant, an honorary title.

DESCRIBES IT

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express reproduced a gazetteer-style description of Snowdon, describing its position, height and altitude and concluded the announcement "Tony the Earl."

But The Daily Mirror in a front-page editorial says: "The Mirror has a feeling—despite official indications to the contrary—that he did not really want this title.

"We have a feeling that he would much prefer to go on being known as Mr. Antony Armstrong-Jones. "This newspaper has been happy Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Heindon.

"And because we think he will take it as a compliment...it is certainly intended to be. The Mirror will continue to refer to him as Mr. Jones. Or, better still, as Tony."

IS DISAPPOINTED

The Guardian says in an editorial that "Commoners may feel a tinge of disappointment that the plain, honest Mr. Armstrong-Jones has had a title thrust upon him.

"Must the Royal Family be driven to aristocratic tradition? It asks.

The Daily Sketch depicts Armstrong-Jones as an earl's regalia with the heading "Lord Tony, It's a Pity."

The Daily Herald says "Goodbye, Mr. Jones" and adds: "For some time he will probably take part in debates" in the House of Lords."

INCREASE FORCES

BONN (AP) — Poland, Czechoslovakia and East Germany have been increasing their military forces 20 per cent in the last eight weeks, authoritative West German military sources said on Tuesday. This would mean an increase of 100,000 men in the armies of the three Communist nations, whose combined strength was recalled at 500,000 men on Jan. 1. The Soviet Army in East Germany was estimated at 400,000 troops.

Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN — Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Harder, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Burkitt motored to Lake St. Peter on Sunday to visit the hunting camp.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Terry of Frankford were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Meyers on Sunday.

Berlin Police Exchange Shots Across Border

Battle Over Fugitives; One Killed, One Caught

BERLIN (Reuters)—An East Berlin policeman fired a shot at West Berlin police today on the border of the French sector.

The incident occurred as French authorities met to discuss an exchange of 40 shots by East and West Berlin police Wednesday night on the French sector border.

West Berlin police said they went to the border after it was reported that East Berlin police had damaged a West Berlin car by throwing stones.

In reply to requests to stop, an East Berlin policeman said: "Mind your head or I will shoot." He fired but the bullet hit no one.

The shots were fired when three East Berlin police tried to stop two East Berliners from leaping to West Berlin from a railway bridge.

One of the refugees jumped into the river Spree. The East Berlin firemen could bring nets into position and was killed. The other refugee was arrested by the Communist police.

The French police returned the shots in the first instance of gunfire into East Berlin across the Berlin wall. Communist border guards have repeatedly fired on persons crossing the border into West Berlin.

After the gun battle two Communist policemen were seen pulling a third back from the roof and the West German news agency DPA said he may have been wounded.

REFUGEE PROBLEMS

(The Associated Press said the East German policeman defected to West Berlin and that the incident was expected to touch off a new diplomatic storm from the Russians. Earlier this week, Marshal Ivan Konev, Russian chief of Soviet forces in East Germany, warned the West against any action that might upset the prospects of East - West talks on Berlin.

A West Berlin police spokesman in Zone Kingdom said the East Germans struck a sidewalk near where they and border guards were standing. The spokesman said the West Berlin police considered the attack on them and that they were entitled to shoot back. Five West Berliners were shot, and killed, in 36 shots.

One child man, 28 - year - old Bernd Lassner, had stood at the edge of the roof shouting to friends in the West, "I want to jump," as the Communist police entered the East.

As West Berlin firemen ran up with a net one of the police fired a burst of machine-gun fire from the edge of the roof and the two men fought fiercely be-

Immigrant Sons Meet to Talk Over Problems

OTTAWA (CP)—Two sons of immigrants met on Parliament Hill today to talk about jobs and millions of jobs.

On one side will be Labor Minister Michael Starr, 59, fine Canadian of Ukrainian descent to become a minister of the Crown.

On the other will be 33-year-old Arthur Goldberg, American labor secretary whose father fled Czarist Russia in the 1880s.

Finalized by their officials, the two men plan to confer for the next three days on topics ranging from employment is aviomation.

On arrival Wednesday night, Mr. Goldberg hailed the liberal democratic system of government in Canadian-American relations as an ideal way of ironing out and compromises about mutual problems.

The Goberg - Starr conferences get rolling formally in the afternoon, after a luncheon banquet with Prime Minister and cabinet ministers.

The two labor leaders are expected to tell one another what their respective governments have done and are doing about unemployment.

TALK OVER6 PROBLEMS

They will likely also touch on measures to encourage new employment, both into the problems of technological changes and automation, and deal with problems of productivity. Depressed areas, winter work incentives, older workers and job training.

"In the field of labor mobility here," said Mr. Goldberg Wednesday night, "we find that problems are overall and solutions are not easy to find. But by exchanging our experiences, we can develop better solutions than we have in the past."

Since the last Goldberg-Starr meeting in Washington six months ago, the economies of both countries have improved.

Hence the talks, said Mr. Goldberg, will be from a new vantage point, with beneficial results for both Canada and the United States.

Seek to Hurry Ford Accord

DETROIT (AP)—Ford Motor Company and United Auto Workers union planned to keep the phone lines humming today in a concerted effort to get the company back into car production by the first of next week.

Their negotiators decided Wednesday the best way to end the strike that shut down Ford plants from coast to coast Tuesday was to give priority to affecting settlements on working conditions at individual plants.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther and Ford's vice-president for labor relations, Malcolm L. Denise, postponed further discussions on a national contract on working conditions until Friday.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Clouds and showers are occurring over Northern Ontario as milder air returns to the province. By late today, all of Ontario will be in the milder air mass. Skies are expected to remain mainly sunny across Southern Ontario today and Friday, but in the north there will be variable cloudiness and some showers.

SHARP DROP IN PRICES BLUNTS EFFECT OF TAX

Cost of Food Drops in August

OTTAWA (CP)—A sharp drop in food prices during August blunted the impact on the nation's living costs of Ontario's new 5-per-cent sales tax, a bureau of statistics report showed today.

The consumer price index remained at 130.1 at the beginning of September, unchanged from a month earlier. A year ago the index — based on 1949 prices equalling 100 — was at 128.4.

The bureau said that all other sectors of consumer buying were affected by higher prices, largely as a result of the new Ontario tax.

But the increases were offset by "a substantial decline" in food costs resulting from seasonal price cuts for most fresh fruits and vegetables.

The index of food costs dropped to 123.2 from 125.3 during July. Food makes up 37 per cent of the "basket" of consumer purchases covered by the over-all index.

NO REGIONAL REPORT

The report does not include regional figures. Prices would show the effect of the sales tax now and also in living costs in Ontario alone. Officials say the tax will affect regional indexes for Ontario much more directly than it has the national price index.

The price index stability between early August and early September followed a slight decline in industrial wages during July. The index of average industrial wages and salaries at Aug. 1—latest date available—was 182.5 compared with 182.8 the month earlier and 177.6 a year earlier. The latter is based on 1949 wages equalling 100.

The index of food costs, at 123.2, was a shade under the level of 123.3 a year earlier, before the current price cutting. August for apples, peaches, grapes, potatoes, tomatoes, celery and carrots. Beef and pork prices were generally higher than a year earlier in increases for eggs, citrus fruits, butter, tea and flour.

However, the Ontario sales tax — from which virtually all food is exempt — developed much up prices in other segments of the consumer budget by as much as 4.5 per cent.

REFUSE TO FUEL SHIPS

CAIRO (AP)—The newspaper Al Ahram said Wednesday the Egyptian cabinet at Port Said has decided to refuse to refuel all ships entering the Suez Canal flying the flags of Turkey and Iran. The newspaper said the action is in protest against the two governments's recognition of the new Congo regime that broke with President Nasser's United Arab Republic.

First Satirical Night Club Opened in London Is Success

LONDON (CP) — An Sikmin-ard sign switched on in dingy garlic-accented Greek Street in Soho, London's cosmopolitan, sometimes sordid, but always entertainment district.

Co-owner of the club is talk handsome Cambridge graduate Peter Cook, one of the four men behind Beyond the Fringe, a zany revue that has been playing to packed houses ever since its opening early this year.

Off-beat and highly disrespectful about the upper classes, the revue is a symptom of a growing trend in Britain against a spikey, irreverent disowning of long - accepted social standards.

Some of the best things in the Establishment premises to be a refugee from the society they satirize. Cook has an informal tryout hall Tuesday night for show business cronies. It was a roaring success. Among the 4,000 paid-up members is author Graham Greene, violinist Yehudi Menuhin, a trade union official and a bishop.

Somewhat to Cook's dismay, there's also a sprinkling of titled pillars of the Establishment writing in for membership.

U.S. and Russia Near Accord On Selecting UN Secretary

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States today was reported to have agreed in the main to a Soviet plan for picking a temporary UN secretary-general. Support was building up for U Thant of Burma to take over the vital executive position.

Both U.S. stand increased hopes that a way will be found to break the 17-5 deadlock that took with its threat of paralysis for the administrative arm of the world organization.

Informed diplomats said the United States agreed with reservations to Soviet insistence that the Security Council nominate a successor to the late Dag Hammarskjold.

The reservations are that the U.S. and Russia first agree on the candidate and on his powers, informants said.

The U.S. stand was conveyed to the Soviet delegation by acting chief Ellsworth Bunker, ambassador to Switzerland.

To avert the Soviet veto of a secretary - general candidate in the 11-country Security Council, the United States had proposed that the veto-free, 100 - nation General Assembly name a temporary successor.

A group of middle-road countries was ready to introduce a resolution in the General Assembly to use the U.S. plan in motion but abandoned it when the latest American position became known, informants said.

The switch in American tactics came after the Russians in Cash Farm Income Expected To Drop in Coming Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Cash farm income is expected to drop after Christmas with dwindling grain deliveries, says a tentative survey conducted for the agricultural department.

The decline will reflect chiefly that has cut the wheat yield to an estimated 239,000,000 bushels, down half last year's crop and half the 10-year average.

More definite information is being assembled for the annual federal - provincial agriculture conference in mid - November, which attempts to forecast farm prospects in the next year.

Informants suggest there is a chance, though not probable, that said to Prairie farmers before Christmas, perhaps another 200,000,000 bushels. About 342,000,000 was distributed in 1958 and again in 1960 at $1 an acre to a maximum 320 per farmer.

The present situation is a contrast however to the months when prices were lower and quantities high. Wheat prices have been climbing the last six months.

For the calendar year 1961, a marked decline in cash income is anticipated.

The downward trend, perhaps a severe one, would come early in the new year as farmers exhaust inventories. Need for cash to finance seeding would be coupled with political considerations pinned on the general election expected in June.

A drought next year as well, which seems highly possible in view of prevailing trends, would be catastrophic, it is held here.

On paper, Canada has a healthy wheat surplus to back on but it doesn't work that way in cash for farmers. At July 31, there remained unsold in farmers' hands and be had already received this year of his revenue from it.

The richest spot in the Prairie economy so far is livestock where the price is holding despite a record hog-kill below shortages might load the market.

U.S. Asks West Germans To Clarify Berlin Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States was reported today to be seeking from the West German a clearer view of their policy on the Berlin issue as Premier Konrad Adenauer prepared for a meeting Friday with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko of Russia.

In advance of the Kennedy-Gromyko conference, U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk advised Western Allies on his discussions with Soviet ministers. He gave particular attention to West Germany.

Informants said Rusk had an unannounced appointment with German Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe late Wednesday. Walter Dowling, U.S. ambassador to Bonn, was called to Washington for consultations.

Rusk was reported seeking a more comprehensive policy from the Germans on the Berlin-Germany issue now that the Sept. 17 West German elections are over. This is important to the Allies in shaping a common

ONE OF FIVE MEN CHARGED DIES IN JAIL

Believed to Have Had Heart Trouble

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—One of five men charged jointly in the armed robbery of a Havelock bank died in his jail cell here today.

Shortly after his death police said they had discovered the man, who had been operating under an alias, was a brother of two other men charged.

His name, said Inspector Larry Lamb of the Ontario provincial police criminal investigation branch, was Bernvyle Lalonde, about 36. The charge gave the name of George Wilson but police said earlier he also used the name Marcel Lalonde.

A driver's licence he carried under the name of Lemieux gave his address as Ville St. Michel, Que.

Jail officials said he died shortly before 8 o'clock this morning after he finished breakfast.

Cause of his death was not known. There was no autopsy but he was reported to have had a heart condition.

At the preliminary hearing of the five men resumed today in Havelock, Crown Attorney Gordon Bradshaw announced the prisoner's death and asked that the name of Bernvyle Wilson be stricken from the charges.

He had been charged with armed robbery jointly with Robert Martel, 31, Roger Poirier, 31; Yvon Lalonde, 31, and Jean Claude Lalonde, 25, all of Montreal.

All were charged additionally with possession of firearms and conspiracy in connection with the holdup of the Dominion Bank. Martel was charged with possession of a second stolen car and with obtaining money by false pretences while resisting arrest.

Lalonde is also charged with breaking into a cottage in the Stenbourg area, about 45 miles north of Peterborough, while a manhunt continued for the holdup men.

About $185,000 in cash and securities was taken from the bank in the Aug. 31 holdup.

Slugged by Gunman

TORONTO (CP) — Contractor Samuel Birenbaum, 60, was slugged with a pistol today in front of his apartment while a gunman robbed him of $40 and two diamond rings required to close a head wound.

Police said the gunman fired one shot which lodged in the kitchen wall. Two accomplices waited in a parked car.

Kennedy Is Testing New Campaign Against Color Bar in Restaurants

BALTIMORE (AP) — President Kennedy is testing a new attack on discrimination in the South today in a 30-mile Maryland highway corridor.

He has sent his generals behind the lines.

Their aim is to knock out discrimination in restaurants against Negro travellers.

They started by persuasion. They want the hometown people to persuade the restaurant owners that the community will back them if they end discrimination.

A group from the White House started a campaign Sept. 25 to get the message across that action is needed in the cold war. The different approach was started on an army proving ground at Aberdeen, Md.

The site is approximately halfway on a Maryland stretch of U.S. 40 between Baltimore and Delaware. It is a link in the route between Washington and New York.

Hon. A. Hamilton Outlines Plan At Plow Match

Have Duty to See All Are Fed, He Declares

Canada will be fielding a strong delegation to support her proposal of a world food bank at the international meeting on food and agriculture which is to be held in Rome, Hon. Alvin Hamilton, federal Minister of Agriculture, said yesterday afternoon at the official opening of the 46th annual International Plowing Match.

Canada has one of the greatest productive machines ever built, namely agriculture industry, he said. The efficiency of this machine can keep its productivity ahead of the world's needs for food in the foreseable future, despite some experts' predictions that the world's population will be outgrowing the food production capacity, he declared.

"We will have a duty to see that all are fed," Mr. Hamilton said. If this can be achieved through the establishment of a world food bank it would be one of the greatest steps forward in the history of sponsibility towards one's fellow men ever taken, he suggested.

The speakee said that he felt that there was a responsibility on Canada playing a major role, considering the many advances, methods and skills developed here, which had been implemented by the industry by farmers over the past few decades.

The display of equipment to be seen on the grounds of the match offered many examples of the high degree of mechanization and efficiency which modern farming has undergone with, he remarked. It was fitting that these marks of advancement be present at a plowing match which was symbolic of the first step in civilization to the soil, said Mr. Hamilton.

It was a fitting gathering also as this that people have the opportunity of meeting with friends, of viewing the machinery and comparing notes and spotting a new idea, said the tremendous complex of processes and machinery which could be seen here in the efficient farmer, he concluded.

Mr. Hamilton then declared the International Plowing Match open. He also offered his congratulations to Bill Hicks of Brampton for winning the World Championship which was held last week in France. The Hon. William Goodfellow, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, introduced the federal minister. During the course of the Cumberland native,advised those present to utilize to their best the educational features of the four-day event.

Mr. Goodfellow commented on 'his delight at being at the match amongst so many friends and neighbors and paid special compliments to Dr. Russell Scott and Bill Hicks of Brampton for their efforts in organizing things.

During the opening ceremonies, which were conducted by Alton Campbell of Burford, president of the Ontario Plowmen's Association, Dr. Russell Scott, chairman of the local organizing committee, welcomed those present and said he hoped the arrangements made met with their approval.

RIVALS WORLD SERIES

Belleville's Mayor McLean Haig extended the greetings of the city to the visitors and stated that he felt Hastings County was putting on an event which was competing very well with the World Series.

Warden Harleigh Hamilton of Hastings County, expressed the greetings of the county.

Mr. Campbell remarked that he felt the International Plowing Match was Canada's, and indeed the world's, largest outdoor agricultural event to be held annually. He congratulated Hastings County for its work on having won the world plow" ing match during the past week and noted that this was the second time that a Canadian had won this event in the nine years it has been held.

He expressed the hope that this year's plowing match would per would encounter as much success as the last one.

Your United Appeal

The annual campaign objective is determined only after there has been a lengthy study of the needs and the ability or source of income that members of agencies have and their individual quotas are allotted. The operating budget and emergency provision are then determined and the final figure is arrived at.

An annual audited report of the use and distribution of monies collected in the campaign is published annually in The Ontario Intelligencer for the public's information.

Youth Program Registration At High Mark

Registration in the Belleville Y.M.C.A.-Y.W.C.A. program has exceeded last autumn's figures by a bit over 10 per cent with 549 boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 18 years having registered during the past few weeks compared with 473 in September of 1960.

The boys' and girls' H-L-Y Clubs have also swung into operation this week and an interesting program of activities and projects has been arranged for the enthusiasts of the members.

The clubs have Miss M. Ervin and Miss Brian Pridour, BCIVS teachers, as their advisers.

Next Wednesday the So-Ed fall session will open an eight-week program and every Wednesday night. On the agenda are lectures, such as "Knowing Your Community", discussion groups and ballroom dancing. The projects basket is open to all young people who are above the youth group classifications.

For the adults, activities are already underway with the men's physical fitness class having started this past Tuesday and the bowling league twice weekly; Tuesdays (5.30 to 7) and Mondays and Friday (noon to 1.00). The program includes the SBX plan, volleyball and swimming.

Today the women's "keep fit" classes resume with a program of exercises and swimming. Further information on any of these activities is available from the YMCA.

BCIVS Home, School Holds Year's 1st Meet

Monday, well over 200 interested parents assembled in BCIVS school gym to hear of some of the activities in the school program and greet the teaching staff.

The president Mr. A. Wynne, welcomed all and extended an invitation to the parents to participate throughout the year in the B.C.I.V.S. life.

A successful period of community activity was had by Mr. Wynne accompanied by Mr. Tweddle at the piano was followed by a brief business session.

The president called on the principal, Mr. A. Orr, to introduce the teachers of the numerous school clubs. These gentlemen, in turn, outlined the purpose and duties of their respective societies, followed by questions from the parents which were answered by the students.

The thanks of the meeting were extended to the students by Mr. Wynne for the excellent presentations.

Mr. Orr called upon Miss Morrison, head of the Student Guidance Department who told how guidance aided new pupils to adjust and help them get through their school years.

The staff representative, school nurse, Mrs. Lenney, was introduced and explained briefly her responsibilities.

Mr. Heard explained the purpose of the Parent Council and urged that parents be earnest involved with lockers at the school.

Vice-president, Mr. Stirling, asked the parents to help their children by being prompt in attendance to enable them to get the most out of the school course.

SCHOOL DRESS

Mr. J. Snetsinger spoke on what is expected of a pupil regarding school dress. He explained that the Student Guidance council a few specific rules are laid down and the prefects are the ones to see that the dress rules are followed.

At this point, the staff of B.C.I.V.S. was introduced to the parents.

It was announced B.C.I.V.S. H-S Association is planning a reunion early in May and all were asked to collect their rummage articles and contact Miss Williams or Miss W. 2-0478 if they required the articles be picked up.

On November 6th the next meeting will be an open meeting with the Hastings County and all parents of grade 8 pupils invited to hear Mr. C. Johnson, secondary School Inspector, give further information on the Secondary schools' curriculum proposed by the Department of Education. Any interested parents of the district and Belleville are cordially invited to BCI November 6th at 8 p.m.

Following the meeting, coffee was served by Mrs. A. Hobbs and the committees acting those present a chance to visit socially with the teachers.

Build Addition To Hospital For Retarded

The Ontario Homes for Mentally Retarded Division has recently assessed its progress for the past 10 years and is now undertaking a five-year project. Copies of the progress report are available to any interested member of the public. The organization states:

"It is with great pride, that we present the new addition of our group home, for a period of 10 years.

"As you will see, we are in the process of building still another addition to our hospital, bringing our total capacity up to 50. The addition of an extra 2000 square feet will only increase the capacity of our hospital by a few beds. This is indicative of the fact that so are our patients get their treatment and service, more accommodation is needed for those who are in our care. An estimated $80,000.00 will be needed for this project to be used for the comfort of our present patients.

"The Board of Governors will appreciate your consideration in making your yearly donation to O.H.M.R.I. now, in order to achieve our goal and we have no doubt that your assistance can be counted on as we have benefited from your charitable attitude during the years, since incorporation.

"Any questions you may have or want to pose, will be answered to the best of our ability and if you feel that you would like to have some extra copies of the progress report, we will gladly send them to you."

STILL HOLDS

Agreement that no fortifications would be built on the Canada - U.S. border remain provision of the Rush-Bagot Treaty of 1817.

REV. A. J. WILSON

TORONTO (CP)—Rev. A. J. Wilson, editor of the United Church Observer for 16 years, died yesterday in Buffalo, N.Y., Hospital after a brief illness. Funeral services will be held Friday in Buffalo.

Mr. Wilson left his Toronto home to stay with his sisters when he became ill shortly before the death.

Born in North Shields, England, of Scottish parents, he spent his early life in Saint John, N.B. He was graduated from Queen's University Theological College in 1915 and in the same year was ordained and inducted at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Napanee.

When the United Church of Canada was formed in 1925, Mr. Wilson brought the Napanee congregation into the union. In addition to his duties as a minister, he was editor of the Napanee weekly newspaper and organized an independent religious paper, The Christian Advocate.

In 1930 he was appointed editor of the Observer, a post he held up to his retirement in 1955. Under his guidance The Observer's circulation rose from 11,500 to 155,000.

THOMAS R. BARRETT

Following a sudden illness, Thomas R. Barrett, 118 Pinnacle Street, well known businessman in this city for many years, died in the Belleville General Hospital early last Thursday morning. A lifelong resident of this city he was born here 67 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Barrett.

"Tommy" Barrett, as he was familiarly known, was for many years an employee of the Trenton Coal Cigar Store and he enjoyed the friendship and confidence of a wide circle in every walk of life. Barrett, with his Irish wit and ready smile, always had a good word and a kindly gesture for the customers. Also in private life he was a man of great charm and of a kindly nature. He had the faculty for making and keeping friends and his sudden death will bring sincere regrets from a wide circle.

Mr. Barrett enjoyed sports of all kinds and was well read and versed in many games. His favorite sport, introduced to him by his father, was bridge and he was an active member and director of the Belleville Bridge Club. He personally he was a member of the Pinnacle Street Church and was the financial secretary of the society at the time of his death. A devoted member of St. Michael's Church, he took an active part in the work of the parish.

Surviving are his wife, the former Mary Ann Hanley, two sons, Richard E., barrister, Dorval, J., Edward J. and Patrick C. Barrett, all of this city; one daughter, Mrs. Arthur (Kathryn) Hall of Oshawa, three brothers, Frank Barrett of this city, Norbert Barrett of New York City, and two sisters, Miss Hazel Barrett of this city and Mrs. Ron Gillies of Ottawa.

Resting at the Funeral Residence of George F. O'Brien, West Moira Street; the funeral arrangements appears elsewhere in this edition.

Senior Citizens Enjoy Picture Tour of Europe

The regular monthly meeting of the Belleville Senior Citizens Club was held in the Memorial Centre on Pinnacle St. with the president, Mr. C. L. Hoard in the chair.

The secretary, Mrs. Margaret Drummond read the minutes of the previous meeting which were approved.

The Club expects to be host to members of the Trenton Club, the first Wednesday in November. It was also suggested that the Club might participate in preparation of a float in the Santa Claus parade and a committee was appointed to investigate this proposition.

The treasurer, Mrs. V. Tryon, gave the financial report which indicated a comfortable balance on hand.

Mrs. Murphy reported for the visiting committee.

The Rev. Canon A. S. McConnell, rector of St. Thomas' Parish, who conducted a program committee chairman, Mrs. F. Allen. Canon McConnell very pleasantly and humorously entertained the members with a beautiful and interesting picture tour of England, Scotland, France, Holland and Holland, concluding with dear old Ireland. He had a most beautiful series of cathedrals and gravyards in some of these countries where hundreds of heroic Canadian boys were laid to rest and for many of whom Padre McConnell had performed the burial service after they had paid the supreme sacrifice.

Mr. McConnell and Mrs. McConnell were thanked for they have had the privilege of visiting these hallowed spots after the lapse of several years.

An interesting coincidence in connection with the monthly bulletin sent to each member was the fact that in the bulletin there was a story concerning the building of St. Thomas' Cathedral, and one of the films showed a picture of this historic cathedral in Ireland.

Mr. McConnell was thanked by Mr. Jack White.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. H. Taylor and her committee members.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Industrials rebounded after earlier weakness in heavy morning trading today.

Foods, papers and utilities accounted for the general industrial upward swing, with traditional gains pock-marking all three groups. Speculative interest lagged generally, and only one issue — Lake Dufault — had any noticeable change. Dufault rose 16 cents to $5.30 on a volume of more than 25,000 shares.

In foods, Dominion Stores, Hardee Farms, Oshawa Wholesale A, Saladu Shirriff and Loeb all had small wins, the last reaching a new high of 38¼ with a gain of ¾. Among utilities, Bell Telephone, CPR, Northern Ontario Natural Gas and Shawinigan all rose in the ½ to ¾ range.

Papers were better on the basis of strong gains going to International, up 1½, and Abitibi, Price Brothers and Anglo Newfoundland. Moore Corporation was good for a confirmation of the pattern it set two days ago. The stock dropped ¼ to 59 on a volume of 7,220 shares.

On index, industrials rose .22 to 397.56 and base metals 26 to 198.85. Golds fell .10 to 87.11, western oils .09 to 97.66, and the 11 a.m. volume was 1,190,000 shares compared with 980,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Trading in both golds and western oils was light with few changes. In the latter, Dome and Canadian Devonian fell as much as 25 cents.

The market Wednesday reversed Tuesday's falling trend and rose in heavy trading.

Loraine was the big winner with a gain of 32 cents on a volume of more than 200,000 shares. Lake Dufault seemingly bounced back from a poor earnings report to rise 30 cents to $5.05, with a volume of more than 111,000 shares.

The Industrial Set was sparked by widespread additional advances in foods, steels and utilities. In foods, Oshawa Wholesale A advanced 1¼ to 30 after touching a new high of 31 ¼ one point.

Among utilities, International Utilities bunked the trend and fell 1¼.

Empire Life posted the day's biggest individual gain—$20—to a new high of $160. Imperial Life, which jumped $24 Thursday, was off $2 to $153.

On index, industrials rose 1.75 to 397.56, base metals .25 to 199.59 and western oils .15 to 97.77. Golds fell .43 to 87.21. Volume was 3,355,000 shares compared with 4,107,000 Tuesday.

The senior base metals market was strong. Bankeu Bay Mining and Smelting led the pack higher with a gain of 1¼. Gold trading was light, with Dome off ⅝.

Western oil trading was weak.

Truck Driver Instantly Killed At Bancroft

A Department of Highways truck driver from the Bancroft district was instantly killed this morning at a railway crossing just south of the town limits of Bancroft when his truck was hit by a diesel engine switching to the area. The driver of his had not been notified and the Provincial Police, who are investigating the accident, would not release the name at press time.

It is understood the drivers was proceeding north on Highway 62 and apparently failed to see the engine and drove into the side of the diesel. Constable R. L. Phillip of the Bancroft attachment investigated.

Dismiss Theft Charge Against Stirling Youth

Robert John McCrory, Stirling, was discharged on a charge of breaking, entering and theft. Robert Temple acted on behalf of the accused.

The accused pleaded not guilty to the charge and elected trial by a court composed of a judge and jury.

Police Constable House of the Ontario Provincial Police, said they received a call on Sept. 19 from a store attendant at Oak Lake, saying his cottage had been entered while he was away. He said later they had occasion to stop and check a motor vehicle which was found to be driven by the accused, Robert McCrory.

Mr. Lidster, complainant, said upon searching his cottage he found that the window in the front room had been pried open and a screwdriver was lying on the ground outside. He said he later discovered two bottles of liquor and a flashlight were missing.

The jury was excused when they checked McCrory's vehicle they found the described items in the glove compartment, but the witness could not positively identify the items exhibited.

After all the evidence had been heard, Magistrate Wills said he would dismiss the case as there was a reasonable doubt.

Toronto Driver Hurt in Crash On Highway 401

David Cormack, 167 Springdale Blvd., Toronto, was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital Thursday morning as the result of an accident involving two transports on Highway 401, about eight miles west of here.

Ontario Provincial Police said a tractor-trailer being driven west on 401 by David Cormack of Toronto collided with the rearend of another tractor trailer, also proceeding west, which was driven by F. H. Young of Ritchie Street, Belleville.

Police say they do not know the cause of the accident as yet and will be known until they are able to talk to Cormack who was driving an empty Canada Bread tractor-trailer. The transport driven by Young was loaded with scrap of steel. Damage to both vehicles was extensive.

Cormack is suffering from face lacerations and possible internal injuries.

Move for United Appeal Given Mixed Reception

TRENTON — A suggestion that something be done to instigate a United Appeal in Trenton was met with a mixed reception at last night's meeting of the Trenton Community Co-Ordination Council. Gordon Crawford, president of the council, suggested that the council investigate the possibility of starting the community chest method of appealing to the public for funds. Mr. Bedford said that this one annual appeal could take the place of the numerous house-to-house canvasses, tag days, etc.

William McLaren, Trenton Legion representative on the council, said that the Legion branch would, he felt sure, want to continue with its annual Poppy Day appeal. Members were agreed that the branch could be allowed to carry on with this drive as well as participating in the general fund raising activities. Mr. Bedford said that other organizations might want to hold tag days in addition to the United Appeal but that house-to-house canvasses would be dispensed with.

Percy Mallory, Legion representative on the council, offered to write to the Brampton Rehabilitation Conference for details of how a United Appeal was organized and operated. He said that he thought local organizations would be "ahead of the game" if they participated in a general appeal.

Gordon Carr, Kinsmen representative, said that a great deal of organization was needed to run a United Appeal and that this would involve spending a considerable amount of money.

Mr. McDonald will secure information about the United Appeal and the matter will be considered further by the council before any recommendations are made.

FRONEY QUESTION

The thorny question of service club appeals for funds for entrances, which has been dragging fire for several months, was again introduced. A committee, appointed to investigate the matter, has invited to send a representative to this meeting, as the chamber has evinced no interest in erecting signs at the town's entrance. An invitation was made that erection of the signs be postponed until after the proposed amalgamation of parts of Sidney and Murray Townships with Trenton. It is felt that if and that the annexation might very well have been accomplished by the time the signs become a reality.

Bought Jaggs. V.O.N. representative on the council, asked how two council members of the V.O.N. and the B. and P. club) could have overlapped Trenton Council. Mr. Bedford explained that the chamber of commerce, whose town council had agreed to the observance of the week of Oct. 21 to 28, the signs become V.O.N. Week and Business and Professional Women's Club Week. Jaggs said that he understood the community co-ordination council would get up a free-for-all such overlapping, but agreed that no harm had been done. He said P. is a national observance whereas the local Victorian Order of Nurses unit intends to run a house-to-house fund raising drive.

Mr. Bedford told the members that the Trenton Lions Club would play host to the town's three other service clubs at an inter-club dinner on February 8.

New Directors Of Society Are Introduced

TRENTON — The Trenton branch of the John Howard Society met in the Legion Hall Wednesday night. Jack Goldberg, president, conducted the meeting.

Four new directors, Rev. Alec Wakaling of Carrying Place, W. A. Ransom and Herb. Hussey of Trenton and John Wilson of Batawa were received into the organization. Mr. Goldberg told the new directors how the society operates. He stressed the fact that all money donated to the society is used to aid prisoners and their families. The only money spent is that by members for postage stationery and telephone expenses, and that members pay their own travelling expenses.

Keith Acheson, executive assistant with the Ontario branch of the society addressed the group and reviewed the present case load.

ESCAPES INJURY

Dennis Gerald Hellyer, RR 3, Trenton, escaped serious injury when his car slid off the pavement on the Wooler Road Tuesday night, spun 'round and struck a utility pole. Hellyer walked away from the accident with a slight cut on his lip. The accident occurred about half a mile north of 401 highway.

SCHOOLS ENTERED

Constable Lorne Stinson of the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said yesterday that vandals 153 broke into the Carrying Place school on Monday night and ransacked the school. The same night, the Charles School in Trenton was ransacked.

More Dwellings Being Built Than Year Ago

TRENTON — According to a summary released here by building inspector Bill Anderson, 134 building permits have been issued by his office since January 1. The estimated value of projects covered is $841,466.

In 1960, 210 permits were issued from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30, value, $1,464,576.

Permits for period of 1961 permits for the erection of new dwellings will raise the figure to 280, an average of $10,480 each.

In 1960, for the same period, 42 permits for new dwellings were issued; value, $385,250, an average of $9,173.

Considering the overall building picture, there has been a slight drop in the value figure, $623,110. In 1960, the hospital addition permit was for $429,113.

The housing picture looks brighter, with an increase of 19 permits; an increase in total value of $202,186 and an increase in the average value for each house of $1,317.

Permits issued for the month of September totalled 22; value, $130,005.

Remember permits and values: garages, 4, value, $1,-525; home additions, 2, value, $5,300; new repairs, 2, value, $13,200; new homes, 10, value, $108,000; commercial repairs, 2, value $2,380.

10 Television Sets Stolen From Store

TRENTON — Inspector R. J. Rutherford of the Trenton Police Department, said today that thieves broke into a warehouse on Dundas Street East had been entered sometime between 1.30 p.m. Tuesday and 11.30 a.m. Wednesday, and that 10 television sets had been stolen. Store personnel discovered the loss Wednesday morning. Entry was gained by forcing a door in the warehouse.

Weaver's Motors, Elgin Street, was broken into on Tuesday night and a small amount of money stolen from a Coin machine. The safe in the office had been tampered with.

Entry was gained by breaking a window on the roof of the building.

Trenton Legion Notes

The regular meeting of branch 110 executive was held in the hall on Monday night with a moderate size of the executive in attendance.

The secretary, Comrade Lou Kemp reported that he had received a letter from town manager, J. W. Larry, thanking the Legion for offering their assistance in the Civil Defence measures.

After a letter was read from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind it was moved that the branch donate $25.

Chairman Art Collette of the Poppy Committee reported that his plans were proceeding with a favorable spirit. The committee meeting was being held on Tuesday Oct. 3 at 8 p.m. He had Mr. Sloves, musical conductor of the Eastern Ontario Symphony Orchestra again agreed to provide an evening's music for the Remembrance Day Banquet. Last night Carl Taylor of the Ways and Means committee reported that the Charles Baker Night has been a fine success and, the executive gave Comrade Horace Ketcheson a vote of thanks for his hard work on the job he had done on this project.

It was moved that a committee be set up under General Smith to investigate the possibilities of obtaining the services of two name hockey teams to put on an exhibition hockey game to be held here with all proceeds going to the Minor Hockey League of Trenton. The committee members to be Lou Knack, Wm. MacLaren, Edil Donaldson, Wm. Greer and Nick Nicholson.

Chairman George Annett of Entertainment reported that the Saturday afternoon dances by minors have been well attended again and he urged all the members of the executive to be on hand Saturday.

Chairman Edil Donaldson of the membership committee reported that we now have 642 paid up members. President Ken Crandell then requested Comrade Donaldson for the work he had done on the membership and awards of merit to the district school children.

It was announced that the Quinte Pipe Band had been engaged for the Remembrance Day banquet, and that Cecil Smith, Bob Berry and Carl Taylor would be in charge of arrangements for the banquet.

Comrades Norm Baker and Nick Nicholson were appointed to the nominating committee for the coming elections. Comrade Edil Donaldson was again asked to assume the position of chairman of the public speaking contest.

The meeting adjourned at 10.30.

Judy MacDermaid of Solmesville, is the 1961 beauty queen of Sophiasburgh township. A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don MacDermaid, she is a student at Prince Edward District Collegiate, Picton. Judy received her crown, a silver tray and other prizes at a special ceremony at Demorestville town hall (Hodgson).

Fire Prevention Week Set

TRENTON — October 8 to October 14 has been named Fire Prevention Week. On Sunday, Oct. 8 the Trenton Fire Department and the RCAF Fire Department will stage a fire prevention parade through Middleton Park and the streets of downtown Trenton. The parade, which will feature floats depicting the disastrous results of fires and means of preventing fires as well as fire fighting equipment, will start at Middleton Park at 12.30, proceed to College St. School, where it will reform and proceed down Dundas St. to Queen St. and so on down King Street to the fire hall.

Members of the Trenton department have arranged a display of fire fighting equipment in the show windows of the former Star Cafe on Dundas Street West. This attractive display will remain in the window throughout the special week.

Blame Heart Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — Roy Sidney Ingram, 39, was found dead in his wrecked car early today on Highway 31, nine miles south of Ottawa.

Ontario Provincial Police said the motorist apparently suffered a heart attack just before the car went out of control and struck a tree.

position in possible East-West negotiations.

The Kennedy-Gromyko meeting—set for late Friday afternoon—is one which Rusk will participate, is a windup to a series of three talks Rusk had with the Soviet minister in New York in a probe of Kremlin intentions towards Germany.

DOZENT MAKE CLEAR

Premier Khrushchev has said he will sign a peace treaty with East Germany but has not made clear how this would affect the West's position in Berlin.

U.S. sources said it is premature to regard the Rusk-Gromyko talks as indicating Russian willingness to negotiate on a basis acceptable to the West. They said the limited progress in the discussions gives grounds for neither optimism nor pessimism.

Mr. Green Speaks Out

Hon. Howard Green, Canadian Minister of External Affairs, spoke to the United Nations General Assembly Tuesday. After his speech, U. S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson congratulated Green. Joseph Godber, head of Britain's delegation to the UN, praised Green's address.

Perhaps they did not get the message.

Other speeches seemed plain to us. It was a rebuke to the big powers—all of them.

Mr. Green is too much a realist to lump the West's Big Three, the U.S., Britain and France, with the Soviet Union and its satellites and then attempt to cover the sins of all with a blanket denunciation, pronouncing an uniform plague on all their houses.

Much of his criticism of the conduct of the great powers was aimed directly at the Soviet Union. That fact, though, ought not to have blinded any intelligent observer to the picture he presented of a world in which not just one, but all the great powers occasionally act as if they were not quite the possessors of might but also the sole judges of right.

Mr. Green is annoyed with all the wealthy countries which have not contributed towards the cost of maintaining UN forces in the Middle East and the Congo. Those countries include the nuisance-nation Soviet bloc, but there are many others among the 74 nations which did not contribute who could have afforded to do so—and there is nothing in Mr. Green's words nor in his past record to suggest that he excuses default if the chuckler should chance to share his every general views on other issues.

Mr. Green is also annoyed—and rightly—at the resumption of nuclear tests and the brunt of this annoyance must, in the nature of things, fall on the Soviet Union, since it resumed tests in the atmosphere. But Mr. Green made it plain that he objects to tests by the U.S.—even tests underground.

What annoys Mr. Green most of all, we suspect, is not the individual sins of omission and commission of the great powers, but the general outlook which spawns these sins—a belief that these powers have only to consult their own best interests and that they may disregard the feelings and desires of countries which lack their military might. It may be replied, with complete accuracy, that this has always been the way in which great powers have handled the problems confronting them, that the right to place one's own best interest first is inherent in the principle of sovereignty. Mr. Green, though, although he may not be completely aware of the fact or have considered all its implications, is a spokesman for the future, rather than for the past. He believes in the UN and he believes that the UN should be consulted on questions which concern the common welfare. He talks of "compelling" countries to stop testing nuclear weapons. This is strong talk—but it is difficult to see how the UN can possibly match it with strong action.

Should he possibly precisely this—the conviction that he is right but the realization that he lacks might—which makes Mr. Green annoyed. We are glad that he is annoyed. We think that in his annoyance he speaks for a great many Canadians. They say annoyed, too. We suspect that other leaders in other countries, and many of the people they lead, are also annoyed. It is well to let the big powers know this—all the big powers.

It just so happens that, amongst the many countries which lack might, Canada shares with a handful of others a particularly galling type of impotence, being tied by trade, tradition and geography to more than one of the great powers, and therefore, unable to enjoy the luxury of non-alignment and neutralism. But for that very reason, Canada's annoyance may carry more weight than the irritation of some other countries of similar small stature. Canada cannot afford to be neutral—but at the same time and for the same reason any turn to neutralism here would embarrass powerful allies. The more we make it plain that we are annoyed, the greater the chance that the reasons for our annoyance may be eliminated.

The very fact that Mr. Green's past record and temperament make him a most unlikely crusader qualifies him admirably for this task of voicing the annoyance which so many of us feel.

Strictly Personal

Are Americans Known as Imperialists?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

During a three-day trip through Canada last month, I was interviewed by reporters engaged to hear a half-dozen persons I met refer to the United States as an "Imperial power."

We in the States do not commonly think of ourselves as "imperial." The Russians are, of course; so were the Nazis and the Fascists in recent decades. But peace-loving America? Hardly. Yet this is how we are seen by the rest of the world. And not merely by the people of Turkestan or Timbuktu — by our closest neighbors, the frank and friendly Canadians, who are similar to us in origin, language, outlook and fabulously rich.

We think of an "imperial" power as one which wants to extend its frontiers or capture colonial territory; and the United States, of course is perfectly content with what it has. We are not land-grabbers, and we cannot understand why other nations can misinterpret our indolent and unambitious purposes. But somehow they do. Either we are not as innocent as we like to think, or else we have failed dismally in communicating that aims even to our English-speaking next-door neighbors.

In Canada, there was as much alarm that America might "take over" as there is that Russia might. Our attitude toward China is widely regarded as being unrealistic and unjustifiable; but Canadians with Russia are seen as the fault of both "imperial" powers.

I writhed under the accusation, because whatever our defects in foreign policy, I could only answer that the record that America falls under the same head as Russia. After all, we believe in Freedom.

To Canadians, however, what we believe is not the point. What matters significant than how we behave in the world. They tend to regard us as bristling and belligerent, smug and self-righteous — as, in fact, they see us plunging the world into war over an abstraction.

They point out caustically that we praise Freedom but at the same time support dictatorships with fine repressive governments, from Spain to the rest of the Russian orbit; that we invoke Principle and Morality when the issue is debatable, but pride ourselves on being Practical when we apply the same game of devious power politics.

Whether these Canadian critics are right or wrong is only half the question. Whether they are right or not, what should disturb all of us is the obvious fact that the image of America in the eyes of the world is nothing like the image we are reflected in our own looking glasses. Do we need a new mirror, or has the rest of the world gone blind?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Among both amateur and professionals, from the Arctic to the Gulf of Mexico, the best camera guide is probably that of Roger Tory Peterson. It was he who set a young man on the road to publishing his first Field Guide to the Birds, which revolutionized the new principles of simplification and identification, so that even the beginner could recognize birds with ease; but in no time at all the experts were carrying the new pocket book-size guide with them.

Peterson brought out his guide to Western America. Hundreds of thousands of copies were sold in the extraordinary increasing numbers of the amateur or expert, on all levels of the community. And in 1950, those interested in other fields of natural history persuaded Peterson to supervise and edit guides to the mammals, butterflies, sea shells, rocks and minerals, reptiles, ferns, trees and shrubs, prepared and written by experts in those fields, but presented in accordance with the Peterson principles of identification. The great increase in amateur naturalist ranks may be due to Peterson as much as to any other single factor.

His latest publication is a new edition of his guide to Western Birds. Every color plate and drawing in it is newly drawn by Peterson. Unlike the previous edition, it covers Western Canada and Alaska, and has a section with color plates of the birds of Hawaii, the Aleutians and Alaska. The western birds are also found in Eastern North America; the color plates are of great interest right across the land.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FAITH IS THE ANSWER

We can be sure at one thing —God is always ready to give. The Epistle to the Hebrews tells us that faith is the giving of substance to things hoped for; that is, it is the power of the mind or reasoning to cooperate with the Holy Spirit that God can give us the things He has already revealed to give us. Faith is the means by which hope is materialized into achievement. The Bible tells us that there is a victory which overcomneth the world—even our faith.

If we but only knew what faith could do for them in the solving of their problems, the quieting of their minds, the fulfilling of their desires, the achieving of their tasks, they would stop leaning on their own powers which are broken reeds and would begin to lean on the everlasting power of God. The experience of devout believers has forthrightness, how that they can prey for others, people in far distant countries, and have the happen in their lives which are simply beyond any explanation other than that the hand of God works where and how it will.

Religious faith is the greatest blessing any man can have. It raises the mediocre into the realm of achievement, the sorrowful into comfort, the despairing into triumph, and the wicked into forgiveness. Greater blessings than these do not exist on God's fair earth.

Faith is the answer to most of life's questions.

A new children's ward to be known as the Dr. Connor Memorial Ward, will be fully furnished and equipped by members of the Belleville Nurses' Alumnae, according to announcement made by Belleville General Hospital officials yesterday. A sum amounting to $1,000 has been authorized by the Alumni Association executive to be paid to the Hospital for the furnishing of the new ward. The Alumnae members feel that the new ward will reflect the genuinely helpful character and many other fine qualities of the late Dr. Emma Connor, to whose memory the ward will be devoted.

Farmers supplying milk to Canadian Cheese Products Limited have been without cheese this coming winter regardless of whether Canada's quota of 112,000,000 pounds of cheese for Britain is filled before the factories close. This note was made clear at Thursday night's meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board when it was stated that patrons would be able to acquire cheese for sale from their factory.

Rev. Geo. Maybee, retiring organist and choir master at Christ Church was suitably honored prior to his departure from the city, when last evening members and congregation gathered at the Parish Hall in a farewell party. Mr. Maybee was presented with a handsome gladstone bag in appreciation of the splendid service he has rendered during his seven years as organist of the Church. Foreign Aid Metrecal

Watertown Times

Sen. John J. Williams, the Delaware Republican who has little love for anything that smacks of foreign aid, has come to the defense of beleaguered taxpayers, by repeatedly discovering government agency "goofs," that has come up with another dilly. The United States is under the foreign aid program, has been shipping Metrecal to the South Vietnamese.

We had always pictured these natives of Southeast Asia as a slight, scrawny, undernourished individuals — a characteristic which resulted partially from heredity and partially from lack of adequate diet. And this belief was substained by newsreel travelers who related how most of the population in that section of the world existed on a diet of bread and rice.

But now we wonder. Were they obese and paunchy in the first place or, as Senator Williams says, have the people of South Viet Nam, despite fighting Communists tooth and nail, gotten so overdeveloped on Uncle Sam's foreign aid generosity that we had to ship them this dietary dieb?

According to the Delaware legislator, the U.S. shipped South Viet Nam 2,000 cases of Metrecal. The state department asserts, however, that actually only 4,813 cans were sent, and that was an "honest mistake." Then the state department went on to explain that the Metrecal was shipped in a program under which the U.S. pays for a certain Viet Nam imports. To encourage private industry, most of the importing is done by private Vietnamese firms. And the state department says that South Viet Nam has been asked to pay the aid program $3,900 for the Metrecal.

But here's another real "payoff." After a Vietnamese firm ordered the cans of what was listed as "medical milk powder (Metrecal)," a Vietnamese official who had never heard of the stuff approved the order as medicine and it was shipped.

Junk Dealer Valuable Man

Wall Street Journal

Among our friends is a man who came to this country many years ago and has prospered in buying and selling old automobiles, worn-out refrigerators and other cast-offs. Now, if we understood him rightly, he has come to days when by it is considered a by his life, troubled with the feeling that he is living in a junk man he has wasted much of it.

Partly, perhaps, this is just an old man's feeling of being distant from his children's more refined important things at college and speak so much better than he. But we fear it is a deep trouble that in a world where so much needs to be done he has come to nothing of much consequence.

Of course, someone could point out to him that he has passed on two sons and a daughter, raised them to be people of character, educated them and helped them make their own way. This is no small accomplishment, and he surely must know it. Yet it does not fully comfort him, for he knows he is not the kind of man where value is measured by other accomplishments. Buying and selling junk, he has come to feel, is not socially useful.

We suspect that our friend, these days, is not alone in this feeling of worthlessness and uselessness of his life. A young girl is taught in college that child-rearing and homemaking is a wasted life; she must get out and "develop" herself, early. A young man is cheered if he turns his talent away from the slightly more and more seemly public service where he will redistribute the wealth.

Buying and selling is a function of prosperity, not poverty. Some years ago there was a big comedy on Broadway that pictured a junk dealer as a kind of parasite, growing rich on a nation's trouble. Another prize-winning play set in Italy showed the thought the life of a salesman in a small village was worthless, but there is never any suggestion that by running a manufacture factory the men in the executive suite are performing a useful service.

Almost any day our friend can pick up a newspaper or magazine or a "serious" book and read what a terrible thing it is to be a part of a sick, sick society. To labor, to save, to care for one's own, to prosper by ever-larger things are not to be scorned, but what is there in them that is a contribution to society?

Against such a tide of sentiment, we do not like to intrude to comfort. But we would, if we could, make him see what it is he really does.

He gathers up that which is useless and worn out. He takes debris that would otherwise be waste in the country, cities, and distributed to return again into the stream of real materials that have real benefits. The shiny new ambulance, which our village has bought, the new factory that rises on the outskirts of your town, the new Cadillac that disappeared in building for that backward nation of Asia — all these things have been pulled together by men who buy and sell junk.

Our friend has prospered it is only because he has learned to do this efficiently. No one rewards a person who can deliver what the economy needs in the best form, and at the cheapest cost. No one accuses him if he bungles the job.

In this he no wise differs from all the businessmen whose business is buying and selling.

Hard to Say Slight Stroke May Not Affect the Brain

By Joseph C. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: So many of us have 'strokes' resulting from cerebral thrombosis that I ask your comments as to the circumstances contributing to its occurrence and repeated attacks. — R.F."

It's fruitless, I believe, to try to expect a stroke without any particular occurrence. There might at times be a connection, perhaps, but it is far about inaudible to live. Or, we can be sure enough that exhaustion, or cold or some other physical condition may play a fact in inciting an attack of pneumonia, for example, dot it's at contributing factor, a cause. And so with strokes.

The basic causes of stroke are a plugging f an artery in the brain (cerebral thrombosis) or a hemorrhage of one of the many blood vessels in the brain due to rupture of the vessel.

A thrombosis is usually due to the narrowing of a arteries — hardening of the arteries. A person may have one major attack, and then no more. Or, at the other extreme, he may have a a very many so-called "little strokes," no single one of which may be no indication that one has occured at all. It's the "little strokes" it is which a one smaller blood vessel may be more plugged without creating important areas of the brain.

The basis is the narrowing of the inside diameter of the blood vessels, which may lead to a thrombus, or clot, being caught in the narrow portion.

It is true that severe infections, or the disorder of typhoid, pneumonia or malaria, may help incite strokes. Intoxication from alcohol, carbon monoxide or other poisons can also be a factor, yet with the exception of underlying factor of impaired arteries must be present, too.

Grant Wells of Stouffville Is Crowned Ontario Plowing Champion on Wednesday As Match Gets Underway in Cool Weather

With the weatherman promising warmer weather after yesterday's cool temperatures, officials of the International Plowing Match were expecting a bigger turnout today than was present for Wednesday's official opening.

A crowd estimated at something less than 10,000 turned out for the opening day, but local officials are expecting attendance of at least 100,000 for the four-day event.

Yesterday the Ontario championship plowing class saw Grant Wells of Stouffville take first place, but the big attraction insofar as plowing was concerned was the wardens' competition which saw Hastings county Warden Haraligh Hamilton challenge a field of 18 Ontario wardens.

Winner of the event was Warden Anson Gerow of Port Perry, warden of Ontario county. In second place was Mohawk Chief Melville Hill of Deseronto. Warden Gerow was presented with the John M. Parrott challenge trophy.

Yesterday's official opening ceremonies, which saw the International opened by Hon. Alvin Hamilton, federal Minister of Agriculture, were preceded by a big parade through the "tented city".

Heading the parade were local and provincial officials riding on hayrides.

There were bands, majorettes, Indians in costume and even a 1900 vintage traction steam engine driven by 83-year-old Frank Stapely of Stirling.

The old steam engine, along with an 1860 vintage threshing separator, formed an exhibit at the match.

Also on exhibit at the match was H. J. McFarland's "Old Mortgage Lifter" steam traction engine which years ago Mr. McFarland operated on a threshing route.

Today and Friday will see the Canadian championship competitions, while on Saturday, the final day of the match, inter-collegiate and surveyors' plowing matches will be held. Friday afternoon a horseshoe pitching contest will be a match sidelight, while Friday evening the city of Belleville will be host at a banquet at the Armouries.

Ontario Attorney General Hon. Kelso Roberts was interested spectator at the International. He is seen above with Hastings county Warden Haraleigh Hamilton (on the tractor) and an unidentified Western Ontario warden.

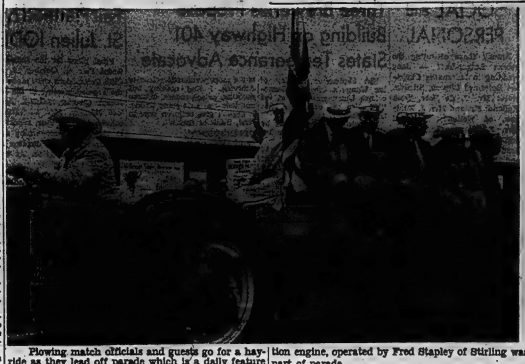
TIRED AND BORED . . . is this young match visitor as he sits on the ground between father's feet during opening ceremonies. Cool weather brought out top coats and many of the visitors even wore winter overcoats.

Splendid Race Program Given By Driving Club

In conjunction with the International Plowing Match that is being held near this city, the Belleville Driving Club put on a race meet at the fairgrounds on Wednesday night for the entertainment of the visitors. The weather was anything but propitious but a good crowd was on hand for the four-race card that saw some of the best horses in training in this district competing. The races were well conducted from the stand, the track was in fairly good condition despite the recent rains and the boys were ready with coin of the realm to take a "free" on their favorite steed.

The starting gate, owned by Cameron Bunnett and Sons, was used and was in the capable hands of Lorne Urch, who got his fields away in excellent manner. There were no bad accidents to mar the racing although Ken Keyes of Gananoque, driving the mare of the first heat in the "D" classified race, had the misfortune to break a bike wheel in the second heat and the horse could not finish.

The boys had a good bet going in the "C" classified when the heat winner of the first heat went away at 10-1 and came from behind to nip the heat. There was a great deal of rejoicing around the betting ring. The horse, Debbie Lee R. Gratias was not so fortunate in the second trip and was beaten by two others. There were split heats in three races while Ivan Warner's good mare, Mary Jane P. won in straight heats.



During the races the Freddine Smith makeretire gave sparkling displays which were much appreciated by the chilly audience. The Driving Club are to be congratulated for providing such good entertainment through the summer months and the hope is expressed they will be back bigger and better next year. The results:

BANNED FROM MEET

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state department will not allow Russian space scientists to attend the American Rocket Society meeting next week because the Russians refused to let Americans go to a similar meeting in Russia. The U.S. retaliation, announced Wednesday will prevent 21 Soviet scientists now in Washington from going to the New York meeting.

Don Dunkeld, R.R. 2, Claremont, is all attention as he nears completion of his land in sod plowing in the Ontario Championship class. Class was won by Grant Wells of Stouffville.

Weddings

BEER — TRELENBERG

CAMPBELLFORD — Burnham Memorial Church was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding on Saturday, when Diana Mary, daughter, of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Trelenberg of Langrath, Manitoba, became the bride of Harry Thomas James, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Kerr of Campbellford, Ontario. The Rev. A. E. Toombs officiated.

Bagpiper Ronald Scott piped the couple into the church and Gerald Taylor played the wedding music. Soloist Mrs. Walter Anderson sang "Because" and the "Wedding Prayer".

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Emerson Lorne Rodgerson, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white French lace and nylon tulle with V shaped panels of lace trimmed with sequins and seed pearls. The lace bolero with lily point sleeves and Mandarin collar was also trimmed with sequins and pearls. Her nylon sheer veil edged with hand and broidery, was caught to a satin tiara embroidered with seed pearls and sequins and she carried a bouquet of roses.

Attending the bride was her sister Viola Laura Rodgerson, as maid of honor and Miss Marilyn Boyce as bridesmaid. They wore waltz-length gowns of nylon and acetate with lace bodices featuring tiered skirts of silk organza over taffeta in jade blue shade. Their headdresses were of Grecian style design of satin and seed pearls with shoulder veils. They wore white accessories and carried nosegays of yellow mums.

Betty Anne Rodgerson, the bride's niece, was flower girl, wearing a yellow embroidered nylon dress with a matching tiara and white accessories and carried mauve baby 'mums.

Larry and Billy Kerr, brothers of the groom, were ring-bearers, and Edward Jonathan was groomsman. Glen Sutton, the bridegroom's brother-in-law, and Allen Kerr, his brother, were ushers.

A reception was held later on the lawn of the home of the bridegroom's parents, where his mother received the guests in a suit of blush rose pink acetate with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

For a honeymoon trip to the bride's parental home in Langrath, Manitoba, she wore a gold cotton knit plaid suit with brown and white accessories.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Kerr will live in Barrie, Ontario.

Three Breweries Propose Building on Highway 401 States Temperance Advocate

The September meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of with the president, Mrs. Grant Coulter, presiding.

The pledge was repeated by all and a poem, "Just For Today," was given.

The devotional period was taken by Mrs. Hubble on "The Good Use of the Bible." The Scripture, Psalm 27, was read by Mrs. Bertrand, and each one present took part by quoting many great persons who found their soul, became more strong, more holy and more serene, by reading the Bible.

An honored member of the British Parliament, Mr. John Henderson, D.L., J.P., M.P., speaking on a special broadcast originating from the House of Commons, London, said: "Without Christ, disaster faces the world. The greed, jealousies and hatred of mankind are the besetting sins of the world today, and unless the hearts of men be changed by accepting the teaching of the Christian faith there is little Prince of Peace, the mad race of increasing armaments and deadly weapons will continue." It was a stern warning.

Mrs. Coulter said the answer to the problems of mankind. The British education system was based on the teaching of the Scripture to all school children. It stresses clearly that every schoolboy and girl must have Scripture teaching at least once a week.

In the business period a donation was given to aid in the support of the "Alcohol Education Association" formed under Temperance Federation, to feature "Alcohol Education" by programs, films and literature at the International Plowing Match.

The "Temperance Advocate" states that the splendid 401 Highway, Labatts announced the Toronto Brewing is moving to 401 at Islington Avenue; Carlings have built a brewery on the junction of 401 and 27, and O'Keefe's have plans for one at Scarborough end of 401, at Warden Avenue. It is not hard to see why the breweries are moving to 401, where 100,000 cars travel every day. Every morning and evening there are traffic jams during a period of five, ten and fifteen miles an hour will be carrying potential customers past these breweries. Out-door liquor advertising is forbidden except on the building where the liquor is made or sold and where could liquor advertising be seen by young people or to better advantage than on Canada's most-travelled highway. Beer becomes part of the Ontario scene.

T.V. INFLUENCES

The clip-sheet on television: "It Does Influence Our Thinking", was conducted by a panel of Melies Maudeens Wary, Makers, Cooke and Lockyer. It is said that the greatest thing that has happened in the history of civilization since the discovery of printing is television, its effect on the daily life and edcuation of people, is enormous, far greater than any other. Its influence can be for bad as well as good.

T.V. is popular in Japan and already 3,000,000 have reached a high level. U.N.E.S.C.O. experts have quoted Japanese T.V. as excellent for other countries. Their programme in quality have gone far ahead of the rest of the world, and are held in high esteem by teachers and University people. It is estimated that they have six million sets and clubs of over a 1,000 members can watch and discuss the quality of the program.

Teachers agree T.V. has a place in the class room as an aid to education. The impressionable minds of youth are influenced by what they view and crime is glorified even in the Sunday is the most pernicious poison of America, I find nothing but shooting, police scenes, divorce and teen-age girls going wrong. It doesn't give children time to read, think or dream".

DELINQUENCY

PREPARATORY SCHOOL

Dr. Ralph Banay, director of a Brooklyn Clinic, who studied and listens to 400 delinquents yearly annually said, "They have the impression that life is full of crime. They act violently in the home, and defy authority. For many disturbed youths the T.V. is a preparatory school for delinquency".

When properly supervised T.V. makes a wonderful contribution to reading and worthwhile thinking. Shows built around classical books, make good viewing and encourage sales of books as a result "Wuthering Heights" for example.

Dr. Vincent Peale has said, "It is a pity that so few of the great values of religion have a place in the most powerful and powerful creative influence in any country".

We are concerned about the influence of T.V. on liquor advertising. Two years-old children repeat the jingles they hear and commissioner Booth of the Salvation Army said, "It is a great pity that such a powerful medium of advertising should be used to sell alcohol which we know to be an evil and a former of bad habits".

Medical WA Hears Talk on Civil Defence

The first fall meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Hastings and Prince Edward Medical Society, was held recently at the home of Mrs. K. Douglas.

Mrs. W. Hipwell introduced the guest speaker, Major K. Willcocks of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Major Willcocks outlined a most informative account in general terms, what can and should be done against the potential dangers of a nuclear war and fallout. He reviewed the geography of the defence of Canada and measures the government is taking for our safety.

Major Willcocks described the "Eleven Steps to Survival" which are given in a booklet published by the Canadian Government. These include the effects of nuclear explosions; the facts about radioactive fallout; the warning system; shelters and first aid. He went into details of the construction of a fallout shelter, built at home at a modest cost.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. J. Loynes on behalf of the members.

BUSINESS CONDUCTED

The business part of the meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. S. Morphy, Mrs. D. Howe reported on the correspondence and Mrs. S. Miles presented the treasurer's report.

The president welcomed a number of new members, Mrs. B. Reid, of Belleville, to the group.

Mrs. B. Nugent, of Trenton, announced the annual tea-cocktail party for the Retarded Children's Association.

Mrs. Morphy announced that tickets were available for the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society dinner to be held in Belleville next week. After the meeting a social time was enjoyed.

IMPROVED BEVERAGE

International Fair Planned by St. Julien IODE

Final plans for the International Fair on October 18, at Club Commodore were made at the regular meeting of the St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E. held last Monday. Mrs. E. Sutton, convenor of the Fair, reported to the ladies concerning arrangements for the displays at the Club Commodore. At the same time the executive meeting each convener concerned the ladies for the things required for her department.

Mrs. George Rumm, in charge of tickets, reported that tickets were selling well, showing a great interest of the public in this second International Fair. Conveners of each display reported that the new Canadians were eager to have even bigger and better displays than last year.

TRIBUTE PAID

At the opening of the meeting, Mrs. M. Patterson, regent, called for a minute's silence in memory of the late Miss M. E. Thompson, a former member of St. Julien Chapter. Mrs. Patterson also paid tribute to the passing away this last month, Annoucements were made concerning a joint meeting with the Argyll Chapter on November 14, and the annual district meeting in Picton on Oct. 26.

Mrs. K. Putnam educational secretary announced the names of the winners of the bursary, and the awards to children of new Canadians in the four secondary schools of Belleville. These will be presented at the Commencement exercises in each school this month.

Mrs. R. Taylor, convener of Services at Home and Abroad, asked for the ladies to bring sewing to be handed in and also requested many pocket books which are to be boxed and sent to Canadian soldiers overseas.

Arrangements were made for a poppy wreath to be purchased and placed on the cenotaph at the Remembrance Day service.

Mrs. Patterson asked for volunteers to canvass the district allocated to the I.O.D.E. for the Uniting Appeal Blitz on October 30th.

WOOLER — The October meeting of the Wooler Mission Band was held on Sunday morning, October 1st in the church basement with a large attendance present.

The president, Mrs. Bushell, conducted the meeting, with Miss N. Hoare, recording secretary, reading the minutes of the last meeting and Mrs. Mobourne, corresponding secretary, reading the correspondence. The collector read the 19.

The teachers were introduced by the principal, Mrs. Slack.

Mrs. Roulet, the school librarian, spoke shortly on Hallowe'en collections by the children for the United Nations' Fund. She said that they had been collected last year, which, for example could buy 7,000 glasses of milk.

The theme of the meeting was "Safe Living" and the speaker, Sergeant Ralph Blatchford, was introduced by Mr. Emerson. Sgt. Blatchford is with the Belleville police department and has to his credit 21 years of service in varied departments and in various centres. He came to Belleville one and a half years ago and since then among his activities, has carried on a rigid and enthusiastic safety program for children at schools.

Sgt. Blatchford told about his function as safety officer, but said that safety is the responsibility of parents and citizens. His duty is to instruct elementary children in safe living.

"They learn from examples set before them. Parents, guardians and citizens have a moral responsibility to set a good example. As parents, do not be content to set a good example but be an inspiration to your children."

SIX SAFETY RULES

There are six basic safety rules to keep pedestrians from being involved in motor vehicle accidents: (1) Look all ways; (2) don't cross between cars or parked cars, always go to corner or crosswalk; (3) wait, do not run across the street, you might fall; (4) play in a safe place, not on the street or near a vehicle; (5) walk on sidewalks or left side of road looking at oncoming cars if there is no sidewalk. The child or pedestrian should move out of the way of cars because the person driving the car may not see him; (6) all pupils should wear something light or carry something that will reflect back to the car and the driver will see it.

The former method is used for teaching in the schools and this is a safety element now never forgotten by the children to the children and is most effective in the national and provincial in scope. If a child in school has an accident, the Either Sgt. Blatchford or Sgt. Days. This year there is a plan approved by the Department of Education by which films and songs geared to the six safety rules. The hope is that the child will take home the lessons that he learns, will be impressed by them and, on telling his parents about them, will remind them of their responsibility.

Regarding bicycles, there are more accidents reported by parents and observed by Sgt. Blatchford himself. It is up to parents to take a look at their children's ability to ride a bicycle. For safety, a lot of bicycles should be left at home. A bicycle is a vehicle and the rider must ride on the street, be not on the sidewalk. It is a privilege to ride and a right and safety rules must be observed. In Ontario there are 2,340,326 licensed automobile drivers. Some drivers have poor attitudes. One out of every five have a great number of demerit points. Some good citizens are nervous of bicycles and speed up trying to get past. The child doesn't know about this state of emergency. So take a look at your child riding a bicycle — is he going to be safe."

Sgt. Blatchford invited people to call on him for help if necessary.

In closing, Sergeant Blatchford said that a definite responsibility lies with the parents and should be accepted. It is important to set the best example for your children.

Sgt. Blatchford was thanked by the vice-principal, Mr. Plumpton.

Refreshments were enjoyed after the close of the meeting.

Young Couple Feted by Church Shower

FRANKFORD — A church shower was held in the basement of October 3rd in the Full Gospel Church parsonage in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Walker of Belleville.

Mrs. Fred Spring was hostess and began the activities with prayer. Miss Helen Patrick of Belleville read a poem "Husbands", Miss Ellen Smith, Frankford, sang a solo "Back of the Clouds" and Mrs. Gordon Smith joined in the chorus as a vocal duet. Miss Sandra Purvis read a poem "A Bride's Prayer".

The Rev. F. Spring took over as chairman. Each person was given a Bible verse or place each. Sound his partner for the evening.

Mrs. Eldon Sine and Mrs. Keith Helm rendered a vocal duet "Bless This House". Miss Marjorie Forbes gave a

Hot Rebuttal On Polygamy By Delegate

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Foreign Minister Jaja Wachuku of Nigeria Wednesday delivered a spirited defense of polygamy as practised in Africa before the United Nations.

He drew a hot rebuttal from Mrs. Jeanne Martin, the delegate from Liberia.

The exchange took place in the UN social committee on consideration of a proposed international treaty on marriage. Involved are such questions as minimum age for matrimony, giving consent and providing for legal registrations.

Wachuku—who has one wife—said hurried approval of such a treaty might "destroy old established customs in Africa and leave chaos instead." Western ways should not be used as a gauge for marriage customs in the whole world.

This failed to impress Mrs. Martin.

She said polygamy might be a good practice for rich men in Africa but it was a "very awkward situation" for African women.

Later Wachuku withdrew his motion and the committee went on with other matters.

reading, "The Party Line". Mr. Spring spoke briefly to the honored guests and asked God's blessing on their home and their new home. Mr. A. Watson, on behalf of the congregation presented a lovely 21-light Lamp to Gary and Carol.

They both responded and Frankford friends for their kindness. Refreshments were served and a time of fellowship was enjoyed by all.

MAIL CALL

Question — Does an invitation to a cocktail party have to be acknowledged even if one can't attend? The one I'm referring to was the printed kind — with date, time, etc. — all filled in. I didn't think it was necessary to do anything about it since there was no R.S.V.P.

— J. S., Akron, Ohio.

Answer — When in doubt, it's better to respond to an invitation, just on the chance that whoever wrote them might have slipped up on marking R.S.V.P. on a few cards. But, strictly speaking, it's not necessary to accept or decline any invitation unless an answer is requested.

Question — Like so many people, I have a good memory for faces, but a bad one for names. Is it rude to ask a person's name, even if I remember here yours? I've been inclined to do this on several occasions, but feel embarrassed when I have to.

— H. G., Baltimore, Md.

Answer — Any new embarrassing to ask a person's name than to stumble over it during any introduction. Or, on the chance that the other person's name is just as bad, mention your own name first and hope he'll do the same. In fact, there's no objective rule to ask the question as politely as possible.

Avondale Cubs, Scouts M.A. Lists Officers

The first meeting of the season for the Avondale Cub and Scout Mothers' Auxiliary was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Joy Woodcock, who welcomed the members, particularly a new member, Mrs. Dorothy Maclean.

Two changes were made in the slate of officers. The executive for 1981-82 is as follows: president, Mrs. Joy Woonacott; vice-president, Mrs. Irene Reed; secretary and publicity chairman, Mrs. Betty MacDiarmid; treasurer, Mrs. Edna Mir; sewing convener, Mrs. Shirley Elliott; welfare convener, Mrs. Hazel Pugh; social convener, Mrs. Katherine Thompson; auditing committee representatives, Mrs. D. Cosbie and Mrs. M. Wilson; ways and means committee, Mrs. Pugh, Mrs. D. Maclean and Mrs. D. Smith.

A report of the group committee was given by Janet Cosbie. A discussion followed as to ways of making the meetings more interesting and increasing membership.

A roster was made up of the hostesses for the coming year. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Edna Mir; the highlight of the evening to be an auction sale among the members.

An annual financial report was given by the treasurer. The books are to be audited by Mr. Arnold Wilson and passed on to the new treasurer.

After the meeting closed refreshments and a social hour followed.

River Valley Women's Institute Holds Fine Information Meet

STIRLING — The October meeting of River Valley Women's Institute was held on Monday afternoon at the school with 25 members and ten pre-school children in attendance.

Mrs. Alex Bush was hostess, and the roots was decorated with vases of dahlias. Mrs. Kenneth Myers, president, presided.

Mrs. George Heasman gave her report and told of the excellent meeting of District 14, donation to Stirling Fair Board for special sewing prizes. The correspondence included a message from Miss Julia Lane, Home Economist on the agricultural training class on November 7th and 8th in St. Paul's United Church basement. The subjects is, 'One Hundred and forty-three pounds of Meat.' It is open to women under 25 this event.

Miss Lane is leaving her position with the home economics service to be married and the members will remember her with a greeting on this occasion.

A safety booklet was passed around for all to view. A speaker from Sidney MacDonald, agriculture representative, was to be farm investigator on Thursday morning at the planning meeting the donation from River Valley W.I. will be acknowledged and Mrs. Percy MacMillan will represent River Valley W. I., that meeting. A card was signed for a member in hospital. A display of the individual gifts for the Link Institute from River Valley W.I. was displayed and these will be forwarded in November to England. The names for the November meeting are not yet completed.

Mrs. Glenn Bush, leader of the 4-H Girls Club was granted a sum of money to buy the material needed. The Countrywomen Magazine subscription will be renewed.

Mrs. Percy MacMillan, public relations officer, spoke briefly on the A.C.C.W. convention. The poster was made by Mrs Adeline Bush and collected $2. was realized. She urged the ladies to keep in mind the Information from Chatterton W.I. to contend a special meeting in Stirling Community Hall on the evening of October 13th, when Mr. M. K. Bowe, Ottawa, will discuss a highway course and present movies.

RE ADOPTING CHILD

She also stated that 36 tons of Christmas packages for children in Europe and the Far East, through the "Foster Parents Plan," has been received at the New York warehouse.

The president asked that as many as possible of the members attend the November meeting as there is a special item to be settled and requires at least half of the membership present in order to decide the issue. The question is what to do about the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario project 1981-82 re adopting a child in the "Canadian Foster Parents Plan."

A new member, Mrs. Albert Wilhelm, invited the Institute to have its December meeting at her home near Trent River.

Mrs. Roy Tucker, ACWW convener, read an item re "Pen-

Women's Institutes

MELROSE W.I.

MELROSE — The September meeting of Melrose WI was held at the home of Mrs. G. McCrea with a good attendance.

The president Mrs. K. McMeehan was in charge of the meeting which opened in the usual way. After attending the business business was dealt with which included invitations from Quinte and Parkdale Institutes to attend their next meetings when a good attendance would be present. A cordial letter was received from G.I Boyce Pres. of Hastings Historical Society urging members to visit Hastings County Museum which is now open. An up-to-date review of local arrangements for Flowing Bench was given by the president and Mrs. McLaren.

Mrs. A. Long convener of citizenship and education was in charge of the program and she dealt with the motto, "If you chant a line of character in the home it will bloom in the Community". Taking the last sentence Reginald Dey Hemmerskold as a starting "ex. ample who gave his life for peace in the world peace. He showed devotion to duty, courage-making, great intellect and possessed the three basic virtues, faith, love and courage. Mrs. Long read from Ontario and an educated man took in hand to find out these things and taught them, thus he was known as a headmaster.

The roll call "Explain the antique which you bought." These were displayed on a table and included: a wedding ring of over 100 years old, cups and saucers, stitcher, pictures, candle and holder, the type one used to take to the doctor when it was time to retire, fish servers of solid silver and brass tree trivets, both from Scotland, white beads purchased from a peddler in the early 1800's, old fashioned dishes used to boil eggs on a fireplace, family pictures and a brass clock, which all were very historic and added to this meeting.

SPRING TEA

Mrs. John Kane described their recent trip to the Seaway and dealers which they saw while there, and also a cargo ship of grain. She gave a description account of the Cornwall Power Plant and displayed booklets of the Long Sault Control Dam and the Robert Saunders Generating Plant. She stated that it was a wonderful spot to visit. There are conducted tours every day from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. except Christmas, New Year's and Good Friday.

Mrs. Roy Bush spoke briefly re citizenship and told the Institute women at River Valley were doing wonderful training in citizenship when all these pre-school children were able to attend the meetings and thus learn to sit still for a little while.

After the meeting closed the lunch committee served cake, celery and tea and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Mrs. Glenn Bush voiced thanks for the fine program and lovely refreshments.

This is a delicious menu and at some time or another I have given you the methods of making all of the suggested items except the Pumpkin Chiffon Pie.

This pie is so good that it deserves to be made and served more commonly on Canadian tables. So I am going to give you two methods of making it and hope it will thrill your guests on Thanksgiving Day.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Oven Broiled Liver and Bacon Cream Gravy, Mashed Potatoes; Broccoli au Gratin; Shredded Raw Cauliflower, Spinach and Lettuce Salad; Upsidedown Prune Cake, Tea.

SUNDAY

Veal and Noodles en Casserole (see Tuesday); Stuffed Tomato Salads; Hot Crusty Rolls; Cheese on Lettuce; Whole Wheat Buns; Fruit Ambrosia Cream (see Friday); Coffee.

THANKSGIVING PUMPKIN CHIFFON PIE NO. 1:

Using 9" Gingersnap Crumb Crust. 1 tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, ½ cup brown sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ginger, ½ teaspoon allspice, 1½ cups canned pumpkin, 3 large egg yolks, ½ cup milk, 3 egg whites, ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar, 6 tablespoons sugar.

Soak gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes. Mix together in saucepan brown sugar, salt, cinnamon, ginger, allspice, pumpkin, egg yolks and milk. Cook over low heat, stirring until it boils. Boil, stirring, 1 minute. Remove from heat. Stir in soaked gelatin. Cool. When partially set, beat until smooth. Carefully fold in merengue made of stiffly beaten egg whites to which you have added the cream of tartar and sugar. Pile into prebaked Gingersnap Crust. Mix ¼ cup butter, melted, into 1¼ cups fine gingersnap crumbs (about 18). Pat and press into 9" pie pan. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes. Cool before filling. Chill until set (about 2 hours). Garnish with whipped cream and bits of candied ginger, if desired.

THANKSGIVING PUMPKIN CHIFFON PIE NO. 2:

Using 10" Baked Plain Pastry Shell. ¾ cup rich milk, 2¼ cups canned or cooked pumpkin, 1¼ cups light brown sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon ginger, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 3 eggs, 2 tablespoons gelatin, 1/3 cup cold water, 1½ cups 32% cream, ¾ teaspoon grated orange rind (optional), 1-3 cup sugar sweetened whipped cream (optional), candied orange rind (optional).

Heat the milk in double boiler with the canned pumpkin, brown sugar, salt, ginger, cinnamon and nutmeg. Beat the egg yolks slightly and gradually add some of the hot mixture to the yolks, mixing rapidly. Return to the pumpkin mixture and cook in double boiler until thickened, stirring constantly. Soften the gelatin in water, add to custard, stirring until dissolved. Cool the filling until it begin to thicken. Beat the egg whites stiff but not dry. Fold them into the filling and then chill, but don't let it set. Whip the cream until stiff and add the orange rind if used and sugar. Fold into pumpkin mixture. Chill until quite thick and then pile into pie shell. Before serving, garnish with sweetened whipped cream and a little grated orange rind, if desired.

Friends Hold Shower for Bride-to-Be

FRANKFORD—A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Miss Patsy Brown with Miss Betty Lou Towes as co-hostess on the afternoon, September 26th in honor of bride-to-be, Miss Nancy Bailey. Twelve young ladies were present. They enjoyed making a bridal hat for Nancy and then presented her with many useful gifts for which she thanked her friends.

Hostess, Miss Patsy Brown and co-hostess, Miss Betty Lou Towes served dainty refreshments.

Booklet Helps Merchants Fight Crime Industry

OTTAWA (CP)—A do-it-yourself guide to passing counterfeiters and bad-cheque artists was issued Tuesday by the RCMP.

The 16-page booklet entitled Bad Paper is prepared for merchants to help in fighting a multi-million-dollar crime industry that preys mainly on small businessmen.

A foreword in the booklet by RCMP Comm. Leonard C. W. Harvison estimates that in 1960 bogus bills alone netted forgers $250,000 — with the hoodwinked businessmen who accepted the bills forced to turn them over to police without compensation.

The booklet illustrates with photographs that b a c k ground design and lines on counterfeit notes are blurry and indistinct when compared with genuine money.

Another sure means of telling good money from bad is to look for the specks of green paper called "planchettes" that are embedded into the paper of genuine notes. In good money these can be picked out with a pin, leaving a recess in the paper surface.

In c o u n t e r f e i t money, the planchettes are usually simulated by printing green dots on the paper or by sticking circular pieces of paper on the surface. These simulated planchettes, if they can be removed at all, will leave no recess

The booklet also recommends that merchants keep in touch with their local RCMP offices for lists of serial numbers of counterfeit bills known to be in current circulation.

WOULD ALLOW FEEDING

OTTAWA (CP)—A report issued by a Canadian-American committee on waterfowl said Tuesday the two countries will be asked to consider pilot programs of management for benefit of farmers and waterfowl resources. It is believed the committee studied a plan under which farmers in the duck-breeding areas of western Canada will be paid for allowing ducks and geese to feed in certain grainfields.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Pa Rules the Roost

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My husband is European and a hard worker. He now earns a good salary, but just gives me barely enough to run the house and provide for our two teen-age boys.

Because of this I have insisted that John (my son who is very close to me) pay his board money to me; I have also taken a part-time job. My husband is so cross about these things that there is no living with him. But he can't see my side of it—TROUBLED.

DEAR TROUBLED — Your first mistake was to be born in different countries!

His background taught him that father ruled the roost, the money that wifey worked full-time—at home. Your Canadian up-bringing leaves you more leeway.

When John pays his money to you, your husband feels separated from you; when you take a job he thinks you have stopped depending on him—and are rejecting him as a husband. Then, when he is cross, you feel unloved too.

Instead of pulling away, start moving closer. Possess your son a little less; love your husband a little more. Share your money problems as you share the other parts of your life. Depend on him and he will respond.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—The women's service club of which I am a member is looking for a project. We have a number of older people in our community who have no work or anything to do with their time. They live on pensions and eke out a bare existence.

Isn't there some way we could help make life more interesting for them? I know others have done it.—DO GOODER.

* * *

DEAR DO GOODER:—How about helping them to organize a Senior's Sewing Service—where mending, laundry repair, quilting and so on are done to order? Or an Odd Jobs service?

Service groups have reported many successes in such efforts. Write to the Canadian Welfare Council, 55 Parkdale Avenue, Ottawa 3, Ontario, for literature about what has been done.

Patty Conklin, Who Started Midway in 1921, Says His Is Biggest in the World

OPERATES BIGGEST MIDWAY — Patty Conklin has been in the carnival business for 53 years. He came in Canada from New York in 1921 and lives in Brantford, Ont., with his brother and son who share in the business operation. (CP Photo).

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Patty Conklin, who says the midway he started in Canada in 1921 is the biggest in the world, has an aim in life besides making money. It is to convince the public that midways are respectable.

The grey-haired showman has found that it isn't easy. People tend to think midways are, at best, a little less than honest.

Wearing a mauve sports shirt and flashing a large sapphire ring as he sat in an office at the Western Fair in London, Patty explained why midways can claim to be respectable.

"Look at the people we have working for us," he said. "There are 25 to 30 university students out there. They've been with us all summer.

"Two of them are going to graduate in law at McGill next year but they tell me they want to go into this business instead."

Men who do other work in the winter are also on Patty's staff. They include a novelty salesman, a pawn shop operator and he said, a couple of stock brokers. There are also some farmers who let their wives do the summer chores.

"Understand, our people are the same as anyone else," Patty said. "The only difference is we have a little grease in us."

STARTED IN NEW YORK

He said it is the strict policy that keeps his show and those men on the up and up.

"But anyway, 90 per cent of the people are honest. That's why you never see a cash register around the midway."

When he was a child in Brooklyn, his parents did not want him to enter carnival work, although they were in it themselves. But Patty started out selling peanuts in Madison Square Garden. He came to Canada when his father died in 1921.

Patty lives in Brantford, Ont., with his brother, Frank, who owns half the business, and his son, Jimmy, who is in charge of concession operations.

The biggest change in his 53 years in the business is in children's rides, Patty said, "and we're responsible for it."

"Many unique devices have been designed to entertain children and keep them exhibition minded. We start them off as infants and bring the riding devices along, a little different each year, until they're ready for the adult rides.

"We never cheat a kid. You'll find that, even when we're busiest, they get just as long a ride as when things are slow. Those are my orders."

There are those who say that the carnival has made Patty a millionaire.

"That's what a lot of people say we are," Patty smiled, "but I haven't had a chance to count it."

Centenary

CENTENARY — Mr. and Mrs. Keith Johnston Lilda and Pearl visited Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Johnston in Blackstock on Sunday and also attended church service there.

A number of boys enjoyed a birthday party given by Mrs. D. Hudgins for her son Brian whose birthday was Saturday.

Jeffrey Reid son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Reid was ring bearer at the Caddick-Jones wedding on Saturday, September 23rd.

Recent callers of Mr and Mrs. Percy Sutherland were Mr. and Mrs. Embury Hough and Steve of Holloway and Mr. and Mrs. D. Ashley and family of Belleville.

World wide communion service was held in Centenary Church on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. V. Herrington and Mr. and Mrs. C. Reid were welcomed into the membership of Centenary Church.

ROUTE KILL SIX

ALIGARH, India -(Reuters)— At least six persons were killed and 43 injured in riots between Hindus and Moslems here Tuesday.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Sarah P. — Our aged Uncle should be visited ...on and indulged.

Jennie P. — Why make her so dependent? Let her help herself.

* * *

Sarah P. — My mother is 75 years old. I feel that at her age her demands, no matter how inconvenient, should be respected. When she calls I try to answer with a smile. My sister feels differently.

We are both single and live in a big old-fashioned house with our mother. Jennie refuses to climb the two flights of stairs with Mother's breakfast tray. She rarely goes up to Mother's room to help her tune in her radio and TV set. Once in a while she'll join us in a three-way game of dominoes or cards. But it's always as a big favor, grudgingly offered.

* * *

Jennie P. — I think Mother is retiring from life about 20 years too soon, and I'm hastening the process with so much babying and pampering. I'm not going to be a party to it.

I believe in the Golden Rule, and believe me I wouldn't want my knees drying up and my muscles atrophying, just because some eager beaver insists on up to do things I'm perfectly able to do myself. Some of Mother's whims and requests are ridiculous. I reserve the right to decide, rather than be told or shamed into, when to help. I'll read to her, for example, to rest her eyes.

* * *

The Council: Let's not confuse respect with overprotect. Taking Jennie's word, since neither daughter describes the mother as an invalid, we'll agree that it's no real kindness to rush the older woman into her dotage, or push her back to her nonage, all in the name of filial respect.

Each of these women loves her mother — in her own faith. For Pat Jennie's love seems the healthier. It's less compulsive and hysterical. It stresses verbs like "can" and "want to" rather than "should." Sarah might ask herself in a quiet moment, "What propels me into granting my mother's every order, no matter how selfish?" A guilt feeling for deep-down anger? A need to feel essential to her? A desire to show up my sister as the feeling? Her extreme self-abasement suggests some such source.

There's an added danger in this sort of slavish spoiling. Mrs. P. shielded and removed from reality as she is, may come to regard her daughters as things to be moved about like objects of art. As with Useless they speak up and reveal their will and spirit, she'll assume they're around, like blankets and hot-water bottles, but to serve her. Female rectals this temptation.

What an older person wants above all is a sense of dignity. This comes easily when one carries one's own weight. Even though Sarah can (and would like to) open and close doors for her mother, if the latter still can do such things herself . . . hands off!

For the future, we suggest the following: How about moving Mrs. P. to a ground-floor room? Then, without the double flight of stairs separating the three women, Mrs. P. might be invited to pitch in with the household chores insofar as she is able. Sarah can help (with restraint) but not "do." Unless all three agree that a task is beyond Mrs. P's strength, Jennie will join in, too.

Jennie is pointing the way towards a salutary shift of outlook for both her mother and sister. By insisting that Mrs. P. exercise her own potentialities, she is widening the vista of the household from the confines of that upstairs room to the endless opportunities now available to a golden-ager who "gets about."

Lawyer Says Businessmen Are to Blame for Most Of Their Own Troubles

By FORREST REUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

HALIFAX (CP) — Business has itself to blame for most of its problems, F. M. Covert, Halifax lawyer and industrialist, said in an address to the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

In a hard-hitting talk to his fellow businessmen, Mr. Covert said their failure to give leadership on the part of slavish spoiling, Mrs. P. shielded and removed from reality as she is, may come to regard her daughters as things to be moved about like objects of art. As with Useless they speak up and reveal their will and spirit, she'll assume they're around, like blankets and hot-water bottles, but to serve her. Female rectals this temptation.

What an older person wants above all is a sense of dignity. This comes easily when one carries one's own weight. Even though Sarah can (and would like to) open and close doors for her mother, if the latter still can do such things herself . . . hands off!

For the future, we suggest the following: How about moving Mrs. P. to a ground-floor room? Then, without the double flight of stairs separating the three women, Mrs. P. might be invited to pitch in with the household chores insofar as she is able. Sarah can help (with restraint) but not "do." Unless all three agree that a task is beyond Mrs. P's strength, Jennie will join in, too.

Jennie is pointing the way towards a salutary shift of outlook for both her mother and sister. By insisting that Mrs. P. exercise her own potentialities, she is widening the vista of the household from the confines of that upstairs room to the endless opportunities now available to a golden-ager who "gets about."

Turning to taxation, Mr. Covert said:

"Free enterprise should long ago have realized that it had to deal with old age pensions and not leave it to government; it should have been the one to provide medical and hospital care. Free enterprise was the one to deal with unemployment. If this had been so the cost of all these things would have been reasonable. Now, they are outrageous and the services are inadequate.

"How can you expect governments to do these things reasonably when every four or five years they must offer for re-election and must vie with one another in a give - away program, and promise to do everything for nothing?"

PRIVATE BANKERS

Merchant bankers are private banking which chiefly confine themselves to acceptance and loan issuing.

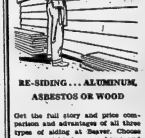
as well as for the consumer."

Mr. Covert, who is president of Moira Ltd. and of Maritime Paper Products Ltd., and a director of a number of leading Canadian companies, recommended systems of incentives to employers.

"Don't tell me it can't be done," he said. "I know three plants that have started it and every one of these plants is unionized. In one plant production has been increased by more than 16 per cent and labor has been cut by nearly 30 per cent. In another, production has been increased in one year by 12 per cent and labor cut by over 18 per cent. In all plants employees are receiving higher pay per hour than before and overtime has been cut."

In 16 years of labor negotiations, Mr. Covert said, he had found employees as a whole the most reasonable people with whom one could wish to deal.

GET INCREASE



MONTREAL (CP)—A three-year labor contract granting Montreal's bus drivers progressive wage increases totalling 22 cents hourly plus fringe benefits was signed Tuesday.

Under the contract, retroactive to last July 12, the bus drivers receive seven cents each year, making the hourly basic wage rate $2.13 in the third year.

CAMPBELLFORD

'Lions' Purpose' Topic at Regular Meet

CAMPBELLFORD — The Deputy District Governor, Ed. Loucks of Frankford, spoke at the regular meeting of the Campbellford Lions Club, on Wednesday evening. In addressing the group he called attention to the letters of the word "Lions" and their significance; L for Liberty; I — Intelligence, ONS — Our Nation's Safety. In application of these words he formed the sentence, which he deemed significant of the Lions' purpose "Our liberty depends on the intelligence with which we guard our nation's safety".

Concerning liberty, Mr. Loucks stressed the need of control of will and appetite and said in part "the less control we exercise within, the more control we will need from without.

"Intelligence is not the quality a man might possess which will permit him to interpret the meaning of a given situation, but rather the ability to discern that which is true and that which is false.

"Why guard our nation's safety?" asked the speaker, "Do we not have armed forces for that purpose? Our nation is made up of individuals and as community leaders comprising a special group it is the Lion's special business.

"Danger is always threatening our nations safety. These dangers from without, communism and such have always been present." Their threat to our way of life from outside our land is always real, but their real hope is that our society will disintegrate from within.

"Among the real dangers in our land is fear. Fear breeds uncertainty and lack of moral courage, which force if not curbed will certainly cause the crumbling from within. Bigotry is another agency guaranteed to kill a nation or a society. Should these two fall, idolatry will indeed do the job. We idolize such things as money and pleasure of various kinds, putting undue emphasis on false values.

"To combat these corroding influences as individual Lions, contributing to our nation's safety, Deputy Governor Loucks urged the members to study and follow the Lions Code of Ethics".

He was introduced by Past President District Governor Jim Clarke.

A presentation of a recently announced honor was made to Past District Governor Jim Clarke by past president Bob Bennett. He gave the 100 per cent District Governor award to Past District Governor Jim Clarke, along with a citation by the President of Lions International.

A number of presentations were made by Deputy District Governor Loucks, Key members pins to past-president Bob Bennett and Lion Bill Oliver; 100 per cent attendance pins for eight years to Lion Harry Cubitt, Kim Clarke, Bob Bennett and Les Baker; a six year pin to Lion Joe Poulton; five year pins to Bruce Wallace, Geno Pace, William Oliver and Preston Hall; three year pins to V. Harrington, F. Coughlan and L. Lee; two year pins to Ray McKinnon, Wayne Gunter, Collis Collins and one year pins to Jack Petherick, Hugh McCarten and Harry De.

Lion Cu.. reported on the progress of work at the park and William Meeks on the Lions Safety Patrol.

A vote of thanks was extended to Lions Sharpe and Thomson for contributing the funds from refereeing the tennis ball play-offs to the funds of the club.

Lion Preston Hall is to be in charge of the bingo games for the coming season.

It was announced that the Lions' canvass for funds for their park project has commenced.

Claude Jodoin To Be Speaker At Conference

It has been announced by the Lake Ontario Development Association that the Industrial and Municipal Relations Conference for 1961 will be held in Peterborough on Wednesday, October 18th. The main purpose of the Conference is to create a better understanding between municipal leaders and industrial leaders in order that mutual benefits will result. The theme of the Conference this year will be "Our Responsibilities as Leaders in our Communities".

The Conference will open at 12.30 with luncheon and in the afternoon Mr. Claude Jodoin, President of the Canadian Labor Congress, will speak on "Labor's Responsibility to Industry and the Community".

Following Mr. Jodoin's speech there will be a panel discussion. The panel will consist of two heads of industry, two community leaders and two labor representatives. The subject of the panel discussion will be the theme of the Conference.

The Conference will close with a main banquet and dinner speaker, the speaker to be announced later.

Last year over three hundred delegates attended the meeting and it is expected that this year's attendance will be close to the same figure.

Anglicans Says High Jobless Rate Evidence of Diseased Condition in Our Society

OTTAWA (CP) — Anglican churchmen said Wednesday the high rate of unemployment is evidence of a "diseased condition in Canadian society" requiring the destructive influences on individual and family life.

The Anglican Church of Canada executive council was told the tragedy of unemployment must not be measured in statistics but in human values. Idleness resembles lead to be mobilized to create an intelligent society, not a jungle.

The subject of unemployment sparked one of the liveliest debates in discussing the controversial report of the church's council for social service. Typical remark included Canada's unemployment insurance scheme, the presence of Jamaicans and "unfathomable" overall drugs, and the changing attitude of Canada's Indian citizens from reservations and the organization of church missions in industry.

Offering several proposals for solving the current unemployment crisis, the report recommended that "every effort be made to find work for unemployed persons on an interim basis as an answer. It also recommended that "a comprehensive study of Canada's social security programs be made with a view to the framework of services offered.

MARTIN ACCUSED

The council, noting "the incidence of unemployment is severe in Canada," said there is "a Canadian society resulting in lack of confidence and wealth, and a destructive influence on individual and family life," passed several resolutions:

1. Declares action by governments, industry and labor to be necessary to make policies designed to enable Canada's working force to find gainful employment in all parts of the country and to provide adequate conditions of work.

2. Special attention to regional areas with intensified unemployment problems.

3. Urges vocational and technical training programs for young people to achieve full employment.

4. A federal program of economic planning to achieve full employment.

Canon E. W. Scott of Winnipeg was the speaker pointing out the resolutions which the council intended to act on them.

He said the council is in a basic human problem involving deep concern and critical examination of our society.

Rt. Rev. H. R. Clarke, Bishop of Moosonee, John had to be created. To do this, it might be necessary to stop on the tree of labor and go to capital. It would not be a "short" look.

"The council is prepared to appeal to men co - operation with other denominations to spread the gospel in Canada's industry.

This was envisaged in a resolution calling for consideration "in bold new terms (of) the forms of ministry within present-day society."

AS IN BRITAIN

The church's spokesmen in Toronto said last week plans are being made to introduce a program similar to the Sheffield Industrial Mission in England following the General World War.

Rev. C. J. Fisk, assistant secretary of the church's social service council, said the battle of faith is being waged in the factories, in the homes, and even in politics.

He hoped an industrial mission in Canada would embrace all denominations, including Roman Catholics, as in Britain.

The council refused to commit itself on the controversial question of whether Canada should acquire nuclear weapons.

The executive council skirted the issue and avoided making a firm decision when it was discussed in a report and raised on the floor.

It passed resolutions imply stating approval of the Canadian government's efforts to create a peaceful world and urging continued efforts for controlled international disarmament. It referred a proposal urging the government to undertake a "more positive program" in the cause of peace to a committee for possible rewording.

Polish Seaman Allowed Entry For One Year

OTTAWA (CP) — A Polish seaman who jumped the Iron Baron ship in Montreal last month will be allowed to remain in Canada for at least one year, despite a deportation order against him for illegal entry.

Immigration Minister Ellen Fairclough announced Wednesday that she has deferred action on the deportation order and issued a permit for Franciszek Tobiasz, 25 to stay in Canada where he wants to become a citizen.

He said he had refused to join the Communist party of Poland, a d that conditions in his homeland were oppressive.

Canadian law does not provide for political asylum, but ministerial permits may be granted to give a refugee time to go through the proper procedures for entry.

RADIO OFFICIAL COURTES

Boy Poisoned By Chewing Common Flower

TORONTO (CP) — Jimmy Power, four-year-old son of Mr. a d Mrs. James Power of suburban Scarborough, was poisoned Tuesday when he chewed a common garden flower at home.

Hospital officials describe his condition as "improving."

Dr. Raymond LaFrenet, who treated the boy, said he became "deathly ill" after swallowing part of a "common rock garden flower."

"We find it shocking," he said, "that a flower can be so poisonous and be so prevalent in gardens."

Dr. Peter Giedhill, hospital pharmacist, said the flower, called snow - on - the - mountain or ephorbia marginata, produces a sea-like fruit and contains a honey-like substance which can cause blistering if it contacts human skin. He said the substance, if swallowed, can cause inflammation of the kidneys and severe abdominal pains.

Two other children who ate the flower suffered no ill effects.

Ronald Duffy of the University of Toronto botany department said some individuals are less susceptible than others to the poison. He said animals have been known to die after swallowing it.

Believe Ghana Arrests Will Accentuate Growing Rift With Britain, United States

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The imprisonment in Ghana of dozens of opponents of President Kwame Nkrumah is bound to accentuate the growing rift in Ghana's relations with Britain and the United States.

The arrests stimulate from the disturbed Ghanaian political scene a number of Nkrumah's most able opponents, including Dr. Joseph Danquah, opposition candidate in last year's presidential elections who charged earlier this year that Nkrumah was "enslaving the East to turn Ghana into a Communist camp."

The accusations against the detainees—that they plotted the assassination of Nkrumah and engaged in other subversive activities — cannot be evaluated yet.

But it is at least regrettable that the arrests were made without specific charges under a preventive detention act that permits internment of "political undesirables" for up to five years without trial.

The government has not disclosed how many persons now are held under the law, but the number is estimated at from 300 to 370.

The new arrests come at a time when Britain already is showing some disillusionment with developments in the country it once considered the showpiece of its colonial policy.

The British press has been unhappy with Nkrumah's actions in weeding moderates from his cabinet, filling Britons from top posts and removing British officers from the command of Ghanaian troops.

There also was an angry British reaction to unsupported charges in the Ghanaian press that Britain had somehow been involved in the death of United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold. The Ghanaian government dissociated itself from these accusations.

The British feeling had led to a peace-making visit to Accra by Commonwealth Relations Secretary Duncan Sandys and to talk that the Queen's planned visit to Ghana next month should be postponed.

The trend of Ghanaian policy also could have a bearing on the final United States decision on aid to the giant Volta River project. Nkrumah is pressing Washington for a decision by Oct. 31 but President Kennedy has ordered another look at certain features of the project.

Nkrumah's protest on the arrests is indicated by a statement he once made that "even if action based on moral justice and a democratic constitution may need backing by force, during the period following independence, by emergency measures of a statement by Danquah that "the government are aware of the dangers against them. That is why they are arresting and detaining opponents . . . but the grave fear is some that will kindle the flames which will consume them."

Anglicans Told Youth Finds Church Lacks Useful Purpose

OTTAWA (CP) — In the opinion of many young Canadians, the Christian church lacks the ability to perform useful work in the world, an Anglican meeting was told Wednesday.

A report presented to the executive council of the Anglican Church of Canada cited this attitude as one reason for a severe shortage of recruits to the Anglican priesthood.

The report was prepared by the council's commission on church vocations.

Several different studies have shown that the number of student clergymen "falls far below that needed to supply the needs of the church," said the report, read by Rev. Bernard Barrett of Toronto, commission secretary.

Chief cause of the shortage was that the possibility of entering the priesthood was not presented to most Canadian boys in a meaningful way.

"As well, the church's apparent lack of usefulness and ability to do real work in the world — in the minds of many of our young people — causes a quick rejection of the priesthood as a possible life work.

"Other obstacles which must be dealt with are discouragement of parents and other adults, the negative image of the priest in many young people's minds, a great deal of confusion as to what constitutes a "call" and the attitude of our society to the church.

Aggressive development of the church's work in colleges and among youth will help overcome the shortage of priests, said the report.

It noted that consideration is being given to the possibility of establishing a summer "study-work" for university students considering the possibility of entering the priesthood.

Another suggestion was for a regional vocational camp where high school boys could ponder the priesthood over a period of time.

The council adopted a resolution calling for the establishment in each diocese of "the necessary structures" to promote recruitment of priests at the local level.

To further the work of the church at Canadian universities, the council unanimously adopted a resolution calling for a program to train campus priests.

Viscount Amory Will Promote Canadian Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — Viscount Amory, new British high commissioner to Canada, said Wednesday night that the next few years will be of "vital importance" to the Commonwealth.

He made the comment when asked at a press conference about Britain's possible entry into the European Common Market, a step opposed by Canada and other Commonwealth nations.

Viscount Amory said he hoped to make Anglo - Canadian relations, already extremely close, even more intimate.

Emphasizing the importance of the Commonwealth, Viscount Amory cited recent British statements that the U.K. would choose the Commonwealth "if ever faced with a choice between the Common Market and the Commonwealth.

"I hope we will not have to face a choice of that kind."

The Commonwealth faced important developments in the years immediately ahead. "Things are moving so fast in the world today," he said.

WINS HEAVY AWARD

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A woman who claimed a restaurant served her cleaning fluid in her coffee was awarded $375,000 by a jury Wednesday for throat damage. The verdict was in favor of Mrs. Dorothy Fritz, 43 of nearby New Kensington, and against the Isaly Dairy Company, which operates a chain of stores and restaurants.

Labor Party Says Britain Must Rely on Massive Deterrent, Defence Pacts

BLACKPOOL (CP) — Britain's Labor party members have clinched sober allegiance to nuclear bombs and decided Britain must rely on the massive deterrent and continued membership in the Western defence group.

By a vote of three to one, the party's annual convention Wednesday threw out the unilateral disarmament policy adopted by last year's session and approved a "policy for peace" that had the approval of Labor's leader, Gaitskell.

It was the second victory of the week - long convention for Labor Leader Hugh Gaitskell and a setback for left - wing fundamentalists in the movement.

In a world affairs speech urging support for the leadership policy, Gaitskell stressed defence and the collective security achieved through Britain's alliances. This must be the case until some sort of world government is achieved, he said.

SUFFER SETBACKS

However, Labor's leadership suffered two setbacks. Delegates called for an end to trading of German troops to Britain and for the closure of the Holy Loch base used as a supply point by U.S. nuclear - armed subs rines carrying Polaris missiles.

Frank Cousins, head of the 1,000,000-member Transport and General Workers Union, led the drive for unilateral disarmament. A mixed chorus of boos and cheers punctuated his speech.

Crosbie moved a resolution calling for the abandonment of threats to use strategic or tactical nuclear weapons.

Gaitskell said the problem confronting Labor is: should Britain have nothing to do with alliances that in any sense depend on nuclear weapons?

EXPOSES TO THREAT

If the West gives up nuclear arms while the Russians retain theirs, it would expose itself to every form of threat and pressure the Soviet Union chose to apply. Nuclear weapons posed a powerful deterrent to any aggression.

Withdrawal from NATO by Britain to avoid reliance on nuclear weapons would have disastrous effects, Gaitskell said.

"I passionately believe if Britain were to do this it would be completely dangerous to the peace of the world."

The United States would look on such a move as a betrayal, he said. The Western alliance would break up. If the United States drew into isolation and all European countries be left exposed to Soviet domination.

MONTREAL (CP)—Two men who pleaded guilty to a total of 26 armed robberies Wednesday were sentenced to 34 years between them. Jean - Paul Paquette, 26, who admitted 41 holdups, was sentenced to 15 years in penitentiary. Donald Clare, 30, was given nine years on 25 charges.

Liberal Leader Says Canada Has Lost Voice

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson, claiming that Canada under Conservative government has slipped back economically and lost his voice in international councils, called Wednesday night for election of a Liberal Administration.

"We badly need the national stock-taking, the fresh decisions about our national purposes, that a general election ought to provide," he said in a nationally-televised address in the CBC's free-time political series, The Nation's Business.

Mr. Pearson said the present government is "more conspicuous for procrastination than for planning, so we've slipped back."

"In the last four years we've had to go without billions of dollars worth of goods that we could have produced if we'd managed our affairs well.

"Not producing them, we've lost our position as the country with the highest living standard in the world next to the United States. Sweden has gone ahead of us.

Loss of purpose also had brought repercussions on the international scene. "other Western countries no longer regard Canada as an important influence for good sense and peace in world affairs," said the former external affairs minister.

"Our place in the world has become confused — with words, talk than action. The government doesn't know what to do about skanks armaments and defence.

"We're quarrelling with Britain and we've become dangerously erratic in the way we live with the United States."

With other industrial countries reducing trade barriers forming economic unions strengthening their industries, Canada could not afford to be negative and restrictive about trade.

Mr. Pearson said public opinion polls and his recent swing through Western Canada demonstrated to him that most Canadians aren't happy with the Conservative government. There was a nation - wide frustration, "a widespread feeling that we're drifting."

A new Liberal government would get the economy moving. Among other things, it would move promptly to help in a medical care plan and develop, on a contributory basis and in co-operation with the provinces, better pension arrangements.

WIRY COATS

The wiry-haired Airedale terrier, noted for its courage, weighs from 40 to 45 pounds.

Anson Gerow, warden of Ontario county, was the winner in the wardens' plowing match. He is seen at left being presented with John M. Parrott trophy by Clarke T. Rollins, MPP for Hastings East.

Four members of the Mohawk Indian Reservation in Tyendinaga township complete long hayride from Toronto in time for official opening of match. Dressed in Indian costume are: Thomas Brant, John A. Brant, Mary Claus and Caroline Brant.

New NL Clubs

Demand Better Players

NEW YORK (AP) — President George Weiss of New York Mets and general manager Paul Richards of Houston Colts, dissatisfied with the list of players offered them for the $75,000 draft prize, have asked National League officials to amend the original list to include higher calibre men.

Richards, while refusing to confirm or deny this information learned by The Associated Press, admitted he is not happy with the 15 - player list presented to the baseball clubs by the league's eight teams.

Weiss was not available for comment.

The lists, totalling 120 players, contained such veterans as Robin Roberts, Red Schoendienst, Richie Ashburn, Gil Hodges, Johnny Antonelli and Wilmer Mizell.

Tindall, Gaels Confident

KINGSTON (CP) — Coach Frank Tindall is not known to make predictions, but he seemed quietly confident as his Queen's Golden Gaels prepare for their opening game in the senior intercollegiate Football League here Saturday.

Last season the Gaels lost the league title in a sudden-death playoff with McGill Redmen and McGill is their opponent in the opener.

"We're a higher scoring club at this point of the season," said Tindall. "However, I don't know whether to attribute that to our having a faster all-around team, or to defenses we leaned on the part of our opponents."

In three pre-season exhibitions, Gaels have scored 112 points and have had only 12 points scored against them.

A hard-running backfield led by an impressive rookie half back and the passing and running of quarterback Cal Connor, seems to be Queen's strongest points.

Gaudaur 'Goofed' on Waivers

HAMILTON (CP)—Jake Gaudaur, president of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, says he made public the names of players placed on waivers by Eastern Conference clubs through a misunderstanding.

Montreal coach Perry Moss accused Gaudaur Wednesday of "breaching the ethics of professional football" by releasing the list in a Hamilton radio program. The list is confidential under Canadian Football League rules.

Gaudaur said: "I was talking to coach (Jim) Trimble just before my broadcast and he said that he had seen the names on the wire. I thought he meant a news service wire, rather than a telegram from the CFL. As soon as I found out what happened, I called to apologize.

"The statement that I did it deliberately to disrupt his team's morale is ridiculous."

WINS CHESS TOURNEY

BLED, Yugoslavia (AP)—Mikhail Tal, Soviet chess grand master and former world champion, won first place Wednesday in an international tournament played here. Bobby Fisher, 18, of Brooklyn, N.Y. finished second. Tal finished with 14½ points, Fisher with 13½.

Wrestling Calls It A Season

Wrestling passed into seasonal history here last night at Memorial Arena before a sparse crowd of "Flowing Match Special" spectators.

The time-worn card of Marello and Marino against The Great Kudo and Stanley Stasiak ended in a flurry of hits, misses and ring-around-roses but failed to produce the usual post-bout ring fireworks.

Referees Tiger Tasker and Timothy Geohagen didn't have much trouble keeping out of touch.

Marino and Marello finally walked away with the main bout honors, avenging the disputed decision handed against them a couple of weeks ago.

The Kudo and Stasiak took the first fall after ten minutes of give-take-duck-and-run gymnastics.

The "good guys," wearing the Double M brand, got that one back in the second chapter listening the long and short of the opposition with some solid punches, rowboat holds and touch tactics.

They came back in the "rubber" to clinch the win with similar tactics and left the referees signalled victory all four decided the fall in a day. They left the ring without lifting a hand in protest.

Flaming Page, on hand by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Taylor, was the favorite of the 8,446 fans but finished 3¾ lengths behind the winner, who paid $3.10. Stafford Farm's Flaven was third.

Prior to the running of the third race, Dalton was bounced above the right eye when his mount, On Time, reared in the starting gate. The Texas-born rider required three stitches to close the wound.

Veteran Pat Remillard rode both ends of a $126 daily double, scoring on Critics Choice in the first and Brave Spartan in the second.

Wagering totalled $386,686.

TORONTO (CP)—The championship of Canada's three-year-old thoroughbred division will be settled at Woodbine Saturday when survivors of the 1981 campaign run 1⅛ miles over the grass course in the Breeders Stakes.

The first annual running of the stake will carry a purse of about $30,000. This will be the final event in the series of three crown races staged each season by the Jockey Club.

Top - rated entries for the Breeders' Stakes are Blue Light, winner of the $72,000 Queen's Plate, and Song of Even, winner of the $30,000 Prince of Wales Stakes. Thirteen others will probably start.

The race will be nationally televised by the CBC. Post time is 3:17 p.m.

RUNS PERFECT RACE

LONDON (AP) — Fred Welch of Britain, riding Blue Tout, won the Gordon Richards Stakes—an international speed jumping contest—at the London International Horse Show Wednesday. With a faultless ride, the winner was clocked in 50.2 seconds over the 14-obstacle course stretching 405 yards.

Antonelli Likes New York

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Johnny Antonelli, the once potent left-hander considered washed up at the age of 31 by many baseball men, would like to try again — but not with the National League's new Houston club.

"It's too far away," said Antonelli, back home in Rochester to run his restaurant and other businesses. "It would make it too tough on my family."

Johnny has been placed on Milwaukee Braves' eligible list for possible drafting by the new Houston or New York clubs at $75,000.

"I won't decide for some time yet whether or not I'm going to try to pitch next year," said Antonelli. "If I do decide to try it again, and if I'm drafted by the New York club, I'll do the best I can and I think I will be able to help them."

McNeeley Rated Tenth

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Tom McNeeley of Boston, who will get a shot at the world heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson in Toronto Dec. 4, was ranked among the top 10 of his division for the first time by the National Boxing Association in the September ratings announced Wednesday night.

McNeeley, 24, unbeaten in 22 fights, was ranked 10th. British John Drake also returned to the top 10 with an eight-round victory over Gerouz of Montreal. Canadian heavyweight champion, was ranked ninth and George Chuvalo of Toronto, who lost by a disqualification to Yrakine Mooday, was rated ninth.

Benny (Kid) Paret of Cuba was named boxer-of-the-month for his achievement in regaining the world welterweight title with his triumph over Emile Griffith of New York Saturday night.

Top-ranked heavyweight contender is England's Henry Cooper, followed by Ingemar Johansson of Sweden and Eddie Machen of Portland, Ore.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—First Note, owned by Frank R. Conklin of Bloomfield, established herself as Canada's champion two - year-old filly Wednesday by capturing the $13,750 Princess Elizabeth Stakes at New Woodbine.

First Note captured one division of the Carleton Stakes at Old Woodbine in September. By winning the Princess Elizabeth Stakes, the filly bred by Conklin and trained by Morris Fishman, boosted her season's earnings to $46,307 in eight starts.

Ridden by Harlon Dalton, whose right eye was almost closed from a cut suffered earlier, First Note posted a time of 1:44 4-5 for the 1 1-16-mile test.

Fleming Page, owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Taylor, was the favorite of the 8,446 fans but finished 3¾ lengths behind the winner, who paid $3.10. Stafford Farm's Flaven was third.

VICTORIA (CP) — Montreal Canadiens may they have a more subtle reason for training in Western Canada this year than just to sweat the soot off their overweight players.

As team vice-president Ken Reardon explains it, Canadiens are on a mission designed to discourage the formation of Maple Leafs, their National Hockey League rivals.

Reardon announced the plan first to a Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce breakfast and later eachorated for reporters.

"For a long time now the Leafs have been telling people they are the true representatives of English-speaking Canada," said Reardon. "They have been telling boys that makes them speak French and are Catholics they shouldn't go to Montreal.

"I can't speak for the setup this year, since our team lineup isn't settled, but last year we were 30-35 in the number of French- and English-speaking players."

ADDED BY TV

Reardon said the first big move Canadiens made to shatter the Toronto image and make themselves more popular in Western Canada came when they arranged to have Montreal and Toronto games telecast nationally on alternate Saturdays. Previously only Toronto games were shown.

"We first noticed the change in Quebec," said Reardon. "We used to go into those small towns and exhibition games and the fans would yell themselves hoarse for the home team.

"After exhibitions came in, they began to accept us not as the Montreal Canadiens but as the Quebec Canadiens. We became their team. Now we want to become the truly representative club for all Canada."

Last year Canadiens had Maurice (Rocket) Richard tour Western Canada as a roving ambassador for the Montreal cause.

By sending their ensemble to the west coast for training and later on an 11-game exhibition tour, they have done their determination to become the Canadian franchise.

EFFECTS OF DRAFT

After a Montreal workout at Memorial Arena here, Reardon got into conversation with reporters on the NHL draft, and took another swipe at Leafs.

"The draft may have helped the weaker teams in the NHL but it has hurt us badly. Our second team, for instance, who weren't good enough to break into a team, were still better than those Chicago and New York had.

"When the draft was instituted, other teams would pick up those players and drop one of their own from the minor league clubs. Now Chicago not only wins the Stanley Cup but most of the minor league titles as well.

"We don't mind playing by the rules just so long as they aren't all changed if Toronto ever wins the Stanley Cup."

"You mean," Reardon was asked, "that one team can manipulate the whole league?"

"Bah!" said Reardon. "When those guys start manipulating they make Khrushchev look like a saint."

He said Toronto is doing nothing to develop the minor leagues and pointed to the Eastern Professional League as an example.

"Toronto is the only NHL team that won't help establish a farm club in the league. All Toronto does is take. They never give. It's a real tough organization."

Ford's Two-Hit Shutout Wins Opener

Howard, Skowron Homers Help

By JERRY LISKA

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Yankees head into today's second game of the world series with their odds against Cincinnati Reds almost doubled thanks to two of their less-talked-about sluggers.

With Mickey Mantle sidelined with an injury and Roger Maris a bust, the Yankees won the opener 2-0 Wednesday on home runs by Elston Howard and Bill Skowron.

They lived up to the 2½-to-1 odds quoted before the first game and limbered up for today's game as 4-to-1 favorites.

A fair, cool day with a high of 69 degrees was predicted for today. After a day off for travel Friday, the third game is in Cincinnati Saturday.

Whitey Ford's masterful two-hit pitching was the big conversation piece of the opener. It marked the first time Southpaw Ford's third successive series shutout and put him in position Sunday, when he will likely start again, of topping Babe Ruth's record of 29 2-3 consecutive scoreless series innings. Ford now has 27.

JAY PACES TERRY

Today's game, starting at 1 p.m., pits Cincinnati right-hander Joey Jay (21-10), against Ralph Terry (16-12), who last October threw the pitch which Bills by Pitcher Bill Mazeroski cleared for a series - deciding homer.

Each club is expected to make a slight lineup revision.

Mantle is expected to sit it out again because of aching hip. Manager Ralph Houk also indicated Johnny Blanchard would start in right field instead of Hector Lopez because the Reds are starting a righthander.

Maris, who couldn't get the ball out of the infield and struck out once Wednesday, will be the main in Mantle's centre field spot.

Cincinnati manager Fred Hutchinson hinted he would move first baseman Gordy Coleman into the fifth batting position and drop right fielder Wally Post and third baseman Gene Freese to sixth and seventh. With Terry a right - handed pitcher, Hutchinson prefers to have the left - handed hitting Coleman face him ahead of Post and Freese, both right-handers.

BOYER STARS

Only Eddie Kasko, with a first-inning single and Post, slamming a fifth-inning single, were able to solve Ford's superb delivery Wednesday. Ford used only 115 pitches but got two magnificent fielding assists from third baseman Clete Boyer.

Boyer made a fine play on Freese's smash in the second inning and thrilled the crowd of 62,397 in the eighth when he made a diving stop of pinch-hitter Dick Gernert's drive and threw him out from his knees.

Jim Coates, who hadn't yielded a home run since July 26 in 16 regular season games, lost. The 34-year-old lefty, who finished the National League season with a 10-8 record and had won his last eight decisions, was the Reds' big series bogey.

He pitched himself out of two bad jams—with the bases loaded in the first and with two Yankees aboard in the fourth. When he was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth, he had yielded six hits. Jim Brosnan finished with a hitless eighth, although he walked Yogi Berra, who set a series record virtually every time he picked up a bat or glove.

The Yankees' former star catcher, who now patrols left field in a quaint but efficient fashion, is 11th series and Wednesday appeared in his 40th series game. Both figures extend records he set last year.

Ford, 32, walked only one and, in striking out six, swelled his series strikeout record to 49. He also holds a record eight series victories and had started more series games than any other pitcher—15.

REARTS ADVANCES

EDINBURGH (AP)—Hearts, one of Scotland's top soccer teams Wednesday night defeated Hamilton St. Gillcles of Belgium 3-0 and went into the second round of the European Inter-cities Fairs Cup.

Piersall Says Whitey Ford Used Spitter

BOSTON (AP)—Jimmy Piersall, a controversial baseball player on and off the field says pitcher Whitey Ford of New York Yankees used a spitball in the world series opener Wednesday.

The Cleveland Indians outfielder made the statement on a television program and repeated it at his home in suburban Newton.

"I know he was using the spitter because I know how the pitch acts," Piersall said. "He didn't use it often but he used it smartly, at the right spots."

Piersall said Ford "has come up with the spitter because he has lost his fastball."

In New York, Ford was not available for comment.

Colavito Got 'Break', Cop Didn't

MONROE, Mich. (CP)—Two Monroe County sheriff's deputies are in hot water for giving Cleveland Tigers star Rocky Colavito a break.

Clyde Guthrie Wednesday was suspended 15 days for failing to give Colavito a speeding ticket when the Tigers outfielder was stopped near here recently. Guthrie's partner, Ralph Brown, was given a department reprimand.

Colavito was driving the new sports car he received at a testimonial day when he was stopped for travelling 15 miles an hour over the speed limit and was sent on his way with a warning.

"Nobody should get away with speeding in this county," said Sheriff Charles Harrington.

Started Second Today

Yanks Don't Frighten Joey Jay

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Yankees don't frighten Joey Jay, who faces them today in the second game of the world series.

"I know how I'm going to pitch against them and that's the way I'm going to do it," the Cincinnati righthander said Wednesday after watching his Reds lose 2-0. He didn't disclose his formula.

Jay, acquired by the Reds in an off-season trade with Milwaukee Braves, never had won more than nine games in his major league career until he finished this season with a 21-10 record.

There were plenty of "ifs" in the post-game discussion by the Reds.

One of them involved the first baseman. Eddie Kasko singled with one out and Vada Pinson hit deep to centre where Roger Maris made the catch.

"That would have been over the fence or off the wall in Crosley Field," was the comment.

In the fifth, Gene Freese hit one to deep left. Whitey Ford of Cincinnati's only other hit. A false catch by Yogi Berra dropped it from dropping in—maybe for a double.

Then there were the two plays by Yank third baseman Cletus Boyer, one sparkler on defence and an even more spectacular one on pinch-hitter Dick Gernert.

WORRIES REDS

Worrisome, of course, to the Reds was the fact Frank Robinson failed to get a hit. He struck out twice.

"He's their top hitter?" some-

BOYER MAKES STOP—New York Yankees' Cletis Boyer goes to his knees to make stop of Cincinnati's Gene Freese's hard ground-

one queried in the Yankee clubhouse.

The Reds admit, almost to a man, that if they had to face Whitey Ford every day, they might as well go home.

"He kept pitching me tight and getting me out," said Robinson. "He sure surprised me with all the fast balls he threw."

"There's not a helluva lot you can say about that game," said the grim-faced Reds' manager, Fred Hutchinson, in the subdued Reds' clubhouse.

"You have to give Mr. (Whitey) Ford a lot of credit. He pitched a fine game but our kid (Jim O'Toole) did, too. The only thing he (O'Toole) could have done was shut them out."

O'Toole, who had a 19-9 record this year in the regular season, said Elston Howard "didn't get good wood" on his homer. About the one hit by Bill Skowron, O'Toole said, "I just got careless."

O'Toole, always a confident youngster, showed no signs of being depressed by the defeat. He said he'd be more relaxed next time out.

Yankees Now Lead 4-1 To Win Series

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) Bookmakers here reported the new odds favoring New York to win the world series are 4 to 1. Before Wednesday's 2-0 victory over Cincinnati Reds, the Yankees were favored to take the best-of-seven series by 3½ to 1 odds.

Can't Throw or Run

Mantle Out Until Sunday

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle of New York Yankees will not play in today's second game of the world series and likely will not return to the line-up until Sunday, when the Yankees and Reds clash in the fourth game of the best-of-seven set.

The switch - hitting slugger, who bolted 54 home runs for the Yankees during the regular American season, hasn't fully recovered from minor surgery for the removal of an abscess on his right hip. He sat out Wednesday's opener, a 2-0 loss by the Yankees against Cincinnati Reds.

"I can't play tomorrow," Mantle said Wednesday night. "The wound is still draining and very painful. I don't have any trouble swinging right - handed but I can't swing left-handed at all. I can't throw and I can't run, either."

Since the Reds intend to follow right-hander Joey Jay, today's pitching choice, with Bob Purkey, another righthander, in the third game, Saturday, it is unlikely Mantle will play until Sunday, when Cincinnati manager Fred Hutchinson is expected to come back with left-hander Jim O'Toole, who pitched a six-hitter Wednesday.

Mantle took batting practice Wednesday afternoon, swinging only from the right side. The first time he couldn't hit a ball out of the infield. He then tagged a couple in typical Mantle fashion, one ball winding up in the left-field bleachers at Yankee Stadium.

'Socked' Fan Wants $2,500 From Umpire

BURNIPS, Mich. (CP)—An umpire is being sued in Allegan County circuit court for $2,500 in damages as the result of a squabble with a 9-year-old Pony League baseball game.

The plaintiff, Stanley Hilaski, said he was punched by umpire Glenn Selby after a disagreement over a call Selby made.

Selby contends he is justified in socking anyone who questions his integrity as an umpire.

Hilaski said Selby "not only hit me the hardest I've ever been hit, but he hurt my feelings in front of all those people."

Say Yank Infield Best In History

NEW YORK (AP)—All season long men who know have been saying that the New York Yankees infield could be one of the best in the long history of baseball.

Their words of praise, however, could scarcely be heard above the clamor about the home run hitting of Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle.

Come the world series, with Mantle on the sidelines and Maris handcuffed by Cincinnati's pitching, it was the infield that took the spotlight in an opening game 3-0 victory over the Reds.

The fielding of the Yankees infielders was flawless and Clete Boyer was sensational at third.

In the second inning he trapped a hard smash by Gene Freese that easily could have been a hit and threw him out. In the eighth, pinch-hitter Dick Gernert slammed the ball to Boyer's left. He managed to stop it, fell and then got to one knee and threw out Gernert.

HUTCH CONVINCED

"Our scouting reports said he was better than his brother and I said I'd have to see it," said manager Fred Hutchinson of the Reds. "Well, I saw it."

Clete's brother is Ken Boyer of St. Louis Cardinals.

Wally Post singled in the fifth, advanced to second on Gordon Coleman's groundout and raced charging toward third on Darrel Johnson's rap to Boyer. Johnson beat out Post, who hit the third baseman hard, nearly knocking him down. Boyer's mouth was swollen afterwards.

"I should have been more careful," said Clete, without bitterness. Of Gernert's drive, he said:

"I've made a lot of good plays, but this was my best one. I didn't believe it when I saw the ball in the glove. It gave me my biggest thrill."

Ford Attacks Ruth Record

NEW YORK (AP)—This is the year for the attack on the records of the mighty Babe Ruth. But the man who threatened the Babe Wednesday did it with his stout left arm and not with his bat.

Whitey Ford, ace of the New York Yankee pitching staff, spun his third consecutive world series shutout which ads up to 27 scoreless innings—and in the words of announcer Ralph Monti it "was a nice one as he has pitched all year."

"I did it with a shiker, a fast ball, a slider, and some curves," Ford said. "I didn't have a good change of pace."

Ruth's record, set when he pitched for Boston Red Sox in the 1916 and 1918 world series, is 29 2-3 scoreless innings. Ford will get a solid chance to beat this when the series moves to Cincinnati this weekend.

Ford, all grins, was the centre of attraction in the Yankee dressing room.

"Someone told me about Ruth's pitching record before the game," he said. "But it wasn't on my mind. All I wanted to do was win."

GOOD TO WIN

"It's always good to win the first one," said Houk. "Ford's the guy who did it, and of course those homers (by Moose Skowron and Elston Howard) helped.

"And you'd have to say Clete Boyer played a lot of third. That was a heck of a play he made on Dick Gernert in the eighth."

Boyer trapped a terrific smash and, on his knees, threw to first to catch Gernert.

What did Houk think of the Reds?

"They must have a good club," he said. "They were in the game all the way. They were facing a good pitcher. Of course we were too, but we hit harder than they did.

"That was Vada Pinson came from nowhere to catch Howard's smash in the sixth. I was watching Frank Robinson and I never saw Vada until he caught the ball. I thought it was gone."

ARROYO WAS SET

Houk said he had Luis Arroyo, his fancy relief-specialist, warming up from the seventh inning on.

"Whitey didn't complain, but as long as we had Arroyo I thought I better have him ready."

Ford said Wednesday's decision was his best series game.

"When I shut out Cincinnati twice last year (10-0 and 13-0) we scored a lot of runs," he observed. "This time, I had to bear down all the way. But the Reds did impress me. I liked the way Eddie Kasko handled the ball and the way Jim O'Toole pitched."

BURIED IN UNIFORM

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Edward Hubert Olmstead, 20, who died in hospital at Hamilton Sunday after an accident in a baseball game, was buried Wednesday wearing the uniform of St. Thomas Teen Cats. The outfielder was struck on the head by a pitched ball during a game against Thomas Cambiso Sept. 23. The Teen Cats and Thorold players attended the funeral.

Wings, Leafs Tie 2-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit Red Wings met their first National Hockey League competition this season Wednesday night, but they'll need another crack at it before anything is decided.

The Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs tied 2-2 before a sellout crowd of 9,005 at Winnipeg Arena, the last exhibition engagement for both clubs before the season starts.

Chicago Black Hawks defeated Sault Ste. Marie Tunderbirds 6-3 in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., despite leading three players to their Eastern Professional League farm club. From there, the Stanley Cup champion Hawks headed for home to prepare for Saturday's game against the NHL All-Stars.

Chicago loaned Bob Turner, Murray Hall and Dennis Delorey to Sault Ste. Marie.

Two American League clubs came up with whopping exhibition victories. Detroit tripped a 13-1 decision over Fort Colborne Sailors, Ontario intermediate champion, and Cleveland a 22-4 verdict over North Bay Trappers of the EPHL.

Not First Title Fight In Canada

CALGARY (CP)—The Floyd Patterson-Tom McNeeley fight in Toronto Dec. 4 will not be the first world's heavyweight title match ever held in Canada, records here show.

On May 24, 1913, Luther McCarthy, 21, the official world's "white" champion had unofficial over-all king, was hit in the first round of a match with Arthur Pelkey and died almost immediately of a spinal hemorrhage.

His death shook the city and the boxing world. The day after the fight, fire destroyed the Manchester Arena where the bout had been staged. Firebugs were blamed.

Series Briefs

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Maris, after going 0-4in4 in the opening game, now has nine straight hitless trips in series play. The New York Yankees' power-hitting outfielder's series average is down to .355 with eight hits in 34 at bats.

Bobby Richardson's three hits in his series match by .333 from .316 with 34 safeties in 30 times at bat. The Yankees second baseman scored two hits in his last three series games.

Wednesday's crowd of 62,397 was smaller than any of the three which saw the Yankees play Pittsburgh Pirates in Yankee Stadium last year.

Whitey Ford's series earned run average has dipped to a sparkling 2.08. In 28 series games, he's yielded only 24 earned runs in 104 innings. He has walked 36 and struck out 68.

The homers by Elston Howard and Bill Skowron made it 218 homers for American League stars since the series started in 1903. National Leaguers have hit only 190. Howard's homer was his first hit in 13 appearances, including his last 24 tries during the regular season.

SUSPEND FORMER CHAMP

LONDON (AP)—Terry Spinks, former British featherweight boxing champion was suspended Wednesday for a year for failing to make the weight against Fredrico Rezzie of Providence, R.I., in London Sept. 2. Spinks twice previously had been overweight for fights.

Danny and Maureen Did Not Want Girls in Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Maureen O'Hara met Danny Thomas recently in the corridors of St. John's Hospital.

"Why did we let them do it?" wailed Danny. The reason for his lament: Both his daughter Marlo and Maureen's daughter Bronwyn are making their debuts in show business.

Reported Maureen: "Danny got so worked up about it that the nuns had to come out and smooth him!"

She herself is disappointed but resigned to Bronwyn's decision.

"Ah, me!" Maureen sighed. "Where have I failed?"

"Knowing the heartbreaks, the pitfalls, the dangers of the acting life, a mother naturally wants to shield her daughter from them. I've done everything I could to discourage simons.

Bronwyn. Now all I can do is hope that I have given her the strength to withstand the heartbreaks, the pitfalls, the dangers."

Bronwyn seems able to handle them. At 17 she is a strong-minded, determined, sunburn - haired version of her mother. She knows what she wants.

"To be an 'actress,'" she declared at her Bel-Air home. "Not for the glamor of it; that never appealed to me. I want to act in things that require some depth and understanding, not just anything. It won't stay in acting unless I can do that."

She is starting modestly. Her first professional role is as a sorority girl in a Bachelor Father sequence over ABC next week.

Her billing: Bronwyn Fitzsimons.

Mollie Goldberg Brings Fine Series to Television

By CYNTHIA LOWAY

NEW YORK (AP)—The good news is that Mollie Goldberg came back to broadcasting Wednesday night.

She was disguised a bit—she is calling herself Sarah Green —and Jake and the rest of the family are missing. But the important thing is that our wise and understanding old friend has returned.

The CBS program — created by, written by and starring Gertrude Berg—is called Mrs. G. goes to College. That's a pretty cumbersome title, but she really couldn't call it the Gertrude Berg Show with a co-star of the eminence and skill of Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

Miss Berg plays a substantial grandmother, a recent widow, who after 12 years of attending night school enters college with a novel idea. She wants to learn.

Sir Cedric plays a crusty English professor who after being unbearably rude upon first meeting with Mollie—oops, Sarah—is already showing signs of softening. They were a great pair in the stage play A Majority of One, and will be again in TV.

It is a warm, thoroughly nice show. Well done and has — praise to the heavens—a discreet laugh track.

Astrological Forecast

By CAROLL RICHTER

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Your general tendencies are a point now to think how you can make your dreams come true so that have concrete scope and breadth to them by consulting upon the specific details required before they can be perfected. A fine day and night for a family conference concerning of your energies toward a greater level of domestic co-work. Be patient, plodding for best results.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Here is one of those days and evenings when if you take it easy and look to enjoyment and fun you will gain far more than you had dreamed possible. But be sure you are in the company of fascinating people for greatest benefits.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Don't fly off on some wild goose chase today but stick to duties with enthusiasm and patience so that you make rapid strides forward and can then get the approval of close ties, too. Be thoughtful, buy little gifts for them.

Cancer (June 22 to July 23) — An ideal day for all type of gatherings and meetings of a practical nature that will advance your fortunes. Also, write to those out-of-town. Later, call on those who look to you for aid. Ride favorite hobbies in p.m.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — While your nature is such that you always think along big and broad lines, this is one of those days when it is imperative that you give much attention to the minutes of whatever project you have at hand. Make sure there are not errors.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't serve others so much today that you think about own welfare and comfort more. Dress in the height of fashion and then off to make new contacts, meet own kin or old friends and have a wonderful time. Be happy and carefree.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)— Get together secretly with advisers and plan the future more wisely. Garner the information you need. Remainder of day and evening should be carefree in the company of friends.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) It attuned properly in the astrological world, this is a fine day to get together with all loyal comrades to work out interesting mutual plans and have a good time as well. Give them a buzz early then — action.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Civic affairs are the now, but take care you do not speak before you think and make certain to listen to the ideas of higher-ups for best results and benefits. P.M. have time at some charming spot with loved one.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have every opportunity to be with interesting people and exchange fine ideas that you should not waste a moment of this fine day's aspects. Express your desire to be allied with them and much can be accomplished.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Forget that desire to assist others, which is so predominant a part of your nature, and see that your own affairs are in best order possible and strive to have a greater income. Evening is then fine for romantic leanings.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Sit down to long talks with partners, kin, personal, etc., and find that much benefit will come from this. Take your lover out on to dinner at some charming restaurant in the evening and mingle with the smart crowd at club, etc.

If your child is born today, as she, will be such a stickler for detail and neatness that you must early be resigned to it and be happy that toys at least will never be a problem. Also, be sure you give as fine an education as you can, slanting it toward nursing, medicine, dentistry, laboratory research, etc. Hygiene is the all-absorbing interest here, so be a good example yourself too — take a real interest in this unique child.

$6,000 down heads you the keys to one of the finest homes on the south side. Only a few feet from school, near walking distance to Belleville's new Collegiate Institute. The physical aspects of this fine home are of brick and stone, full brick, oil heat, with a large lot, beautifully treed and level frontage. The interior has been built by a master craftsman and kept in splendid condition by present owners. Plenty of green lawn, flowers and shrubs — a nice setting for outdoor entertaining. Attached garage. Everything in first class repair — no worries for years ahead.

Two spacious floors and finished inside. The oak floors clean and finished will have you wanting to move about. The 3 bedrooms offer a quiet, comfortable atmosphere. This home was listed only 24 hours and at $15,900 only a half a year's salary more. Come see it tonight.

Sense of Urgency Evident At Commerce Chamber Meet

By FORREST RYDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

HALIFAX (CP)—A sense of urgency and a feeling that "something must be done" was one obvious theme of the three-day annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, as R. Kirkpatrick, newly-elected chamber president, said at Wednesday night's annual dinner.

Mr. Kirkpatrick, president of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada Ltd., was referring to repeated assurances at the meeting that Canada must step up its rate of annual growth if it is to employ its people.

The fate of free enterprise, Mr. Kirkpatrick declared, hangs in the balance and depends upon what is done. He added:

"Without economic freedom there is no political freedom, and without political freedom there is no liberty of thought or action."

The consensus at the meeting, which ended with the dinner, appeared to be that Canada needs national objectives and better co-operation among management, labor and government, with full public understanding of what is involved.

MAY BE MANY

Earlier, at a press conference, Mr. Kirkpatrick said he does not think any one policy would provide the impetus for an increased rate of growth. Rather, it might come from a thousand things. He listed a review of the manner in which taxes are applied and a need for greater productivity as two specific needs.

In general, speakers at the meeting figured the way out of trade and rejected "economic nationalism" as a solution. They favored co-ordinated efforts at increased exports to the United States; a vigorous effort to obtain markets in Europe, especially if, as seemed to be the case, granted at the meeting, Britain becomes a member of the Common Market; and a seeking out of world-wide opportunities.

Several speakers urged that Canada specialize in high-quality products rather than trying to make everything.

E. P. Taylor, Canadian industrialist and financier who gave the annual dinner address, urged a "bold approach" to the future, but saw interim difficulties and said that while Canada was adopting that new world change Canadians might have to live "a simpler life."

He urged a new approach in the relations among labor, management and labor, and said the time for longer-range planning is now.

Convict Will Argue Own Case Before Court

By JOHN K. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP)—For the first time in the history of the Supreme Court of Canada a convict from a federal penitentiary will appear before the court today to argue an appeal case.

This new ground is being broken by Sol R. Rauch, a former New York lawyer and one of four men now serving six-year prison terms after being convicted on charges of stealing money and securities valued at $600,000 from Rutland Mines Limited.

The other three are millionaire Toronto botulism Ben Smith, former Ont. Tory MP Earl Stanley J. Schonbrun and and Charles Stuart, North Bay businessman.

The four men were convicted by an assize court jury in Toronto Nov. 26, 1956, and their convictions were affirmed by the Ontario Court of Appeal last June 20. The jury found Harold D. Rauch, brother of Sol R. Rauch, not guilty.

G. Arthur Martin of Toronto will act as counsel for Smith, Stuart and Schonbrun in their appeal to five judges of the Supreme Court against their convictions. However, Rauch will argue his own case.

COURT AGREES

Rauch had to overcome two obstacles to appear before the court. The first was that it is given to allow a United States citizen to appear before it as counsel and to grant the right of appearance to a person serving a prison term.

Arrangements for Rauch to appear as his own counsel before the court were made by officials of the Supreme Court of Canada and the penitentiaries branch of the federal justice department.

Supreme Court of Canada officials said court records show no previous case where a convicted person has appeared to argue his own appeal.

Rauch arrived in Ottawa Tuesday from the Joyceville minimum security penitentiary at Kingston, accompanied by an escort, Lloyd Latimer, clerk to Frederick Pitt, assistant deputy warden of custody at Joyceville. He spent Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday in the library of the Supreme Court of Canada preparing his case.

Teamsters Won't Cross Union Picket Lines

TORONTO (CP) — An envoy from Teamsters president Jimmy Hoffa said Wednesday Toronto's 4,000 Teamsters will not cross construction union picket lines until it is decided whether they are legal or illegal.

Anthony Capone, Hoffa's representative from Washington, offered to have the Ontario Labor Relations Board rule on the issue at a dispute which threatened to strangle most of Metropolitan Toronto's construction projects.

Ready-mix concrete deliveries to such important projects as the University Avenue subway, the Gardiner Expressway and Toronto International Airport, were halted Monday after 11 firms shut out their Teamster truck drivers in a counter-move after employees of the 11 firms stopped work.

The dispute involves picket lines set up by construction industry unions in their attempts to get all workers in the industry into the unions.

SUSPENSIONS

One ready-mix concrete driver refused to cross such a picket line Monday and when he was suspended by the company, the other drivers in the firm walked out also.

Capone said the Teamsters want to help the construction unions but are ready to respect the law.

"Our leaders were to meet today to discuss the shutdown.

Agreements between Toronto's Local 230 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) and the ready-mix industry permit the union to honor picket lines which conform to the requirements of the Ontario Labor Relations Act.

Ready - mix employers insist the pickets are illegal. They say they hold the drivers' right to refuse to cross pickets is in accordance with collective agreements.

THRILL FOR TOURISTS—Two female lions walking along a road in South Africa's Kruger National Park provide a thrill for tourists driving along in their cars. The animals do not bother cars driving along the park's 900 miles of road in daylight but travel is not permitted at night when they are likely to charge at headlights. (CP Photo).

8,000-Square-Mile Preserve Will Be Fenced by Fall; Formed to Protect Animals

PUNDA MELIA, South Africa (CP) — A 600 - mile fence encircling South Africa's Kruger National Park will be completed this fall at a cost of $1,500,000.

The purpose: To keep poachers out and keep game inside the 8,000-square-mile preserve.

Barbed-wire strands of the six - foot - high barrier are expected to be strong enough to restrain the smaller game. But a three-quarter-inch steel cable is added to make it strong enough to withstand the charges of elephants, buffalo and wilder beasts.

Construction was started two years ago amid concern over what appeared to be the gradual extinction of wild animal life in Africa as birds and beasts retreated from civilization or fell prey to the hunter and poacher. The park was established 75 years ago to protect the spectacular variety of animal life roaming the wilderness in the northeastern part of South Africa.

POPULATION GROWS

During the last 50 years the elephant has doubled to a herd of 1,200. The antelope, near extinction in 1900, now numbers 400. There are more than 2,500 buffalo, 900 lions, 2,500 to 2,800 giraffes and 400 leopards.

Chief purpose of the barrier is to keep animals from roaming into areas where they might be killed by men little concerned with conservation.

Another purpose is to preserve one of South Africa's big tourist attractions. There are 900 miles of dirt road through the park and tourists are permitted to drive their cars along them.

DANGER AT DUSK

They are not permitted to stop except at one of the 12 motel-style camps. And they must check into a camp by 5:30 p.m. as big game often will charge headlights after dusk. Cost of a night's lodgings is $1.50. Meals are 90 cents.

The park gates are locked at night. At dawn, when birds and beasts seem to be at their liveliest, the cars are lined up for the exciting drive.

There is no danger as long as the tourists remain in their cars. A lion may amble down the road a few feet away. Elephants lumber by, heedless of the human visitor. The impala imprizises with a 40-foot leap across the road. Monkeys chatter in the trees.

While hunting is not permitted in the park, animals maintain a natural balance, preying on each other, hiding from their enemies, mating and nurturing their young.

Although the fence encloses an area almost four times as large as Prince Edward Island, it is not the largest. Earlier this year Australia completed one 3,500 miles long to pen sheep-killing dingoes into 300,000 square miles of Queensland.

FENCE NATIONAL PARK — A 600-mile fence, strong enough to withstand the charges of elephants and buffalo, is being built to encircle South Africa's 8,000-square-mile Kruger National Park. Designed to keep the animals in and poachers out, the barbed-wire fence is expected to be completed this fall at a cost of $1,500,000. (CP Photo).

INSULTED JEWS, FINED

BONN (AP)—A member of an ultra nationalist party was fined 600 marks ($150) for expressing doubt that a synagogue was a house of God. Dr. Fried rich Wilhelm Schmidt, 58, a former teacher of Nazi ideology, made the remark at a German Reich party rally in Koenigswinter in 1958. The court was told he was arrested on the complaint of the Central Jewish Council of Germany and was fined for insulting the Jews.

JAY-WALKING JUMBO—This jay-walking elephant forces a car to stop as he crosses a road in Kruger National Park, South Africa. A 600-mile barbed wire fence, reinforced with steel cable to stop charging elephants, is being built around the park to keep animals inside. (CP Photo).

Halloway

HALLOWAY — Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kelly were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carman of Belleville.

Miss Ruth Hinchliffe spent the weekend at the Donaldson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Robson had Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Doug Fyear, River Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Emerson, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cassidy, Foxboro, motored to Maxinaw Lake and Denbigh on Sunday afternoon, returning by way of Bancroft.

Congratulations are extended to Halloway Y.P.U. ball club on winning the South Hastings Cup, defeating N. Trenton in two straight games at Frankford-Sidney ball parks.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McMullen and Miss Ruth McMullen recently enjoyed a trip across the Ivy Lea Bridge and around the lake, stopping to visit relatives in Rochester.

The W.A. ladies are catering at the Plowing Match this week.

Glad to report Mrs. Nancy McMullen is home from the hospital.

Haldimand Wins Inter-County Plowing Title Before Largest Crowd of Match

Senior and Junior Canadian plowing championships will be decided today at the International Plowing Match as the big four day event heads for its finish crowned by what promises to be final fall weather.

Thursday's capacity at the International there established various records with 35,000 and 36,000 persons and match officials are optimistic of the total attendance reaching at least 150,000.

Canadian championship plowing with contestants from all across Canada got underway at the big match yesterday with competitors plowing in old. Today the competition will conclude as contestants plow sidehill.

Trophies won at the match, will be presented tonight at the civic banquet being staged at the Belleville Armories. A total of about 1,200 guests are expected.

16 ENTRIES

Horse-drawn plowing came into its own at the International yesterday with a total of 16 plowmen turning out for the horse classes. In the open class H. Jarvis of Agincourt was the event in a field of 15 contrants, while in the class for plowmen previously winning first or 2nd place at the International, N. Love of Goodyear took the honors.

Yesterday also was Inter-County day with the best plowmen from nine counties competing.

The event was won by C. Hunter of Hagerville who had as his Haldimand County teammate W. Herod of Caledonia. In second place were York County plowmen G. Gibbons and D. Bowman of Woodbridge, while in third place were Halton County contrants J. Wilson and D. Brander, both of Norval.

Open Class 13 for tractors with two or more furrows either mounted or trailer, was won by I. McLaughlin of Sherbrooke.

There were no Hastings County entrants in the Inter-County classes, although Ward County was represented by L. Rogers of R. R. Belleville and G. Townsend, Carrying Place. They finished 3rd.

DEMONSTRATION MACHINERY

Class 34 for mounted tractor plowing appears to consistently take place on the 2nd week in International competition, was won by W. Brand of Greenwood.

The "million dollar" farm machinery exhibit at the International is drawing its customary quota of spectators as the various machinery companies stage regular demonstrations of their equipment.

Yesterday also saw the farm tillage equipment demonstrated immediately to the west of the "tented city." The demonstrations were well attended.

The Hastings County exhibit of county-grown produce and county manufactured articles, is also the Mecca for thousands of match visitors. Long queues are showing their best products, cheese and vegetable growers' associations are showing their products.

A point of interest in the Hastings County tents is the display of pictures of winners in the Hastings County Beef Improvement Contest. Winners of the contest were presented with their trophies yesterday.

CARRIED BANNERS

Yesterday afternoon parade saw the latest in mechanized farm equipment join in the display, while competitors in the Canadian championship classes also paraded their tractors and plows. Banners flutting

'Best Wedding Present' Says Bride Finding Hubbie Younger Than 102

LONDON (AP) — There was only one thing wrong with 102-year-old Sidney Thain's wedding day, he says.

"I'm sorry I hoaxed the nation," he said Thursday. "There has been a mistake."

He was right about that.

Advertised by publication as the wedding of the oldest bride-groom in Britain, the ceremony brought out 5,000 guests Wednesday. TV cameras recorded the arrival of the bridegroom and widow Maud Franklin, aged 70.

Sidney turned up in a chauffeur-driven limousine, the bride in a carriage, drawn by two grey horses, all paid for by well-wishers.

Touched and tickled, the British public heaped presents on the man they thought was starting a new life at the age of 102. Cheques, furniture, carpets, a TV set and clothes.

Hughie Green, the man who puts on the TV show Double Your Money, served as best man. Champagne—paid for by other well-wishers — flowed at the wedding reception.

Then a visiting newspaper reporter handed him a reproduction of his birth certificate. After an embarrassing pause, Sidney said:

"I seem to have made a slight mistake. I'm not 102. I'm just over 79."

Never at a loss for words, he added:

"You see, a bomb blew up my house during the war, I lost my memory. When I regained it at the hospital they told me I was 82. I couldn't contradict them. Why should I? I felt 82."

For the moment the bride looked stunned. But, breaking into a wide smile, she announced to the numerous guests who packed a pub for free champagne:

"Never mind. It's the best wedding present I could have."

She leaped over, and bussed him, saying:

"Why, he's only a boy."

Today's Chuckle

The young mother with new twin computed: "This is the career girl who used to make carbon copies of everything."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Fresh southwesterly winds have carried warm air from the Middle West into Great Lake areas. Temperatures are expected to rise well into the 70's at many localities today. In far Northern Ontario there is likely to be a sudden return to cold air by nightfall, but this new cold outbreak will likely stall north of Lake Superior until about mid-day Saturday, when it will begin pushing southward once more.

Continue to Unfold Story Of Quebec Kickback System

QUEBEC (CP)—Nineteen witnesses paraded past the Montreal royal commission Thursday, several of them dropping names prominent in the Union Nationale party, as a tale of a gigantic kickback system on government purchases continued to unfold.

The three - man commission, headed by Mr. Justice Rita Salvas is investigating purchasing practices under the former Union Nationale government between July 1, 1958, and July 1, 1960. The hearings are being held in Montreal.

Names linked directly and indirectly with kickbacks included Yvon Provost, former Ottawa-Carleton leader of the Union Nationale, party treasurer Gerald Martineau, former cabinet ministers Maurice Bellemare and Armand Maltais, and Montreal member Maurice Coutlee of Quebec.

Two witnesses mentioned Mr. Provost, who resigned the party leadership in November, 1960, but who continues to represent Montmorency riding.

Lucien Gravel, of nearby Charlesbourg, said he wrote Alfred Hardy, director of the government purchasing bureau, "to ask for encouragement" at the suggestion of Mr. Provost. His company, he said, received some orders, but he received kickbacks totalling $1,980 from Brandman - Henderson Ltd. of Montreal. He said he had no connection with Brandman-Henderson.

He testified he was a Union Nationale party worker in his parish, located in Montmorency riding.

Cyrille Guy, 58, said he was an organizer for Mr. Provost and received a $2,000 cheque for $750 made out by Brandman-Henderson.

A number of witnesses testified they had received cheques from Mr. Brandman or Mr. Coutlee in the mail after asking his help.

One declared he had received some $21,400 in kickbacks over a four - year period and had worked for Mr. Maltais during the 1956 and 1960 elections.

Russian Bomb Tested Today Largest in Present Series

PARIS (Reuters)—Russia today exploded the 16th and most powerful atomic bomb in the present series of tests, the French Atomic Energy Commission reported.

Officials said that the biggest explosion so far took place today at 8 a.m. GMT (2 a.m. EDT) in East Siberia.

The official said the device was 1½ to two times more powerful than the 50 megaton explosion that occurred two days ago. The Wednesday blast was of the order of several megatons—equivalent to several millions tons of TNT.

French seismographic indicated the explosion took place near Novaya Zemlya, in the Arctic, where several tests already have been carried out.

Observers believe the current Soviet tests are designed to develop the 100-megaton bomb of which Premier Khrushchev of Russia has boasted.

The Soviet Union dramatically announced that it was resuming nuclear testing Aug. 30 and exploded its first bomb Sept. 1.

The United States said Sept. 5 that it would be forced to move it would resume testing but only underground to avoid fallout. The Soviet Union has two underground tests.

Thakur Dutt, of the Soviet tests has sharply increased the amount of radioactivity in the atmosphere with many scientists believe harmful to human beings.

Nowhere has the level of radiation reached the danger point, but in many places it is falling again.

Moscow Students Protest Gagging of Peace-Marchers

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet students clashed with their professors in the 32,000 - student Moscow University Thursday during a visit by 30 Western anti-nuclear "peace marchers."

The clash came when the professors refused to allow a meeting after an hour during which the peace marchers' spokesman, Dr. Stanley Isaacs of U.S., was given only 15 minutes to present their views on nuclear disarmament and unilateral nuclear disarmament.

The group of marchers, Americans and Europeans, arrived in Moscow this week and staged a 24-hour vigil outside Kremlin walls.

The march originally started in San Francisco last December. The anti - nuclear campaigners, split up in groups in United States and Europe, picking up supporters along the route.

Just before the hour for departure from Moscow for West German marcher, 30-year-old Johannes Feil of Berlin said: "When I came here and I see you supporting your government's policy of nuclear tests in the atmosphere I am ashamed that from that adopted officials in the U.S."

This caused consternation among the Soviet and foreign members of the Soviet Peace Committee holding a press conference for the demonstrators in Moscow.

When they tried to close the meeting, they were met with shouts from the floor demanding that also also pounded on the desks with their fists.

One student rose and shouted; "Let them talk. Do not agree with them, but let them have their say."

As officials pleaded that the audience should be quiet and for a lecture, several students rose to their feet and shouted "Nonsense."

The meeting then went on for another hour. Then the anti-nuclear peace marchers left they were given a standing ovation.

May Appoint UN Secretary

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United States and Russia were reported agreed today on U Thant of Burma as temporary, UN secretary-general, but many problems remain.

CHIEF SOVIET DELEGATE WALKS OUT

Against Naming Swede Chairman

VIENNA (Reuters) — Vasili Emelyanov, chief of the Soviet delegation, today walked out of the conference of the International Atomic Energy Agency.

The walkout occured shortly before Soviet - opposed Swedish scientist Dr. Sigvard Eklund was sworn in as the agency's new director-general to succeed American Sterling Cole, effective Nov. 30.

Emelyanov was the only delegate to leave the hall.

Other members of his delegation as well as delegations from other Communist countries and non - aligned nations opposing Eklund's election remained for the swearing-in ceremony.

Earlier, it was believed that the entire Soviet delegation had walked out.

CHANGED MINDS?

The whole Soviet delegation had been expected to walk out in the dispute over Eklund.

Emelyanov said Thursday night that he and his delegation would walk out of the conference session before Eklund was sworn in.

He also announced then he also said Russia might withdraw from the conference because of the West's "lack of co-operation" and declared he definitely would quit at today's session.

After his walkout this afternoon, Emelyanov told reporters it was a "personal, purely personal demonstration" against Eklund.

He said that election of Eklund grossly transgressed the interests of two major groups in this international organization. The Communist countries and the majority of non-aligned nations realized that the United States and its allies wanted to "dictate" in the agency but not to co-operate, Emelyanov charged.

Accused Given Four Years In Penitentiary

HAMILTON (CP) — Joseph Burke, 63, no fixed address, who in the last two years has pleaded guilty to 54 charges involving false preferences, uttering and theft was today sentenced to four years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Three more charges involving the presentation of bad cheques were withdrawn. Police Chief Allan brought the sum Burke had obtained from merchants all over Ontario within the past 18 months to approximately $1,000.

"There is nothing to it, I admit," Burke said to Magistrate Robert Morrison before sentencing.

"My sins are too numerous to mention, and I am truly sorry on record. To ask for leniency would be an insult to intelligence.

"I am a drug addict, and if Your Worship could see a way to help me, I promise never to appear before you again."

TO BUILD COMPLEX

TORONTO (CP) — Construction of a $10,000,000 complex of stores, offices and apartments in midtown Toronto was announced Thursday. Developers Irwin Barrow and Murray Weiss have announced the projects to be located on Bloor St. just east of Avenue Rd.

Donald Gordon Remains Head Of CN Railway

MONTREAL (CP) — Donald Gordon, 72, resigned as board chairman of the Canadian National Railways since 1950, will remain on the board at $75,000-a-year post as Canada's highest-paid civil servant for an indefinite period.

At its first meeting Thursday, the board approved the resignation of directors extended his term as president, and unanimously expressed pleasure that Mr. Donald Gordon had been reappointed a director of the railway and of the board."

Transport Minister Leon Balcer announced last Wednesday Mr. Gordon's reappointment for a three-year term as CNR director and board chairman.

The reappointment, effective Sept. 30, 1961, came just two days short of a full year after Mr. Gordon's 72nd birthday, and of his age as director expired.

West And Reds Trade Protests Over Shootings

Kennedy and Gromyko Meet This Afternoon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy meets Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko today amid hopes of hearing if there has been any significant change in the Russian position on Berlin.

But U.S. officials did not expect the meeting set for his afternoon at the White House, to provide any dramatic start toward a peaceful settlement of the German dispute.

Another matter that may come up in their conversation is the United Nations. The Soviet Union and the United States were reported Thursday night to be in agreement on a crash plan for temporary UN secretary-general, a successor to Dag Hammarskjold.

The candidate reported by informed diplomats to be acceptable by both Moscow and Washington is U Thant of Burma.

Gromyko said Thursday he might bring up the whole subject of UN leadership when he calls at the White House.

State Secretary Dean Rusk will sit in on the conference. It follows three exploratory talks Rusk held with Gromyko in New York.

BERLIN (AP) — The three Western allies today sharply protested to the Russians against two shooting incidents involving Communist East German police in Berlin's French sector.

British commandant Sir Roger Delacombe called on his Soviet counterpart Col. Andrei I. Solovyev to deliver the protest personally on behalf of all Three Western commandants, an allied spokesman announced.

Delacombe told Solovyev that the incidents resulted from "dangerous and irresponsible action" by the East Berlin Communist police.

Cpl. Lindon D. Clay, President Kennedy's personal representative in Berlin, this morning made an on-the-spot inspection of the dangerously tense sector—the Brandenburg Gate.

The street, divided by the Communist-built wall now cutting through Berlin, has been the scene of two shooting incidents in the last two days.

In the first, a 17-year-old girl has called on Soviet authorities to avoid shooting incidents on the East-West border.

Max Maron, the East German police chief in the sector, sent sharply worded protests to West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt and the French commandant. Gen. Jean Lafond, over the shooting of an East German policeman by West Berlin police.

Thursday East German police fired warning shots at a West Berlin policeman and at a workman laying a cable who stepped across the forbidden line into the eastern sector. East Berlin police also engaged in a rock fight with jeering West Berliners.

Communist police Thursday night shot dead two East Germans trying to swim the Spree River near the communications Bridge, which forms the border between the U.S. and Soviet sectors. West Berlin police said. One refugee was killed only a yard from safety.

Police said a total of 14 East Berliners and East Germans including one police officer escaped to the West during the night.

Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin asked the Western powers for authority to increase his police strength. The police mission increased along the barricades dividing the city.

Two Women Charged With Armed Robbery

OSHAWA (CP)—Two Toronto women were in court here on an armed robbery Thursday after $25 was stolen at gunpoint from a downtown restaurant by Sandy Almonds.

Police said Mrs. Mary Zlejewski, 56, who was operating the store for her daughter, said two women came in to buy groceries and demanded the cash from the cash register.

"Hurry up or I'll kill you," Mrs. Zlejewski quoted one of them shouting. She gave them the money and they fled in a waiting car driven by a man to nearby Pickering arrested Elisabeth Cox, 19, and Carol Thompson, 22.

Thanksgiving to Be Warm, Sunny Without Usual Fall Color Scheme

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario travel centres braced today for a rush of travellers during the long Thanksgiving weekend.

Weather forecasts promised sunshine and mild temperatures for most of the weekend, but southern Ontario motorists will find that the leaves have not yet taken on their fall colors.

Railways, airlines and bus companies are geared to meet equipment and kept staff on call for a heavy migration, with northern resort areas and United States border points the chief targets.

Railway fines said they anticipate heavier travel this weekend than last Thanksgiving.

Canadian Pacific said the Friday night train to New York city will run in two sections to handle the extra load. Canadian National is adding coaches to most trains.

Trans-Canada Air Lines plans to add extra flights between cities to the United States. Thirty extra flights will operate on the Toronto-New York run and 16 extra will be used from Montreal to New York.

The Toronto bus terminal reported every available coach has been placed in service to carry the expected rush. Gray Coach Lines and Queen City Coach Lines said they anticipate a heavy traffic out of Toronto will be to Buffalo, nearest U.S. border city.

The weekend weather outlook for southern Ontario promises sunny weather and temperatures in the high 70s for Saturday and early Sunday, with some showers late Sunday bringing cooler weather for Monday.

Metro Montreal Tops 2,000,000 Population Mark

OTTAWA (CP) — Metropolitan Montreal has topped the 2,000,000 population mark to become Canada's third largest urban area. What's more, rival Toronto is falling further behind.

Population of Metropolitan Montreal rose to 2,059,543 from 1,741,272, between 1951 and mid-1961 census, the bureau of statistics said today in a preliminary report of the June 1 census.

The Metro Toronto census area grew by 1,000,000 mark, increasing to 1,798,491 inhabitants from 1,117,470 but trailed the Montreal area by 260,830 — a wider gap than in 1951.

Toronto's only consolation is that it had a faster growth rate —19.7 per cent compared with 18.2 per cent for Metro Montreal.

However, another pair of rivals in the West, expanded even more rapidly.

Metropolitan Calgary's population jumped by 50 per cent in the five years to 272,764 from 181,932. Edmonton's population grew by 30 per cent to 330,704 from 254,463.

CHANGE COME SLOWLY

In each of the four cases the city proper grew more slowly, and the city's share of population actually declined to 857,453 from 667,769. Population of industrial Metropolitan Toronto —not the same thing as the census area — rose to 1,360,500 from 1,359,028.

Montreal city grew to 1,155,178 persons from 1,109,439.

Calgary city increased to 342,

Boy Scouts Will Stage Hunt for Stolen Money

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Operation Bank Loot" Saturday may be the most fruitful Boy Scout hunt campaign in Peterborough Boy Scouts ever staged.

The Peterborough hope to get some of the reward offered for the return of $4,000 lost in the Aug. 31 Havelock bank robbery.

Police, the scouts and lead-ers will leave at 8 a.m. by bus for Chalk Lake 25 miles from Lake area to search for the money.

Two men were arrested in the area, about 30 miles northeast of Havelock, after an intense bushland manhunt, but the money and securities have not been found.

A spokesman for the bank's insurance company said his company would pay the Scouts' transportation costs.

No reward has yet been announced, but he said it would be a figure would be set next week.

Neighborly News Editor Arthur Phelps is also pre-recording his radio show at 3.00 p.m. for network broadcast on Sunday morning. His regular reports of activities outside the major cities and towns are gleaned from the weekly newspapers and his program for Saturday will include items selected from the newspapers in and around the Belleville-Trenton area. Both Keith Edgar, the stage of the CBC Showtent with the Ontario-Quebec Gardener.

Bill Beasey, who is better known on the air as "Country Bill," will originate his regular Saturday morning program Ontario Roundup "live" from the stage of the CBC Showtent from 10.00 a.m. to 11.00 a.m.

Four Suspects Sent for Trial In Bank Holdup

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Four bank holdup suspects were committed for trial Thursday after a preliminary hearing ended and died in his jail cell shortly before he was due in court.

Coroner A. E. McNeil said Hermyle Lalonde, about 36, died of a coronary thrombosis.

Soon after his death police said they had established he was a brother of two other men charged. He had been known previously under two aliases—George Wilson, the name under which he was charged, and Marcel Lalonde.

He carried a driver's licence under the name of Lemieux with a Ville St. Michel, Que., address.

He had been charged jointly with the Aug. 31 armed holdup of a Hayworth bank village with Claude Lalonde, 23, Yvon Lalonde, 31, Roger Poitzer, 31, and Roger Morel, 31, all of Montreal.

About $232,800 in cash and securities was taken from the bank, a branch of the Toronto-Dominion. Search parties have scoured miles of bushland, but the money has not been recovered.

Hasty Pees Hold Reunion In Armouries on Weekend

The sixteenth annual reunion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will be held here over the Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

Some 300 members of the famous infantry regiment which wrote a blazing page in Canadian history in World War II are expected to attend.

A special feature of the reunion will be a Memorial Service scheduled for Sunday, October 8th, at the Station St. Armouries.

The service will be a solemn tribute to the memory of the late beloved padre of the regiment, Lieut.-Col. the Rev. J. Frederick Goforth, M.C., D.D. who passed away in Brantford on May 18, 1961.

The service will be conducted by Canon A. B. McConnell, Rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church here, and a former chaplain of the regiment.

Registration for the reunion takes place at the Bridge St. Communities Hall on Friday, Saturday morning.

Reminiscences periods will take place in the armouries messes from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., and 7.30 p.m. to 11.30 p.m. Saturday.

There will be a dance in the armouries (upstairs) Saturday night from 8.30 to 11.30 p.m.

A general meeting of the regimental association takes place in the armouries at 10.30 o'clock Sunday morning.

The reunion parade will fall in at the armouries at 11.15 Sunday morning and march to the cenotaph for the service at noon.

At 1.45 p.m. Sunday the reunion banquet will be held in the ANAF auditorium. It is expected the Brigadier J. Cameron, a former commanding officer of the regiment will be the guest speaker.

A reunion get-together will take place in the armouries later.

Say 7 of 10 Syrians Glad Of Changed Rule

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

DAMASCUS (AP) — About 70 per cent of Syria's people are glad to be rid of the oppressive rule of President Nasser and his United Arab Republic, informed Syrian sources say.

The people were sick of the stiff import restrictions, crippling economic decrees, the secret police, terror and unheard-of taxes imposed by Nasser from Cairo.

The remainder of the population still stands by Nasser, these informants say. A small but vocal segment of Syria's 4,300,000 people, it consists of rabid pan-Arabists and the Nasser-worshipping students.

Whether the revolutionary regime of Brigadier Abdel Karim Kassem can command the loyalty of the Moslem-leading majority is another question.

Composed of known rightists and professional men, the revolutionary cabinet may prove not revolutionary enough for some Syrians, possibly even for the vast segments of the army that installed it.

Despite the regime's neutralism, the U.S. Embassy in Damascus lean clearly to the West. Syrians are sensitive to accusations of Communist leanings in Kassem.

The country's four political parties have thrown in their lot with the revolutionaries but ensured their control and temporary government to stay temporary. Early elections as soon as possible.

Magistrate Wills told him that he thought he was still a very serious offence.

New Fact Book Reviews Growth Of Life Insurance

During the 1950's the amount of life insurance owned by Canadians grew more than two and a quarter times as much as income after taxes.

This is reported — along with a host of other facts — in the seventh edition of "Canadian Life Insurance Facts," published and now being distributed by the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association.

At the end of 1960, the new Fact Book reports, 94 million Canadian policyholders owned $47 billion of life insurance, or nearly three times the amount held in 1950. Since the middle '50's life insurance in force has increased year-to-year, compared to a six-fold increase in the previous ten years.

The average amount of life insurance owned per policyholder increased from about $500 at the end of 1960 — more than 4½ times the 1950 figure of $1,130, and the corresponding 1960 figure of $1,200.

Life insurance benefits paid in 1960 totalled $360 million — a rate of $685 million a week. In addition the life insurance companies in Canada paid out over $103 million under accident and sickness policies.

Child Severely Hurt When Hit By Transport

PETON — Five-year old Rory Campbell was rushed to Kingston General Hospital yesterday, suffering from severe injuries sustained when struck by a large truck. The child had been playing with the son of a neighbor, Mrs. Ora Main, who was raking leaves. The little boy suddenly darted into the road from the front of his own home, in the path of the truck driven by Clayton David Lukiater, 24, of Peterborough. The truck is owned by Ben Smith Trucking Ltd.

Taken to Prince Edward County Hospital, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Campbell, of Ontario Street, was attended by Dr. LeRoy Hall. Injuries included a broken neck, skull fracture and a broken left arm. One of the boy's arms was torn off as a result of the impact. Constable Allan Marvin investigated.

33 Persons Die In Train Crash

HAMBURG (AP) — Railroad officials today counted 33 persons dead and at least 41 injured after a packed suburban passenger train crashed into a halted repair train Thursday night.

The toll might rise, officials said. State-owned railroad said. A member of the line's board is on the critical list.

The passenger train had just left Berliner Tor station in downtown Hamburg when it rammed into the repair train which was loaded with wide steel beams used in bridge building. The lead car was derailed like a sword 15 yards deep into the forward unit of the three-car passenger train, decapitating at least one man.

Britain Cuts Bank Rate To 6½ Per cent

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — Britain cut its bank rate to 6½ per cent from seven per cent today, indicating the country's financial position has improved both at home and abroad.

The Bank of England's interest rate governs interest rates on all loans throughout the country and is the lever by which the government can credit facilities.

Last July, the rate was boosted to seven per cent from 5½ to make borrowing difficult and it is a curb inflationary spending.

Since then bank loans generally declined and an unprecedented £300,000,000 and various credit facilities have been severely restricted.

At the same time, the higher interest rate has attracted a flow of investment funds from abroad. This strengthened the pound sterling on the international monetary exchanges.

FOUND RISES

During the last month the pound gained almost three cents on the United States dollar and now hovers at about $2.81½, the highest it has been for a year.

The British government supported the pound in terms of U.S. dollars at rates varying between $2.78 and $2.82.

The flow of funds into Britain also brought a substantial increase in the country's gold reserves during September. However, most of the new reserves were used to repay funds borrowed from continental bankers and the International Monetary Fund.

The average Briton's position will little improved by the lowered bank rate. Treasury officials make it clear that lending, although cheaper, will still be restrained.

IN MEMORIAM

BATEMAN. — In loving memory of our dear father, Frederick Bateman, who passed away October 6th, 1960.

At night the silent stars look down On a lonely grave in a lonely town, Where sleeps the one we can't forget, The best of fathers we ever met.

Memory is a treasure,
No one can steal,
Death has been kind,
And left us that.

—Sadly missed and always remembered by his wife, daughter and son-in-law Wesley.

BATEMAN. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Frederick Bateman, who died October 6th, 1960.

Those we love don't go away,
They walk beside us every day,
Unseen, unheard but always near,
And still we miss them every year.

—Sadly missed by his wife, Mary, daughter and son-in-law Wesley.

BUSH. — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Mrs. William (Ivy) Bush, who died October 6th, 1960.

Dad, you would give it we could Help, Dad, in the quiet old way:
To bear your voice, your every Word, your smile.

To sit with you and chat awhile.
To pass you have a chance
To listen him with calm
Attention, to unburden the heart-
Till you see his vacant chair,
Never remembered by wife

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Top-seeded industrials took over as market leaders as speculative interest lagged in moderately heavy morning trading today.

Foods, utilities and banks and financial institutions all contributed to a general industrial upswing, as the loss speculative to show volume as seen in recent sessions was Willsey-Coughlan— more than 153,000 shares.

In Rode, Burns, Canada Packers B, Dominion Stores, Salada Shirriff and Weston A all gained in the ¼ to ¾ range, while among utilities, Bell Telephone, BC Telephone and CPR, Great Lakes Power rose in a similar range.

Stock of the morning session was the 3% drop by Interprovincial Pipe Line to 74 on a volume of 3,000 shares.

On index industrials rose .37 to 206.73, golds .05 to 87.41 and base metals .37 to 200.44. Western oils fell .37 to 97.39 and the index 11 a.m. volume was 847,000 shares compared with 1,180,000 at the same time Thursday.

The base metals market was stronger in the senior list with gains in the five to 20 cent range going to Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting, Falconbridge, Ventures and Denison.

Gold trade was light with 37 Campbell Red Lake down ¼.

In weak western oil trading, Central Del Rio, Canadian Devonian and Home B all lost a few cents.

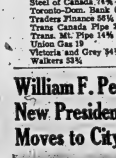
On Thursday, industrial action played second billing to a surging speculative market in heavy trading.

Area Mines, Lake Dufault, Wiltsey-Coughlan, Hackney Red Lake, Coulee Lead and Zinc and McWatters Gold all had large volumes, with the first four finishing on the daily most active list. Area had the most serious drop in the penny mines —35 cents—with volume of 174,-000 shares.

Canadian Ingersoll Rand had the day's biggest individual rise, 225 to 235 with a volume of 65 shares on news that the U.S.-based parent company has offered to buy all shares at 260 (Canadian).

U.S. Ford struck a bright note when it advanced 53 to $112 in light turnover to reach a new high.

Weakness showed prominently in bonds, banks and financial institutions and refining oils, with widespread fractional losses predominant. Trans-Prairie Pipeline A and B calmly attempted to rally the financial group by recording new highs of 36½ and 35 respectively with gains of 1¼ and 2½.



On index, industrials fell 1.16 to 205.86, while golds rose .15 to 87.36; base metals .48 to 200.07 and western oils .04 to 97.81. Final volume was 1,290,000 shares compared with 3,155,000 Wednesday.

William F. Peck, New President, Moves to City

William F. Peck has been elected president of American Optical Company Canada Limited. He had been vice president and general manager since November 15, 1960.

Mr. Peck joined American Optical in 1934 as the Bureau of Visual Science in Southbridge, Mass., corporate headquarters of the optical firm. He later was transferred to the company's instrument division in Buffalo, N.Y., where he served, 19 years in various capacities.

In 1953, he was transferred back to Buffalo as general manager of the Motion Picture Products and Division Todd-AO. This division produced the famous Todd-AO technique used in the successful productions as "Around the World in 80 Days" and "Oklahoma!" He served as director of engineering, assistant general manager of the Southbridge Group and as assistant to the president before being named vice president and general manager of the Canadian operation.

In his new capacity as President, Mr. Peck is responsible for all phases of the Canadian company's activities. He has taken up residence following the recent move of the company's head office to Belleville, Ontario.

Kiwanians Give $500 to Work Among Retarded In Trenton

TRENTON — Trenton Kiwanians were praised for their interest in the retarded children of the area by Mrs. K. J. Reid, representing the Trenton-Brighton and District Association for Retarded Children, at last night's meeting of the Trenton Kiwanis Club.

Recently, the club staged a one-day Gas-O-Rama, the proceeds of which were donated to the association. Kiwanians manned gasoline pumps at three local service stations, having previously sold tickets for gasoline to hundreds of Trenton and area motorists. A cheque for $500 was given to Mrs. Reid by vice-president Howard Aziz at last night's meeting. Miss Shackleton and Mrs. Weese, Les Platt and Jim Cochrane, and other club members who had been active in the campaign were thanked by Mrs. Reid.

Mrs. Reid recently attended a national conference of the Retarded Association in Vancouver. She said that there are 150 local associations throughout the country, with 13,015 members, and that 1,752 pupils attended 433 classes for retarded children.

Mrs. Reid said that the local association would need an additional $1500 before the construction work could be started on the new school for the retarded children of the area. The school will be located on Highway 2, almost midway between Trenton and Brighton. In November the association will hold a tea-ride drive for funds.

Past lieutenant-governor Ted Parker presented 10-year perfect attendance pins to John Saylor and Jim Cochrane, two strong, charter members of the club, at last night's meeting.

WELL OF CONVENTION

Ron Jeffery gave a brief report of the recent Kiwanis convention in Quebec City and IL.-Gov. Al Weaver told the members of the splendid work done by members of the Bath-Millhaven and Collins Bay clubs in converting an old construction shack into a youth centre.

Lt.-Gov. Weaver also inducted new members Doug. Adams and Ted Kinsella. Mr. Adams was introduced by Bruce Hutchison and Mr. Kinsella was introduced by Ray Maddocks.

In the reading of communications, Geoffrey Robinson thanked the club for the help received for the banian hockey game. Hockey will start on October 31st at the Trenton Community Gardens and club members were given the evening off to canvass at coaches and managers.

SAFETY CAMPAIGN

Ted Snider, reporting for the safety committee, said that pamphlets would be printed and distributed to first-year students at local schools. Mr. Snider also said the committee gave one Kimer flag to each school annually. He said that this month prizes and certificates would be given to school children who were seen being observant in the six major safety areas by town street while riding bikes or crossing streets on foot. Mr. Snider said that Kimer safety trophy had been recognized across Canada as a means of making children safety conscious.

Ted Parker reported on inter-club activities. During September, Trenton Kiwanians attended meetings in Belleville and Marmora.

Al Loney, reporting for the vocational guidance committee, said that the club would give a $100 bursary to a high school student who will be selected at a later date.

He said the club would visit the finished personal workshop at Smithfield this month.

Walter Lachine, reporting for the agriculture committee, said that the club had donated $50 for prizes for 4-H Club members at the International Plowing Match.

Howard Aziz told the members that the club had been invited to visit RCAF Station Trenton sometime this month.

Attend Opening Of Exhibition In Montreal

TRENTON — On Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Campbell of Trenton and Mrs. John Garrett of Glen Miller attended the opening of an exhibition of painting, by the late Randolph S. Hewton, R.C.A. in the Walter Klinghoff Gallery, in Montreal.

Randolph Hewton, as well as being an artist of note was president of the Studio Building Paper Company, Mr. Hewton lived at Glen Miller where the head office of the company is located, for a number of years prior to his death in the spring of 1960.

Also present at the opening were Mrs. G. V. Morrison and Mr. and Mrs. C. Wes. Desmore of Laguna Beach, California, who have been living at Glen Miller for the past few weeks. Mrs. Morrison and Mrs. Desmore are cousins of Mr. Hewton.

A. Y. Jackson, Edwin Holgate and Dr. Arthur Lessimer of the original Group of Seven, of Toronto visited the exhibition also attended the opening of the exhibition.

Hubert Campbell Jr., Duncan Campbell and Rose Anne Campbell, students at the exhibition along with the other members of their family.

On Tuesday, Mrs. F. J. Taylor of Trenton visited the gallery to view the more than 50 examples of Hewton's work.

Several of Hewton's pictures have been purchased by the National Gallery at Ottawa, the Quebec Provincial Museum and the Art Gallery of Hamilton.

The exhibition will continue until October 18.

Central Bridge 30 Field Workers Out on Strike

TRENTON — Jim Duncan, works' manager at the Central Bridge Company plant in Trenton said yesterday that "the strike of erection crews, called by the International Association of Bridge and Ornamental Iron workers, four weeks ago, has not affected the local plant to any perceptible 'degree as yet. Around 30 field workers connected with the Trenton plant walked off the job in September.

The union has asked for a 37-cent-an-hour wage increase. The company has offered a 15-cent hourly wage increase, plus welfare benefits. The 15-cent increase would bring the men's hourly wage up to $1.30 an hour.

Mr. Duncan said that the slow up in work resulting from the strike has not immediately affected the work force in the shop.

GENERAL MEETING

The RCAF Ladies' Curling Club held an executive meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Grace Pattillo, on Tuesday night to discuss activities for the coming season. Tuesday night four executive members met with the men's club executive members to discuss mutual problems.

There will be a general club meeting on Thursday, Oct. 19, at 2 p.m. at the 6 Repair Depot Recreation Centre. Club membership is open to all RCAF and DND dependents. The $1 registration fee may be paid at the general meeting.

CUTS RIBBON

The County Herald, published in Fesserton, reports that recently 89-year-old Joseph Craddock, an uncle of Ken Craddock of Trenton, cut the ribbon at a ceremonial in connection with the official opening of a new two-roomed public school in that community.

Mr. Craddock was present at the opening of the former school in 1884 — as a pupil.

Fesserton is west of Coldwater, Ont.

Weekend Livestock Review

Old Steam Traction Engines Are Feature at Plow Match

VETERAN THRESHER — Frank Stapley, 83, of Stirling, oils cylinder on his old Bell steam traction engine on display at the International Plowing Match.

Vintage models of steam traction engines of the early 1900's which around the turn of the century used to cover the Bell threshing circuit are creating almost as much interest at the International Plowing Match in the latest in mechanized farm equipment on display.

Ever since the International opened on Wednesday the non-colipped traction engine of the engineers and also on chilly fall mornings before threshing operations got underway, for as many of the threshing crews as could crowd in.

Although he spent a lifetime, 1906 to 1946 in the steam engine once used by Prince Edward Mayor Harvey J. McFarland on the Central Ontario Exhibition Circuit.

Both big engines are in as good working order as the day they came out of the factory, but in contrast to the McFarland machine, which is now a museum piece, the Bell engine is still being used for threshing.

NEVER BURNED BARN

"We used the steam engine and our threshing separator for 15 years before changing over to tractor power," said Mr. Stapley, whose proud boast is that he has never had a fire in the lifetime of threshing with steam engines.

Many match visitors marvel at the almost silent action of the big engines as their drivers-hands keep steadily turning throughout the day for the 3,000 lbs. of coal.

Then each day as the stint ends, they oil the moving parts of the two steamers just in the line, with occasional shrill whistles from the engines and clouds of white steam recalling to the older residents of the rural areas.

Traction engines — in other words self-propelled steam engines — were one of the latest developments of the steam power era. Previously, they were called "portables" and had to be hauled by horses from one traction engine to the other.

And the "cab over engine" phase, now a common term used in the trucking industry, was developed as a refinement for the traction engine.

The Bell traction engine was used every season since 1906 up to 1946 by the same lumber in the Stirling and Campbellford district. In 1946 it was moved to L'Amable where its 30 steam horsepower, which is actually about 60 to 64 brake horsepower (the measurement used for modern internal combustion engines), was turned to sawing lumber until 1956. Since that time it has been as Mr. Stapley puts it, "partly retired", only being used on occasion for threshing each season since.

Both the Bell steam engine and the Decker thresher are far from having outlived their usefulness, however. Both have been in almost constant action for the benefit of visitors to the International Plowing Match now entering its smooth operation - both a source of comment for many who have grown up, never seen the likes of them before and a thing of delight to those who can remember the traction engine - thresher days from their youth.

Educational or Professional?

Dr. Murray Ross, president of York University, told a meeting of university student representatives recently that "students today are concerned with education not for its own sake but for the job it will bring. I consider the university should be the most important producer of creativity we have."

There is much truth in this statement and one may ask where the implied blame lies. Is it on the student who seeks to establish his own niche in our society where he will be secure, assured of a steady and reasonably adequate income so that he and his family may live out their own private lives relatively free of worry?

Surely we cannot condemn a person for wishing to achieve that position wherein he is self-supporting, comfortable and not a liability upon the state.

On the other hand, in a democratic society, if it is to survive, we must have more from our citizens than just self-sufficiency, especially if they have received a good education. Our society was created by vigorous individuals who were not content to leave life in a state of status quo. It can only be maintained, together with the incumbent advantages, when it offers the individual, through a maintenance of vigorous and knowledgeable leadership on the part of its citizens. This is the basic cost or responsibility which its citizens must assume in order to keep our society alive.

That our university, and even high school, students, should seek education only as a means to an end, rather than a goal in itself, may well be a reflection upon the manner in which they have been brought up. If the parents and senior citizens of the society are willing to let their responsibilities and civic duties slide in favor of establishing only their personal well-being, are the youth to be blamed if they mistakenly assume that this attitude is a correct and proper outlook on life?

Perhaps the universities are to blame for this attitude also. Have they not, to a degree, reflected society's attitude that education is a means to an end and not a goal worthy of intensive and intelligent pursuit?

There is not a Canadian university today, to the best of our knowledge, which encourages the student to seek out and chart his own course of education—and we mean here education, not professional scholastic or technical training. What Canadian university today allows a student entire freedom in selecting his courses of study without advising him that there are certain "prerequisites" necessary if he is to expect a degree?

It matters not whether the student has any inclination or aptitude towards these prerequisites. Take them he must and pass them he must, if he is to get that all-important sheepskin at graduation. Along the line he is allowed to get some frosting on the brown bread through freedom of choice regarding his "options."

If our university authorities are going to demand that individual initiative, leadership and education should be the goals of our youth, then they should encourage it through offering each student the freedom to select his own courses of study and should only act in an advisory capacity if they feel his choice is unwise. It should be noted that performances in the Toronto Rico and Bombay, it is stressing, has not yet been completed and has implement side effects that need to be eliminated.

Surely Western science is not the last word in medical research. If, Equally surely it would be a far more effective means of aiding the entire world than our present stop-gap fiddling.

Farthings Souvenirs

Brantford Expositor

By order of the Powers That Be in Britain, the famous farthing is legal tender no longer. The authorities have been busy "calling in" these little coins, but, due either to the carelessness or a sudden yen to retain souvenirs, hundreds of thousands of farthings remain unredeemed.

The Royal Mint estimated some months ago, that there had been 200 million in circulation, but the records showed that another 280 million must have become holed up somewhere or else had gone quite literally down the drain.

The farthing (Anglo-Saxon feorths, a fourth, plus ing) is a small bronze coin nominally worth a quarter of a penny. It originated as a silver piece in the reign of King Edward I and so remained until the reign of Queen Anne (1702-1714). King James I authorized the issuance of copper farthings but they did not come into general use until 1672. In the reign of Charles II, tin farthings also had a brief vogue. Incidentally the figure of Britannia on the reverse of the coins up to 1897 is said to have had one of the the Duchess of Richmond as a model. Charles had another copper farthing minted and it continued in use until 1860 when it was replaced by the smaller bronze kind.

Farthings henceforth may become valuable as collectors' items. Many people may have much value of their own after 1961.

However, one may be sorry, like The Times of London, to see the thing discarded altogether as one regrets discarding any obsolete word that has been kept in case it may come in useful but never does."

Seven of Ten Go Hungry

Vancouver Sun

Seven out of every ten babies born into the world today will never have enough to eat.

The North American food surplus distributed among the undernourished people of the world today would give them all a squirming baby in three cups or rice every 17 days.

Every day 140,000 more people are added to the world's population.

In 30 years the world population will be almost double what it is today.

These are the facts that make all current efforts at relief, education, conservation, population essentially useless. If humanity escapes nuclear massacre it will be because survival will violate to its own fertility.

Canada can pride herself on having a pound of meat a day in spite of a billion dollars in relief for the hungry. Well-nourished, perhaps enough for one square meal each.

No intelligent farmer would think of raising sheep that way — putting them on a diet for a week because he found a way to starve them more slowly.

What sheep raiser would in a cheap, safe, sure convenient local concentrate.

We have already developed one for the pampered dogs of rich owners.

A privately - developed pill for humans has been worked out by Dr. Norman Borlaug, working in Puerto Rico and Bombay, it is stressing, has not yet been completed and has implement side effects that need to be eliminated.

Surely Western science is not the last word in medical research. If, Equally surely it would be a far more effective means of aiding the entire world than our present stop-gap fiddling.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

AT IT ALL THE TIME

We all save great admiration for those people who having lived lives of ordered devotion, sing sin turn from their evil ways and become outstanding and useful citizens. Occasionally this comes about through a mere exercise of the will. Usually—in fact almost always —it is the working out of a profound religious conviction.

We honor these sinners who have become saints. How much better, however, are those people who have always lived the good life and whose growth in character has been gradual and continuous. No one is perfect. Anyone who believes he is a saint and sets himself up as such is a vastly mistaken person, and usually an object of ridicule among his fellow men. And he should be. But there are people who, like the great preacher Phillips Brooks, can say: "I never prayed for what I was not to be a Christian. From my earliest memories I was trained in the things of faith."

This is ideal, but unfortunately the fact that one does not always obtain. A Christian home means a home in which the parents are constantly aware of their responsibility to keep the process of Christian nurture in operation and in which the children, by themselves in a fellowship of love and religious faith. There may be some protest on the part of children, but this is not serious. What is serious is the continuous program of Christian nurture continuously carried out.

It takes time to develop moral character. It inevitably takes time. But it is worth all it costs.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 9th, 1941

What is believed to be one of the largest pumpkins grown in the district was harvested by Charles McPaul, Wellington farmer, this week. The pumpkin tipped the scales at 130 pounds, and was one of a large group grown in the McPaul field.

Wood Fair was a wash-out on Friday, in the real sense of the term. Rain fell throughout the entire day completely ruining what were undoubtedly prospects for the best fair in years. President Charles Rush, secretary Fred Curry and the Board of Directors had canvassed every possibility to prevent the fair-going public an attractive program and entertainment. New features, never before presented by the local Society had been lined up for and were on hand.

Fred Hyland of South Front Street walked into the police station yesterday and was quite displeased over his receipt from a slot machine at the Tic Toc Grill, he complained, "I played the machine and should have won 45 cents, but the thing only gave a quarter in return for my winnings", objected the complainant.

At a labor meeting held of Corby Public Library Board last evening the librarian reported that the month of September found a new record set for circulation when over 201 persons joined the Library, 99 adults and 102 children. This overwhelming figure sets a new high mark over the previous record for September 1940 of 162. If this number is any indication of the future growth of library facilities it would seem that the library is one of the city's most thriving institutions.

30 YEARS AGO

October 6th, 1931

Friday afternoon some pupils of Queen Victoria School had a swimming gala in the pool under the supervision of instructor Ralph Sprague. Prior to plans a grand inter-school meet later on between the winners of the different schools. In the races yesterday, Sean Way won the 50-yard free style and Jack Brooks captured the 50-yard backstroke. Jack Brooks and Ernie Parks won the 25-yard breaststroke. Ernie Parks was second. In the Prey class, Eddie Donnen won the 50 yard free style, Billy Hall the backstroke second Host was successful in winning both the 50-yard backstroke and the 25 yard breaststroke. The boys are taking keen interest in the competition.

Something of a record was achieved yesterday when a number of young men enjoyed a swim in the bay — at least they said they enjoyed it.

Better Late Than Never

Hamilton Spectator

Precisely one year late the Hamilton Board of Education, in decision to continue the services of Donald Gordon as head of Canada Council, has done both ways. While the delay has been grossly unfair to Mr. Gordon and possibly, as a former minister of transport, Lionel Chevrier, apprehensive to the operation of the railway, we can only say at this stage that it is better late than never to take silver.

It is inconceivable that any other course should have been considered. Mr. Gordon's record of public service has been outstanding and he has fulfilled the difficult, thankless task of running the Canada Council railway system with unquestioned competence. We can only base ground on which his reappointment could have been questioned and that was purely political. Backbenchers in the House of Commons have been snarling at the CNR president were motivated, we suspect, largely by revenge for former lashings he has administered. They were also speaking for a minority, and it turned out on a very small minority, of labor unionists. The attack was a blessing in disguise since it brought Mr. Gordon's labor gunners into the open and may have done something to influence the government's final decision. We can only hope that cabinet ministers will be less timid to offer a defence if there are future attacks.

Tough Training

Hamilton Spectator

An Atlanta, Georgia, pediatrician says every new-born baby has the instinct to swim and should be thrown into the water because at that stage it has "barely evolved from the fish state." Using the same Darwinian logic we suppose at two months it should be tossed into a tree to hang by its tail.

Strictly Personal

It Is Not Always a Matter of Mood

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"You must have felt depressed, when you wrote that column," said a friend the other day, "but I suppose it's hard to control your moods."

Nothing could be further from the truth. Everything we know about the creative process comes from giants like Mozart to popular like Harris — indicates that your conscious state of mind has nothing to do with what you write, or paint or compose.

Mozart wrote most of his gayest melodies while suffering deeply, both physically and mentally. Balzac drafted all his Droll Stories while reclothed in rags, pursued by creditors, laughed at by society, and wrapped in the gloom of loneliness. And of course, Edgar Allan Poe's Louise Stevenson was racked with pain when he was turning out his achingly sad tales and his charming poems for children. Such examples could be multiplied indefinitely in the history of all the arts.

The creative person works unconsciously with his mind, which is always there when he is sleeping. By the time he sits down at the typewriter, or approaches the easel, his ideas and feelings have been completed — all that remains is the physical job at hand.

An admirer once asked Anton Rubinstein, the composer, "Master, how, when and where did think of the divine motif of your Ninth Symphony?"

"Well, it was like this," Rubinstein replied. "I was sitting in Kahlenberg, and when it got hot I got hungry. I sat down by a little brook and had some ham and cheese. And just as I opened the greasy paper that darn tune popped into my head!"

Much the same is true in original scientific researches. Dozens of scientists have testified that their best ideas have come to them while they were sleeping, or fishing, or strolling in the woods — and not while they were consciously grappling with a problem.

Creativity is not a matter of being in the right "mood," as so many amateurs think, but of the man who waits to get into the right mood, and then lets the best ideas shake him; just as the man who sits down determined to write a masterpiece often finds that his words are wooden and his sentences stilted.

We have scarcely begun to recognize the enormous power of the unconscious mind, which is the true source of creativity.

Stove Side Work of Art

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Australia is a long way from the art centres of the West-ern hemisphere but it seems that it has been bitten by the "arty" bug. Not only Australia, Canada. When we say Canada, we refer to paintings that are part of, figuratively, the fine art way up as upside-down or sideways — if there's a right side up — or to grotesque wooden carvings or scraps of metal welded to form nothing on earth.

Among the exhibits unwrapped at a modern art show being held by the municipal council of Sydney, Australia, in the State of New South Wales, was a large sheet of steel, enamelled on one side with a grey, mottled design and with a neat hole drilled in one corner.

Nothing much surprised modern art exhibitors and the organizers of the show were valiantly trying to hang the work when one of the staff of the council's gas supply section strolled into the gallery. A startled expression came into his cool the show one of its exhibits.

"The congestion," he said, and could prove by the address on the wrapping, was the side of a gas stove delivered to the wrong part of the town half by mistake.

We regret that the gasman came on the scene when he did. It would have been fun to read what the critics said about it.

Nerves, Among Other Things, Can Cause Little Blisters

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What causes outbreaks of "little blisters" on the hands? — Mrs. J. R."

There's a substantial observation among many doctors, I suspect, I'm sure I'm not exaggerating when I say "nearly all" skin troubles, if not all, are sort of thing that often has some connection with jitters.

I am not saying that "nerves" is the sole cause, but I can't help concluding that "nerves" can hold the balance of power. We know that tension has all sorts of physical effects. Nervousness has the nasty and natural habit of jumping in as a "trigger" for some condition that hasn't quite had the steam to break out under its own power.

Nervous irritations, stomach upsets, headaches and asthma are outstanding examples of this kind of psychosomatic. Today we're discussing skin.

I have the strongest belief in the reality of "psychosomatic ailments," but sometimes less patience with people who put all the emphasis on the "psycho" and ignore completely the "somatic." The whole point of the word, of the idea, is that many of our troubles are a mixture of both.

When a tense, high-strung individual has persistent skin troubles, it is no less than common sense to try to find out precisely how a more placid, jolly life, and one that might be a perfectionist. Sedatives or tranquilizers may help for a bit.

But the "somatic" or physical condition is still there. So for these "little blisters" on the hands, and sometimes elsewhere, there are some of the possibilities:

Allergy — sensitivity to something you're eating. Poison ivy is obvious; but other plants, even polished ones in the house, may have a milder affect. Metal jewelry, paint, glue or stain used in a hobby are just a few other possibilities.

Another is nummular eczema or "housewife's eczema," which doesn't happen to be limited to housewives. Anyone who's a naturally dry skin who frequently gets the hands wet is a possible candidate for little patches of redness and rash. The defatting action of soap and water can irritate them, too. Doctors, dentists and dishwashers sometimes encounter this problem.

Are you taking medicine? Aspirin, headache remedies, tonics, laxatives, vitamins, or any medication have reactions in some people. Oddly, sometimes a drug will cause a rash or skin reaction if you ingest again and again in the same spot. It's known as a "fixed drug eruption."

There are still other possibilities. Sensitivity to sun, nutritional deficiencies and some rather uncommon metabolic conditions. To help sort the likely from the unlikely, consult a skin specialist. Often one "visit will do the trick, but sometimes a drug will cause a rash or skin reaction if you ingest again and again in the same spot. It's known as a "fixed drug eruption."

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is a person in a coma capable of hearing? Is it possible to talk to him or around him?" — E. D."

Yes, a person in a coma is not such a thing as a borderline condition, someone rising into the semi-conscious state, starting and understanding brief conscious periods, yet giving no sign of consciousness. Not often — but sometimes. Then that's what I make it a rule never to say. In the presence of an unconscious person anything I wouldn't say if I knew him to be awake and listening.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In their hunger for excitement, the newspapers and news cameras make much of demonstrations such as those in Britain regarding the nuclear bomb. When 1,000, 1,700 people are involved in a rumpus in Trafalgar Square, it is forgotten that 1,700 is about the number who will turn out to a second-rate prize fight. If a few hundred people gather anywhere, for whatever purpose, no one is surprised. But these 52 horse players will gather at a flea-bitten race track. And a million, or two, or three million fellow citizens stay at home, depending on the size of the city.

The big news, of course, is the fact that ten million and a half or seven million stay home, don't get excited, don't demonstrate and don't even bother to create a scene.

News, you might say, reflects public interest.

Does this, then, mean that the public is not interested in itself, or only in crime and personalities exceptional to the rule? Or that the people about whose profession is to terrorize us is the sublime indifference of the mass of mankind to news of any kind.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FLATTERY

How unfortunate that the most respectable of human beings seem so inclined to hear their way to the vein of happiness through bribe.

Not with so much money, but with such subtle things as the insincere questionings and flattery.

Flattery is the thing most used for it slips down so much easier, and the only thing before you know it you have become sickened by its overwetness.

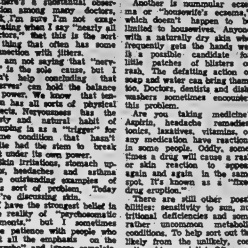
It takes a really great personal man or woman to smile in the face of flattery, all the time understanding its vaporous art.

In reading history you learn of the flatterers who abounded in low, many an austere monarch stricken from his throne through the studied art of flattery.

It is written that those whom the gods would destroy they first make mad. But I believe that the gods have destroyed more through flattery than by any other means. For this flattery business is the path of least resistance and first steps of all gifts of spiritual wisdom.

He who achieves wants no flattery. What he wants is appreciation and just public favor.

And the more a man honestly achieves, and permanently he achieves, the more appreciation and just public favor.



There is much in this life that is not to the point. There are so many who mistake flattery for praise, but there is no path open to a full realization until they come down with a case of spiritual indigestion.

The sick in mind alone find satisfaction in flattery, and for a while. Like strange and bitter medicine about which they know nothing, they yield to a dose or so to see what happens.

The thing that happens is that he or she who perpetrates gets "worse."

Canadian Lead, Zinc Affected By Subsidy Bill

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy has signed into law a new subsidy bill which increases the concern of Canadian authorities over the future of the American market for Canadian lead and zinc.

The bill, effective Jan. 1 next, provides a federal subsidy for some 400 small American lead and zinc mines to help them compete against big domestic producers and against imports from Canada and other countries.

Canadian worry flows from a fear that the subsidy—a direct reversal of policy under former president Eisenhower — likely will increase American production and further limit the U.S. market.

Since subsidies are to be paid over a period of four years, Canadians feel the new program reduces hope that the United States would be willing to withdraw or modify existing import quotas before it is up at that four-year period.

RECEIVERS PREVIOUS

The Kennedy law is similar to one Eisenhower had vetoed. In the 1960 election campaign, Kennedy maintained that if such a bill had been placed before him, he would have signed it. He did so after Congress passed the necessary legislation in the dying days of the last session just ended.

Ever since the United States imposed restrictions on imports in 1958, Canada and other suppliers have appealed for revisions on the grounds restrictions are contrary to trade obligations, imposing hardships on foreign producers. The annual import quotas are limited to 30 per cent of what a country shipped to the United States in the five-year period 1953-57.

Of a total annual import quota of some 870,000 tons of lead and zinc for all countries, Canada's share is about 200,000 tons. It therefore has a big stake in the American market.

Test Model Of City Hall For Resistance

TORONTO (CP)—A wind-tunnel test Thursday on a model of Toronto's proposed $85,000,000 city hall has produced a flurry of excitement in Ottawa.

Scientists at the University of Toronto's Institute of Aerophysics put a model of the oddly-shaped building in a wind tunnel. Institute director Dr. John Patterson called the building "about the biggest aircraft we've ever heard of."

Forces produced on the outer walls of the building—which consists of two curved, wafer-like towers around a saucer-shaped council chamber — totalled 1½ tension and building stresses. Al times the high winds directed at the model produced a pressure between the two curved sections which tended to push the sections apart.

As a result of these and other findings, architects and structural engineers are incorporating changes in their planning measures. They will not change the appearance of the building, but the supporting design by Viljo Revell of Finland was changed to provide additional suspected wind loads specified by the standard city building code. Revell said Thursday he believed to be the first time in history that a building has been tested aerodynamically before construction.

Sam Rayburn's Cancer Said Beyond Help

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Sam Rayburn, 79-year-old Speaker of the House of Representatives, has cancer and it has spread in such an extent that doctors said Thursday "no further surgery is anticipated."

President Kennedy asked the country to join him and Mrs. Kennedy "in prayer for Speaker Rayburn, who has served his nation so well and so faithfully for so many years."

Dr. Paul Carr on Mr. Sam's stamina, one doctor said, he would have lived for several months, even longer. Another said "two or three weeks" would be likely.

A non-medical side to Rayburn's sad followed Thursday's exploratory surgery the end could come in several days.

When Rayburn laid down his gavel late in August and left Washington for Congress adjourned, he was suffering from what he and doctors called "flagu and hunches. He continued to lose weight while at his Bonham, Tex., home and finally yielded to persuasions of friends and doctors that he enter a hospital for a check-up.

Approval Will Have Certain Conditions

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Municipal Board will attach certain conditions to Toronto's new city hall project if it is approved, Board Chairman J. A. Kennedy said Friday.

One stipulation is likely to be that Toronto sell its present city hall and the land on which it stands and apply the proceeds to the cost of the $25,000,000 new building.

Another condition is likely to be that plans be changed to Metropolitan Toronto for the 240,000 square feet of space it will occupy in the new building be enough to pay for that part of the construction cost of the penthouse period.

Kennedy said board Allan Burton, chairman of the city's redevelopment advisory council, say that if the project does not go ahead, it will cost the city millions of dollars in lost assessment over several generations.

Mr. Kennedy noted that Toronto would be responsible for almost half of Metro's debts as suburbs fall due.

The city's share of Metro's debt of about $400,000,000 sum to 47.5.

The joint city-Metro application for a weekly permission to build the $25,200,273 city hall and civic square without a further vote of the electorate; for the whole project by having Metro borrow $20,798,725; to have Metro purchase the old city hall for $4,-100,000; and to have Metro rent space in the new hall.

Introducing People Is Really Simple

By JACK HUTTON

A 17-year-old friend came home from his first big party the other day steeling over what might seem a simple problem making introductions.

"My girl bawled me out for not introducing her first. But when I did that later she claimed I was "strong again," he moaned.

Introductions can sound like a terribly confusing ceremony. But the experts tell us that they can be as simple as tripling over an etiquette book if you follow three simple rules:

1—When introducing a girl and a boy: Present the boy to the girl, saying the girl's name first.

2—When introducing a girl and a woman: Present the girl to the woman, saying the woman's name first.

3—When introducing a boy and a man: Present the boy to the man, saying the man's name first.

Let's say you're introducing Bruce and Mary. The accepted form is "Mary, may I present (or may I introduces) Bruce Brown, who is Mary Jones."

Nothing is that complicated. It's also correct (and less formal) to just say "Mary, this is Bruce Cook. Bruce, this is Mary Jones."

The experts suggest a slightly different form for introducing friends to your parents. If your mother and father are close at the time, do it this way: "Mom and Dad, may I present (or introduce) Bruce Cook."

It isn't necessary in that case, by the way, to add "Bruce, this is my mother (or father). "You would only be repeating yourself in such circumstances. Mom and Dad already know Bruce's name.

There is, of course, always an exception that proves the rule—and this applies to introductions as well. In the case of introducing a young girl to your father, your minister or anyone whom you think is important, simply present her to him.

For instance, Joyce may be meeting your father for the first time—"Dad, may I introduces Joyce MacDonald." This is the only occasion you have to remember.

What about responses? A good trick—and you may as well learn it now—is to use the other person's name two or three times early in the conversation. That way you'll remember it.

• • •

A famous American postmaster-general was reputed at one time to remember the name of every person he'd met in the previous 30 years. And he did that by using the name as soon as possible after the introductions.

If during the introductions you don't catch someone's name, ask what it was immediately. Believe me, it's far better to do that than to stumble through a conversation without once using the other person's name.

What about meeting another person when you are out on a date? Let's say you know them and your date doesn't. Present your date to the girl and then to her escort. In a case where you don't know her friend, people your date is with, the form will present him to you both.

The secret, of course, is to master the rules and then forget them. The confidence which comes from knowing you're doing things correctly will get you through any tricky situation.

SHEPARD'S FLIGHT

Well, I gather by the mail that no one had trouble answering the question I posed last week—what was the average speed of descent of Alan Shepard's space craft measured vertically?

His Mercury capsule, named Freedom 7, reached a maximum height of approximately 115 miles five minutes after take-off. The descent took about 10 minutes during which time the craft travelled 113 miles measured horizontally.

The answer: 22 miles-per-minute is the average speed.

The trick, of course, is to pick out the only significant fact in the question—the fact that Shepard travelled 115 miles in 10 minutes. Six times 115 gives us the answer.

As several of you mentioned, the interesting thing to do is to imagine what the peak speed must have been. And the question, of course, has to defy several laws of physics to make mathematical sense.

Shepard must theoretically have flown at a peak height, paused at zero miles-per-hour (in theory, of course) and began his descent. His speed at the end of the trip would be zero again. What was it in between?

Several of you suggested that you would like to see more difficult questions which could be worked out in several different ways.

If any of you can think of such a question, send it along. In the meantime, how would you add 1 plus 2 plus 3 plus 4 plus 5 plus 6 plus 7 plus 8 plus 9?

There is one obvious way, of course—but do you see the other method? (Figure how many combinations add up to 9 and it will hit you.)

Many Fine Exhibits Can Be Seen in Journey Around Grounds of 'Tented City'

Bright sunny skies favored the International Plowing Match yesterday as crowds jammed into the "tented city." Wednesday was miserable and cold and spectators huddled in the tents, looking at the various exhibits and sipping hot coffee. However, yesterday the weather being a little bit warmer, the crowds moved out into the fields where the plowing events were taking place, showing a little more interest than they did the previous day.

In the "tented city" on the Vermilyea farm, visitors found some two miles of tents offering food and displaying the latest in modern farm machinery.

The local Ontario Provincial Police headquarters showed some fine safety films throughout the afternoon and evening, curdling scene of what could very easily happen while driving on the highway, could be seen in front of the tent.

A future power plant may be seen in the Ontario Hydro tent, which they hope to be in full use in operation, generating power in the next couple of years.

Various oil companies are located throughout the grounds with their products on display and for those who are spoke minded, showing some fine sports car racing films.

There is always something to keep the kiddies occupied, Prince Edward County Lions have a playground next to the headquarters building and the oil company tents are always giving away free pepper hats and rulers, etc.

There are various wagon tours during the day and each afternoon a parade of sorts, rambles through the streets of the "tented city." Two old-time steam engines which have been used for threshing grain and sawing wood in earlier days, were included in yesterday afternoon's parade.

And for the ladies who aren't interested in tractors and farm implements, there is always a tent a fine tent where one can go and meet friends or just relax while having a cup of coffee.

Those who wish to "go forth into the fields" can hop aboard a touring wagon with a most comfortable bed arranged with bales of hay, or if you are lucky you might get a ride on a wood-

Mass Arrests of Nkrumah's Foes May Be Last Straw

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With barely a month to go before the Queen's official state visit to Ghana, now officially scheduled for Nov. 8, relations between Britain and her African problem child have been steadily growing more strained.

Some British newspapers, smarting under President Kwame Nkrumah's high-handed dismissal of British officials and reports of local hostility towards Britain, have lately suggested that the Queen should stay away until the Ghanaians learn better manners.

This week's mass arrests of Nkrumah's political opponents could have been the last straw for his remaining friends in Britain.

Now The Guardian of Manchester, normally indulgent towards the emergent nations of Africa, says that it is time for left-wingers in Britain ought to view Ghana's preventive detention act with the same distaste they expressed when Rhodesia's Sir Roy Welensky imposed a similar measure last year.

It suggests that if Nkrumah genuinely feared a conspiracy he overthrow his government and arrest only those personal motives, the best proof of good faith would be to agree to a judicial inquiry on the lines of the 1959 Devlin Commission in Nyasaland.

But the harsh impact of Nkrumah's latest and most dictatorial move has been somewhat softened by an official communique from Accra announcing a rapprochement between the Ghanaian president and Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys.

In the joint statement, Britain and Ghana have more or less agreed to overlook past differences, appealing to public opinion in both countries to try to understand the other's problems.

Nkrumah pulled no punches about the basic objective of his foreign policy—"the independence and unity of Africa"—in the speech ending of the remaining colonial regimes"—but he thanked Britain in unexpected bouquet for the way she had "set an example in the peaceful transfer of power in her ex-colonies."

The statement added that "Ghana wished to keep the cold war out of the African continent" and that its policy was to be nonaligned, "neither leaning towards the East nor towards the West."

The country store, in charge of Mrs. G. Merry had for sale many canned goods; jellies; relishes, as well as baskets of rosy-cheeked apples, and assorted vegetables.

Tickets were sold on a lovely quilt, made by Mrs. R. Spencer. Selling tickets on this lovely quilt was Mrs. Hoop. The draw for this will be made on December 19 in the Legion rooms.

Appreciation is extended to the conveners: Mrs. J. Soules, and co-convener, Mrs. D. Bradford for a dainty tea and nicely arranged bazaar.

Springbrook WA Sponsors Tea, Bazaar

Members of Springbrook United Church Women's Association held their annual tea and bazaar on September 29 at the Orange hall.

The hall was decorated with baskets of fall flowers and autumn leaves.

About 100 ladies attended and were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Gordon Webb.

Mrs. R. Fuller was in charge of the devotional, choosing as her theme, "Women at Work." Seven visiting societies were present. The visitors presented a most entertaining program of readings and musical numbers.

Mrs. Murray Mason introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Jaith of Madoc, who spoke on "Family Life in India," her native land.

Following her address, Mrs. Delbert Fleming expressed the sincere thank of the ladies present to Mrs. Jaith.

The bazaar was opened and the ladies repaired to the tables with candy, home cooking, sewing, fancy work and the farmers' booth.

The ladies dispersed to the basement where they were served a lunch of tea, raisin bread, jellies, tarts and cookies.

This brought a pleasant and successful afternoon to a close.

Women's Activities

E.B.W.A. CHRIST CHURCH

On Monday evening members of the Evening Branch of the Women's Auxiliary of Christ Church met in the parish hall for the monthly business meeting.

The meeting was opened with a devotional period conducted by the president, Mrs. D. Donnelly, assisted by Mrs. F. Reid, with Mrs. L. Adams presiding at the piano.

The minutes and correspondence were read and reports by committees were given.

The proceeds of last week's rummage sale were gratifying and another one will be held a little later in the season.

A request was received for baby clothes, badly needed in one of the parishes in northern Alberta. Fluorescine has been bought and the work on this project has already begun.

LITTLE HELPERS PARTY

Mrs. Bell of the Little Helpers' service and, party to be held later this month were discussed and Mrs. Lennox, convener of the Little Helpers.

Mrs. G. Livingstone was present to show colorful slides of Christ Church parish life. It was extremely interesting to everyone to see slides of their families and friends and of various factions of the church and other churches in the surrounding district.

A warm vote of thanks was offered to Mrs. Livingstone.

After the meeting closed tea and delicious fruit bread were served by Mrs. R. Popp and Mrs. G. Cherry.

Wonderful Woolknit

By ALICE ALDEN

The two-piece dress of woolknit, the bodice softly relaxed, the skirt slim yet eased, adds up to a fashion favorite now. Aled of Israel does such a number in sand beige or black in merino woolknit.

The utterly simple, relaxed overblouse is unadorned but for the silk outlined fencing pocket and optional self belt.

This is a dress that requires a minimum of adornment since it is so effective on its own.

Holloway W.A. Enjoys Talk on Japanese Religions

On Tuesday night, October the third, the Women's Missionary Society of Holloway St. United Church sponsored its annual fall thanksgiving and Thanksgiving service. The president, Mrs. W. Bertram, greeted and welcomed all in attendance, especially those of the various groups including the Evening Auxiliary, C.G.I.T., Explorers, and Mission Bands. She closed her remarks with a poem, "A Woman Counts Her Blessings" adding "Thank You-My Heart Sings."

A table will be packed in November. The treasurers report, listing the attainments of the year, was brought by Mrs. Phillips.

A complimentary dinner will be given in November at 6.30 to which all ladies of the church are invited. At 8 o'clock the guests will assemble in the church to hear the message of the Secretary of Home Missions for the Dominion Board.

Mrs. A. Mitchell and her group were in charge of the worship service which opened with singing of "The Beauty Of The Earth" with Mrs. Hubbs at the piano. Psalm 100 "Thanksgiving was read by Mrs. Charles and Mrs. Mitchell brought a lovely meditation.

Mrs. C. Holmes introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Hesselbit McKibbon, of Picton, secretary of Christian Citizenship of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Mrs. McKibbon has just returned from Japan where, with her husband, she had attended the annual International Conference of Women Workers in Tokyo. Mrs. McKibbon, dressed in a Japanese kimono, with obi, tabi togs, began with the profound Japanese bow, and the staging of the Japanese flag with fan by them. She gave thanks for peace in the land, and for peace in the hearts. Speaking on the ceremonials of "Buddhism" and "Shintoism" Mrs. McKibbon told several interesting experiences.

Beautiful pictures of Japan were shown, including: its Niko Shrine, many temples, and with the worshipers, many of which were quite close, and then the thousands to these places of pagan worship.

These pictures were greatly admired.

Mrs. C. Smith expressed the thanks of all to Mrs. McKibbon for her effort in bringing such a treat to the Missionary group.

Mrs. Mitchell invited all to a social hour and her group members assisted in serving refreshments.

Beta Sigma Phi Forms New Chapter

The first two meetings of the new Kemptville Chapter Xi Beta Zeta, were held in the home of the president, Mrs. John A. Pringle, during the evening when the new Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority was organized, and afterwards Mrs. W. J. Turner gave an interesting program entitled "Conversation," and "How To Say It" Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The third meeting of Xi Beta Zeta was held in the home of Mrs. H. L. House. During the meeting it was decided that the girls would attend the Spook Fair," in a group.

Mrs. D. McKinnon, known to many as Dorothy Batchelor, was the guest speaker, and had for her subject, "Public Speaking". Mrs. MacKinnon gave a wonderful speech, with many pointers in giving a good address. Some of these points were: Do not memorize a speech, and how important variations of voice and inflections are for holding the attention.

Mrs. D. Hinchey thanked Mrs. MacKinnon.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. House.

Gamma Mu Welcomes New Pledge

The third meeting of Gamma Mu chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Douglas Bateman. President, Doreen Green welcomed three new pledges: Ruth Field, Dorothy Heaven, and Mary Jo Pitcher.

Plans were announced for a predevelopment tea to be held in these pledges and possibly more, in October at the home of Mrs. Mulmoney, Murray. A party, in the form of a pot-luck supper and mock fashion show, will also be held in November.

Following a short business meeting, a most interesting program on "Poetry" was presented by Mrs. June Sine, who illustrated her talk with a recording by Sir Lawrence Olivier, which proved entertaining.

Delicious refreshments were served by Doreen Greer, and Barbara Wiley, assisted by the hostess, Ingrid Bateman.

HAGERMAN — REID

A lovely fall wedding was solemnized recently in Beulah United Church, Ivanhoe, when Miss Joyce Beverley Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Reid, was united in marriage to Clare Leslie Hagerman, son of Mr. Arthur Hagerman, Ivanhoe, and the late Mrs. Hagerman. The Reverend Morris McLeod, of Marmora, officiated at the double-ring wedding ceremony performed before an altar of fall flowers. Mrs. George Wood provided the wedding music, and accompanied Mr. Milton Shaw, soloist, as she sang, "O Perfect Love," before the ceremony, and "O Promise Me," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her floor-length princess style gown of white peau de soie featuring a graceful skirt with three side panel gatherings of sequins and baby seed pearls, accented by a plain centre panel and plain back ending in a chapel train. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a deeply scalloped neckline outlined with sequins and baby seed pearls. Her elbow length veil of bulle illusion was held in place by a regal crown of pearls and accented with lace inserts sprinkled with seed pearls and sequins. She carried a white orchid bouquet crested with red Sweetheart roses, and wore a pearl necklace with matching earrings, the gift of her bridegroom.

Miss Linda Reid, as maid of honor, and Miss Helen Kelly, as bridesmaid, were lovely in matching gowns of white peau de soie, fashioned with full skirts with satin cummerbunds, and fitted bodices having flower designed scalloped necklines. They were matching petal shaped white headdresses, white shoes and carried lovely bouquets of yellow and white mums. Tiny Sterling silver lockets, gifts of the bridegroom, completed their costumes.

Mr. Wayne Shaw attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Delbert Reid, brother of the bride, and Mr. Robert Vandervoort, nephew of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Legion Hall, Madoc, which was appropriately decorated with mauve and white streamers meeting in the centre with a large white wedding bell.

The bridal table was appointed with white linen damask, centred by a three-tier wedding cake, flanked with white candles in crystil holders. The bridal bouquet was used as the nuptial accent to the pretty setting.

The bride's mother received the guests, wearing a teal-blue lace gown with magenta accessories, and corsage of white mums. Assisting her in the receiving line was the bridegroom's sister, Mr. Harry Vandervoort, who was attired in a two-piece gold-toned suit with dark brown accessories, and corsage of bronze 'mums.

For the wedding trip to New York City and Pennsylvania, the bride chose a beige linen sheath with matching jacket, beige and dark-brown accessories, and corsage of red roses. Mrs. Reid attended from Peterborough; Belleville; Madoc; Selby; Odessa and Ivanhoe.

The happy couple will reside in Ivanhoe, Ontario.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored with two miscellaneous showers, one in the home of Mrs. Earl Holland, of Madoc; and one at the home of Mrs. Sam Vandervoort, with Miss Linda Reid as hostess.

Chapman Family Feted By Dinner

CENTENARY — Mr. and Mrs. Keith Johnston, Linda and Pearl entertained the Chapman family to a pre-Christmas dinner gathering on Saturday, September 23rd, held early, before Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Chapman leave for Florida, where they will spend the winter months.

The long table was set in the Christmas theme with Santa Claus table cloths, Christmas tree napkinettes, and four vases of red roses. After the singing of Grace, everyone served themselves to the supply of turkey and all the fixings. After everyone had eaten, the group had a family photo taken.

A short program followed: Linda Johnston, a piano solo; Donald and Douglas Chapman, a vocal duet, accompanied by their mother, Hazel Chapman; a joke, told by Frank Chapman; Pearl Johnston, a piano solo, and Bishop showed movels of Northern Ontario, during which games and candies were enjoyed. A small gift was found under the tree for everyone.

Grace Chapman expressed thanks on behalf of the family for the lovely evening and closed with prayer.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Chapman, R. R. 1, Carrying Place; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Bisbee, Trenton; the Misses Joan and Joyce Bisbee, Trenton; Mr. George Lawrence, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Benham and Stephen, Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chapman and Lloyd, Picton; Mr. and Mrs. Keith Chapman, Donald, Douglas and Roy, Trenton, and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Porter, David and Susan, Toronto.

QUESTION:

The uncleaned recipe for Fruit Ambrosia was given to me and I can't make it turn out as firm as when it was served to me. Would you please tell me and let me know what I am doing wrong or what ingredient has been left out of the recipe? — Claire K.

ANSWER:

I have not given the recipe as you listed it but will give you the corrected method. All that is needed is to beat the cream and chopped marshmallows together to melt the marshmallows.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Haddock Fillets Remoulade (see Tuesday); Shoestring Potatoes; Stuffed Fresh Corn with Green Peppers; Mixed Greens with Stirred Boiled Cheese French Dressing; Bread 36% cream, 1 cup marshmallows (24 average); Oat macaroon-leaves each into 4 pieces. Add to cream and fold in double boiler until marshmallows are melted, stirring frequently. Beat to blend then add to drained mandarin oranges and drained pineapple chunks or tidbits and coconut. Mix. Chill until somewhat firm or overnight.

QUESTION:

I made your Icicle Pickles last year and have lost my recipe — Mrs. J. P.

ANSWER:

We have so many requests for this I am repeating it.

ICICLE PICKLES:

Wash 1 ltr.-quart basket of cucumbers and cut in halves lengthwise. Brine: 2 cups non-iodized salt and 1 gallon boiling water. Pour over and allow to stand 12 hours. Drain. Make syrup of 3½ quarts cider vinegar, 6 cups sugar, and 3 tablespoons whole mixed pickling spice. Heat to boiling and pour over cucumbers. 5th day: Repeat as above (Let stand 24 hours). 6th day: Drain. Dissolve 1 tablespoon powdered alum in boiling water. Pour over and let stand. 7th day: Drain. Make syrup of 3½ quarts cider, vinegar, 6 cups sugar, and 3 tablespoons whole mixed pickling spice. Question: I have received an invitation to be present at the wedding of a friend. It is just a church ceremony, which will be held in a chapel. Should the invitation be answered?

Mrs. M. R., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: Only reception invitations should be acknowledged. It's not necessary to do anything about an invitation to the ceremony alone.

Popular Couple Honored at Presentation

RAWDON — On Saturday evening a large number of friends and relatives gathered in Mount Pleasant - Rawdon Church in honor of the newly-married Mr. and Mrs. James Miller of Oshawa (the former Ruth Shenoi). The hall was decorated with bouquets of autumn flowers, and guests were all attended from Mountain Woods, Wellman, Carmel and Stouffville.

The Rev. W. G. Fletcher was master of ceremonies and announced that address to the young people for future happiness. Musical items were played on the piano by Miss Ruth Shenoi and the extremely amusing humorous duet "School Days," at the bride of a high school, sung by Mr. Oshawa, Joyce and Judy Conner contributed a vocal duet, also Linda Fralick and Judith Mc-Adam. Mrs. Harry Brown of Carmel contributed two piano solos and Mrs. Will McAdam read a humorous poem. Piano solos were rendered by Miss Ann Watson of Stirling, and by Miss Shirley Fralick, Janice and Valerie Clancy of Wellman rendered a vocal duet accompanied by their mother. Mrs. Gerald Clancy, at the piano.

Orno Sharp showed the wedding pictures which were taken on August 19th and also several views of local farms in this area.

The bride and bridegroom were given seats of honor and as appropriate address was read by Miss Gail Scott. The presentation of a purse of money was made by Mrs. Raymond McConnell on behalf of the community. There was also a nice array of wrapped parcels from relatives and later these were opened by the newlyweds.

Ruth and Jim each expressed thanks for the party and gifts and invited one and all to come and call on them at their apartment in Oshawa.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Club Activities

HARMONY CLUB

MARSH HILL — The September meeting of Marsh Hill Harmony Club was held Friday night in the school house with Mrs. Harold Dolsor as hostess.

The president, Mrs. David Little opened the meeting with singing of "The Ladies Aid", after which all sang the hymn, "Old Hundred". Mrs. Cecil Sine read the Scripture reading from Matthew 5:1-10 and a reading "Patience in Life" was given by Mrs. Charlie Rose. Both Mrs. and Linda Fralick played medley on duet, "I Love You", accompanied at the piano by Marilyn Fralick. Mrs. Sine then spoke on the topic, "Faith and It's Obstacles". Kindly Mrs. Little read "The Old Testament Books" and Harold Fralick favored with two guitar solos. Mrs. Allyn Fralick read, "If You Ask Me". Mrs. Sine read the program concluded with Mr. Charlie Mayell and sons Gary and Wayne playing two musical numbers and Mrs. Mayell sang "Wildwood Flower".

Mr. Benson Mills spoke briefly and expressed the Club's regrets in the loss of Mrs. Cecil Sine and family who have moved from the community, stating how pleased the members of the Harmony Club were, that Mr. and Mrs. Sine were able to return and put on this fine program.

Mrs. Sine then presented each with a gift as a little token of appreciation from the friends at Marsh Hill United Church.

Mrs. Sine conducted two contests after which refreshments were served.

Dear friends,

A writer suggests that we sit down at Thanksgiving time and list the things we have to be thankful for. If everyone would do that, we have an idea there would be more happiness and much less complaining.

We are especially thankful for our friends—also are we thankful for the many kindnesses that have come to us during the past year.

May your Thanksgiving be a happy one!

Sincerely,
John R. Beak

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Fleming Mark Fiftieth Anniversary

TWEED — Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Fleming of Stoco celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on September 29th. High Mass was celebrated in St. Edmund's Church, Stoco in honor of their golden wedding anniversary. Their present pastor, Rev. T. E. Brickland celebrated the special mass with their son Justin and a cousin Michael Murphy acting as acolytes, Organist, Miss Clara Mulraney, accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Fergus Cassidy.

In the afternoon and evening the couple received over 175 friends at their home east of Stoco.

Following the special Mass a family dinner with only close relatives in attendance was served at Stoco Lake Hotel with the Very Rev. C. E. Baker, their former pastor, proposing a toast to the happy future of the honored couple. Their present pastor Rev. T. E. Brickland also added his congratulations. A congratulatory letter was received from Prime Minister Diefenbaker and a telegram was sent from Premier Leslie M. Frost of Ontario. Short letters were also attending by letter from Lee Grills, M.P. for South Hastings and Rod Welch, M.P.P. for Hastings-Frontenac. Clarke P. Rollins M.P.P. for East Hastings called on Sunday to personally present an Ontario Government plaque.

A personal blessing in a letter from Pope John is also forthcoming.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleming have one son Justin and three grandchildren.

The ballet, as contrasted with older traditional dance forms, was first seen in Italian courts in the 15th century.

WA Members Entertained at Rawdon Home

RAWDON — Twenty-five ladies from Norham and Warkworth gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Knight, Mount Pleasant-Rawdon on the evening of September 30th.

Mrs. M. Edwards, president of Norham W.A. was in charge and Mrs. Fred Platt was pianist. The usual business was conducted and several invitations accepted, one of which was to a 19th anniversary of the W.M.S.

The devotional was in charge of Mrs. O. Leaver and was centred on the theme, "Keep Us O Lord from Pettiness". Mrs. F. Fisher read the Bible lesson and Mrs. P. Woodrow the meditation. Mrs. H. H. Le-Chey and Mrs. W. Peterson contributed a vocal duet. A short playette on the theme was presented by Mrs. R. Knight, Mrs. R. Robson and Mrs. D. Honey.

Three neighbors were in attendance at the meeting, Mrs. Jessie Hoard and Mrs. Baldy Jeffs and Mrs. Percy MacMillan.

The lunch committee served light refreshments and all enjoyed a fellowship half hour before the group journeyed homeward.

Mrs. Knight was tendered a vote of thanks for her hospitality. She was a former member of Norham before moving to Mount Pleasant.

Women's Activities

MT. PLEASANT-RAWDON WA

RAWDON — Eighteen ladies were in attendance Tuesday evening at Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Church for the regular quarterly meeting of the W.A. The hostesses were Mrs. Morgenstie McMullen and Mrs. Clarence Potts.

Mrs. Raymond McConnell, president, was in charge of the opening exercises and Mrs. Burton Sharpe was pianist. Thanks were expressed for the parcel in August groups for their work during those two months.

The treasurer reported all spent $378 to date, and an invitation to Springbrook was read. It was decided not to have a bazaar this autumn as there is a barn sale at Hoards on December 4th. The special Christmas meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, December 8th, at the hall and the gift exchange is not to exceed 30 cents.

The program was in charge of Mrs. James Hoard and Mrs. Will McAdam and following the call to worship all sang "For the Beauty of the Earth." Mrs. James Hoard read the Bible lesson and a special story from "The Onward." Mrs. Donald Knight gave the prayer. The devotional closed with a hymn of Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Thomas Sazles and Mrs. Clarence Potts contributed vocal duet. Mrs. Grant Hubble read a humorous poem. The third Psalm was read and Mrs. McAdam read the meditation which illustrated the meaning of each sentence. Mrs. Mac Sharp gave a piano solo. Mrs. Ross Jeffs gathered the offering with was dedicated by Mrs. Frank Jeffs.

At the close of the meeting the lunch committee, Mrs. McConnell and Mrs. Hubble, served refreshments and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Started Newest Career With No Artistic Talent

VANCOUVER (CP) — Violet Taylor of Kingston, Jamaica, has good reason to believe you are what you make yourself.

Now the proprietor of a fashionable shop of pleasing creations firm in Kingston, Miss Taylor formerly, worked as a bookkeeper and a policewoman.

Miss Taylor made a visit here in connection with her fashion venture.

She said she started her new dict career with no apparent artistic talent and no previous training. All she did was take a correspondence course in publicity.

"All you need is a basic knowledge for using the equipment. You learn by experience after that."

She first produced small plastic ornaments, picture frames, linen vases, decorations and jewelry while working in her Kingston home.

As demands for her work increased, Miss Taylor moved to a small workshop.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Sorry For Herself -16

DEAR DORIS:—At 16 I am terribly self-conscious. I am friendly and not bad looking but nobody asks me for a date. Please tell me how to overcome feeling sorry for myself.—GERRY.

DEAR GERRY:—It's going to be tough, but you'll have to stop thinking about Gerry. Start thinking about pleasing someone—your mother or dad, your girl friend or your sister.

DORIS CLARK

And keep active. Can you cook? Give a party—even if it has to be a hen party. If you like music, get some "sing-along" records and share them with a couple of friends. Get your best friend to help you plan a wiener roast.

At sixteen everybody is self-conscious (boys too.) So reach out with a friendly hand. Someone will grasp it with thanks—and you'll have a new friend!

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO GLOOMY FUTURE:—How you have ever remained in such a half-married state for 30 years is beyond me. The overbearing sisters seem to have had the upper hand all the way.

With father virtually a deserter most of the time, your boy misses his male influence. Hence the moodiness, job-changing, lack of interest in girls. He feels rejected, just as you do.

I would say his best hope is in your son-in-law's interest and help (the one bright spot in your life.) It is not abnormal for young men to go from one job to another, but he should be settling down to a life-work soon. Have him talk with the son-in-law. Also, it would be worth while to seek the help of a guidance counsellor to discuss his interests and let him know what area of work he is best suited for.

He should also be mixing with contemporaries, through the church or YMCA or similar young people's organizations.

Could it be you have driven your husband further away from you by nagging, and by refusing love to him? Now that he is old he will go where he is most accepted. Could you reach out to him, even now?

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—My sister and I have lived in the old family home ever since my mother died. We are both unmarried, but now, at fifty, my sister has met a widower and wants to marry him.

This would be all right, but she wants to just move him into our home with us. I have done the managing and shopping, chiefly, I suppose out of habit, because I am the older sister. But we both work and she intends to keep on working.

I can't see myself keeping house for a brother-in-law. What do you think?—LOLA.

DEAR LOLA—That if you do you are a bit teched. Have you so indulged your younger sister that you would consider even this?

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I bet you'll think my problem is one for the books. I am 15, and every time I have to stand up in school and say something or read anything, I shake all over.

I had to give an oral composition once and had to stop half way through. I put on a coughing spell, just pretending, until the teacher let me sit down. Now, when I know I'm going to have to do something, I skip the class or pretend to have a cold.

Maybe I need a psychiatrist. Who could I see about this?—JUST JUNE.

DEAR JUST:—Hardly one for the books, June. It's too commonplace. If your friends were being fair, most of them would confess to having the jitters too.

It's part of growing up to learn how to meet a problem head on. You don't need a psychiatrist. You do need practice. Read out loud to yourself, or to your mother. Forget yourself by getting interested in what you're reading. A series of speech lessons transformed one 14-year-old girl from a bookworm into the belle of her class. The more you do the easier it gets. And there's nothing like being well-groomed to give you self-confidence—neat hairdo, clean, well-pressed clothes, trim shoes.

If you'd like the name of a book on conquering shyness, write again giving your full name and address.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—Please tell us all you can about life in a home for the aged. How do they spend their time—What is their recreation, work, etc.? Do they go out during the day or evening? Do they wear their own clothes if they brought some with them?. Have storage facilities for them? Private wash rooms? Please explain. Many of us wonder.—BESS.

DEAR BESS:—Modern homes for the aged take into account the need for things to do and places to go. Provisions vary according to those being cared for. If well enough, they are encouraged to get out and about, and the newer homes are being built in areas where there are bus lines, stores, and things going on.

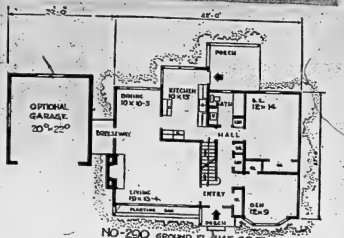
Many homes have programs of recreation; picnics, walks, handcrafts, games. In some, those who live in share in the work when they are able and interested. Some can do gardening.

They wear their own clothes; have clothes closets and individual dresser drawers. Washrooms are usually shared, with individual toilet cubicles.

For information about homes for the aged in your own area, contact your Welfare Administrator, Mr. G. A. Whitman, City Hall, Belleville.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—All over the world are legions of people who are "saved." You find them here, in Canadian cities, members of well-known churches, besides fanatical sects. They do not care for drinking, smoking, card playing, dancing, etc. They are perfectly normal people and, for the most part, very happy.—ONE OF THEM.



DEAR ONE OF THEM—Agreed. And the happy ones are not the self-righteous ones, but those whose inner and spiritual grace has given them loving-kindness in getting along with others—especially their nearest and dearest.

States Britain Respects Ghana Neutralism

ACCRA (Reuters)—Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys says that Britain fully understands and respects Ghana's desire to remain non-aligned.

Sandys' statement came in a joint communique issued after three-days of talks with President Kwame Nkrumah to smooth over recently-strained Anglo-Ghanaian relations.

There was no reference to the visit of the Queen to Ghana next month. British newspapers have speculated that the uneasy atmosphere between the two countries might affect the Queen's visit.

On London, it was officially announced after the communique was issued that Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will fly to Ghana to start their West African tour Nov. 2.

(It was also learned that Sandys had decided to fly to Lagos to meet Nigerian leaders before continuing his journey home.

(It was believed Sandys raised with Nkrumah the president's references to "colonial exploitation" during his recent visits to Russia and other Communist countries.)

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. R. F. — With the same budget, I can be married instead of alone.

Adele F.—He just found a good thing, and she believes him.

Mrs. R.F. — I'm a widow of 59. I have a comfortable income which permits me to maintain a nice apartment in Brooklyn, get to the mountains in the summer and to Florida in the winter. While South isn't your style, a quiet, refined gentleman may own age. He lives there all year round in a furnished room. But he could bear to be that way and has been an attentive and comforting companion.

Financially he has nothing to offer me. All he has is his Social Security check. But that, added to what I spend now to live alone, would enable us to be married and give each other the companionship we crave. My daughter, however, is rude and cold to my friend, and warns us not to go ahead.

* * *

Adele F. — The man is just a no'er-do-well who has aged a bit woman and wishes to push himself to her. He wants double security, — that is, his own Social Security plus my mother's bank security!

Marrying him would be a mockery. It certainly wouldn't be for love but for convenience. Mom would have an escort, while her money lasts, and her boy friend would have a meal ticket.

Why should she look for headaches? She's okay this way. I take her all over in my car. I've given up. The wise course here is only to bring her on visits to her old haunts, so that she won't feel lonely. No daughter could do more to fill her life. This man would turn her into his nurse.

Let her choose. She can count on him, or me — not both.

* * *

The Council: Adele sounds selfish, despite the weekend she's given up. The wise course here hinges on the sincerity and character of Mrs. F.'s friend, whom Adele pre-judges as a "no'er-do-well."

A calm bit of investigation of the man's background, in her mother's behalf, would be a more loyal service for Adele than her angry silhouettes. There are ways of clearing a way clouds. Through checking with people from the gentleman's old neighborhoods, the tradespeople, his clergyman and his employers, Adele (or her mother) can establish the truth of some of his claims and ascertain his reputation. If it is innocent and sound, Adele had better watch her tongue. A good lawyer could drum up a libel suit against her.

Speaking of a lawyer, if it's fortune-seeking that Adele's afraid of, a lawyer can draw up a pre-capital legal contract, protecting her rights to her mother's funds (presumably left by her late father) against possible claims by this man for dower rights. This is a common procedure before second marriages.

So we're down to what's left — companionship for two aging people who get along swimmingly, are kind to each other and are holding a loving friendship. That's reason enough for their marriage.

Let's ask Adele, "Will you offer to be her constant pal if in the years ahead? Will you stand ready to fit her needs for a companion? Or would you rather be released to live your own life more fully?" Even if this prospective stepfather has traits which annoy her, Adele must scrutinize them in reference to her mother. She must seek out his bearable qualities, as surely he must do with her. While he and Adele mean little to each other, they are joined in their importance to Mrs. F.'s well-being.

Frankly, we've heard of amazing turnabouts where the new in-laws at first disliked, become staunch friends with each watching over the other loyally and forever. Surprises may be in store, Adele.

Downer Would Restore Power To Local Bodies

NORTH BAY — "It is my aim to put the government of Ontario back into the hands of the elected representatives, which means into the hands of the people," declared Rev. A. W. (Wally) Downer, candidate for leadership of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party.

Speaking to the Municipal Association of the Parry Sound District meeting at Powassan, near North Bay, and attended by reeves, mayors and councillors of the area, he charged the Frost administration with taking power away from local government and "telling them what to do."

"It is imperative," he warned, "that we work closely with the people in the ridings."

"We must practise economy," said Mr. Downer. "Taxes have reached their limit. Then further government gets away from the people the more expensive it becomes."

"I would restore government to the elected representatives," vowed the former speaker of the legislature.

"There are altogether too many boards and commissions running things now," he said. "Much of the work done by the 83 boards and commissions in the province," he explained "could and should be done by members of the legislature.

(Since January, 1960, Mr. Downer has been the liquor control board commissioner concerned with the prevention and cure of alcoholism.)

The plan of action he outlined to the meeting included: solving the unemployment problem; more consideration for the farmer; encouraging business development; extension of health and welfare benefits.

Family Television Set Offers Challenging New Frontier To Church, Anglicans Told

OTTAWA (CP) — The family TV set offers a challenging new frontier for the church.

This was the recurring theme Thursday as Anglicans debated how to get the church's message across in language people can understand.

Mrs. Nancy Montizambert of Toronto, supervisor of the Anglican church broadcasting division, told the executive session:

"The church cannot be relevant in today's society unless it takes an active part in understanding, learning about, experimenting with and using one of the most powerful, most time - consuming and most controversial elements in that society — television."

Her challenge, however, was accompanied by a warning from J. R. Ligertwood, the church's general treasurer, that there is a danger of becoming "unchurchy on TV and retaining the same old stuff in church."

Most. Rev. Howard Clark, Archbishop of Rupert's Land and Primate of All Canada, said the question of television and its relationship with the church is the subject of a deep debate which must necessarily go on in the Christian church.

OFFERS BIG CHANCE

Mrs. Montizambert said the Canadian - content quota of 55 per cent that comes into effect for Canadian TV stations next April 1 offers the church "a once in a lifetime chance."

She challenged the church to go out and seek good relations with private stations, many of which she said now are far below the present Canadian - content quota of 45 per cent. Their doors could be opened to religious broadcasts by Canadian productions of high quality and wide, general interest.

No church - produced show could hope to compete for the mass audience that wants to be entertained, she said. It should be aimed at the thoughtful, uncommitted viewer who is concerned with the world around him.

Mr. Ligertwood said one of the great aims of the church is that it is "no darned churchy." In his opinion, television films seemed to be trying to get away from this.

He said the church had to find ways of reaching the young people and show them the way to enter a church.

Canon A. H. Davis, general secretary of the church's missionary society, said TV is a "new frontier" of mission work.

It could reach people who were beyond the pale of normal missionary endeavor.

"We must have people to minister to, people for the churches we build," he added.

In other business Thursday, Canon A. J. Jackson, retiring director of the church's information and stewardship department, suggested Anglicans should give to the church one dollar a week for each $1,000 of annual income. If this objective was reached, he said, it would give the church an annual budget of close to $100,000,000.

He said contributions from parishioners had trebled to nearly $35,000,000 in 10 years. The 1960 figure showed a $4,500,000 increase over the 1959 total.

CRASH . . . This accident didn't occur on the grounds of the "Tented City" but many of the over 40,000 people there yesterday saw the possible results of inattentive or careless driving at the Ontario Provincial Police exhibit. Realism to the scene was added by the use of ketchup on the mannequins.

International Mine, Oil Union Dealt Three Blows By Locals on Thursday

SUDBURY (CP)—The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) already hard pressed to retain its membership against rival organizers, took three new blows Thursday night.

At separate meetings of union locals:

1. The president of Local 637 at Port Colborne, quit his post and signed with the United Steelworkers of America (CLC).

2. Remaining members of the Port Colborne executive, while supporting the union's national officers, called for a housecleaning of Communist influence.

3. Dissident Sudbury members asked the federal government to investigate the "subversive activities" of the national officers.

An estimated 1,200 of the 17,000 members in Sudbury's Local 598 attended a meeting here Thursday night punctuated for a time by heckling from some 500 members who left after a sharp exchange with Local Vice-President Donald McNabb.

ASKS INQUIRY

The meeting passed a resolution calling for a federal inquiry—with the results to be made public—into mine - mill leadership.

Another resolution urged the local's executive, long at odds with national officers and now openly favoring the Steelworkers union, to seek an injunction that would restrain national officers from interfering in negotiations with the huge International Nickel Company.

National President Kenneth Smith of Toronto and earlier said he was preparing to set up his own negotiating committee to work out a forthcoming contract with Inco.

The local already has obtained an injunction restraining Smith at least temporarily from putting Local 598 President Don Gillis and other local officers before a union trial for their support of the Steelworkers.

Earlier Thursday, James Robertson, Sudbury representative of the Canadian Labor Congress, said the Steelworkers have 42 organizers at work signing Inco employees here.

The Steelworkers seek signatures from 60 per cent of Sudbury members before pressing for certification as bargaining agent. The Sudbury local includes more than half of Mine-Mill's membership.

SIGNS MEMBERS

At Port Colborne, with its more than 1,300 Mine-Mill members, the Steelworkers signed Local 637 President James Babirad and a group of his supporters after a dramatic speech to a union meeting.

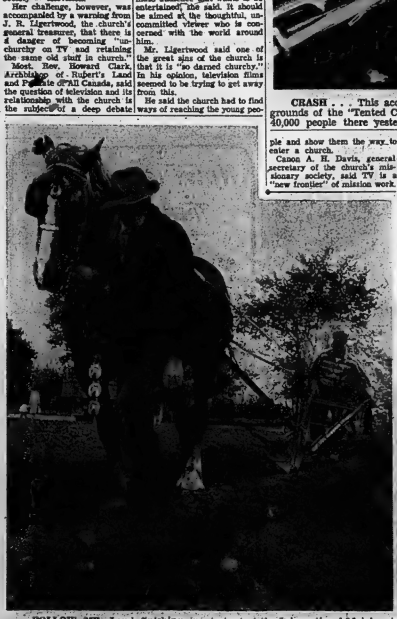
"I am divesting myself of the robes of his office," Babirad told the meeting, "donning working clothes and going into the plant to spearhead a drive for the next union to represent Inco employees."

He quit in protest after he said legitimate members were barred from the meeting because of their sympathy for the Steelworkers.

His place at the meeting was taken over by the local vice-president, Yves Lemay, who said: "now that the Steelworkers have left, let's get down to a real Mine-Mill meeting." Babirad had always been against Mine-Mill and now he has taken money to sell you out."

But one of the first resolutions adopted—with uncertain members vying with each other to second it—called for a telegram to Smith asking him to remove all "Communistic members" of the union from office in the interests of the union.

Mine-Mill was expelled from the old Canadian Congress of Labor in 1949 for raiding and because of Communist influence. The allegations of communism among national leaders have continued to form a part of the Steelworkers' campaign to oust Mine-Mill.



The Port Colborne meeting voted, after Babirad's departure, to rescind a decision taken some time ago to withhold the local's per-capita dues from the Mine-Mill national office.

To Stand Trial On Fraud Counts

QUEBEC (CP)—Rosario Lemire, former Quebec district chief of the disbanded Quebec Liquor Police, Thursday was committed to stand trial on two charges of defrauding the government.

Lemire, 73, already awaiting trial on three other counts, was committed on a charge of allowing the theft, sale, and use of liquor for election purposes.

He also was committed on a charge of allowing payment of false expense accounts totalling $8,000 to members of the force.

FOLLOW ME—Land finishing in the horse plow classes saw stalwart plow teams separated. Here a contestant at the International Match gets a little assistance as helper leads horse.

POW-WOW — One of the attractions for "Tented City" visitors is the Indian dancing put on by such stars as Swimming Eel in the buffalo dance above.

WHAT'S HAPPENED? — The headquarters building is a busy scene all the time as both competitors and spectators alike check out the day's competition results. Shown above are William Allington of Ottawa, as he checks out some results with Miss Lorna Hare, secretary, to the secretary-manager of the competition.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Cecil Curb, owned by Dunedin Isle-man-George Elliott, scored his first win since July 3 at Woodbine Park Thursday capturing the sixth and featured Berthier-pace.

The four - year - old gelding, held off the pace by Jockey Hugo Dittfach, moved around on the final turn and was much the best at the end of the nine-furlong dash.

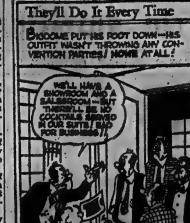
Credit Curb covered the distance in 1:19 3-5, one second off the track record held jointly by Westville and Anita's Son. He paid $8.20.

In the seventh race, most of the 2,307 patrons rewated out a double claim of foul against Compactor, the winner and favorite.

Dick Armstrong, the jockey on second — place - finisher Last Mourn, and Jim Parnell, on Whip out which placed fourth, both claimed Agilio Gomez, on the winner, had impeded them in the home stretch.

Compactor was allowed to remain in first position after the stewards studied the film patrol films for several minutes and paid $6.30.

The Trots



LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Jiggs McFadden of Dresden and Hall McManus of Lucan continued their duel for driving honors at the Western Fair Raceway Thursday night when each won two events on the eight - race card.

McFadden won with the favored Janice Primrose in the first and Lucky Chief in the seventh. McMann finished first with Marjean Chief in the third and Medicine Arts Lady in the fifth.

The featured Class C handicap trot, for a divided purse of $600 was split. Hannah Dean, owned by A. A. Greer of Glamis, took the first half when she finished a length ahead of Darn Tooting. Darn Tooting, owned by Mrs. Helen Wetherup of Odessa, reversed the process in the second half.

Juniors Defeated

BCI Seniors Whip Picton

By PETER CARVER

Belleville Collegiate Institute's unbeaten senior football squad raised to its third victory in Picton yesterday, defeating the Picton Provincial Collegiate team by a 19-3 score.

The school's junior team lost its third in as many starts by a 16-7 score in the Quinte C.O.S.S. twin bill.

SENIOR GAME

B.C.I. threatened to score early in the first quarter as a good ground attack, led by Doug Billingsley, Muir and Ridley moved the ball to the Picton 4 yard line but a courageous Picton goal line stance repelled the Bellevillers.

A feature of the first half was the great punting and throwing of Picton's Rick Lee. Lee hit and Bob Brown and he scampered 40 yards for the B.C.I. end zone but the touchdown was nullified by a penalty.

Belleville's Johnny Miller moved the ball from their 30 yard line to mid field. A penalty advanced the ball. Bob Ridley took a —pass from quarterback Scott and went into the end zone for B.C.I.'s first major. Pete Weston converted.

B.C.I., led by Ridley and Miller moved the ball to the Picton 8 yard line, but they couldn't score. After a Picton quick kick B.C.I. drove to the P.E.C.I. 30 yard line John Miller ran into the end zone on the double reverse with Belleville's second major Pete Weston converted.

After Larry Soule lugged the ball to the P.E.C.I. 1 yard line. Pete Weston plunged over tackle for the touchdown. He failed to add the convert however.

JUNIOR GAME

Belleville moved into an early lead as halfback Al Moir moved the ball 35 yards to the Picton 1 yard line on a reverse. Ted Dolan then scored for the touchdown and Don MacCormack kicked the extra point. BCI threatened again as Murry Green drove to the 1 yard line but a penalty moved the ball back 25 yards.

BCI held their 7-0 edge at quarter time.

Picton quarterback Paul Finnegan hit Don McNeil in the end zone for the winner's first major. McNeil added the convert. A Picton interception in the second quarter moved the ball to the B.C.I. 30. Picton's Wayne Craig scored B.C.I. with a good punt. Picton again picked up another point as Craig booted his second single.

BCI had a touchdown called back on an offside infraction. Tom Dolan picked up a block-ed punt and ran the ball into the end zone but the penalty cancelled the major. Picton's McNeil ran the ball to the B.C.I. 20 on a new play with about 3 minutes to go and Allan Van Dusen kicked Finnegan's pass for the try. The convert was good putting the game out of B.C.I.'s reach.

Mr. Purkey Believes

'Yankees No Supermen'

CINCINNATI (AP)—Bob Purkey, Cincinnati Reds' pitcher who goes against New York Yankees Saturday in the third game of the world series, figures it this way:

"The Yankees are no supermen. They're the same as anyone else. They can be beaten."

Purky told of his reactions after watching the two clubs split the first two games at Yankee Stadium in New York.

"We gained confidence by watching," said the 25-year-old right-handed Purkey.

"It showed us they weren't unbeatable. It also must have changed the Yankees' minds about us . . . that we're not the ragamuffins we're supposed to be."

Cincinnati manager Red Hutchinson announced Purkey would pitch the game in Cincinnati, when he'll have had five days of rest.

"I'd rather pitch in Yankee Stadium than in Cincinnati," Purkey said. "It's a bigger park and it's harder to see the batters because of the background.

"Yet, at Crosley Field I feel I have the advantage because I know how to pitch there. I don't know of any pitcher in the National League who likes to pitch in Cincinnati. It's a tough park for pitchers to hurl even the Coliseum in Los Angeles with its short left field fence.

"There is no part of the field in Cincinnati that doesn't give a hitter. If the ball is hit well, it's going to go away because because they're all so close."

Theories on old saying in the equestrian set is the effect that if you've been thrown off a horse 100 times, you're a good rider. Gail Ross isn't convinced she's a top horsewoman, but she qualifies as one.

This good-looking, brown-eyed Edmonton girl has had scores of the times she has been unceremoniously dumped. "But it is certainly more than 100," she said shortly after her selection as a member of Canada's international jumping team, on the winter circuit.

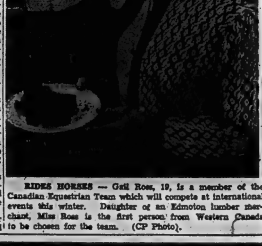
"I count and don't think anything about it," the 19-year-old added. "I've never been seriously hurt, but this won't go on forever. One of these days I'll get it, but I'm not really worried."

The five-foot-seven rider is the first person from Western Canada to be chosen for Canada's team. She'll show her stuff in the Pennsylvania national championships at Harrisburg Oct. 14-23 and the Washington International at Washington Oct. 25-28.

One thing that troubles her is that she can't seem to get an edge on in competition.

"I don't get butterflies in my stomach and that's the trouble with me," she said in Toronto where she is training with the team. "You've got to get an edge on in any kind of competition and I can recall only once, a few years ago, when I really had butterflies. And I won.

"You can't do the job without a bit of an edge."



She was in California this summer with her father, an Edmonton lumber merchant, when she received a letter asking if she would like to try for Canada's team. That started a 2,700-mile automobile ride she isn't likely to forget in a long time.

She bundled two of her horses —Wings of Gold and Pinnacle— on a two-horse trailer and started out. She made it in five days.

A cousin accompanied her and each night they stopped near a stockyard to let the horses rest.

"If anybody was around, we asked if we could turn the horses loose. If there was no one there, we'd just put them in a corral and let them run around. It didn't matter to them who they were standing beside —a hog, cow or anything—they just wanted to get out of the trailer."

She has been riding horses since she was six years old. The family has a ranch 60 miles west of Edmonton and the whole family—mother, father, brothers Hales, 14, and Phillip, 11—are fond of horses.

RIDES HORSES — Gail Ross, 19, is a member of the Canadian Equestrian Team which will compete at international events this winter. Daughter of an Edmonton lumber merchant, Miss Ross is the first person from Western Canada to be chosen for the team. (CP Photo).

The horses she'll ride at Harrisburg and Washington are Wings of Gold, "a big, ugly horse that can jump, but we don't even know his pedigree;" Pinnacle, a seven-year-old gelding bought in Stratford, Ont., and Thunderbird, six-year-old bay colt and half-brother of Pinnacle.

She has taken a few months off school to concentrate on riding and jumping. She worked hard for the time off—an extra 1½ to two hours each night studying.

Als, Argos Clash Saturday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Alouettes Saturday meet Toronto Argonauts in a tear they have to beat out for the third and last playoff spot in the Eastern Football Conference.

The odds, if anything, should be in their favor. The Als have not managed a win against the Argos since the start of last season.

With five games left, Montreal is four points behind the Argos, who have nine. Ottawa Rough Riders, with 38 points, have a chance to tie Hamilton for first place when they meet the Ticats Monday in a Thanksgiving game in Hamilton.

The news from the Alouette camp wasn't all heartening. Three of the club's running backs are questionable starters in the game at Montreal.

Fullback Don Clark, injured in the league game last week, suffered bruises in the arch of his right foot in Monday's game against Calgary Stampeders. Dick Cohee, with a similar injury, and Jack Kennedy with a pinched nerve in his neck, didn't dress for the Monday night game.

Expensive is considered most likely to be in shape for Saturday's game.

COOKIE MAY RETURN

In Toronto, Argo fans were anticipating the prospect of Cookie Gilchrist's possible return to action. Gilchrist, the club's leading scorer this year and league leader last year, has been out for two games with an injured ankle.

His return would pose another problem for coach Lou Agase. Ken Beck, a recent acquisition, would have to be benched. Jim Roundtree has been given a decisive spot, leading to speculation that the Argos, with one more potential pass receiver unavailable, may intend to concentrate on a ground attack.

The Monday game will be the second time in 10 days the Ti-cats and Riders have met, and Ottawa coach Frank Clair is worried about a letdown among his charges, who beat Hamilton 47-21 last Saturday.

Halfback Ernie White, out for three games with a knee injury, will be ready for action and it's possible he'll replace Tom Rodgers. Ron Koes' bad knee will keep him on the bench.

Hamilton will be playing without halfback George Scott, who has left the club for military duty in the United States, and Dick Patterson and Dennis Mogarski who are injured.

Mustangs Ready for Varsity

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Confidence abounds in the camp of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs these days as Johnny Metras prepares to trot out his squad against Universities of Toronto Blues here Saturday in the fall opening of the senior intercollegiate football season.

"We are going to be tough to beat this year," said Metras, Canada's most successful intercollegiate football coach. "Our line is strong and our backfield will stack up with the best in the league."

Both the defence and offence looked good last week as the Mustangs defeated the Blues 30-15 in an exhibition game in Toronto. Quarterback Ken Kyrdala looked sharp for such an early match. The defence, again led by John Metras, Jr., at centre, played well although it tired in the final quarter.

Metras has 34 lineman and eight backs from last year's club which won three, lost three and tied one.

Jay's Four-Hitter Spikes Yankee Guns

Subs Star In Big Win

NEW YORK (CP)—The underdog Cincinnati Reds came up with the pitching, fielding, base-running and clutch hitting Thursday to defeat New York Yankees 6-2 and square the world series at a game apiece.

Joey Jay, first Little League grads to make the majors, supplied the pitching, surviving early control trouble to tame the Yankee sluggers with a four-hitter.

Elio Chacon, a last - minute substitute for ailing second-baseman Don Blasingame, sparkled in the field, starting two double plays and scored the tie-breaking run with a daring piece of base-thiefing. Reserve catcher John Edwards, a .186 hitter, drove in a couple of timely runs when the Yankees twice deliberately walked a man to get at him.

The result sent the series to Cincinnati for Saturday's third game with the Yankees still favored to take the best-of - seven set, but with the odds shortened from the 5 to 1 quoted after their 3-0 victory Wednesday to a more conservative 2 to 1.

YANKS LOOK SLUGGISH

The New Yorkers contributed to their own downfall with three errors and a passed ball and a growing inability to produce at the plate with men on base. In two successive games, the vaunted Yankee sluggers failed to put two hits together in a single inning.

The teams traded two - run homers in the fourth inning. Yankee third - baseman Clete Boyer, fielding hero of the first game, bounced Pete Rose's ground ball into a line drive that struck him square on the chest for an error and Gordie Coleman's drive into the left-field bleachers put Cincinnati two up. Yogi Berra then produced his 19th series homer after a walk to Roger Maris.

For Maris, the Yankee homerun hero, it was the closest thing to a moment of glory in two miserable days as he stretched his batting record to nine hitless official at-bats, striking out twice and fielding indifferently. He has yet to hit a ball out of the infield.

BROKE IT OPEN

The turning point in the game, played before a crowd of 63,038, came in the fifth inning. With two outs, Rose stamped a fair ball into left-centre in front of Maris for a single and moved to third on another single by Eddie Kasko.

New York starter Ralph Terry, pitching carefully to the dangerous Vada Pinson, threw a slider that got away from catcher Elston Howard, bouncing about 10 feet from the plate.

Howard recovered the ball and glanced at second base, expecting Kasko to advance. Neither he nor Terry, who failed to cover the plate, saw Chacon streaking in from third until the catcher made a belated lunge. By then, the 26-year-old Cincinnati was safely home.

The Reds struck again in the sixth as Wally Post doubled with two outs, Manager Ralph Houk ordered Terry to walk third-baseman Gene Freese and Edwards, a minor-leaguer until last June, singled down the first base line to score Post.

In the eighth, the Yankee defences fell apart again. Terry had dazzled for a pitch hitter and ace reliever Luis Arroyo began by walking Robinson. Then he grabbed Coleman's tap in front of the plate and threw the ball into right field. Robinson came around to score and Coleman was pulled sliding into third.

Then Post sent a drive to left and Berra misjudged it for a three - base error. Again Freese was intentionally walked and Edwards banged a broken-bat double to left to send Post home with the final Cincinnati run.

Both managers stuck to their original pitching choices as the teams moved to Cincinnati for the third game. Houk named right-hander Bill Stafford (16-9) to oppose veteran knuckleballer Bob Purkey (18-12), also a right-hander.

The Yankees hoped for the return of Mickey Mantle, sidelined for the first two games with an infected hip, but the hard - hitting outfielder was still on the limp Thursday.

Yankees Drop To 2-1 Favorites

LAS VEGAS (AP) — New York Yankees dropped to 2-to-1 favorites to take the world series following their 6-2 loss to Cincinnati Reds Thursday after taking the opener 3-0. The American League champs were 4 to 1 after the first game.

"If Yogi gets on a ball pitch in the eighth," said winning pitcher Joey Jay, "it was one ball four but he went for two ball four but he went for

B.C. Lions Face Tough Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

British Columbia's Lions, roaring for more success after their first victory of the Western Football Conference and Canadian Interlocking schedule last Saturday, were flying to Winnipeg today for what coach Dave Skrien moderately predicted as a "rough weekend."

The Lions, in last place in the western standing with a win over Hamilton Tiger-Cats, tie with Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Conference, face the Blue Bombers Saturday night. The second-place Winnipeg club is counting on a victory to overtrump Edmonton Eskimos in the league leadership.

The Bombers, as a result, are sizzling in at Winnipeg's Clarke Stadium against an unbeaten Saskatchewan eight by Coach Bud Grant, ex-Minnesota Vikings star.

The Lions, beset by losses and administrative problems at home, will try to prove that last weekend's first over Eddie Wynes Robinson.

Played to Win

Joey Pitched To Maris-Carefully

NEW YORK (AP)—Joey Jay, 6 a six-foot four-inch right-hander, operates on the theory that a pitcher who can't worry when he's on the mound.

"He can be concerned," said Jay, 44 winner over New York Yankees Thursday in the game that knotted the world series for Cincinnati Reds at a game apiece.

But he can't worry. Once he starts to worry, he's beaten."

Jay, 26, is an outspoken fellow who tries to approach pitching from a clinical viewpoint. He approached it well, considering his 13-10 record. He is an ambidextrous batter and the first Little Leaguer to make the majors.

"For instance, there are a lot of batters you figure you'll have to strike out," he said. "So the next thing to do is try to make them hit your pitch.

"I was doing that with Tony Kubek and I'll be darned if I didn't strike him out. Twice!"

THROWS WITH CARE

Jay said he pitched cautiously to Roger Maris.

"I don't like to stop home run king.

"I stopped him by throwing him good pitches," Jay said. "It's as simple as that. I walked him in the fourth and that's fine by me. I really didn't want to walk him because I knew what was coming. I just wasn't afraid to pitch to him.

"But on the other hand, you can't pitch a game merely to please the crowd. You've got to pitch to win and the situation calls for walking Maris or anyone else, I'll do it.

CHACON SCORES IN CLOSE PLAY — Elio Chacon, Cincinnati Red second baseman, made a dash from third to home in fifth inning of World Series game, scoring a short passed ball by Yankee catcher Elston Howard. Herb Howard goes for the passed ball as batter Vada Pinson (28) stands at plate. At lower left Chacon starts his slide as pitcher Ralph Terry comes to home plate to assist. Howard makes a diving stab at tag to lower right but Chacon's foot is across the plate. (AP Wirephoto).

Hawks Meet All-Stars Saturday

CHICAGO (CP) — Dominated by players from Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs, the National Hockey League all-star team challenges Chicago Black Hawks, Stanley Cup champions, Saturday night.

A crowd of 14,000 is expected at Chicago Stadium for the 15th game in the series, in which the All-Stars have won six, lost four and tied four.

Coach Sid Abel of Detroit Red Wings lost to Chicago in the Stanley Cup final last season, will coach the All-Stars.

Abel has lost three all-stars for the engagement — Charles Jean Beliveau and Henri Richard of Canadiens and receiver Earl Ingarfield of Leafs, all out with injuries. He named three replacements: centres Don Marshall and Phil Goyette of Canadiens and defenceman Tim Horton of Leafs.

Casey Visits 'That Old Gang of Mine'

NEW YORK (AP)—A former Yankee of note—Casey Stengel of Oakland A's—will see his old gang picture Thursday just before the second game between New York and Cincinnati Reds.

Stengel, who managed the American League champions between 1949 and 1960, went to the batting cage while the Yankees were taking batting practice and chatted with many of his old players.

Photographers swarmed around as he conversed with Yogi Berra.

Stengel was signed last Friday as manager of New York Mets in the National League next season. In 12 years as Yankee manager, his teams won 10 American League championships and seven world series. He was dismissed a year ago by the Yankees because of his 70 years.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Ottawa Oil! Tampa! Nol

Yesterday a gallant young David, untested and untried in the crucible of world series battle, stood alone and unafraid in the Yankee amphitheatre and "four-shotted" the powerful Gotham Goliaths to their knees with a decisive 6-2 victory.

Last night Joey Jay was the toast of Cincinnati and other underdog supporters from Hamilton to Honolulu, Timbuctoo to Tokyo and wherever baseball is played.

Yesterday was U. D. Day. And the Underdogs howled to the high heavens. Horseboots Yankee boffs were as silent as the big guns of the Bouncer artillery. Some of them took solace in the time-worn sports cliche "Yuh can't win 'em all."

Master artilleur Jay spiked the Yankee guns so effectively as the ordinance detachments of the 42nd Brigade after the charge at Dunkirk. Well, almost. He missed one when he threw a time bomb at Yogi Berra and Yogi exploded it for two-run homer in the fourth.

And except for a couple of harmless singles that was the Alpha and Omega of the Yankee hitting.

But there were other contributing factors to the Redlegs victory. Two virtual unknowns, Elio Chacon and John Edwards, last night shared the hero's dais in Cincinnati. The two brilliant young performers came through sensationally in the clutches, especially the latter when Yankee "strategy" called for intentional walks to the Reds' Gene Freese.

The second walk and its results brought tears almost to the voices of those monotonous monologists, John Garagiola and Mel Allen, "The Voices of the Yankees" and "experts" at second-guessing.

When Freese was walked to "set Edwards" with Robinson on base this doughty pair cluttered the TV airways with their opinions of the action of Yankee Manager Ralph Houk. "He's going for the percentages," chortled Allen. "The boys have faith in their manager—they know what he is doing," tittled Garagiola.

Then Edwards drove a grounder between first and second, scoring Robinson. There was silence for a second —then in quiet tones came Allen's voice "The percentage didn't pay off."

What yesterday's Redleg victory did prove is that the Yankees are not the supermen some people would have you believe. They were lauded, after their sparkling 3-0 opener win as having the "greatest infield in the history of baseball." Yesterday that infield fell apart with a couple of costly bobbles, while the "old faithful" Yogi Berra let an easy fly bounce at and through his feet, albeit he redeemed himself with a two-run homer.

Jay's brilliant effort in limiting the Yankee plate power to four hits; the brilliancy of the team's defence and ability to hit in the clutches, plus the fact the Yankees are "just another ball club," as Bob Purkey says, have given the Cincinnati morale a tremendous boost.

Beaten but unbowed by a magnificent Yankee club in the first game, the Reds refused to accept the opinion of those who prophesied a "four-straight" series for the Bombers.

They have the advantage of the home-town stadium and crowd tomorrow, Sunday and Monday. But in passing, don't forget the fences at Crosley Field are made to order for the Yanks long-ball sluggers.

Purkey goes to the mound tomorrow in quest of his first world series win. Yankee manager Ralph Houk will send Bill Stafford, the third of his trio of starting hurlers.

The Redlegs have refused to be awed by an opening game defeat and the vaunted offence and defence of the Yankees. The could prove to be an interesting series.

Out Indefinitely

Mick Glum, Maris 'Lousy'

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle, hobbled by an infection and a clinging cold has no idea whether he'll be able to play Saturday, Sunday or in any game of the world series.

The switch - hitting New York slugger was glum and it was not only because Cincinnati Reds had beaten New York 6-2 Thursday to even the series at one game apiece.

"I can't do anything right now," Mantle grumbled. "It feels just like it did yesterday and the day before. I don't know how long I'll be out."

The Yankee centre - fielder was standing in front of his locker, naked except for a sock each - by - six - inch patch on his back covering the wound left by an operation for the removal of an abscess.

"Right now I can't swing left-handed. I can hit right - handed but I can't throw and I can't run."

MARIS SILENT

Directly across the Yankee club house, Roger Maris was getting ready to go into his street clothes.

"I've got nothing to say," he grumbled. "Just say I was lousy."

The other half of the M and M boys, who slammed a record 61 home runs during the regular season, didn't hit a ball out of the infield for the second straight day.

Maris hit into a force play in the first inning, walked in the fourth and struck out in the fifth and eighth. Although he insisted he was not pressing, he appeared to be swinging at bad pitches all afternoon.

"I struck him out on a bad pitch in the eighth," said winning pitcher Joey Jay, "It was one ball four but he went for two strikes."

Edwards, Chacon Brilliant

Reds' Reserves Share Hero's Role

NEW YORK (AP)—Ellis Chacon and John Edwards—brash young outfielders who didn't expect to play — answer Cincinnati Reds' hero's roll call today along with pitcher Joey Jay.

The Redlegs evened the world series at a game each with New York Yankees 6-2 Thursday and it was husky rookie Edwards who caught the four - hitter and drove in two of the runs.

Chacon finished the job with the deciding run in the fifth inning on a passed ball. He also singled, walked, narrowly missed a home run on a long fly to left and constituted three great fielding efforts, two of which started clutch double plays.

Chacon was a last-second replacement for second baseman Don Blasingame, who had a bad finger.

Neither Chacon nor Edwards knew they would play until they were on the field taking warmups.

Chacon blooped a single into short centre in the fifth and went to third on Eddie Kasko's single behind the base. The score was tied 2-2 and Yankee starter Ralph Terry was pitching to Johnny Pinson who drew a ball got away from Elston Howard.

"I go because I think I have a chance," said the beaming native of Corpus, Texas. "He told me to stay," Chacon added, pointing to third base coach Reggie Otero. "But what could I do? I was already gone. No, I do it on my own. Nobody give me signal."

Cornered by reporters, Chacon put up his arms as if pleading for help with his uncertain English.

"The pitcher no cover the plate," he started again. "But I would go anyway." I thought the ball, she had gone away far enough. Yes, I slide under the catcher. It work pretty good, no?"

Held by one questioner he didn't think Chacon would take the chance to score.

"Nobody can stop me," Chacon beamed. "I feel confidential—how you say, happy."

Edwards, with a .188 batting average and 16 runs batted in for the regular season, smiled when the discussion got around to his hitting.

Twice the Yankees intentionally passed Pinson ahead of him and twice Edwards delivered a run-producing hit. The first was a single to right bringing in the big insurance run in the sixth. In the eighth he socked a broken - bat double down the left field line.

"On both occasions I got a good strike to hit," he said.

Chacon's clinching run was grudging praise from Yankee Manager Ralph Houk.

"Chacon broke . . . it worked . . . you see lots of plays like that during the season, but in the series " and Houk shrugged philosophically.

Howard appearently didn't played like a man inspired. Chacon looked puzzled for a second, then beamed. "I feel confidential—how you say, happy."

Reds Get 'Howling' Reception

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds, deadlocked with the New York Yankees in the 1961 world series after two games, should be getting used to howling greetings when they return home.

They got it several weeks ago when they returned after sweeping a key three - game series with Los Angeles Dodgers. They got it last week on their return from Chicago where they had clinched at least a share of the National League pennant.

And they got it again Thursday night as they returned from New York where they bounced back Thursday for a 6-2 victory over the Yankees after losing the opener 2-0.

Greater Cincinnati Airport was crowded with fans. They waved banners and shouted as the players and their wives began to emerge from the first-class plane. A caravan of horn-blaring automobiles followed the team's bus into the downtown area.

APPROVES LEASE

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York City board of estimate formally approved terms of a lease with the Metropolitan baseball club Thursday, opening the way for construction of a $15,000,000 sports stadium in Flushing Meadows, Queens. Work is expected to start in a couple of weeks on the 31,000-seat structure.

The Mets will join the National League next season, along with Houston Colts, making it a 10-team circuit.

Meet For Softball Crown

WINDSOR (CP) — Windsor Calcot Hotel and Sudbury Park National Hotel will meet here this weekend for the all - Ontario senior A crown of the Ontario Softball Association.

The best-of-three series will be played here. The first game will be played Saturday afternoon with the second Sunday afternoon. If a third game is needed it will be played later Sunday. The Sudbury team is the defending champion. Windsor's best All-Ontario title was won in 1957.

Gaudaur Gets Reprimand

WINNIPEG (CP) — Commissioner Sydney Halter of the Canadian Football League reprimanded General Manager Jake Gaudaur of Hamilton Tiger-Cats Thursday for a breach of CFL waiver regulations.

Halter said he has written Gaudaur chastising him for disclosing during a Hamilton radio program that Montreal Alouettes had placed several players on waivers.

The commissioner said regulations require that all information remain confidential in a team's waiver memorandum—in which it advises other league clubs and officials that it has placed players on waivers — is confidential.

"It can only be divulged by the club placing a player on waivers or waivers or by a club which subsequently is successful in having a player awarded to it on waivers."

The Flyingmand followed a protest by Alouette coach Perry Moss over the Gaudaur broadcast. Moss said Gaudaur's action was an attempt to cause discussion among the Alouettes.

Among the players mentioned by Gaudaur were Bill Bewley, Macy Pullman, Ben Murphy, Gene Gaines and Gerry Doucette. Moss admitted these and two or three others had been placed on the list.

But he said it was strictly a strategic manoeuvre used by all clubs in order to keep players without exposing the maximum number of players allowed a team at any given time.

Wings Wallop Leafs 4-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit Red Wings tangled with big - league opposition Thursday night and won with a bigger margin than Montreal Canadiens did over their minor league farm club.

The Wings defeated Toronto Maple Leafs, the team they beat 4-1 in games in the Stanley Cup semi-finals last spring 5-2. Canadiens beat Hull-Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern Professional League 3-1, one of their goals coming while Hull-Ottawa goalkeeper Conny Maniago was out of the pet in favor of an extra attacker.

For some players, the games were warmups for the National Hockey League all-star game in Chicago Saturday night. Detroit coach Sid Abel will be handing the All-Stars when they meet the Stanley Cup champion Chicago Black Hawks.

New York Rangers broke up their training camp at Guelph, Thursday. Playing-coach Doug Harvey and three players headed for the all-star game and the rest of the club for weekend exhibition games against American League clubs in the United States.

Harvey was picked for the all-star team as a defenceman with Montreal last season. Last season's Rangers on the squad are Andy Hebenton, Dean Prentice and goalkeeper Lorne Worsley.

In an AHL exhibition game at Niagara Falls, Ont., Thursday night, Pittsburgh Hornets and Rochester Americans fought to a 3-3 tie.

Wants Chest Protector

Yogi No Pall-Berra

This is another in a series of exclusive world series sketches written for The Associated Press by Yogi Berra of New York Yankees.

By YOGI BERRA

CINCINNATI (AP)—Now can say that the Yankees have had so many left fielders, Sometimes you get spikes it by ear out there in Yankee Stadium.

Before today in Crosley Field, where we work out, I'll be pretty careful. Under game conditions, I hear you must learn how the balls carom off the wall. Well, I'll be practising all the angles. Their park is nothing like ours. It's a cruel small park, maybe our hitters will get going but still it ain't like that of me. Then it pask, tipped the end of my glove and went right through my legs. I felt goshin'. It never touched my pants. And I could see it clearly without flippin' down my sun glasses.

CAME LIKE CANNON

The toughest ball to catch is the one hit right at you and Post's shot came out like a cannon. At first I didn't think I could get it and I started in. Then when I was all set I gave it the cardsharp and to sank. It bad overspin or topspin, like a topped gold shot.

If the ball does get back to New York, I wish I can take my old catcher's chest protector into left field.

But, you know, there was only one ball hit directly that I didn't see. That was the high foul Chris Boyer caught against the box seats in the ninth. When those balls get up in the air, I always look coming from the stands, you just can't see them. You can't see the high fly in left centre. I used to grin when Joe Dimaggio said that. I thought he was kiddin'. But he wasn't.

Fellas asked me about Joey Chacon. He's a good kid then. But thinking it over, I think I'll hit a homer and out into a triple. It wasn't easy. I saw the ball all the way until it got right in front of me. Then it pask, tipped the end of my glove and went right through my legs. I felt goshin'. It never touched my pants. And I could see it clearly without flippin' down my sun glasses.

But the pitch he gave me was right down the gut. Ball high. It's the ball I like. If Joey says "it was low" I want pieces of 'em.

I think it was the only ball pulled against Joey. It was pretty fast. I was swinging now — only another series homer in a losing game.

GIVES IT ANOTHER TRY

The fact that Post's "out" meant three bases and their last run, it had no bearing on the game. That means nothing to me. I don't care what Rickey says. They all know I give it my best.

The fans helped us something else Thursday. They know how to play for the dockside. Only Elston Howard is fast, and he caught one ball in the box. Today maybe we'll see what fine help by Eddie Kasko turned it into a DP. That was the turning point for us. We were trailing only 4-3 then and his play took Jay off the hook. Jay was the master after that play.

Glad I never said "I'll win four straight! I can't go for that kinda talk.

Pitchers control a world series and you need runs. The two I scored Thursday weren't enough. Saturday may be different. Roger Maris and Mickey may make Mickey will be back.

Hawks, Wings Strengthen NHL President Speaks

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League says the addition of Bobby Hull to Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings — two more "very definite additions" to their playing personnel for the 1961-62 season starting next week.

Campbell, who professes to be neutral in the league's 1961 championship race, said in an interview the Black Hawks filled a gap at centre by adding Bronco Horvath from Boston Bruins and added defensive strength by acquiring Bob Turner from Montreal Canadiens.

Horvath was obtained in the NHL draft while Turner came from the Habs in a trade.

Detroit strengthened by picking up Eddie Litzenberger in a trade with Chicago.

"It is not in my province to know what the Bruins parted with this player (Horvath), or what the Habs gave up getting this two years back by a shade point," Campbell said, "I'll let that go.

"I presume that Phil Watson, the Bruins' new coach, doesn't like him . . . however that's not my business. Horvath will fill a centre ice spot in Chicago, and he's not exhibitionny money - minded to put on any great battle there."

Campbell said Turner "will be the Hawks some good."

Wings president Jack Adams declined to say about Litzenberger;

"In two years that player hasn't lived up to his true potential with the Hawks. He has the great natural ability, probably figured to get by on that alone without putting too much pressure on himself.

"He won't be able to do anything like that in Detroit. He leading is tolerated by (coach) Sid Abel and (general manager) Jack Adams."

Campbell said the Canadiens sell Miss Doug Harvey, allstar defenceman traded to New York Rangers where he has become playing - coach.

But he thinks Lou Fontinato, acquired in the Harvey trade, will be a good man for the Canadiens — under Toe Blake's coaching and development of a sense of responsibility, which he didn't seem to acquire in New York."

Ethel Merman Scores Hit In Hollywood Theatre Debut

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ethel Merman made her Los Angeles debut at the Biltmore Theatre this week. She's a hit!

Miss Merman, who sings loudly with feet planted apart, is touring the provinces in Gypsy, and she could probably continue as long as her energy holds out.

There was wonderment over how anyone but Merman could play the film version. None but Warner Brothers can undertstand the casting of Rosalind Russell. It's true that Ros is an international name while Merman isn't, but how is Ros going to belt out those songs?

Industry leaders meet this week to kick off the 30th Permanent Charities drive, aiming to raise $1,000,000 from movie workers for community services. The campaign got a fast start with a $35,000 donation from Samuel Goldwyn, founder of the drive.

Preview: Bridge to the Sun is an arresting study of a West-East romance caught amid the conflict of nations. A sort of reverse Madame Butterfly, the real-life story portrays Carroll Baker as a Tennessee girl who weds James Shigeta, a Japanese diplomat. They are faced by hate from countrymen on both sides after Pearl Harbor and suffer through the war after deportation to Japan. Both stars play their roles with convincing intensity. The film somehow misses greatness, perhaps because it tries to cover too much ground and too much history.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Burt Lancaster and Audrey Hepburn,stars of "The Unforgiven", shown here in the film's dramatic highlight when Miss Hepburn, as a young girl of a pioneer family is forced to face the true origins of her mystery-shrouded past. This story of conflict between a tribe of Indians who claim the girl for their own, and the pioneer family willing to fight a war of extermination for her, was directed by John Huston. The picture, filmed in Technicolor and Panavision on location in Mexico, and is playing the Belleville Drive-In Theatre tonight and Saturday. Second feature also in color is the fun-filled comedy "Gidget Goes Hawaiian" and features James Darren, Michael Callan and Deborah Walley.

AT THE PARK — In his production of "The Ladies Man", star-director-writer-producer Jerry Lewis has heidaches, thirty-one of them, four of whom are (from the left) Shary Layne, Ann McCrea, Patricia Olson and Gloria Tracey. The Technicolor comedy, a Paramount release co-starring Helen Traubel, showing today and Saturday at the Park Theatre. On,the same program in Technicolor and Cinema-Scope "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea", starring Walter Pidgeon, Joan Fontaine, Frankie Avalon and Barbara Eden. Continuous Saturday from 1.00.

Crime-Adventure Series Most Interesting TV Fare

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A threesome of new programs had their premiere performances on the CBS network Thursday night. A circus series with a western background, a comedy-adventure series and a crime-adventure series.

Most interesting was The Investigators, the crime-adventure series. It is built around the exploits of a team of private detectives specializing in insurance fraud. The opening show concerned a murder - for - profit ring operating out of a dance studio. It was well acted, well produced but the story line is getting a little thin at the elbows.

Frontier Circus started with a man whipping another man and wound up with a sadistic animal trainer pushing his wife and a rival into a cage with an angry lion. Actually, the western background isn't important — although it will probably provide opportunities for extra violence when they run out of circus themes.

The new Bob Cummings Show is the same as the old Bob Cummings Show except that Bob is now a trouble - shooter instead of a picture - shooter. If you liked the other series, you'll probably think this one is a scream, too.

Tonight — Straighaway, Premiere, ABC, 7:30-8 EDT—action-adventure involving auto racing.

The Nets, a warm, premiere, ABC, 8-8:30—comedy series with the Marquis chimps, Peggy Cass and Jack Weston.

Dinah Shore Show, NBC, 9:30-10:30—station preempts.

Saturday — Titanic, NBC, 9-11 post-1948 film starring Barbara Stanwyck.

Sunday — Show of the Week, NBC, 10-11.

Scouting activities

By CHRIS F. LEGGAT

RAYSIDE CUBS

We have just received a letter from Mrs. Betty Moase telling us of the wonderful time the Cubs had at their first camp. Eighteen Cubs and two Scouts attended this camp which was held at the W.C.M.U. camp at Consecon.

The boys were divided into two groups with Scout Garry Millar (Black Plume) and Senior Sixer Bill Fell in charge of one group and Scout Ted Fell (White Claw) with Senior Sixer Vince Moase taking care of the other group. Group committee chairman Chuck Hartelvich was camp chief and proved to be a very efficient and popular chief. At this point we think it is only fair to inform Chuck that it was a similar invevter in 1955 that resulted in our being "drafted" into the Scout Movement. Of course this was many years ago but the system hasn't changed. Bayside is fortunate having a chairman who takes such an active part in Scouting. Camp assistants were A.C.M. Noel Curran and A.C.M. Betty Moase.

The most important item in a successful Cub camp is food. Cubs are equipped with elastic tummies and this didn't scare Mrs. D. L. Jones and Mrs. E. Sowerden, assisted by Mrs. Noel Curran and Mrs. Lois Cole. They did a major job satisfying the hungry boys and received well deserved praises from everybodys who enjoyed the excellent meals served.

In spite of inclement weather paper chases and hikes were actively engaged in and of course the well-planned campfire. Saluting "Echo" joined in the festivities by orbiting across the sky making a proud closing of the evening campfire.

The camp staff wishes to express its sincere thanks to the mothers who helped, and the fathers assisting in setting up of the camp. A special "thank you" to Miss Lynda Hartelvich, and the two Scouts who served so ably at the camp.

CUB BILL FELL

Senior Sixer Bill Fell has been awarded his 14th badge—the first 14-badge Cub in the Bayside Pack. Our heartiest congratulations to you, Bill, on this wonderful achievement; you must have put a lot of effort into it, under the patient and efficient leaders.

INCREASE IN MEMBERSHIP

Canada's Boy Scout membership now totals 309,517, Ontario has 133,081 Cubs, Scouts and leaders. These figures are impressive and we believe that you, the parents, should know something about the Boy Scout movement. We urge you therefore to attend our annual meeting in the Kiwanis Centre on October 30th at 8.00 p.m. (Please note change in date.) A friendly welcome awaits you.

Belleville residents for a confidential interview formed by the Trenton seniors 37-12. Moira Juniors played a heads up ball game, and walked away with a 25-7 victory over the Trenton juniors. Ron Faulkner scored four touchdowns and a convert for the winners.

SENIOR GAME

Jones kicked off for Moira. The ball came down about the 35-yard line and it was returned to the 45. Trenton drove to the Moira 35, but Lucas intercepted a pass to stop the advance. Moira couldn't move and they were forced to kick. Trenton began another drive only to have Lucas intercept another pass. Moira couldn't move and again they were forced to kick. Trenton took over on their own 35 and the Tigers advanced to the 20 where they were held. Moira took possession and Ron Faulkner-back was caught in the end zone for two points.

Moira failed to move from their 30 and they punted. Trenton couldn't move and they too punted. Moira again was forced to kick but the punt was blocked by Trenton. Trenton took possession on the 35. They moved the ball in three plays to the 10-yard line and Jones carried and scored the touchdown on a drive through the middle. The convert was missed.

Moira couldn't get under way on the kickoff and were forced to kick. Trenton was held and punted. Moira took over on their own ten. The first play was stopped at the line of scrimmage but the second play went all the way with a 90-yard run by Glenn Bil Minion who combined for a hundred-yard pass and play. Jones made the convert after good.

After the kickoff, Trenton pushed to the Moira 10 where they were stopped. Moira failed to move and the punt was blocked in the end zone. Trenton's Jim Champagne dove on the loose ball for the touchdown. The convert was good.

Trenton kicked off and Moira began a drive that ended short at the Trenton 18. Trenton ran out the downs and Moira punted to the one-yard line. Dave Olsen went over for the major on a quarterback keeper and the extra point was missed.

Second half saw a fine defensive game. Both teams played good ball but Trenton had the edge climaxing their first scoring play came late in the third quarter after each team had been forced to punt a number of times. Briggs scored his second touchdown of the game on a 30-yard end run. The convert was missed.

The fourth quarter was a good deal like the third. Both teams played hard. Trenton scored again in the last few minutes of play. Moira kicked and Trenton took over on their own 35. They marched to the 30-yard line and sent Quantril around the end for a 30-yard scoring play. The convert was missed. This concluded the scoring as both teams ran out with Moira in possession.

JUNIOR GAME

Moira kicked off to open the game. The ball was returned to the Trenton 35 yard line where Trenton fumbled and obliged to kick. Moira gained possession on the Trenton 45 after a no yards penalty and a poor kick. In two plays Moira moved down to the 35 yard line. Ron Faulkner scored the touchdown, his fifty of the day, on a pass from Dan Fraser and Faulkner missed the extra point.

After the kickoff Trenton drove to the Moira twenty but they were held and forced to punt. The Moira receiver was caught in the end zone for a single.

Moira couldn't move from the twenty and they were forced to kick. Trenton took possession on the 37 and moved the ball in five plays to the ten yard line. Myers drove through the centre for the T.D. The convert was missed.

Jones kicked off and two good runs by Dave Lloyd moved Moira to their own 45. A fake kick and a drive by B. Murray put the ball on the Trenton 40. Moira couldn't score but they held Trenton who were forced to kick. The punt was blocked and Rod Glenoe dove on the ball for a Moira touchdown. The extra point was missed.

Moira got rolling early in the second quarter. They moved on a drive from their own forty yard line to the Trenton 15 and Ron Faulkner found Ron Faulkner for his second major of the day. Faulkner made the point after good.

Moira moved the ball to the Trenton 30 late in the third quarter but couldn't penetrate deeper. Trenton failed to move and Moira got the ball moved in to the 35 and Ron Faulkner booted a 42 yard field goal on a fine run for his third T.D. of the day. He missed the extra point.

Moira kicked off and both sides failed to move. Trenton on their own 12. The kicker was caught in the end zone for 2 points.

Moira scored again late in the game on a pass and run play from Fenner to Faulkner covering forty yards. Moira Juniors look like the team to beat on the basis of their last two games.

Scoharie

SCOHARIE — Miss Norma Foster was a Saturday supper guest of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kerr, Rhonda and Kathry, Big Island.

Moira gained possession on the Trenton 45 after a no yards penalty and a poor kick. In two plays Moira moved down to the 35 yard line. Ron Faulkner scored the touchdown, his fifty of the day, on a pass from Dan Fraser and Faulkner missed the extra point.

After the kickoff Trenton drove to the Moira twenty but they were held and forced to punt. The Moira receiver was caught in the end zone for a single.

Moira couldn't move from the twenty and they were forced to kick. Trenton took possession on the 37 and moved the ball in five plays to the ten yard line. Myers drove through the centre for the T.D. The convert was missed.

Jones kicked off and two good runs by Dave Lloyd moved Moira to their own 45. A fake kick and a drive by B. Murray put the ball on the Trenton 40. Moira couldn't score but they held Trenton who were forced to kick. The punt was blocked and Rod Glenoe dove on the ball for a Moira touchdown. The extra point was missed.

Moira got rolling early in the second quarter. They moved on a drive from their own forty yard line to the Trenton 15 and Ron Faulkner found Ron Faulkner for his second major of the day. Faulkner made the point after good.

Moira moved the ball to the Trenton 30 late in the third quarter but couldn't penetrate deeper. Trenton failed to move and Moira got the ball moved in to the 35 and Ron Faulkner booted a 42 yard field goal on a fine run for his third T.D. of the day. He missed the extra point.

Moira kicked off and both sides failed to move. Trenton on their own 12. The kicker was caught in the end zone for 2 points.

Moira scored again late in the game on a pass and run play from Fenner to Faulkner covering forty yards. Moira Juniors look like the team to beat on the basis of their last two games.

Sunday School Lesson

Religion More Than Duty

By ROY L. SMITH

It is one of the misfortunes of this generation that, in the opinion of vast numbers of irreligious people, religion is a burdensome duty. It is a common thing, for example, to hear young people say "I want to be free for a while and enjoy life" as though to be a religious person meant that life was limited and constrained.

And, it must be confessed, no small part of this opinion results from the fact that the church has talked about "self-render," "self-denial" and "giving up sin." The mental attitudes represented by these words are to be commended, but the words themselves sound as if religion were demanding that life be reduced to cheerlessness, grimness, and a certain stern morality that left no room for joy.

IT MEANS POWER

Actually, good religion represents the possession of inner power. The genuinely religious man does not think of his religious responsibilities as difficult duties to be performed as quickly as possible in order that they may be done with. Instead he thinks of them as gateways through which he may go in search of power for living.

"I knew from the start that he would become a great player," said the coach, concerning his star quarterback, "because he loved the game so much that he even enjoyed the grueling hours of practice." Football, for that boy, was not a duty to be done with as soon as possible. Instead, it was a game that continued to beckon him every hour of the day. It had put something into him; it had contributed a thrill to his life; he played for the fun of it.

A religion that does not put something into us—that does not produce an inner power — is poor religion, no matter how faithful we may be in performing our religious duties.

There was an old Gospel song of 50 years ago that expressed the idea:

"Oh the Children of the Lord
Have a right to shout and sing."

The religion that does not produce this sense of joy within the soul of the believer is a poor substitute for the real thing.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 8: "How Christians Grow," Matthew 11:28-30; Luke 9:51-56; 1 Corinthians 3:1-4; Philippians 2:4-17.

Who has a better right to be happy than that man who is sure of the good will of God, who is confident that God is his ally, and who lives without fear of the judgments of God?

It can almost be said that our spiritual growth can be measured by the increase in our joy in living.

SA Band Presides at UC Anniversary

VICTORIA — The United Church was beautifully decorated with autumn flowers, fruit and vegetables, symbols of God's bounty, for the anniversary service on Sunday afternoon. The Rev. J. Irwin, pastor of the church, extended a welcome to the large congregation, then gave the service over to the Belleville Salvation Army Band, Major Rawlins and The Living Word' male quartet of Toronto. The band led in the singing of Onward Christian Soldiers and the quartet sang several numbers. Major Rawlins with his cornet, led in congregational singing.

Especially enjoyed and appreciated was 'How Great Thou Art.'

Major Rawlins spoke on the place and use of music in delivering the Christian message, and of how large a place it plays in the ministry of the Salvation Army. This inspirational service closed with singing, 'Take My Life and Let It Be,' and the closing prayer by a band member.

Victoria congregation and friends are most appreciative to the Belleville Army Corps for this fine anniversary service.

ALL-PURPOSE TYPE

Onion of the yellow globe type are strong-flavored, have good keeping qualities and are suitable for steaming, frying and boiling.

IT MEANS CONCERN

Frank Beard, the great cartoonist of 50 or more years ago, once pictured a grim old man and his wife, together with their son and his wife, with bowed heads, returning thanks over their dinner. And the prayer of thanksgiving was revealing:

"Lord bless me and my wife,
My son John and his wife,
Us four and
No more. Amen."

Christian growth does not consist of the power that flows into our lives, but the power that flows through our lives.

The matured Christian is not a cistern, but a flowing stream—not an accumulation of virtues but an outpouring of mercy, sympathy, thoughtfulness, and forgiveness. Our maturity can be measured by our spirit of concern.

IT MEANS SERENITY

Jesus was not trying to say something clever when He advised His disciples not to be anxious (or worried) about tomorrow. Instead He was appealing to their faith—urging them to trust God with the issues of life. He never promised anyone an easy time of it; but He did promise sufficient power to enable us to meet the worst without worrying about the outcome.

British Plane With 34 Aboard Hits Mountain

Search Parties Start For Wreck in Pyrenees

PERPIGNAN, France (AP)—Wreckage of a plane — apparently a British airliner missing with 34 persons aboard — was found today in mountains near Prades, about 30 miles from Perpignan, police at Prades announced.

The wreckage was spotted by residents in the lacos of the Canigou peak of the Pyrenees at an altitude of some 4,000 feet.

Search parties were sent to the scene.

Weather in the area was reported bad. Mount Canigou, which is mixed fir iron ore, rises to 9,137 feet.

The British plane, a twin-engined Dakota, dropped from sight on a flight from Gatwick airport near London to Perpignan, a regional commercial centre of 85,000 in southern France about 10 miles from the Mediterranean and 20 from the Spanish frontier.

The plane was due to land at this town near the Spanish border at 12:30 a.m. when it reported all normal to the Bordeaux control station.

Then nine minutes later it had made radio contact with Toulouse while flying over the city, 100 miles from Perpignan.

CARRIED 34

(In London the charter company, Derby Aviation, said the plane carried 31 passengers and a crew of three. The airline, which is transporting the passengers to buses waiting at Perpignan to take them on to Spanish resorts.)

The search was centred on the Pyrenees after reports from shepherds in the mountains near the town of Campredon that they had seen a plane flying very low and apparently in difficulty during the night.

The search was extended over the eastern Mediterranean.

Rescue planes and helicopters were forced to fly under a 2,000-foot cloud ceiling with a visibility of about 10 miles.

Officials said overnight weather conditions at Perpignan were "not particularly bad" despite fierce storms that lashed southern France.

Winds up to 130 miles an hour were recorded along the Mediterranean coast and brief torrential rains hit Marseille. Also Provence and other towns, paralyzing traffic and causing brief floods.

U.S. MAY SEND TROOPS TO AID SOUTH VIET NAM

Expect Red Attacks When Rains Cease

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is considering sending U.S. troops to help South Viet Nam fight off Communist attacks, expected to grow stronger when the rainy season ends later this month.

U.S. officials consider South Viet Nam the main target of the Communist drive in Southeast Asia. If the government of president Ngo Dinh Diem should fall, they say, Thailand, Malaya, Burma and Cambodia would be strongly influenced.

High state department sources revealed privately Friday that sending troops to South Viet Nam was under consideration.

Troops from other nations in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization may join in bolstering South Viet Nam's defences.

For several weeks, U.S. sources have been predicting a drive by North Viet Nam to grab off all or part of its neighbor, possibly by using regular forces as well as guerrilla infiltration.

They say the best time for such a move will be in November and December, after the rainy season ends.

Reports have been received here of Communist troops moving in division strength toward South Viet Nam over the jungle trails of Southern Laos.

U.S. officials think the Communists will try to establish an autonomous government in the Mekong River area to embarrass Diem's pro - Western government. This, they say, is a familiar Communist tactic, used in the past in China and Laos.

Canadian Leaders Find Something To Be Thankful for in Messages

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In the words of the official proclamation, Canadians on Monday will observe a "day of general thanks-giving to Almighty God for the bounteous harvest with which Canada has been blessed."

There are some in this country who may have mixed feelings about Thanksgiving Day, 1961.

There are the thousands who have been unemployed; there are the Prairie farmers whose crops have been hurt by hail and drought; there are the people of Newfoundland who have seen their fisheries destroyed by forest fires.

But by tradition, Thanksgiving Day is a time for optimism and hope.

Says Rt. Rev. Hugh Alexander McLeod, moderator of the United Church:

"Canadians are blessed above most people, but we can hardly be with a good conscience give thanks for that. We can pray to be more worthy of our great gifts and for grace to share them."

Today's Chuckle

A commentary on the times is that music "loosely" now is usually preceded by "old-fashioned."

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Cooler weather moving eastward from Manitoba will spread gradually through northern regions today and Sunday. Warm weather will continue in Southern Ontario today and Sunday. A cooler trend is indicated for Monday.

Former prime minister Louis St. Laurent speaks for many when he says:

"The people of the province of Quebec and Canada can express their gratitude for the prosperity for the state in which we found ourselves.

"At the same time, they can pray that present international tensions will not produce disastrous consequences."

One Thanksgiving Day tradition that will be well-observed this year is the turkey dinner.

The department of agriculture reports that turkeys are "beautiful, plump and reasonably priced across the country.

Thanksgiving sentiments of some Canadians:

Ralph B. Bowman of Rothesay and Saint John, N.B., a director of the Bank of Montreal: "Speaking as a businessman in a purely economic sense, we should be thankful for the degree of [illegible] which generally prevailed throughout all segments of our [illegible] ..."

... Gardiner, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto Council: "All Canadians should be thankful ... that war has been averted, that constructive progress is being made to ensure continued peace and better relations between the nations of the world, that unemployment has been substantially reduced and that economic conditions in Canada have been substantially improved."

Gurney Evans, acting premier of Manitoba: "We are thankful that crops were better than anticipated and for the remarkable buoyancy of the economy which in other spheres went on to new gains."

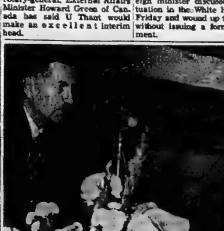
Russia Insists Security Body Pick Secretary

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Soviet Union will boycott any interim UN secretary-general who may be chosen without the consent of the Security Council.

Valerian Zorin, Soviet deputy foreign minister, told reporters in the United Nations lounge Friday night if the General Assembly picks a successor to the late Dag Hammarskjold without the council's prior recommendation, "life will go very hard for that man."



He explained that the new man would have the same position as Hammarskjold, boycotted by the Russians from last February until his death Sept. 18 in a plane crash in Northern Rhodesia.

No serious man, Zorin said, would take the job under those circumstances.

His remarks came after one correspondent said the United States or its friends would propose that the assembly name a temporary secretary-general unless there was U.S.-Soviet agreement that would permit veto-free action first in the council.

Earlier, informed diplomats said the United States is willing to have the matter originate in the council provided it would get agreement with the Soviet Union on eliminating the danger of a Soviet veto.

Informed sources said U Thant of Burma is acceptable to both the United States and the Soviet Union for temporary, secretary-general. External Affairs Minister Howard Green of Canada has said U Thant would be an excellent interim head.

Ontario's Democratic Party Open 3-Day Convention

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— Early registrations today indicated more than 1,000 CCF-NDP party members, trade unionists and other delegates will take part in the three-day convention of the New Democratic Party of Ontario.

The convention will found a new Ontario Branch of the party, elect officers and adopt a constitution and program.

Emergence of the Ontario NDP will spell the end of the Ontario CCF party, spawned by Depression in 1932. Its leader, Donald C. MacDonald, is expected to be elected Ontario New Democratic Party leader by acclamation.

Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan, federal NDP leader, will address the convention at a public rally tonight. Mr. MacDonald will speak Sunday.

Delegates will try to hammer out a political platform offering a new deal in farming, education, housing, health, labor, welfare and taxation. What they decide will be drafted into a complete provincial program to be presented to the 1962 election.

Sections in the constitution on membership fees are expected to cause some controversy. The draft suggests degressed membership fee of $4 a year, plus a family membership of $1 a year for each additional member of the family. College pensioners and those who are unemployed

East-West Berlin Dispute Still Extremely Dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a two - hour conference between President Kennedy and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, the United States and Russia were reported still far apart today on ways of negotiating a peaceful settlement of the Berlin crisis.

Informed U.S. officials consider the East-West dispute over Berlin still extremely dangerous. At the same time, hope persists that a solution short of military showdown will be found.

Kennedy and the Soviet foreign minister discussed the situation in the White House late Friday and wound up their talks without issuing a formal statement.

As he climbed into his limousine to return to the Soviet Embassy, Gromyko told reporters the conversation had been "useful." U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk, who sat in on the discussion, called it "interesting."

Kennedy was understood to have told Gromyko that the United States and its Western allies are fully determined to defend West Berlin against Communist pressures, to preserve their right to maintain troops in the city and to keep open the supply lines from West Germany.

Gromyko told reporters the conversation touched "several important matters" bearing on

STRIKE-RIDDEN INDUSTRY FACES 2ND WALKOUT

1,200 Millwrights May Leave Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's strike - riddled construction industry may be given further hampered next week as 1,200 millwrights from Windsor to Ottawa vote on whether to accept a two-year contract with a 15-cent increase or go on strike.

Hamilton millwrights turned down the 15-cent pattern Thursday. Members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (CLC) now have been negotiating a 35-hour week with no reduction in take-home pay since last March. The present rate is $3 an hour, except in the Ottawa Valley where millwrights earn $2.95.

Structural steel construction is tied up throughout the province as the result of a combined strike and lockout. Members of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers (CLC) called a delayed - action strike Sept. 15 that has now run nine times. The industry retaliated when the strike had affected 30 per cent of the job by shutting down the industry.

Toronto Trolley, 250 glaziers, members of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America (CLC) went on strike in support of demands for a 50-cent hourly increase spread over two years.

The strike affected 15 firms, and the glaziers earn $2.30 an hour. They rejected a management offer of a 25-cent-an-hour increase and a 35-cent premium for special work.

Before this week — mix drivers and helpers are involved in a concrete dispute which may lead to the layoff of thousands of construction workers. Thursday night's weekend if settlement is not reached.

The Teamsters Union (Ind.) demands the right to refuse to operate equipment in defence of housing construction unions.

Only bright spot in the labor picture was a settlement Friday between Local 598 of the Operative Plasterers and Cement Masons International Association, Toronto, and the Toronto Builders Exchange.

East Germany Marks Birthday

BERLIN (Reuters)—East Germany today celebrated its 12th birthday in the wake of a tough - talking speech by Communist leader Walter Ulbricht.

Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan was the star guest off a round of anniversary ceremonies by party and state leaders at the massive Soviet war memorial.

Mikoyan later was to address a mass rally at Marx - Engels Platz in East Berlin decked with brightly-colored flags and banners for the celebrations.

Ulbricht, in a speech to Communist leaders present from 17 foreign Communist parties, was expected to last for hours.

UN Group Grants Canada's Plea, Will Study Nuclear Fallout First

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Over - riding Soviet opposition, the 100-member United Nations special political committee Friday accepted a Canadian request to consider first the dangers of nuclear fallout to human health.

The committee — representing all UN members—took the action after Senator Paul Martin, Canadian ambassador to Chile, state once again that radioactive fallout from nuclear tests had increased to an alarming degree and that the contamination of nuclear tests by the Soviet Union.

Tremblay told the UN—as external Affairs Minister Howard Green did Tuesday—that, for example, the radioactive fallout over Toronto increased more than 1,000 times after the nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

The issue "is a matter of common and urgent concern to us all," Tremblay said.

Green said in an interview later that the question of radiation will be the main Canadian initiative at the current UN session. UN 1958 Canada initiated what was meant to be a worldwide study on radiation and its effects on health but the study has not progressed greatly.

Green, in his interview, appeared particularly pleased that non-aligned countries had supported the Canadian proposal that the atomic-radiation matter be given priority.

On a procedural basis, the support was impressive. Shinkichi Tahara, Japan's envoy, in only country to have suffered an atomic attack, supported the Canadian proposal. "wholeheartedly."

Ghana's H. R. Amoono said he had no objection to the Canadian proposal so long that the question of risks resulting to South Africa would be discussed after it.

Semyon Tsarapkin, the Soviet delegate, said there is nothing in an authorized report of the UN scientific committee on the effects of radiation that could be regarded as out of the ordinary.

Tsarapkin, the chief Soviet negotiator at the test ban negotiations in Geneva which collapsed after the resumption of Soviet tests, expressed fear that the debate might be political rather than scientific.

He did not press the matter to a formal vote and the committee chairman, Yordan Tchobanov of Communist Bulgaria, declared that atomic radiation would be taken up as the first item of business for the committee.

Manitoba Man Is Top Plowman On Sixth Try

Cyril Heynes, 51, Wins Canadian Championship

A 51-year-old Manitoba farmer trying for the sixth time for top honors at the International Plowing Match, finally made it yesterday.

The 1961 champion Canadian plowman is Cyril Heynes of Emerson, Manitoba, on the Canada-U.S.A. border, who in addition to his all-Canadian title is also Western champion and Manitoba champion.

Friday at the International Mr. Heynes won the Canadian plowing championship in a field of 14 contestants and will go to Holland next year for the World Match.

"That is still just a dream," Mr. Heynes told reporters yesterday after winning the Canadian championship.

Second place winner in the Canadian championship class was Tom Hickman from Chilliwack, B.C.

Ontario plowmen Grant Wells of Hagersville and Lloyd Dodds, field of Claremont, finished 4th and sixth respectively.

The Canadian champion plowman operates a quarter-section just north of the Canadian border. He features the growing and raising of beef. Mrs. Heynes is a "farm-born woman in the world" but the champion plowman and his wife have no children.

Champion in the junior event was Urban Wise of Norval, Ontario, who bested a field of 12 competitors. Kenneth Dodds of Toronto, took third prize.

FINAL DAY TODAY

The big International Plowing Match started into its 4th and final day today with local plowing committee members still expectant of an all-time record attendance of over 100,000.

Unofficial estimate of Yesterday's attendance at the match was given out, the crowd was at least as great as that of Thursday when between 50,000 and 60,000 persons jammed their way into Tented City".

Thousands of the visitors took advantage of the free hayrides provided by willing, wooded junior farmers and the fields were crowded all day as visitors watched the various plowing classes.

There was a good crowd on hand for the Canadian championships got underway in the morning but the biggest crowds turned up for the horse classes.

"I can't beat the horses," said one veteran farmer as he watched the horse teams of Percherons plodding slowly across the field.

GERALD NELSON SPAFFORD
(Kingston - Belleville)

A former well known and respected resident of this city, Gerald Nelson Spafford of Kingston, died recently in the Hotel Dieu Hospital at Kingston. Mr. Spafford was born in Picton, 49 years ago, being the son of Marshall Spafford and Florence Haggerty and had been a resident of Kingston for the past 28 years.

He was a foot specialist for many years and was actively wide clientele both in this city and also in the Kingston district. He was educated in the public and high schools of this city and then took an extended course on the care of feet in many institutions.

Mr. Spafford was a veteran of the First World War from 1914 to the close of hostilities. He had a penchant for writing and his accounts of the famous battles of that War for the Daily Ontario and Intelligencer were widely read in the district. He was always interested in the militia and was a serjeant in the 21st battery, 15th Field Artillery, 3rd Battery. He had an excellent record of service and he was proud of the fact that he was a veteran, joining a veterans' club at the close of hostilities and remaining an active member until his death.

He was a member of the United Church and surviving his wife, the former Miss Mary Veronica Badgley, two sons, Gerald and Leon Spafford of Kingston, and two sisters, daughters, Mrs. James (Lorraine) Graham, Mrs. James (Joan) Aymarh, both of this city, Mrs. Thomas (Mary) Dickinson, Jr., of Scarborough, (Elizabeth) Sloen of Long Island, New York. Also surviving are eight grandchildren.

The funeral was held from the Parks of Tribute Chapel in Kingston with Rev. A. C. McCullum officiating. Interment was in Cataraqui Cemetery.

H. BLAKE ROWE

TRENTON — On Thursday a funeral service was held at the Weaver Funeral Home for Trenton for H. Blake Rowe of R. R. 3, Carrying Place. The service was conducted by Rev. Donald Pipe. Bearers were Orval Brown, Murray Hall, Cecil Blakely, Walter Hamphrey, Hugh Shaw, and Douglas Hall. Interment was in Glen-White's Cemetery.

Mr. Rowe died suddenly at Trenton Memorial Hospital last Monday. He was 78.

Mr. Rowe was born in Ameliasburg Township and he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Rowe. Surviving Mr. Rowe was Deborah Jane Ferguson whom he married in 1907.

Mr. Rowe had farmed in Prince Edward County until his retirement a few years ago.

He is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Cecil (Ethel) Andrist of Carrying Place; his sons, Earl Rowe of Carrying Place and Donald Rowe of Toronto; his sisters, Mrs. Lulu Adams of Belleville and Mrs. Ella Graves of Trenton and his brother, Lee Rowe of Carrying Place. He was predeceased by his wife the former Elnorah May Watson.

THOMAS R. BARRETT

The funeral of Thomas R. Barrett was held from the Funeral Home of Frank and F. O'Brien this Saturday morning to St. Michael's Church, where Solemn High Mass was celebrated by Rt. Rev. J. F. Sullivan, P.P. Rev. Murphy was deacon and Rev. W. Murphy sub-deacon. Rev. Fr. or Murphy said the prayers at the graveside in St. James' cemetery.

There was a large number of personal and intimate friends in attendance while the spiritual and floral offerings showed the esteem in which Mr. Barrett was held in the community.

The bearers were: Kenneth Soden, Cornelius Lynch, J. J. Barrett, J. J. Barrett, James Trusiach and Kenneth Bland.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Says to Practise Golden Rule For Successful Golden Years

By THOMAS COLLINS

"My wife's retirement income has been about to do with as she pleases. It does not go toward our cost of living.

"After 40 some years of hard work with no wages, it is not time for her to enjoy as luxuries she can spend as she pleases?"

Such is the philosophy of a New England lady who firmly believes the Golden Years are easy to come by — that since all you've got to do is be unselfish.

"Not once among the people I have read about in your column," he says, "have I noticed one who was interested in other retired people, or who was spending of his leisure time to make life a little easier for others . . .

The man, Morris Jacobsen (371 Boston St., Guilford, Conn.), has been retired since 1953. He was a telephone company man.

PLANNED ACCORDINGLY

"I knew a long time in advance that I'd have to retire when I was 65. So my wife and I make plans accordingly. We had raised seven sons, all of whom went into the armed forces as volunteers, and as my pocketbook grew, there was little left for savings while they were growing up.

"In the last few years before retirement my wife and I were able to save enough for the down payment on our present house with about four acres of land, some of it tillable. I planned to raise enough market crops to have a vegetable stand. I had two pensions to add. One was to get a little extra income. The other was to keep in touch with people.

"The idea worked fairly well, and I enjoyed the physical and doing restoration work on the old house. By 10 o'clock I was all on their feet and two of them had built their own homes. I felt I could do no more.

"I built a small house which I rent strictly to keep it taken care of and, in fact, more comfortable. It took me two years and I did every bit of the work except for digging the cellar, for which I hired a man with a backhoe.

"We sold the old farmhouse and all of the land except that needed for our house and a good garden. . .

During all that time, Mr. Jacobsen did his civic duty as chairman of his company's Retired Men's Committee for a year; served on the executive committee of the club for three years; took time to help Boy Scouts; workers seeking to make life more pleasant for them; became treasurer of his church; became a member of the local board of tax assessors; became chairman of an assessor school at a state college four days each week for four years in a row; and enjoyed the job.

BETTER THAN MOVING

"All these activities were enjoyable," he continues, "and it is a pleasure to me now to walk around town and be almost everyone I meet pans the time of day with me, some calling me Pop, some Jake, some Morris, and a few my good friends. I believe this is better than moving to the sunshine when you retire and then not finding. I don't like fish anyway.

"Making new friends at retirement age is new experience leaving old friends behind is not for me . . .

The lesson Mr. Jacobsen teaches is not to stay in a New England town when you retire. Jacobsen — not necessarily. It is to be unselfish, to start early doing with the purchase of the old farmhouse and with setting up the vegetable stand be never stopped. This is how it is with all successful people, he says, you think a bit about somebody except yourself.

U.S.-Soviet relations.

"Of course, as far as the position of the Soviet government is concerned, a peaceful solution of all the importance of the question of the peace treaty with Germany."

It was unofficial that Gromyko still has not told U.S. leaders what Soviet Premier Khrushchev's attitude is may be when he talks of guaranteeing Western access to West Berlin after he signs a peace treaty with Communist East Germany. Khrushchev has said that the peace treaty will establish East German sovereignty over the airspace and land that Germany and that thereafter the Western powers must negotiate with the East German regime for use of the supply line.

W.M. Nickle To Be Speaker At Conference

The Lake Ontario Development Association announced today the appointment of speaker at the Industrial and Municipal Relations Conference will be Hon. Wilfrid M. Nickle, Q.C., Minister of Commerce and Development.

The Conference, to be held Wednesday, October 18th, at the Imperial Room of the Empress Hotel in Peterborough, is the third of its kind to be held by the Association. Theme set by conferences is "Our Responsibilities to Leaders in Our Communities".

Hon. William Nickle is the son of William F. Nickle, Attorney-General in the administration of Hon. Howard Ferguson and Development in 1985.

In the afternoon Mr. Claude Jodoin, President of the Canadian Labor Congress, will speak on "Labor's Responsibility to Industry and the Community".

Over 300 delegates attended the Industrial and Municipal Relations Conference last year, and it is expected that this year's attendance will be as gratifying.

Public School Teachers Hold Convention

TRENTON — On Friday, more than 100 public school teachers from the district will meet in convention at Prince Charles' School.

Dr. Lennox Annan, principal of Prince Charles School, conducted the opening devotional services.

C. R. Michallon, inspector for public schools in Trenton, welcomed the teachers and introduced new teachers.

W. R. Hartwick, the author of a series of books on spelling, spoke to the assembly, stressing the need for greater application from the child subject. Mr. Hartwick said that both phonetic and sight methods could be used to advantage in the teaching of spelling.

Mrs. Jane Rathbun, music supervisor for Trenton Schools, led senior students enrolled in Prince Charles' School in group singing. Mrs. Julia Seger, art supervisor for Trenton Schools, gave a demonstration of classroom art presentation, aided by 14 students from Grade Three.

Men's and women's federations gathered in separate groups to discuss problems after the assembly.

Night School Enrollment 200

TRENTON — Night school classes in Trenton District High will start next Tuesday night. This week, around 200 persons enrolled in the classes in such subjects as mathematics (senior and junior), conversational French, English, typing and sewing. Special art classes will be conducted by two well-known area artists. Classes, which will be held once a week, with the exception of typing. Enrollment in the typing class is limited to 24 to warrant four nights of instruction. W. Spear will supervise the night classes. Five teachers, as well as the two art instructors, will conduct the classes.

This year, Grade 11A students will start learning German language lessons. This course will continue on Grade 12 and will form a part of future curriculums.

Traffic Survey Nearly Ready

TRENTON — Town engineer Eric Mahoney said yesterday that the firm of A. D. Margolese and Associates had finished the traffic survey of town streets and was waiting for the Ontario Municipal Board to decide on zoning for the areas which the town has annexed. He intimated that if annexation is complete the survey.

Now that the traffic survey in the town proper has been completed, it will be possible for the various public utilities to carry out a survey of their own, he added.

In the meantime, Project Planning Associates have completed the basic survey in Murvey Township north of the town line, and the plan, together with the plans for annexation in Murvey Township, is to be presented to the Province of Sidney Township, east of the town, will be sent to the Township Solicitor engaged by the town to assist in annexation proceedings.

The plans will then be presented to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval.

Forget Nationality Urges Baha'i Speaker

TRENTON — Miss Dorothy Nolan of Oshawa was the guest speaker at a Baha'i assembly held in Trenton last night. Commenting on the troubled state of the world today, Miss Nolan said that the world peace could only be attained when nations forget their "nationality" and begin to think in terms of "internationality".

"Man has overcome the physical barriers of communication," the speaker said. "Now he must overcome the barriers of different religious, cultures, races and creeds."

Miss Sheets said that Baha'i was the perfect plan for world unity," based on the premise that this could only be brought about by mankind turning back to God.

TWO CARS COLLIDE

TRENTON — Damage, estimated at $250, resulted from a two-car accident which occurred around 8:30 p.m. at the intersection of Dundas Street West and Dufferin Ave., in Trenton last night.

Drivers of the cars involved were Floyd Robertson, 35, of Carrying Place, and Ronald Sierolowski, 38, of Trenton.

Police said that Robertson was attempting to cross Dundas Street West at the intersection when he was struck almost head on from behind by the car driven by Sierolowski who was proceeding west on Dundas Street West.

Mrs. William Kaleka Listed Satisfactory

TRENTON—The condition of Mrs. William Kaleka, 26, of 25 Miller Avenue, who was involved on the third concession of Murray on Wednesday night, was reported as "satisfactory" today by authorities at Trenton Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Kaleka sustained a deep scalp laceration in a two-car crash on the township road around 7.30 on Wednesday. Nine-month-old Jacqueline Kaleka was released from the hospital yesterday.

Following the accident, William Kaleka, Leslie Roy Leonard Pipsey and Ronald Sierolowski, the driver of one car involved, and Douglas Halpenny, 21, Trenton, a passenger in the Kaleka car were treated at the hospital.

Provincial police at Brighton say that damage to the Kaleka vehicle and the Lehman car was heavy.

The writer of this weekly advice column is an 11-year-old boy. The advice he gives is strictly his own. He has not been changed by his parents or the editor. He welcomes letters from parents. If you want him to discuss your problem, write to ASK HENRY, in care, of this newspaper.

Dear Henry:—My son Jeffrey is 13 and in grade 7. Every day after school he comes home hungry, sneaks into the kitchen, eats a glass of salami and goes to his room to do homework. Before you can say "The salami is shrunk" he is back for more. Have you any advice? — Mrs. Mystery of the Shrunken Salami.

Dear Salami—I can your man. I like salami too. If I were your boy, I would like my mother to marry a big slice of salami on bread with salami and talk when I come home. Don't worry, he will be hungry for supper after this book breathing homework. Follow that salami down to the last slice.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:—My daughter will be 11 soon. She likes to play with a clean little girl who has a very nasty 12-year-old brother. My child is very impressed by some bad things he does and says. Should I let her play with the little girl?—MOTHER.

Dear Mother—I trust your daughter play with this girl, she has to get used to all kinds of people: nice people, mean people and teachers. If she doesn't like it she will have to jump it.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:—I am not a parent, but I am very fond of children. A five-year-old girl, named Nancy, whom I know, is generally a very good girl. But when she is bad, she is very, very naughty. Since she lives in a New York apartment, she has few playmates. She has invented some little friends. Their names are Mickey, Rickey and Dickey. Generally she describes them as muskrats, but sometimes they are other animals. Sometimes they are raccoons. When Nancy commits any sort of mischief she blames it on those three imaginary animals—chipmunks—raccoons. Nancy's mother (who is a widow) wonders what she should do. So do I. What do you think?—Bachelor, Who Likes Nancy and Mrs. Nancy.

Dear Bachelor—Nancy will grow out of it. I can't figure out a better answer and it is all Mickey's, Rickey's and Dickey's fault.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—What should I do to get a certain boy to like me. He has a locker near mine I've heard.—MISS FOUR-TEEN.

Dear Miss Fourteen:—Try planting your sweater in his locker. Make sure that your name and phone number is on it. You could ask mom what to do—she will know.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:—I am 11½ years old and my brother is 14. My brother is always picking on me and I don't like it. Could you please give me some advice on what to do?—BEAT UP.

Dear Beat Up—Read up. I've already answered a case like yours. Look in the old papers if you are not going to put up with your brother.—HENRY.

IN MEMORIAM

COOKE — In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away Cobourg, Oct. 1st, 1960.
Through tears we watched you part
And slowly fade away;
Our hearts were almost broken
You fought so hard to stay.
But when we saw you sleeping
So beautiful, free from pain;
We knew dear God loved you too
And wanted you again.
In our hearts you are always with us.
Still loved, still missed, still very dear.
—Sadly missed by daughter Vera.

COOKE — In loving memory of a dear grandfather, William Cooke, who passed away one year ago, Oct. 1st, 1960.
More and more each day, we miss you
Friends may think the wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within each revealed.
—Never remembered by Everett and Sadie.

COOKE — In loving memory of a dear father, William Lyons Cooke, who passed away October 9th, 1960.
Dear father has passed away since then
But memory lives and days of pain.
We have a school report to show
How he has progressed and grown.
He has finished grade eight
And graduated with honors
Remembered by his brother Jim, sister Ethel and family.
—Never remembered by wife and family.

COOKE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Raymond Cooke, who passed away October 9th, 1959.
Nothing can take away,
The love a heart bestows
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance always grows.
—Never remembered by wife and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

Delegates will be asked to approve resolutions calling for a health benefits plan covering hospital care and medical, dental and pharmaceutical services, and a public automobile accident insurance fund similar to the Workmen's Compensation Fund by which all motorists would contribute and out of which all compensations would be paid automatically to accident victims.

The draft program calls also for new collective bargaining laws to encourage trade unionism; improved minimum standards of working conditions, including a minimum hourly rate of $1.25 an hour, and complete reorganization of the department of labor.

Among the draft tax measures are an increase in corporation taxes, reduced depreciation allowances, and a weight-distance tax on highway carriers.

Prizes, Trophies Presented At Plow Match Banquet; City of Belleville Is Host

By GLADYS WARD

Belleville's Civil Defence Quota is 800

Belleville and district's quota in the Department of National Defence plan to train 100,000 men across Canada in national survival operations will be 800, the Canadian Army's Eastern Ontario Headquarters announced today.

Training of Belleville and district volunteers will get underway in the Belleville Armory Nov. 6 and will be broken down into four courses, each involving 200 men and seven of the weeks' duration.

Volunteers will be enrolled in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, will receive normal army pay, with subsistence allowances in lieu of rations, and will live at home during their training.

Local militia authorities report special transport will be arranged to carry district volunteers in and from the training centre each day.

START RECRUITING

Recruiting for the first course gets underway today in the Belleville Armory, and is open to men between the ages of 18 and 50 years, married or single.

As announced by the Minister of National Defence in the House of Commons last week, the course will provide "sufficient basic military training to maintain the discipline and response essential to the control and effective employment of such a force on operations, but emphasis throughout will be on the teaching of subjects essential to national survival."

The local courses get underway Nov. 6 and the first concludes Dec. 17. The second course begins Jan. 8 and ends Feb. 18, with the remaining two scheduled for Feb. 19 to April 8, and April 16 to May 27.

FIVE-DAY WEEK

The training program calls for a 5-day-work-week involving normal working hours. Each day is broken down into two periods and training includes a minimum of basic drill, rifle practice and physical training.

In national survival classes, volunteers will learn fire control, first aid, types of buildings, shoring, demolition, levelling, jacks, derricks and evacuation handling.

Volunteers will be paid the same amount received by the regular army recruit in private of single status of $108 a month, plus 90¢ subsistence allowance in lieu of rations. Pay will be on a weekly basis. Recruits will also receive the regulation army clothing issue.

At the conclusion of the course, volunteers will be urged to continue in the militia or to make application to enlist in the regular army. If desired, they may be released.

Instructors will be drawn from the regular army, local militia units and the reserve forces.

Cider Offered On Market For First Time

Along with bright sunny skies in Belleville this morning the local farmers' market got into full swing at the square with one of the largest crowds seen in some time. Out-of-town visitors found it a convenient place to shop along with the regular Saturday morning customers.

Prices remained much the same as last week with a few new products added. Fresh, whole chickens were available ranging in price from $1.25 to $1.55, according to size.

Fresh apple cider was a highlight on the market selling for 51 a gallon and 15 cents a bottle according to size.

Apples sold for 65 cents a basket and pears 75. Grapes were selling for $1 and crab apples and plums sold for 65 cents a six-quart basket.

Tomatoes sold for 65 cents a basket, potatoes 60 cents and onions 95 cents a basket. Eggs remained about the same as last week, 50 for large, 55 for extra large and 45 for small in dozen containers.

Peaches are holding a steady price, selling for 90 cents a six-quart basket. Corn was down in price, selling for 50 cents a dozen.

Pastry prices remained the same this morning and an assortment of flowers added a bit of color among the various vegetables.

AID PUPILS

The first school libraries in Ontario were established about 1850.

Nearly one thousand people attended the banquet held in the 6th international plowing match at the Armouries on Friday evening with the City of Belleville as host. His Worship Mayor A. M. Haig was chairman for the occasion, and seated with him at the head table were visiting dignitaries of the Plowman's Association, Reeves of County municipalities, Mayors of neighboring towns, members of Parliament, Cabinet Ministers and representatives of agriculture, the clergy, the military, industry, commerce, oil companies, the Ontario Provincial police, and the Fire department.

The table was decorated with arrangements of chrysanthemums, with the other tables centred with small autumn flowers. Below the head table the many prizes and awards were displayed. Rev. Capt. A. Wakeling, Chaplin of Hastings and Prince Edward Regt., said grace.

Mayor Haig extended a sincere welcome to all the guests and hoped they would enjoy the modern hospitality provided. "The magnitude and detail of the plowing match displays and the excellence of the performance staggers the imagination", said the Mayor. "It will be a great satisfaction to those who have attended the plowing matches before, like old home week, and a re-union of old friends. This banquet was made possible by the co-operation of many people, and I would like to acknowledge the gracious and generous help of four churches, Bridge St. United Church W.A. Church of St. Michael, the Archangel C.W.L., St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Guild, and Tabernacle United Church-W.A. Special thanks go to Mrs. Hewitt Brown and Mrs. Robert Mitchaud. Our thanks go to Brigadier Bailey who allowed the use of field equipment cooking utensils, Col. Duffy for making the Armouries available to the Hastings County local committee with chairman Dr. Russell Scott; to secretary-manager F. W. Lindsley of the Ontario Plowman's Association, to Secretary-manager Earl Dickmotter of the Chamber of Commerce for working out the arrangements for the banquet, and to the police and fire departments. I hope your visit will be a happy and fruitful one and that you will have a welcome to your homes".

FLAGS PRESENTED

Mayor Reid of Fort William presented Mayor Haig with a flag of both the citizens of Fort William expressing best wishes for friendship. Mayor Haig accepted the gift and graciously replied, saying that Belleville had been well blessed.

Introductions were made of Agent-general for Ontario Mr. Dixon, Mr. Bill Brandon from London, England; and the family of Mr. Dixon who was the winner of the plowing match last year at McDonald College in Montreal. Last year won the world championship in France. Mr. Dixon's wife, mother, father and sister were present.

Warden Hamilton brought greetings from Hastings County, reviewing briefly the leading to the fulfillment of the plowing match, with particular reference to the junior citizens who had viewed the exhibits and watched the ploughing, for whom it would be a year to remember.

Mr. Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P. for Hastings West congratulated all who had arranged the following match, with a special mention of Mr. Knight and Mr. Vermilyea who deserved credit for allowing the use of their farms.

Mr. Clarke Rollins, M.P.P. for Hastings East spoke of the industries that would profit from the knowledge gained, and stated that this year's match is to set a record attended since match for this event.

Chairman of the Ontario Plowman's Association Alston Hutchinson gave some of the many details that had to be looked after for such an important event. He remarked that excellent work had been done in spite of the hard ground for plowing. The speaker gave credit to all who had planned the arrangements and the educational features, and to the firms which had donated prizes and trophies for two competitions from seven Provinces had earned the right to represent Canada in Holland next year.

Dr. J. Russell Scott, chairman of the local committee spoke in appreciation of working with the committee which had tried hard for the past four years to make the plowing match a success. If this event had helped agriculture and the community, the committee was happy.

THANKED BY MINISTER

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Agriculture, stated that he wished to publicly thank the people of this area for their friendliness and courtesy, and Mayor Haig and the council for their hospitality. He knew the people attending the plowing match would appreciate the sociability shown them. It was a tremendous job or organizing and he congratulated the committees on behalf of the province. As one who was a great friend of agriculture, he looked forward to the plowing match banquets. The minister stated that citizens of this county have pioneered everything, including good weather for the match.

The Seaforth Girl's Band presented a smart appearance with four majorettes, dressed in white flannel jackets, pleated skirts and silhoue hats. Five twenty-two years this band has attended the plowing match (but not with the same members) and the girls had arrived by bus in the morning. They made an exit to their own music. The ANAF band was present also to play the head table to their places.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McJurgy won the Class I award for their farm in Mara, Ont. Mr. and Mrs. George Burkitt of Frankford, won the Class II award for their farmstead. Reserve Class I was won by Ben Bleecker of Halloway, and the Reserve Class II winner was Russell Ritz of Corbyville.

The presentation of the other awards was made by Secretary-manager F. A. Lashley of Toronto.

Prominent visitors to the International Plowing Matches were Hon. Robert W. Macaulay, Ontario Minister of Energy Resources (right) and William Davis, MPP for Peel County. Mr. Macaulay is congratulating Abraham Mills of Prince Edward County on his fine effort.

Ford Truck Sales Set New High

OAKVILLE — Truck sales for September reached the highest mark since 1956, Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited reports as 1,338 units were sold during this period, compared with 1,139 during September 1960 and 1,307 in September 1956.

Ford Zrittish car and truck sales during the same period were at an all time high for September, at 1,396 units, compared with the previous peak in September 1960 when 1,034 units were sold.

The 1962 Consul 315 introduced in the Canadian National Exhibition in August accounted for a substantial portion of this total.

Advance orders for the company's 1962 domestic-built passenger cars indicate a record first month retail sales for Ford of Canada in its history, although exact figures are not available at this time.

Anglicans Advised to Set Sights on Church Union

By RUSSELL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Anglicans have been advised to set their sights on the eventual unity of a the different branches of Christianity.

Delegates to the Anglican Church executive council were told Friday that present efforts to reach church union must not be confined to Protestant denominations but should also include Roman Catholics.

Most Rev. W. L. Wright, Archbishop of Algoma, said: "We must never get it in our minds we're engaged in a form of pan-Protestantism. We're engaged in unity of the whole of Christendom."

He called for a deepening desire for church unity, and also a deeper knowledge by Anglicans of their own church.

Rt. Rev. Godfrey Gower, Bishop of New Westminster, reported there is a "warmer climate" in current talks between the Anglican and United churches. At a meeting in Toronto last week there had been a "very frank discussion" which had got down to the basic issues of the nature of the ministry and episcopacy (the question of bishops).

CITES PROBLEM

He later told reporters that he considered there is no real antagonism between the episcopal, presbyterial and congregational elements in the church. The problem was to find some working method to combine the three together.

He supported a proposal by Rt. Rev. E. S. Reed, Bishop of Ottawa, for holding informal meetings among various denominations at a local level.

The need to seek union at grass roots level was endorsed by a lay delegate, R. W. Dudley of North Bay. He noted that in new urban areas, where every faith seemed to be competing in building churches, "Christian unity was really starting to perk."

Most Rev. H. H. Clark, primate of all Canada, said that as far as persons outside the church are concerned, the question of union is one of the "key questions" in the Christian church.

REVIEW LAST-YEAR

During its five - day session, the executive council examined the church's work during the past year and viewed plans for the coming year. The council, which meets in intervening years between synod meetings, includes all 35 Canadian bishops plus lay and clerical delegates.

The council expressed concern at the high rate of unemployment, proposed setting up missions to industry and supported continued efforts to seek controlled international disarmament but avoided committing itself on whether Canada should acquire nuclear weapons.

The council is now at work within the church, was approval in principle of a proposal for a sweeping organizational change in the church's structure. The recommendation, referred for debate at next year's general synod in Kingston, calls for biennial instead of triennial synod meetings, reducing the number of synod members and abolishing the executive council in the present form.

Driver Charged After Double Two-Car Crash

Some days everything seems to happen. Yesterday John Morton, 36, of Willow Beach Cottages, Brighton Bay, was involved in an accident with an automobile driven by Mrs. Gladys Cooper of 35 Elmer Street at the Wallbridge Road and Highway 401 intersection shortly before 8.00 p.m. Unable to contact police by telephone they decided to drive down to the OPP headquarters with Mr. Morton in the lead.

It was at this time that a car driven by Patrick Costello of 1088 Wavell Street, London, was proceeding east on the 401 just as the Morton vehicle was heading south on the crossover strip at the Wallbridge Road intersection. A collision resulted with both cars receiving much damage as the two considered total write-offs. Mr. Costello, his wife and three children were sent to Belleville General Hospital with numerous injuries and Mr. Morton has been charged in the Hastings County Provincial Police, Belleville is investigating the accident.

First Meeting Of Fall Term On Tuesday

On Tuesday evening, October 10, the Hastings County Historical Society will hold its first meeting of the fall season.

Guest speaker will be Miss Woolley, a teacher of Quinte Secondary School in Belleville and a resident of Holloway.

A graduate in the honors geography course at Queen's University in Hamilton, Mr. Woolley will give a illustrated lecture on "The Physiography of South Hastings." This talk will include local landforms and describe their origin and development through the use of many slides.

The physiography of South Hastings is closely linked with the history of this area, because the early settlers chose to use to which land can be put; for example, it influences agriculture in large degree.

All persons interested in history, geography and conservation, both young and old, are invited to this talk. A special invitation is extended to the many students at our high schools who are studying senior geography. Mr. Woolley's talk will do much to help them understand Hastings.

The meeting will be held in the Corby Public Library auditorium, on Tuesday evening.

Prior to the talk, a brief business meeting will be held, and afterwards refreshments will be served.

U.S. Labor Secretary Seek Campaign to Win Members Of Ousted Unions Back

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP)—Honest trade unions ousted by the anti-racket members of unions ousted from the mainstream of the legitimate labor movement for corruption or Communist domination, American Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg said Friday.

He said the North American labor movement has a good record in ridding itself of corrupt or Communist-controlled unions.

But he said machinery should be set up to try to tell members of ousted unions why they are outside the ranks of the legitimate union movement.

In addition to this education process, said unions should also try to win the ousted workers back into ethical unionism.

Mr. Goldberg did not mention any specific unions.

But he was pressed by a reporter to say whether the current membership fight being waged at Sudbury and Port Colborne by two rival unions was the result of the "winning back" process.

The United Steelworkers of America (CLC) is driving to take over the 30,000 eastern members of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.), kicked out of the old Canadian Congress in 1949 for raiding and because of Communist influence.

"I hope they (the Steelworkers) win," said Mr. Goldberg, former United Steelworkers lawyer in the Steelworkers in Washington. As a lawyer for the Congress of Industrial Organizations, he applied the fight in the U.S. to oust the International Mine-Mill Union from the CIO in 1949.

He said it was proven then that Communists, dominating the Mine-Mill policies. Since then nothing had happened to make him change his view that the union is influenced by Communists.

Mr. Goldberg made the comments at a press conference winding up his three-day conference with Labor Minister Starr.

The two ministers also met briefly today for talks on international labor relations before Mr. Goldberg left on his official return to Washington.

The two ministers said they have agreed to continue exchanging ideas and information at a working level—with officials of their respective departments—and one another in the months ahead.

100 Feared Killed in Indian Monsoon

CALCUTTA (AP)—More than 100 persons were feared killed by a monsoon that turned 1,500 square miles of India's Bihar state into a vast lake, according to police reports received here today.

Swollen rivers wiped out 31 villages and panic-stricken villagers fled when a crocodile infested lake burst its banks. Many of the victims were killed by the floods, police said.

Rail, air and communications were disrupted.

Eastern India's state of Bengali and Orissa were also hit by late monsoon floods.

A True Prophet

Yogi Berra seems an unlikely prophet to be spreading a message of salvation tailored to this nuclear age. It is not merely his roly-poly figure, reminding one of a droll little bear, it is the fact that his name goes so well with his appearance. Unless one chances to put an inordinate value on the ability to hit a small round object so that it travels over unusually long distances at an extraordinary rate of speed, Mr. Berra is a more likely object for laughter than for reverence.

Yet the 36-year spoke wiser words than this name Mr. Berra when, writing for the Associated Press, he described his reactions on the eve of his twelfth world series.

Let us provide the right background.

In Trenton Monday evening Rev. J. T. Irwin told members of the Rotary Club that they needed to "hang onto their heads of hair" in these grim years, to develop a sense of gratitude for life itself.

In Toronto Tuesday evening another clergyman, Rev. H. C. Hahn, told the Ontario Public Health Association that a false sense of values in North America contributes to a high rate of mental illness and suicides.

Yogi Berra did not know what these pitchers had been serving up when he stepped up to the plate but he hammered out a homer.

"I see where I've earned $71,841 extra for playing in 68 world series games," he wrote. "You know, I never added it up. To me, it's more important to be playing."

There is the recipe. A sense of gratitude for life—"I'm 37 now and I guess Lou Gehrig said it best when he said 'I'm lucky to be a Yankee'." A true sense of values—the recognition that the important thing is to enjoy what you are doing. What Berra is doing, playing ball for a living, is not contributing to the wealth of the nation but that does not alter the fact he is a prophet with the true message of salvation. To be doing this for nothing but the money earned would, indeed, make him a lost soul, but so do it for the love of the thing, with money as a mere incidental, alters the whole picture. Even those who provide necessary goods or services for their fellow men have to find another reason for living if they work only for money. But Berra, even if he never fulfilled a single fan, would be saved from Dean Byrne's "valley of the black pig" because he enjoys his work.

$10,000 for Mental Strain

A Hamilton steelworker, Otto Langer, has been awarded a total of $18,000 damages in a civil action against a Hamilton surgeon who made love to his wife.

We must admit that we are somewhat puzzled by the process by which the jury reached this conclusion.

Adultery is not a crime in this country. Now it is true that there are many types of action which, while not crimes, make the doer liable to a suit for damages. Libel is one. It is found that the surgeon did not alienate the affections of the steelworker's wife—that the husband had lost his wife's affections before she met her lover. Yet $10,000 of the $18,000 award was compensation for the husband's mental strain resulting from his wife's adultery. Are we to conclude that co-operation in any legal act by a wife which causes her husband mental distress can be grounds for civil liability? If so, life is indeed dangerous. We have to consider the price of a variety of actions, ranging from New Year's kiss to selling milady the latest millinery creation.

Two Quotations

"Peoples everywhere are watching these developments fearfully. They are asking themselves whether nuclear war, which in recent years has been considered unthinkable, now is not only being considered possible but is accepted as inevitable."—Hon. Howard Green, Canada's Minister of External Affairs, addressing the United Nations General Assembly on Tuesday afternoon.

"War never happens on a planned basis, usually comes about on a miscalculation. There is no getting rid of it, because human nature never changes; there will be wars and wars, a recurring cycle of international chaos"— Col. C. L. Smith, commandant of the Canadian Civil Defence College, addressing the Bayview Home and School Association Tuesday evening.

That question which Mr. Green found people asking Tuesday afternoon was answered rather promptly.

The Soviet record of cynical suppression of freedom and of self-determination is in sharp contrast to the self-righteousness of its rhetoric. — Adlai Stevenson.

Sea Farms Forecast

National Geographic Bulletin

A "sea rush" has started. With exploding populations pressing on land resources, nations are turning to the oceans for new sources of food and minerals. Oceanographers and other scientists are doing the prospecting, but governments have caught the sea fever.

"Knowledge of the ocean is more than a matter of curiosity," President Kennedy said in asking Congress to double and triple the funds spent on oceanographic research. "Our very survival may hinge upon it."

The Russians, meanwhile, have put fleets, or their equivalent of such effort into oceanography as the United States, according to Rear Admiral L. C. Stephan, of the United States Naval Hydrographic Office.

"They are moving into every nook and cranny that can give info," he said. "Their travel-ers talk all over the face of the earth . . . All contain, without any question, special survey teams of oceanography and hydrography."

The riches of the sea are beyond dispute. Theoretically, the oceans could provide food for billions of people as well as minerals in fabulous abundance. Ocean farms, said one scientist, is a dibute solution to world hunger problems. The oceans have vast quantities of manganese, silver, uranium and gold. Even the power to make every man, woman, and child on earth a millionaire several times over.

Getting the gold out is possible, but it takes more to extract than the gold is worth. Only a few elements, such as salt, magnesium, and bromine, are commercially extracted from sea water. Other techniques could change the picture.

Already, scientists know that certain ocean plants and animals concentrate certain chemicals. For instance, sea cucumbers absorb vanadium from the water and store it in their bodies; lobsters hoard cobalt, seaweed stores boron. Yet chemists can find only bare traces of these elements in the water. Only a revolutionary idea might speculate facetiously there may be an animal or plant that concentrates gold — a real-life equivalent of the one that laid golden eggs.

Unquestionably animals never seen by man live in the ocean depths. Some scientists speculate there may be giant squid, recalling the sea monsters of ancient legend. Much of the speculation arises from discovery of set larvae six inches long. One of the commonest European and American eel species, only suspected, because he had to, the conditions he met.

"We do not know how to enrich the 'soil' of the sea, how to prevent fluctuations in abundance, how to combat marine diseases, how to practise selective breeding to get more extensive best species of marine life."

Aquaculture might employ the same general techniques as agriculture. Sea farmers could fence off pastures in the sea, put down fertilizer for the plants on which the fish feed and weed out undesired animals and plants.

The farmers could also grow rich crops of plankton, the minute plants and animals that float near the surface of the sea. Dr. Harris B. Stewart, Jr., chief oceanographer of the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, reports that plankton-type can be quite tasty. Plankton is unquestionably nutritious. It nourishes the blue whale, thought to be the largest . . animal that has ever lived.

Pink Salmon Run Is Poor

Vancouver Province

Something has gone wrong with the pink salmon run this year into the Fraser River. Nobody yet can say who knows what, or why, but the causes are due to great gaps in the ocean survival conditions that also cut down this year's sockeye run. The attention for fishermen, however, is practically as "desperate."

This year's run—spawned in 1959—was planned as a new venture in fisheries management in the province. Two years ago pink salmon came under the jurisdiction of the International Pacific Salmon Treaty which the province applied only to sockeye. One of the first measures undertaken was the rehabilitation of the pink runs into the Thompson River and the Fraser. Fraser system below Hope — a process which had already begun naturally.

A good deal of importance was attached to the success of the run. Pinks do not command the prices of sockeye, but their value is considerable. Every two years instead of four for sockeye, the fish can spend less time in fresh water as fry they are less liable to natural and artificial hazards. This pattern would be of clear-cut significance to the fishing industry. For taken fishermen and canneries, there is only one boom harvest in sockeye every four years — the Adams River run. The other year pink cycles would occur in off-sockeye years and would smooth out both the overall utilization of the resource and the employment available to the industry. In the long-range view, the pink runs could make the investment in the industry more stable, improve the earnings positions of much of a hard-pressed industry, and increase the total stock of the resource.

That the run has not materialized in the way it should is discouraging, but should not be a cause for abandoning the effort. Fisheries management feel the problem lies in the ocean, for seven years currently is salmon is showing an accelerating trend. Information on oceanic conditions is somewhat generally considered inadequate.

The Dominion government is taking a positive step in this direction. A new oceanographic vessel is being commissioned, and it will devote considerable effort to this field. The other nations with a stake in the North Pacific salmon resources are also increasing their investigations.

THE PACKSACK

—By GREGORY CLARK

It is reported that by 1970, electric motor cars will be presented to the public on a fully competitive basis, as well as designed cars. Principles of electric motors have been well known and employed for years are being developed by engineers for the production of motors that will drive cars as efficiently as gas engines now do with such qualities of silence and ease of control as to have very great public appeal by 1970.

By 1970, yes. For at the rate motor cars are increasing on our highways, it is altogether likely that by 1970 traffic will be so dense that even the old electric boys will be nearly nineteen hundreds that hustled through our streets at a stately pace of twenty miles an hour would be adequate to all needs on the paralyzed streets and highways also years hence.

Imagine driving quietly home! Just a low hum, as the electric motor cars glide along in the five o'clock rush, like a vast flow of molasses!

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS.

REALITY IN RELIGION

There is a great deal of superficiality in present-day thinking. Frequently it is largely confined to benevolence. People emphasize the second part of the Great Commandment, namely, that we shall love our neighbor as ourself, and neglect the first part which commands us to love God with all our heart, soul, strength and mind.

Religion is God's revelation of His nature and purposes and man's reaction toward these great realities. The thing of God has done. But the emphasis today is largely on what man can do. This is important — utterly essential — but it is not primary. The primary matter is that God has done something for us; the secondary matter is that He expects us to live, believe, aspire and behave in a certain manner as a result of what He has done.

God has given us a revelation of Himself in the whole of the Bible. He has particularly revealed Himself by sending into the world that supernatural Being, whom we know as Christ. The Bible constantly contains us in our efforts to live up to teachings and command. words of Christ.

Jesus Christ has demonstrated to the world that God is the power of selfless love. All true religion centres about that overwhelming fact.

The large oil weight which controls the striking mechanism in the City Hall clock crashed from the top of the tower to the bottom of the controlling cabin early last night. The cause of the accident was said to have been the result of winding the striking weight too tightly, causing the rope to break. The weight, which is a large box filled with boulders, weighs over 1,000 pounds and fell to the bottom of the tower with a resounding crash that shook the entire building.

A gallon of gasoline has the explosive force of 82 pounds of dynamite, it was recently fully realized that they would explode more easily than oil. As this is Fire Prevention Week, the Dominion Fire Commissioner gives many warnings to the wise to the public. Gasoline never should be used in the stoves for dry cleaning purposes. It would be better to dry clothes to be cleaned than to risk being burned to death in an explosion of fumes. Even the very act of cleaning clothes in gasoline develops static electricity which is liable to set off the fumes without warning. This has happened in Belleville more than once, and with gasoline. Smoking in the presence of gasoline fumes is dangerous.

To Your Good Health

Most Infections Mean That Bacteria Are Present

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Please name some ailments that can be caused by an infected tooth. Discuss in particular infection of the lymph. I have just had a stubborn case of this and it yielded only after determined efforts by a doctor. — R.H.D."

Don't expect me to be surprised that the case required a doctor — nor that the doctor finally succeeded in defeating the stubborn case.

But I am hit surprised at the first sentence of this letter. What's R.H.D. looking for — something else to have, the next time he has an infected tooth?

Because there isn't any way to "list the ailments" that can be caused by dental infection. Infected abscessed teeth, diseased gums or other conditions.

Here's the point I'm getting at: These infections mean that bacteria are present. Now the blood, stream normally is sterile that is, free of germs.

Where there is infection, any sort of operation — extraction, from prophylaxis to extraction, can result in a temporary influx of the bacteria or germs into the blood stream.

In a normal, healthy person, the blood itself will destroy these germs rapidly, perhaps in 30 minutes or so, and no harm is done. This is a "transient bacteria," or temporary presence of bacteria in the blood stream.

But when some defect is present, this transient presence of bacteria can last long enough for the germs attack the weak point.

For one example, a man living in my neighborhood not long ago had a flare-up of a chronic infection (bacterial endocarditis) following trouble with an infected tooth.

The lymph glands (which serve as "filters," trapping and discarding dead germs in other "rubbish" in the blood) may themselves be affected if they are overloaded. Most of us, I dare say, have had some slight experience at least with glands in the neck, armpit or elsewhere swelling with sore throat, tonsilitis or infection.

Painful arthritic joints many times are relieved relief after an abscessed tooth is removed, or the infection otherwise healed. Fever, headache, and other pains are quite common in bacteremia.

So whether an infection is in the teeth, tonsils or toe, the first thing is to get rid of it. And the second rule, perhaps, is to remember that, so far as the teeth are concerned, the antibiotics are wonderful. They have been of inestimable aid in controlling the transient bacteremia that follows an extraction, and it's not too much to say that it is a general rule to use the antibiotics in case of extraction when the patient has had rheumatic fever or any similar heart condition which can flare up from the sudden even if rather brief surge of germs in the blood.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Does it take longer for a cone to heal if a person is anemic? — Mrs. L. T., Jr."

No.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, who is now grown, broke her leg when she was 2. It slowed the growth and the leg is now two inches shorter than the other. We wonder if medical science has, in the last years, developed any new technique whereby the difference might be evened. She wears a built-up shoe. Would there be any danger in not building it up with the X-ray?"

It is possible to "shorten a limb now by a fairly extensive surgical operation and whether you can find an orthopedic surgeon to perform the operation is another question. I don't think it might be easy. Ten years from now — who knows? Maybe. But there is no easy or inexpensive way to build up shoe. I would think it wise to keep on using it, as your body (and spine) at relatively normal angle.

Who Cares About Facts?

Hamilton Spectator

A film is being made of the life of T. E. Lawrence, desert hero of the First World War. The title role is being played by a six-foot Irishman. One of the main obstacles in the way of Lawrence's joining the army was his height . . . he was only five feet, five inches tall, and special influence was needed to get him into the service. Look of inches had a powerful effect on Lawrence's character, as it probably had on Napoleon's.

But for film producers, what does a mere foot in a man's height matter?

Bad News For Burglars

BBC London Letter

Some depressing news for burglars was given in a recent edition of the "Science and Industry" programme broadcast by the BBC "General Overseas Service," when Mr. Bernard Lovell, radio-physics expert at Jodrell Bank, explained the latest, and highly effective methods employed by police forces to combat marine disease, how to practise selective breeding to get more extensive best species of marine life."

TODAY'S TALK

—By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LURE

All of us are led forward or backward by some lure. Gold, love, success, beauty, earned solitude.

To me the leadership of beauty seems to outlure all else, for beauty brings nothing but happiness and it soothes and sweetens every inch of life's way.

Just imagine what a world this would be without the lure of beauty. Take away the flowers, the green grass, the trees, the vast-colored leaves of Autumn, all kindness and nobility the people's hearts, all touch of beauty from the handiwork of mens' hands, and what would be left for the lure to be incentive for life would be gone.

Surround yourself with beautiful things. Think beautiful thoughts. Perform beautiful acts and you cannot help but be happy. For these things are the very atoms of happiness.

The lure of love and beauty will lead you aright. The lure of mere money, vain glory, and false attention will only accumulate pain and sorrow for you.

If a man is making much money and very difficult it is to get him to talk or think of anything else. Yet how cheap and valueless is the fight for gold alone! Even high intelligence and the most unusually fact intelligence understand how futile is the task of mere money getting.

I like the lure behind the lure. I like the lure that is leading you to fresh minds and aspiring moods.

I like the lure of new countries grips.

The advent of the car and plane has poured beauty into millions of lives. They have taken people into the countries and into the hills, and vast open spaces and stirred minds that for years had become dormant and too easily satisfied with their surroundings.

Then there is the lure of loyalty — binding friends together and making human beings assets to one another.

Knight Bros. Hold Reunion At International Match

The International Plowing Match being held north of Belleville this week was occasion for a reunion for three Knight brothers, all from different provinces.

Visiting the big match from Erickson, Manitoba, was George H. Knight, while his brother, Grant Knight was down to Belleville from Dunblane, Saskatchewan. Third brother of the Knight family is Horace Knight, 4th concession of Sidney Township, on whose farm some of the championship plowing matches were held.

All three of the Knight brothers were born in Sidney township just two farms away from the present farmstead of Horace Knight. Then the family moved west in 1907 with Horace later returning to his native Sidney.

George Knight is a gasoline and machinery dealer in Man. Hobe while Grant Knight is a retired farmer. Horace Knight is very active in the operation of his Sidney township "spread."

RAID THEATRE

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Police raided a Portland theatre Friday, arrested the theatre manager and projectionist on a charge of showing an obscene moving picture and confiscated the film. The film was The Lovers, a French movie, which previously was banned in Boston. The general manager of the theatre, went with the raiding posse to post $1,000 bail, then opened later in the day with Hot Tonight, Henry—one of the recent crop of Hollywood "nudies."

Seaforth School Band Is Feature

One of the feature attractions in the afternoon parade at the International Plowing Match Friday was the Seaforth High School District girls' trumpet band.

The 45-member band arrived by bus at noon just in time to dress for the parade. The smartly costumed and high-stepping majorettes and band members turned in a fine performance for the match visitors.

Members of the Seaforth band were guests at last night's civic banquet held at the Armouries.

Storm In Wind Tunnel Blows Around Hall

TORONTO (CP)—A storm in a wind tunnel has blown up around Toronto's proposed new city hall, just as the Ontario Municipal Board is deciding whether to give the city permission to go ahead with the $25,000,000 project.

The verdict after a wind-tunnel test on a model of the building—variously called the "thimble" or the "oyster"—is that the project would be subject to unusual strains in a high wind storm.

The municipal board, which has power to turn down the project, meets again today. And city fathers are worried that they might take a dim view of the building in the light of the engineers' findings.

The proposed city hall is really two curved skyscrapers facing one another across a saucer-shaped City Council chamber. The design, by Finnish architect Viljo Revell, resulted from a world-wide competition.

City Solicitor J. Parmer Kent told the municipal board hearings Wednesday it would be "a big thrill" to have plans for the building stopped now since the city has already paid $3,300,000 for a downtown site, covered the design competition and advanced $20,000 to architects' fees.

While the board was sifting through figures intended to show whether Toronto can afford the building, a press conference at the University of Toronto was being held about wind - tunnel tests conducted on a model of the building at the university's institute of aerophysics.

University officials said wind high winds would tend to make the building sway about an inch in any direction. A press release described the towers as "shaped like two sides of a fan, a form designed to be pushed about by wind and water pressure."

Mayor Nathan Phillips, who has made a pet project of the city hall, has described "naked ages"—in the timing of the university statements, and officials were unable with the press to be called another press conference later.

Architect John R. Parkin, whose firm is working on the building plans, denied that special strengthening measures had to be taken as a result of the tests.

The tests were carried out before we designed the structural strength, not after," he said. "It was a matter of original design, not strengthening."

Mr. Parkin said the tests were designed for winds up to 100 miles an hour even though winds greater than 36 miles an hour have never been recorded here. Safety factors built into the design would mean it could stand up to three times the forces produced by 100-mile-an-hour winds.

STORM HITS RIVIERA

MARSEILLE (Reuters) — A rainstorm with winds reaching more than 110 miles an hour hit the French Mediterranean coast Friday, flooding low - lying areas, damaging buildings, cars and ships moored in port here. No serious casualties were reported.

SHADES OF '38—Authentic stage-coach which once operated daily between Trenton and Belleville has attracted much interest at the International this week. The stagecoach is seen above with driver Alvin Mark Cameron, near Lindsay. His female passengers are Mrs. John Sheridan Stirling, and Mrs. Myles Benedict, Belleville.

Expect Russia Will Remain In Atomic Body

VIENNA (Reuters) — Continued Soviet participation in the International Atomic Energy Agency was expected today despite the walkout of chief Soviet delegate Vasily Emelyanov.

Emelyanov stormed out of the current conference here Friday night after denouncing the new secretary-general, Dr. Sigvard Eklund of Sweden, as "willing to become a tool" of the West.

The remainder of the Soviet delegation remained seated although Emelyanov had forecast they would join him in walking out before Eklund was sworn in as successor Sterling Cole of the United States.

The Soviet delegate said Thursday he would recommend Russia's withdrawal from the IAEA but could not say whether the government would accept the recommendation.

Most Western delegates believe Russia is not seriously considering leaving the United Nations affiliated agency because it has brought Russia many advantages. They noted Russia has made extensive use of scientific information from the agency.

Emelyanov, who is chairman of Russia's state committee on the utilization of atomic energy told a press conference after his walkout that consultation in Moscow will determine whether he will quit as chief delegate.

"Personally, I do not wish to return here," he said.

The Soviet scientist told reporters his walkout was a "personal, purely personal demonstration" against Eklund.

Air Force Can Shift in Short Time

RAMSTEIN, Germany (AP)—The United States Tactical Air Force in Europe now can shift from the use of conventional to atomic weapons in almost a matter of minutes.

Training of the supersonic jet fighter - bombar and other jet fight bomber crews of the 17th Air Force with headquarters here has been revamped in a few short weeks to pattern it to the new military policy of the Kennedy administration.

Until the Berlin crisis sharpened President Kennedy's decision to increase conventional firepower of all U.S. forces while at the same time relying nuclear strength, much of the training of the 17th Air Force was in use of atomic weapons.

Government policy is to provide U.S. commanders in Europe, both air and ground, an alternative weapons.

The fighter-bombers and bombers based at 17th Air Force fields along the Communist frontier and farther back can load up with either atomic and explosive or atomic bombs with no change required in equipment.

Newspaper men, in a tour of Ramstein, got the impression that both types of weapons were in storage within minutes of ready areas where pilots stood poised for almost instant takeoff.

Question — We've engaged a modern language teacher who will live in. Her main job will be to advise the children (we have a girl of 14 and a boy of 12) on their morals and habits. She's not a model, as such, but will do some light house- work. Is it customary for a family to make use of "family" privacy to wear a uniform? — Mrs. L., Green Neck, N. Y.

Answer — Around the house, you would be a good idea to wear simple clothes that's easily washed — to take the pres- sure off her own wardrobe. Also, that's with the child- ren wearing a uniform is op- tional, and she might feel more comfortable in her own clothes.

Question — When writing a letter to a girl friend who re- cently married and whose husband I've never met, is it cor- rect to address the letter to the wife or to both the husband's name be included also? —Miss M., Lorne, Alberta

Answer — An envelope and salutation of the letter may properly be addressed to the wife only.

Question — I am 30½ years of age and single, and I'm the only one in my age group who is not every day to play. When the time for lunch, my mother gives me some money and I should go home. Would it be polite to eat in front of her? — Miss M.C., Chicago, Ill.

Answer — It most certainly is. Since your friend invites you during the lunch period, your place does not include eating or inviting her to eat with you. In this case, mother definitely should feel you'd do well to show her gracious example.

Can Develop Charm Says Lecturer

VANCOUVER (CP)—"Charm isn't be bought, but it can be developed," says a Los Angeles charm lecturer.

Camille Hendon has had ample opportunity to put her theory to the test.

She's travelled all over the United States and also to South America to lecture women's groups and college seminars.

Previously, Miss Hendon was a fashion designer in Dallas, Texas, and spent five years in the U.S. air force lecturing women officers.

She has also lectured for a American airline, giving tips that make airline hostesses the charming women they are.

Miss Hendon, here for a holi- day, said developing charm is more than the right makeup and smart clothes.

"It's the development of good speech, bearing, social graces and in general the development of 'all round poise,'" she said.

Miss Hendon tells the need her courses is self-improvement in becoming an accepted one. "College graduates need more than academic qualifica- tions. They need a poise de- velopment. They need to be complete women in every sense."

"When I was in Dallas I watched women trying to buy what couldn't be bought. I de- cided that women should be taught to develop themselves in every way," she said.

"Charm can't be bought, but it can be developed."

Mr. and Mrs. Hobertus David Fyn are shown following their recent marriage in the Christian and Missionary Alli- ance Church, Belleville. Riley, Belleville.)

FYN — VARDY

Tall standards of large white chrysanthemums, mingled with pale mauve-pink and white, and interspersed with ferns, adorn- ed the chancel, and while satin bows marked the pews in the Christian and Missionary Alli- ance Church, Belleville, on Saturday, September 23rd, at 3.00 p.m., for a lovely autumn wedding when Lillian Vardy, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Vardy, became the bride of Hubertus David Fyn, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Fyn, in an impres- ive ceremony performed by the pastor of the church, the Rever- end Sackville Palmer.

Mr. Wilbur Leonard, church organist, provided the traditi- onal wedding music, and ac- companied the soloist, Mr. Monty Parks, who sang "Because," previous to the processional, and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the radiant bride was charming in her bridal gown of white organza over taffeta and white chantilly lace with fitted bodice having a sweetheart, lace- edged neckline outlined with sequins. The long sleeves end- ed in V points over the back of bell- accented floor-length skirt of which the fullness fell in graceful folds. Her shoulder- length veil of illusion tulle was held in place by a lace-trimmed headdress, and she carried a bouquet of red roses and white Shasta 'mums mingled with as- paragus fern and lace. A single strand of pearls was the gift of the bridegroom, completed her bridal costume.

She was attended by Miss Rita Yatesman, of Trenton, as maid of honor, wearing a floor- length gown of lilac-tone silk organza, with matching bolero dress, and carrying a bouquet of yellow and lilac 'mums. Miss Sonja Fyn, sister of the bride- groom, and Miss Lenore Dixon, both of Belleville, as bride's maids, were gowned in beauti- ful fall shades of silk organza in green and yellow, attired similarly to that of the maid of honor. They wore matching headdresses, and carried yellow and white chrysanthemum bou- quets.

Little five-year-old Iris Var- dy, sister of the bride, as flower girl, was sweet in her pale yel- low organdy frock, with match- ing headdress, and carrying a basket of yellow, white and li- lac shaded chrysanthemums.

Mr. John Fyn, of Belleville, attended his brother as groom- sman, and Mr. Judson Fee, Mr. William Rodgers, and Mr. Gordon Freeman, all of Belle- ville, and Mr. Hans Fyn, of Toronto, were ushers.

At the reception following the ceremony, was held in the low- er auditorium of the church, where the bride's mother, as- sisted by the bridegroom's mother, received the guests. The former wore a suit of beige-tone wool with brown acces- sories, and corsage of pink roses, while the latter was in blue wool with rose-tone accessories, and corsage of dusty-pink roses.

The bride's table was appoin- ted with white damask linen, and centred by an all-white, three-tier wedding cake on a glass pedestals with mirror- separated layers, and topped with a tiny bride and bride- groom. Tiny pink roses adorned each corner of the triple layers. The bridal flowers added a lovely nuptial accent to the pretty setting.

For the wedding trip to Niaga- ara Falls, the bride chose a wool suit in fall shades of green with matching accessories, and corsage of yellow roses.

Guests were present from Trenton; Belleville; Toronto; Peterborough, and Deseronto.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at a shower held at the home of Miss Lenore Dixon by the bridegroom's friends, and at a miscellaneous shower held in the church lower auditorium by congregational friends and members of the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

Mr. and Mrs. Fyn are resid- ing at 313 McDonald Avenue, Belleville.

Get-Acquainted Tea Held by Universify Club

A golden still September day was the background for the "Get-Acquainted Tea" held recently at the home of Mrs. R. A. Pringle, on Bay Street Bel- leville, marked the first gathering of the club for the '61-'62 sea- son.

All guests were early and welcomed at the door by the president, Mrs. A. S. Lewis. The guests were asked by Mrs. R. Bar- rett to sign the guest book.

Mrs. J. E. Pugh and Mrs. H. U. Clarke received the guests in the tea room. Here friend- ships were renewed and new members were wel- comed and introduced. Presid- ing at the tea table were Mrs. J. McArthur, Mrs. R. L. Gw- ynn, Mrs. J. H. Dettonsen, and Mrs. D. G. Burr.

All those who attended ap- preciated the gracious home of Mrs Pringle which lent itself beautifully to the occasion. In addition to the home, Mrs. Pringle supplied the many col- orful flowers which abounded in the gardens and through- out the tea rooms.

In the absence of the tea, Mrs. T. Kuchta and Mrs. J. Hoyes wish to thank those members who contributed in any way to the enjoyable af- fair.

Any women interested in the University Women's Club who were unable to attend the tea are cordially invited to the first monthly meeting which will be held in the Nurses' Education Hall on October 19th.

Bayside G.G. Brownies L.A. Plans Concert

The Bayside Local Associat- ion for Guides and Brownies held its first meeting of the season at the home of Mrs. Pyl- ton with nine members pres- ent.

Mrs. Caves opened the meet- ing.

Mrs. Caves gave a report on the Guide Camp which she and Mrs. Gipson supervised. These ladies have done a fine job with the girls of the commun- ity and their thanks are ex- tended to them.

A discussion on the Christ- mas concert took place. It is to be held in December.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Ackerman, served lunch.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mr. F. H. — Her hobby is going to doctors.

Mrs. F. H. — He doesn't believe I'm sick, I guess.

* * *

Mr. F. H. — My wife is ill and for the past five years, ever since our son's wedding, she's been going from doctor to doctor. The wedding day was dur- ing a January blizzard and she can open a drug store. If she really stopped to take all the medicines prescribed she'd have no time to eat or get to see other doctors! I think it's all in her mind.

Meanwhile, it's a very expens- ive pastime.

* * *

Mrs. F. H. — How can Fred be so heartless as to call my search for good health "an expensive pastime"? Let me as- sure him that my drugs and med- icines are preferable to spend money on than funerals, graves and cemeteries!

I had a bad fall five years ago and I've never felt right since. I think our old doctor made much too light of what happened. It was more serious than a sprain. I still think I suffered some internal injury, even though it was not noticed clearly yet. Every once in a while I get shooting pains in my leg and terrible backaches.

Unfortunately, I haven't con- tacted the doctor and my son is arranging for me to see a big professor who cured his father-in-law of a similar thing.

* * *

The Council—Is Mrs. H. ma- gining or not? There's only one way to find out. Stick with one doctor long enough for him to get a full, rounded picture.

Undecided and troubled by Mr. H., she probably identifies with the anonymous deceased who ordered the following five words chiseled on her tombstone: "I told you I believe me!"

There are so many pos- sibilities following a fall, in- cluding the possibility that the "nothing" — as some of Mrs. H.'s doctors have said — that a doctor-shopper can go along getting opinions, diagnoses and prescriptions as long as her lim- its and money hold out. But the common-sensical procedure is to decide upon one physician in whom she has confidence, permit him to review all the records and laboratory findings and consider his verdict as the last word, but not the cut-and-dried treatment. But sign up with just one me- chanic and you lose all personal interest in your car. He tests it, corrects it, tunes it up by one in an-odery way. He keeps records. His is an overall, an "umbrella" coverage which can usually be relied upon.

So, along with Mr. H., we send the car to the splattered hit or miss doctoring for Mrs. H. Her chances, we think, are slim- mer, be he the much abused old family doctor or a new one, should she be more cooperative. I consult. If he senses a psycho- somatic angle how much will be add of a psychotherapist, we won't be surprised. After all, "umbrella" coverage will lay him from the time it became empty of her son's presence!

Readers' Saturday Column

QUESTION: Have you ever heard of the French Acadian dish called Tourtiere? It is handed down from mother to daughter. It consists of two layers of a potato paste sep- arated with a meat layer of seasoned, boiled meats, pork. The basic trick is to scald the potato pulp, not boil it. Then grated and the water squeezed out, to the proper stiffness with boiling water. I keep this treas- ure dish often used by the French people in Nova Scotia instead of turkey on special holidays.

Gay S.

ANSWER: No, I do not have a recipe for Rappe Pie. Read- ers come to our rescue if you can.

LETTER: I have a recipe here for fall fowl or leftover chicken or turkey.

You may have made it but I've only eaten it in Iowa where my husband's uncle lives and his mother (89) usually prepares it for a large crowd - those family get-togethers of 20 to 30.

I just buy a fowl 3½ to 4 pounds and boil until meat comes off. Could be boiled whole or cut up. Save broth. Remove meat from bones and place in bake dish. Pour 1 cup of milk or half cream and half milk over meat, then add some chicken broth - enough liquid to just cover meat. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Then make a thickened dressing as for stuffed chicken, using a little more of the broth in dressing to make it moist. Spread over the meat and bake until dressing is done. She says the dressing is delicious. She'll use left over chicken from Sunday dinner, sometimes boiling the bones for the liquid. I have heard so many say they don't know how to prepare boiling fowl except boil it and put with cream sauce. This way a small hen goes a long way. With price of meat I know a lot of folks would like to make it stretch as far as possible.

Gay S.

ANSWER: This is a peach of an idea, and I am grateful to you for it. I am sure many are economizing readers will wel- come it.

QUESTION: I just finished reading your column. You have a recipe for "Spider Corn", boy- ing it was a recipe for Snow- balls which has been requested. My grandmother used to make Snowballs but her recipe is misplaced. She used to make all-purpose flour and slightly beaten eggs and a pinch of salt, nothing else. The batter should be soft enough to roll very thin, but not sticky. When the dough is rolled thin, it is cut into squares (3") with a pastry wheel, and fried in deep fat. The dough should be kept covered with a damp cloth as it dries very quickly. Our neighborhood is mostly Scandinavian so have the Fat- tig Man often. My grandma is gone and so far as I know Snowballs are too. I can't re- member if there is a German name for them as she used to make them in Yakima, Washington and then in Snowballs. They are very light, and the only sweetening is the dusting of powdered sug- ar. Hope this is what Euphrasia had in mind.

Mary T.

ANSWER: I certainly hope that Euphrasia appreciates all of the help I have received from readers following her re- quest for Pattie Man. I have a feeling you have found exact- ly the right thing. Thank you.

A Lift for Living

Middle Age Most Dangerous

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

What is life's most dangerous age? Is a group of press repre- sentatives and church leaders some time ago the question was raised as to what could be done to prepare America against the spiritual perils of the hour. Several of those present got to the point of issue back to the children. Childhood, they main- tained, is the key to curing our social ills. Train a child in the way he should go, and he will not depart from it. Certainly childhood is the most plastic age and the perils which threaten early youth can hardly be ex- aggerated. Nevertheless, I do not believe childhood is life's most dangerous age.

Perhaps it is the adolescent period when the budding powers of personality are branching out in all directions or the years following when youth are leav- ing home for college or for work. Certainly that formative time when sons and daughters have the safeguards of parental guid- ance is a period fraught with dangerous risks and decisions. Yet I don't believe that is life's most perilous period either.

The conviction has been forced upon me that life's most danger- ous period is middle age. It is the time of middle years who find their youthful goals still so far in attainment, those years in whom the race has slowed down from a run to a walk or even a limp. Those who find the temp- tation to loosen the yoke of Christ and to carry it lightly, as it seems justifiable to apply in life the words of the Psalmist, "Soul, take thine ease; thou hast much goods laid up for many years." We have to turn around to see the long vistas, but when we are des- cended a little on the other side of life's hill, the vistas open out in front of us.

If we live with God, middle age can be the period when we gain the longer vistas, the larger influence and the greater hope.

Grand Old Lady Marks 87th Milestone

One of Hastings county grand old ladies, Mrs. Mira Hudson Carmichael, now residing at 25 east Moira Street, Belleville, has been known over several friends, relatives and neighbors assembled to com- memorate her 87th birthday.

The evening was spent in a social get-together, talking about the present situation in the world today, as compared with the "Good Old Days," and listening to a tape recording of the evening's activities, made by her son, Harry, of Barrie, who was present for this event, the play-back of which was greatly enjoyed by those pres- ent. The highlight of the even- ing was the singing of a solo by the guest of honor.

Mrs. Boyd was the recipient of several fine gifts for which she expressed her gracious thanks.

The citizens of the communi- ty also expressed their esteem to Mrs. Boyd for con- tinued health in the days that lie ahead.

Because so much man needs to be done to feel right about his car, we've combined the best in parts with a minimum of delay and expense to you. All work guaranteed.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

COLORFUL LADYBIRD
By WINIFRED E. WILSON

For obvious reasons, a large majority of mother birds are more quietly dressed than the fathers. Incubation of the eggs, the brooding and feeding of the nestlings are generally the duties of the female; and since the youngsters leave home it is she who is a great extent looks after the wants of the family. Consequently, she must be as inconspicuous as possible, so as not to attract any enemy to herself — and at the same time, to those she would protect. There are, however, a few exceptions to this rule. Female phalaropes are distinctly more colorful than males, the reason being that in this case, the male does all the housework. Another female with more plumage attraction than her husband is Mrs. Kingfisher.

STRIKINGLY CAMOUFLAGE

The kingfisher pair are a pleasing blue-grey, with white collar and white underparts. These two white areas are separated by a wide, irregular, blue-grey band across the chest. But Mrs. Kingfisher wears yet another decoration; a wide chestnut - colored band across the lower part of her throat, the handsome color extending also to her sides. Picture for yourself her front view. From the underside of her big bill down to her tail she has a series of irregular stripes: white, blue-grey, white, chestnut, white. This pattern, with the white broken up into sections, is certainly beautiful, but has doubtless been given her for a more practical purpose. It makes a splendid camouflage as she goes in and out of her home, the red-brown feathers blending in with the color of the earth where her hole is situated.

HIS OWN TUNNEL

This home is actually in a regular little room at the far end of a tunnel in a steep bank, all the work of digging having been done by the pair themselves. Usually this is near water where food can be found, because their chief diet is fish. But sometimes a very good fishing ground has no bank for a home. Then they are obliged to go back and forth, from home to water, while feeding their young ones. The water may be a brook, pond, river, lake, or even the ocean. The fisher sits on an overhanging branch waiting for the prey, and when a small fish is in sight the bird dives, oversized bill first, and comes up with the head hanging out one side and the tail the other.

One of the delights of having kingfishers for near neighbors is the sound of their rattle as with their typical flight of several wingbeats and a long glide they travel low over the water. Once ponds freeze over we will miss them.

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

After my Easter lily finished blooming the foliage remained bright and green for some time. Eventually the pot was taken out doors and planted in sandy soil. I intended to plant it as I have had them bloom again in the second season. In August new leaves sprouted and I did plant it. Most of the leaves shrank which will soon open.

The madonna lilies too have thrown up tufts of new leaves to mark the spot where they will bloom again next year. Garden border say they should be planted in August. Perhaps someone else can tell planting.

It is not too late to order many of the old favorites as well as some of the new hybrids.

While lilies may look exotic they are actually quite hardy in most Canadian gardens. Many of them are positively long lasting.

The Fiesta Hybrids are among the most popular. Mabel's clear bells. They deepin on why stems four to five feet tall. Their increase is enormous rapidly. In these there is the Bellingham Hybrids with their chocolate spots, Burgundy strain cherry red to post white and pink and the Golden Clarence yellow with small black dots.

SOME RARELY, SOME LATE

Skipping around through the catalogue we note lilies which bloom early and some like those are a few that will take their time. Some are extremely tall. Coral Lily, needs full sun, May or June, Rubellum is the extended type of Coral Lily, growing to light pink, Oregon green, Hansoni Lily is crimson flower, Harrisi Lily is crimson and deep yellow, needs full sun in July. Tigrinum Lily blooms in July. Gold Banded Lily need partial shade. Has white flower white with crimson spots and gold band, — August.

There is a people of lilies that are hardy and bloom early and make fine cut flowers. One the others for summer long bloom.

While we are at it let us not forget that we should plan to furnish the garden with early spring color. Use the tulip in beds or borders, or in sheets along a walk, tuck them in among shrubs between the shrubs circle a tree with them or use them to mark the entrance to the house or the grounds.

Crocuses (hamiricas) have cactuses of lavender or pink flowers and glue form-like foliage. Plant in full sun and partial shade. Plant early. These minor bulbs are quite inexpensive in price. Per 100 bulbs are $1.25 to $2.50 a dozen.

SPIRIT SHADES

Chiondoxa (Glory of the snow) has flowers in delightful shades from white through blue blue and white and pinks. 40 bulbs for $1.25 per 100. The hardy Cyclamen may be white or rose pink, and there is an ivy-leaved type. These will be up to $3.50 a dozen. Winter. Aconite (Eranthis Hyemalis) is pleased early and blooms early. From 60 cents to $3.00 a dozen. Dog Tooth Violet (Erythronium) these are larger than the wild violet, colors are from white to deep rose, partial shade. From $1.60 to $3.50 a dozen. Snow drops from large clumps. Plant these in full sun or partial shade. Many types of these, the old ones. One strain is double — 65 to 90 cents a dozen. Anemones (Snow Flakes) these resemble Snow Drops but are much larger and more vigorous at $1.30 to $2.50 a dozen.

Muscari, or Grape hyacinths, — one catalogue offers ten varieties. They range through white, light and deep blue to a new Musk Hyacinth in purple shades. It is delightfully fragrant and sweetly perfumed. This last named is $1.35 each. The others are 50 cents to $1.25 a dozen.

For a dollar a dozen you can have lovely scillas, or squills, which is the old name for them. They are also called Wood Hyacinths. They are lovely little bell-like flowers that hang on wiry stems. They are liable to deep blue and striped blue and white also a pink and white. Tubergenia Bulbosa is of such substance that the blooms look double. —

That is interesting to you in the fall bulbs.

MENON HONORED

FREDERICTON (CP)—V. K. Krishna Menon, India's defence minister and leader of his country's delegation to the United Nations, said Thursday his government has concluded that signing of a peace treaty by Russia with East Germany will not mean barring of access to West Berlin. Addressing convocation exercises at the university, receiving an honorary doctorate of law, he said negotiation is the only alternative to war.

Wild Drivers On the Prowl At All Times

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

In the crowded traffic jungle, one common species of driver seems to be on the prowl at all times.

This habitat is anywhere, his habits all too familiar to observers. They include—pumping the gas pedal furiously to quite barely in most Canadian gardens. Others they are positively long lasting.

The Fiesta Hybrids are among the most popular. Mabel's clear bells. They deepin on why stems four to five feet tall. Their increase is enormous rapidly. In these there is the Bellingham Hybrids with their chocolate spots, Burgundy strain cherry red to post white and pink and the Golden Clarence yellow with small black dots.

SOME RARELY, SOME LATE

Skipping around through the catalogue we note lilies which bloom early and some like those are a few that will take their time. Some are extremely tall. Coral Lily, needs full sun, May or June, Rubellum is the extended type of Coral Lily, growing to light pink, Oregon green, Hansoni Lily is crimson flower, Harrisi Lily is crimson and deep yellow, needs full sun in July. Tigrinum Lily blooms in July. Gold Banded Lily need partial shade. Has white flower white with crimson spots and gold band, — August.

There is a people of lilies that are hardy and bloom early and make fine cut flowers. One the others for summer long bloom.

While we are at it let us not forget that we should plan to furnish the garden with early spring color. Use the tulip in beds or borders, or in sheets along a walk, tuck them in among shrubs between the shrubs circle a tree with them or use them to mark the entrance to the house or the grounds.

Crocuses (hamiricas) have cactuses of lavender or pink flowers and glue form-like foliage. Plant in full sun and partial shade. Plant early. These minor bulbs are quite inexpensive in price. Per 100 bulbs are $1.25 to $2.50 a dozen.

SPIRIT SHADES

Chiondoxa (Glory of the snow) has flowers in delightful shades from white through blue blue and white and pinks. 40 bulbs for $1.25 per 100. The hardy Cyclamen may be white or rose pink, and there is an ivy-leaved type. These will be up to $3.50 a dozen. Winter. Aconite (Eranthis Hyemalis) is pleased early and blooms early. From 60 cents to $3.00 a dozen. Dog Tooth Violet (Erythronium) these are larger than the wild violet, colors are from white to deep rose, partial shade. From $1.60 to $3.50 a dozen. Snow drops from large clumps. Plant these in full sun or partial shade. Many types of these, the old ones. One strain is double — 65 to 90 cents a dozen. Anemones (Snow Flakes) these resemble Snow Drops but are much larger and more vigorous at $1.30 to $2.50 a dozen.

Muscari, or Grape hyacinths, — one catalogue offers ten varieties. They range through white, light and deep blue to a new Musk Hyacinth in purple shades. It is delightfully fragrant and sweetly perfumed. This last named is $1.35 each. The others are 50 cents to $1.25 a dozen.

For a dollar a dozen you can have lovely scillas, or squills, which is the old name for them. They are also called Wood Hyacinths. They are lovely little bell-like flowers that hang on wiry stems. They are liable to deep blue and striped blue and white also a pink and white. Tubergenia Bulbosa is of such substance that the blooms look double. —

That is interesting to you in the fall bulbs.

Four Indicted In Largest Stock Fraud

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal grand jury indicted four men Thursday for what government lawyers described as the largest stock fraud conspiracy ever uncovered in this area. They said the public was defrauded of more than $15,000,000.

Named as defendants were Morris Black, 56, a promoter of Toronto; Samuel Ciglen, 56, of Toronto; Michael Myerson, 53, of Coral Gables, Fla.; and Morris MacSchwebel, 53, of White Plains, N.Y.

U.S. Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau said the defendants operated a scheme to violate federal securities laws as well as the mail fraud and wire fraud statutes by selling some 4,000,000 shares of unregistered stock in Canadian companies.

They include stock in Great Sweet Grass Oils Limited and in Key Oils Limited, he said.

Government lawyers Peter Martins and T. Bonn s s Cahill said the conspiracy began in January 1960. They said public investment in both stocks was about $16,500,000 and that the present value is about $1,000,000.

Morrison said shares of both companies were sold to the public by high pressure tactics featuring telephone sales and the mails.

Cahill said both stocks were improperly listed on the American Stock Exchange but were taken off the exchange by order of the Securities and Exchange Commission more than four years ago.

R. G. Fleming gave a splendid address on the harvest and thanksgiving.

PRESENTATION

On Friday evening, friends and relatives met in the parish hall of St. Mark's Anglican Church to honor Mr. and Mrs. W. Crosweller (nee Brenda McGowan).

The Rev. R. Fleming was chairman for the program of presentation. Mrs. Gerald Burkitt and Mrs. Ralph Wellman made the presentation to a purse of money.

Mrs. Burkitt graciously replied, thanking their many friends and all were invited to partake of refreshments in Peterborough. Refreshments were served by the ladies.

Deseronto

FINAL SERVICE

DESERONTO — The final service to be conducted on Tyendinaga Reserve by the Rev. E. Wrightwood was at the Mission School church on Sunday evening. The church was filled for the occasion and the choir and organist of All Saints Church were in attendance.

The new rector for the Reserve, Canon Temple of Fort William, is not expected to assume office until October 22nd. Until his arrival the services at All Saints and Christ Church will be conducted by Rev. O. Walker, of Camden East, and Mr. Clayton Johnson, lay reader will have charge of the evening services at Mission School.

FOUR FIRE ALARMS

The Deseronto Firemen responded to four alarms during the week. One alarm, on Tuesday night was to the home of Mrs. Bert Bird on the corner of Bryant and Thomas Streets. Apparently a spark had fallen in some clothing in the shed and ignited the clothing. The resultant blaze completely and partially filled with gasoline before the fire was noticed. When it was discovered the flames were several feet high and the fire department controlled the blaze in about 15 minutes. The damage will amount to over $1,000.

On Thursday, shortly after the noon hour, the department was called to the Bird residence of Tyendinaga to the home of M. Scott. Sparks of a garage and drive shed had caught fire. It was feared that the blaze from the garage would spread to the house. The firemen placed water on the blaze which also consumed some 14 cords of wood which was piled in the shed for winter use. They were again called shortly after seven o'clock when the wind began spreading sparks from the burning wood pile.

About four-thirty they were called to a grass fire in Tyendinaga township near the church at Marysville. The fire was under control with no trouble and several burning stumps extinguished.

FLOODS KILL 27

CALCUTTA (AP — Twenty-seven persons were reported drowned and 25,000 houses destroyed in three days of floods in the Orissa state in the north of eastern India. More than 300 square miles in the river areas were reported under water.

HALIFAX (CP)—Moose may soon be hunted legally again in Nova Scotia woods.

If an open season is approved, however, it will not be held before next year and likely will be patterned after the year - old New Brunswick policy of issuing a limited number of licenses for kills in a limited area.

Clarence Mason, director of wildlife conservation for Nova Scotia, says his branch of the lands and forests department will recommend to the provincial government that an open season be approved.

The animals were becoming too plentiful for their own good and for the good of the forests in some areas of the province, particularly parts of Antigonish, Colchester and Guysborough counties.

For the last two years the department, on the recommendation of Mr. Mason's branch, unsuccessfully sought legislation for a moose season. He said apparently public feeling in the areas that would not be included in the hunt was the chief reason the recommendations had not been passed.

WILL TRY AGAIN

"We plan to recommend it again when the legislature opens in February, who knows what will happen? You know about the little drops of water wearing down a rock."

Mr. Mason said there has been illegal hunting, despite stiff penalties. Moose haven't been hunted legally in the province since 1927 and fines range from $100 to $300.

He suggested that in some areas of the province moose meat has been sold as beef hamburger.

The branch hoped soon to have a method of analysis that would provide adequate proof in court of the presence of moose meat in commercial meat products.

Mr. Mason also explained in an interview a change that has been made in duck-hunting regulations.

It involves the wood duck, a tasty little migratory bird widely protected in North America.

"Because the wood duck is hard to distinguish in flight from the teal, the migratory bird regulations have been changed to allow a hunter one wood duck—in other words one mistake—in his daily bag limit of six ducks."

Illegal shooting is covered by a fine of $10 to $50 and the possession limit of ducks is 12.

Efrem Zimbalist Jr. Will Quit TV-Movie Career

By BOB THOMAS

At the Belle
"The Guns of Navarone"
Robert Aiden Dreams

A truly great motion picture, heroic in cast and concept, Carl Foreman's "The Guns of Navarone," opened yesterday in breathless audience excitement at the Belle Theatre.

Gregory Peck, David Niven and Anthony Quinn star in the film, a multi-million dollar Columbia pictures release that was almost a year in the making. The Cinema Scope Eastman Color adventure costars Stanley Baker, Anthony Quayle, Irene Papas, Gia Scala and James Darren. Shooting the film, which is based on Alistair MacLean's best-selling novel, are the guns of Navarone themselves. Gennan gun which prevent Allied ships from using a vital Aegean Sea channel, they are embedded high up and deep within the island cliffs of Navarone; they cannot be destroyed by land, sea or air attack. Peck leads a chilled commando in a suicidal sabotage trek to the storm and mountain — bomb scenes are among the most dramatic ever recorded on film.

Dimitri Tiomkin composed and conducted the music for "The Guns of Navarone", now playing an extended engagement at the Belle Theatre, and J. Lee Thompson directed the picture one of the most powerful adventure stories ever brought to the screen. It was written and pictured by Carl Foreman, from Alister MacLean's best-selling novel.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Efrem Zimbalist Jr. has announced he will quit his TV-movie career. Actors have been rebelling at "typing" and since the golden days of Errol Flynn, Zimbalist is the first of the TV sleuths to rebel. He is Stu Bailey, leader of the '77 Sunset Strip show that has launched a mess of private eye programs.

Zimbalist quit once before, after the death of his first wife.

"I was out of acting for five years," he said, "I did nothing for the first year and a half. Then I studied and did some teaching at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia (where his friend Fritz has taught music.) I came back to acting because I missed the companionship and sociability of the entertainment world."

His return to acting brought him what he called a colored before: Success. He has a steady job with the TV show and sometimes does movies, such as the current Chapman Report.

Why is Efrem unhappy?

"A job like this should pay off in one of two ways: Satisfaction or money," he explained. "The money is not great and there is no satisfaction."

Pressure On Yankees Despite Odds

Fever High In Cincy

By JERRY LISKA

CINCINNATI (AP) — The world series plunges into its third game today with New York Yankees trotting over the bandanges of cowpoke Crosley Field and the steamed-up Cincinnati Reds scenting a second successive series victory.

Despite their 3-to-1 betting edge, the pressure definitely is on the aching Yankees as the series, after a day off, resumes in expectedly perfect weather for a fun ex overflow crowd of 32,000.

Starting time is 2 p.m.

Compared with New York, where neither of the first two games drew capacity, the series fever is burning at terrific pitch in this Ohio River metropolis.

TICKETS AT PREMIUM

Signs everywhere exhort a Redleg victory and the man in the street is a rabid baseball fan. Tickets were going at scalpers' prices, one businessman being arrested for enacting $600 for $50 a ticket — for a dozen $7.50 seats.

Today's pitchers are both righthanders, Cincinnati's Bob Purkey (11-12), year - old knuckleballer, facing New York's Bill Stafford (14-4), who lost completed his first full major league season.

In Tuesday's workout in Crosley Park, the Yankees were obviously concerned over the hook opener, would start Sunday, although Ford drilled up Frisch with a stiff neck. Catcher Elston Howard had his left wrist taped, a souvenir of his collision with Cincinnati's Elio Chacon, who broke Howard's second tacker safely slid home on a short passed ball.

Cincinnati manager Fred Hutchinson planned to use the same lineup that whipped the Yankees 6-4 Thursday except for a switch of Frank Robinson from left to right field with Wally Post moving from right to left.

Berra practised longer than any other Yankee Friday. His main criticism was not against the plateau he says he's getting enough many times the next three days, but was directed instead against the bright sun glaring against left - fielder in early afternoon.

Roger Maris, who set an all-time season homer mark of 61, has yet to hit the ball out of the infield in this series and failed to reach the right field homer barrier in Friday's work out. But Mickey Mantle, who missed the first two games with an infected hip, boomed four balls into the right field stands, two into the centre field stands —batting left handed — and lofted two over the left field wall at the 360 - foot mark, batting right-handed.

Manager Ralph Houk said he would not decide whether Mantle could start until today's pre-game batting drill, but added: "Although I'm not ready to say he'll play, it looks less doubtful."

PICKS ALTERNATE

If Mantle fails to start, the Yankees will probably use Johnny Blanchard was in Maris's right field spot.

Kenmors Are Confident

By GEO. H. CARVER

In confidence and competition is the prevailing factor in Belleville Kenmores should win their "Tri-Ice" game with the Kingston All-Stars tomorrow afternoon.

The third game of the Eastern Ontario Senior Hockey Association "A" finals is slated for the Kingston Cricket Field starting time is 2:30 o'clock.

The winners meet the victors of the Kitchener-Ottawa semi-final series. Ottawa won the first tilt 3-1 but the Kitchener Dutchmen roared back Thursday to bend the Ottawans a 12-0 shellacking. The third game is being played in Ottawa today.

OHA secretary Thomas Rowdon has notified all clubs concerned that the first two games of the Ontario championship will be played October 14 and 15th. There will be no extension of time.

The third game, if necessary, will be played October 21.

Manager Ken Soden said today the Kenmores will be at full strength for tomorrow's tilt. "The boys will all be home for the holiday and will have no excuses if defeated".

Soden and Coach Vic Morris put the Kenmore throughtheir two strenuous practices today at the Fair Grounds. The squad worked out for two hours this morning and go at it again at four o'clock this afternoon.

"They looked sharp in all departments" Soden said. "They concentrated on their taining. There was no horseplay and the boys looked downright serious. They realize that defeat means elimination and they are in no mood for relegation to the 1960 title to Kingston or any other club."

Protests against officiating by Kingston in Belleville for the first game and the Kenmors in Kingston last Sunday brought sharp action from OHA president Jack Carson.

Two umpires from Peterborough will handle tomorrow's game. These are reported as being picked from top baseball arbiters in this part of Ontario.

Soden would not release his lineup today but in all probability will start with the ace right-hander Larry Sodec against either Brad Aylesworth or Joe Kokowicz.

The Kenmors won't lack for support. Despite the counter-attraction of the world series, a large number of fans are being asked during the week to Kingston to cheer the champions to victory.

All In Sport

"Cut the line? Do you know how much firewater logs cost nowadays?"

The hockey spotlight, trained on exhibition games for weeks, switches tonight to the National League all-star skirmish at Chicago.

Chicago Black Hawks, who captured the Stanley Cup last season, take on the all-stars before an expected crowd of 14,000 in Chicago Stadium.

The all-stars will be coached by Sid Abel, whose Detroit Red Wings lost to Chicago in the Stanley Cup finals last season.

Abel's starting lineup will feature Johnny Bower of Toronto Maple Leafs in the nets, Marcel Pronovost of Detroit and Doug Harvey, playing-coach of New York Rangers, who was with Montreal Canadiens last season, at defence, Don Marshall of Montreal, a replacement for the injured Jean Beliveau, at centre, and Bobby Rousseau of Montreal and Frank Mahovlich of Toronto on the wings.

It will be the 15th all-star battle and the first appearance of Black Hawks in the annual tilt. The all-stars hold an edge in the series with six victories to four for the Stanley Cup champions. Four games ended in ties.

HORNETS STUNG

In exhibition action, Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers of the Eastern Pro of the Ontario Hockey Association defeated the American League Pittsburgh Hornets 13-3 at Kitchener. R to the American League defeated Cleveland Barons 4-3 in an AHL warmup at St. Thomas.

There were two exhibition games in the Inter-City Western League clubs. Portland Buckaroos and Los Angeles Blades at Penticton, B.C.

Meanwhile, the Rangers recalled rookie forwards Vic Hadfield and Bob Cunningham from Baltimore Clippers of the American League for injured Johnny Wilson and Pat Hannigan.

Rangers General Manager Muzz Patrick said Hannigan may remain out for a month before separation in time to return for next Wednesday's NHL opener in Boston against the Bruins.

Waterloo Wins Over Aggies

WATERLOO (CP) — University of Waterloo Warriors struck for two touchdowns in the second half Friday night to defeat Ontario Agricultural and Veterinary College in Hockey of Guelph 13-6 in an Ontario Intercollegiate Football Conference game.

The victory was the first in two conference starts for Waterloo while the loss was the second in two games for the Redmen.

OAVC halfback Ed Tighelaar fumbled in the end zone with five minutes remaining in the game and Waterloo defensive tackle Wayne Houston fell on the ball for the touchdown. Quarterback Dick Aldridge passed to halfback Jim Hamilton for the conversion.

Earlier in the second half, Waterloo scored when halfback Jock Tisdale charged over from the one-foot line.

The Redmen picked up a single in the first quarter on Pete Brigish's 27 - yard kick and were ahead 7-0 on a second - quarter touchdown by end Dave Hamm, who scored on an eight - yard pass from quarterback Gil Faulkner.

The Trots

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Rid dell Todd, owned and driven by Willis East Rowe, progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Dufferin - Simcoe, Friday captured the annual harness trot for three-year - olds at the Owen Sound Fall Fair.

Watched by more than 10,000 persons, Riddell Todd took the first one - mile heat in 2:13.2 and the second in 2:14.

The win boosted the horse's record to 13 wins and $14,000 this season.

Moments in History

1936 was an important year in Belleville's history for that was the year it was declared an ocean port. The first ocean-going ship to arrive was the steamship 'Rhea' which had sailed from Glasgow with a cargo of Scotch coal in its hold. The arrival date was May 5th. At this time Mohawk-Schuster Limited had had its roots firmly planted in Belleville for almost thirty years. It was around the turn of the century that the predecessors of the Schuster company first began supplying coal and wood to Belleville's homes and facilities.

Today, Moira - Schuster still supplies coal and has become Belleville's major supplier of fuel oil. Why don't you let Moira - Schuster attend to your heating needs this winter? Fuel oil will be delivered to you on your automatic "Degree Day" system and our efficient Service Department is on call 24 hours every day. Call WO 3-4504 or drop in next time you're downtown.

Strangest I Ever Saw

Yogi 'Digs' Left Field

This is another in a series of exclusive world series stories written for The Associated Press by Yogi Berra of New York Yankees.

By YOGI BERRA

CINCINNATI (AP)—A guy can get hurt playing left field and I will have two more days to worry about it before I play left field here reminded me of the dump near the St. Louis city limits where we played 30-35 years ago. It had no fence in left but there was a hill and the deeper you went back the higher you'd go.

I played in Cincinnati twice before. Once was many years ago in an exhibition game. Then I was here for the 1961 all-star game. But I never had any real attention to left field. I was a catcher then.

The rise in left is bad enough but you must also worry about the sun. It shines right in your eyes. I had a lot of trouble Friday working out for 90 minutes under game-time conditions. I got out the darkest pair of sun glasses we brought. But even with the dark glasses you can lose the ball. The sun is that strong.

WILL HAVE TROUBLE

Left field, where we play the best three days, rises about six feet above third base. Just back of it are thirty three - foot rise starting from about 30 feet in front of the green concrete wall. The wall is 12 feet high. The foul line goes close to the fence and our bullpen men are going to have trouble seeing anything but right field. So they can't help me much.

Running two feet above the ground along the foul line is some pipes. If a ball hits this pipe it may drop dead. I may throw some old balls against it just before the game to see the carom. I noticed left field is back of third base has some ridges or holes. If so with. It's nothing like a putting green, that's for sure.

It's tough to go back in left field go may be I'll play deep on this rising slope. It's easier to come in, at least I can get a better start. I never was much good at running backwards. I'll just have to watch Frank Robinson to see where he plays first. He's going to have the same problem.

I wonder where all my National League friends are now. None of them ever told me about left field. All guys I've played with or against in the league are at it but I believe only 32 of the Reds' 77 home games this year were played in daylight.

ALMOST GOT 'SKULLED'

During Friday's workout a lot of the fellas tried to help me. I almost got skulled when the ball bounced off the concrete. Jack Reed, a good outfielder, almost got beaned too and Bobby Richardson, our second baseman, had a ball bounce behind his head. He came out to give me some tips. If I have Tony Kubek comes out to help. You really use your glove to self defense. Instead of that extra protector I was talking about for Yankee Stadium they ought to let a fella wear a mask, or at least a helmet with a second hard shell on the sun glares over the double-deck stands.

Mickey Mantle and I talked a lot Thursday night about left field. I felt good when I saw Mick hit five batting practice homers into the right field bleachers and a number over the centre field wall. He was batting lefthanded and he hopes to play today. He loves that green background. But that's about all he had on his nib really has bothered him. It hurts when he tried to run or swing right-handed.

Thursday night I said a prayer for him, and one for myself. All I want is a sunny day.

The weather forecast is for a fair and warm day.

National Football League

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Louis Cardinals, who have been called "the incredible crippled club," will have two more players watching from the sidelines Sunday when they meet New York Giants in a game that should help to unscramble the race for first place in National Football League's Eastern Conference.

The game will open the Cardinals' home schedule. The latest injured Cardinals are offensive end Hugh McInnis and rookie punt-return specialist Pat Fischer, while Frank Mestnik and defensive end Joe Robb, who is ailing, may see only limited action.

The Cardinals and the Giants both have 3-1 records along with Dallas Cowboys, Philadelphia Eagles and Cleveland Browns.

Philadelphia defeated Pittsburgh Steeler (6-3), who likely will start without veteran Bobby Layne, suffering with a bruised shoulder and side. Cleveland is home against Washington Redskins (0-3). Dallas meets the Chicago Bears at Minneola.

Two other clubs involved in a tour-way tie for first in the Eastern Conference face each other when Baltimore Colts visit Los Angeles Rams. They have 2-1 records. Los Angeles Rams (1-2) travel to San Francisco to play the 49ers (2-1) while No. 1 quarterback, Zeke Bratkowski, who has a sprained ankle. Detroit Lions (2-1) are home to Chicago Bears (1-3).

San Diego Chargers make their straight trip into the East meet the Buffalo Bills while Oakland League's shortened schedule.

The Chargers, the league's only unbeaten club, will be after their fourth victory, with Boston Patriots the proposed victim.

There are only three games on the schedule this weekend. Dallas Texans journey to Denver to play the Broncos and Buffalo Bills invade Houston for a game against the Oilers in Sunday afternoon affairs.

Miteff Meets Clay Tonight

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — When young Cassius Clay steps into the ring tonight for his 10-round boxing match with Alex Miteff, the spectators will see a new Clay.

They will see a 19-year-old Olympic champion, who for the first time in his young professional career has stopped boasting and bragging about his ability long enough to admit he's got a few butterflies in his stomach.

"I'm not worried about Miteff," he said in an interview. "But I'll admit I've got a few butterflies in my stomach."

Without the cockiness that's made him the most colorful and controversial figure to hit the professional fight game in a long time, Clay said he has been too busy training to schedule his usual victory party in advance of the fight.

Clay, a 2-to-1 favorite, is expected to weigh 192 against Miteff's 205 pounds for the fight, to be scored on the five-point system.

The 'Duke' Wins Pace Prize

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Refusing to let a world-record performance fade him, Duke Rodney came back to win two successive heats and capture the $50,000 Kentucky Futurity Friday.

The brown colt by Rodney, Duke's Dutchess was nipped at the wire in the first heat by Cam Fella, who trotted the mile in 1:58 1-5, one-fifth of a second better than Harlan Dean's 1:58 2-5 in the Realization Friday. The time was a record for three-year-old geldings.

Duke Rodney, who had broken stride in both heats of the Hambletonian, took the winner's purse of $26,182. Caleb, fifth in the second heat, finished second to the Duke in the final heat.

Duke Rodney, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Connor of Rochester, N.Y., was clocked in 2:03 and 1:59 3-5 in his winning heats. He paid $5 and $3.80 for $2 win tickets.

The victory gave Duke Rodney two of the three jewels in Canada's triple crown. He won the Yonkers Futurity Aug. 10 before losing in the Hambletonian to Harlan Dean. Harlan Dean was not eligible for the Futurity.

U.S. TEAM ARRIVES

ROME (AP) — The United States Davis Cup team is lacking two top players, flew here Friday for practice sessions before taking on the favored Italian team in the international final starting Friday.

David Freed, the American non - playing captain, said the Italians should be favored with the best-of-five series, but emphasized he expects his players to do well despite the absence of Chuck McKinly and Bernard (Tut) Bartzen.

McKinley, who had played in most of the matches leading up to the interzone final with defending champion Australia, has returned to university. Bartzen has a sore elbow.

Reds May Change Mind On Chacon

By JOE REICHLER

CINCINNATI (AP)—Elio Chacon, hero of Thursday's second game of the world series, is on a preliminary list of promising players available to the Houston Colts in the baseball draft next season. The Associated Press learned today.

The 34-year-old second baseman, whom Bobby Shantz homered off to defeat the New York Yankees in Cincinnati's 6-2 victory, was one of 16 players on the special list from which each of the new clubs may pick four players in the draft.

But the list will not be formally presented to the new clubs until after the series and there is a strong possibility the Reds will have a change of heart in view of Chacon's recent exploits. The Reds also put second baseman Don Blasingame on the list.

The premium division is in addition to regular lists, released last week, from which Houston and New York can take players for expansion scaled from $75,000 to $75,000.

DISTURBED BY CRITICISM

General Manager Fred Richards of Houston and President George Weiss of New York are two of the premium players' identities.

League President Warren Giles, chairman of the draft, Richards of the quality of play, are, presided at a meeting of general managers Friday at which Richards and Weiss were present.

Giles said the eight existing clubs called the facts the best they could give.

Each of the eight clubs now in the league, plus the two new ones, has players but only one can be taken.

Ken Hunt, with .286 batting or pitching record:

Catchers — Blasingame, 29, .282; Chacon, 34, .293. There is a possibility Chacon may be removed by the Reds before the draft.

Infielders — Angelos Rodriguez, 24, .302; Harold Pitcher Dick Spencer, 32, .340; highly-touted rookie pitcher Dick Ellsworth, 20, 14-7.

San Francisco Giants—Southpaw Billy O'Dell, 31, 7-5 in 46 games; southpaw Dick Lemay, 24, 5-3 in 37 games.

Philadelphia Phillies — Catcher Val Smith, 30, .222; catcher Don Lappert, 24, .300.

Milwaukee Braves — Reliever Don McMahon, 32, 6-4 in 33 games; reliever Claude Raymond, 24, 3-2.

Pitcher Bob Taylor, 32, .192.

St. Louis Cardinals — Pitcher Bob Miller, 25, 1-3; shortstop Alex Grammas, 34, .222, if Bob Lee Maxwell, another shortstop, is not taken in the regular draft.

Pittsburgh Pirates — Outfielder-infielder Lee Walls, 28, .280; right-hander Dallas Green, 27, 11-11 (Modern).

Chicago Cubs—Southpaw Jim Brewer, 22, 1-7; reliever Barney Schultz, 7-4.

WEPPNER IN WRESTLING

CALGARY (CP) — Al Mittlestead, St. Louis, is wrestling eight overseas for Al (Murder) Mills, died in hospital Friday after a lengthy illness. He refired last year after 31 years as a wrestler. He once was ranked seventh with his brother, Tiny, among the world's top teams.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Nathan Phillips is the self-styled mayor of all the people of the city of Toronto. Sometimes, citizens wonder if his benevolence doesn't extend to Pug Alley, which could be anywhere in the United States of America or abroad.

Any time anyone mentions a world championship fight, the mayor is all ears. Wait, he blithely asks, is the matter with Toronto? It's big league, the greatest city in the universe, what's wrong with staging it here?

Well, really nothing except that its citizens have been taken a couple of times in the past five or six years. The red carpet laid out for the visiting fight dignitaries — goods from Kearns of Florida, chubby Bill Daly of Paterson, N.J., fish-peddler Jack Solomons of London, England, and assorted others — is becoming a bit scuffed from the traffic.

This is a reminder that the heavyweight boxing championship of the world is scheduled for Toronto on Monday, Dec. 4 between titleholder Floyd Patterson and a chap named Tom McNeeley of Arlington, Mass. The mayor's citizens will be asked to shell out up to $20 a head for the privilege of getting into Maple Leaf Gardens that night.

The announcement was made last Tuesday and, by golly, 24 hours later McNeeley's name pops up for the first time in the September rankings of the National Boxing Association. He just made it with No. 10 billing, replacing Welshman Dick Richardson.

ASSIST TO PHILLIPS

Mayor Phillips is credited with an assist in the fight production.

Bill Nolan of New York, vice-president of Championship Sports Inc., who is prospoting this fight with his brother, Tom, and Toronto promoter Frank Tunney, said in Toronto that the mayor was in New York last June and expressed "interest in getting a big fight for Toronto."

Some unkind souls have suggested the Patterson-McNeeley scheduled 15-rounder should be held on Thanksgiving Day because it likely will be a real turkey. They are still scarred from previous fiascos.

In 1956, for instance, the fight mob — Kearns, Daly, Charley Johnston, Solomons, to name a few—descended on Toronto to beat the drums for what they called a world light-heavyweight title battle between champion Archie Moore and a frightened, stiff heavyweight from Barrie, Ont., James J. Parker.

The mob was given a police motorcycle escort from the airport to the mayor's office where he officially welcomed them on behalf of all the people of Toronto. Newsreel and television cameras recorded the event.

WOEFUL CONTEST

The red carpet was out in all its glory. The "celebrities" highballed it out of town after the intimacies of the ceremony which left Parker a helpless bloody mess after eight rounds, fans with a sour taste in their mouths and promoter Dave Rush with a financial headache.

A year ago the mob was back. A motorcycle escort wasn't laid on for them, but they all congregated—the mayor included—in a downtown hotel for a champagne party to kick off the ballyhoo on a Moore - Eric Schlaagenhauf world - heavyweight title bout. The carpet was out again—but there was no champagne and no fireworks, no fight.

Moore had ballooned to 208 pounds, 35 over the light-heavy limit. Besides, his manager, Doc Kearns, had an ingle—which didn't pay out — whereby his aged fighter would meet Patterson or Ingemar Johansson.

The nonsense started a couple of weeks before the mayor junket when the promoters got innocently told reporters he had banned his office for the signing ceremonies.

Now, Patterson and McNeeley are due in Toronto to sign the papers for the Dec. 4 battle. Don't bet they won't add their names to the city hall register with the beaming Mayor Phillips looking on.

Race Champ Escapes Injuries

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) Belgian racing champion Olivier Gendebien apparently escaped with minor injuries Friday when his car failed to negotiate a turn on the Watkins Glen Grand Prix race course and flipped over.

The 30-year - old champion, thrown out of the Lotus Climax, walked away from the damaged vehicle. He picked up his shoes, torn off by the impact, and put them on before walking into the driver's pit.

Gendebien was treated at the track dispensary for cuts and bruises before being taken in an ambulance to a nearby hospital for further examination.

Gendebien later was taken to the motel where he is staying, and in an interview from there said:

"I want to assure everybody that I am fine and have no injuries whatever."

But he said "I am quite sure the car cannot be repaired in time for Sunday's (U.S. Grand Prix) race."

Britain's Shrinking Empire Beset by Political Troubles

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—A rash of political troubles is besetting Britain's shrinking empire.

The government of Prime Minister Macmillan long ago resolved to help along independence - seekers but intends with equal resolve to avoid Congo-type crises by surrendering too much power too quickly. As a result British rulers now are trying to cope with situations in the West Indies, Africa and Asia.

In the West Indies the people of Jamaica have voted to quit a 10-territory federation due for independence next year on the lines of Canada's Commonwealth status. Jamaica instead wants separate statehood. Britain is hoping Jamaica will be lured back yet into the grouping by the success of the still-living federal project.

British Guiana, Britain's only South American colony, also will press for independence as quickly as possible.

In East Africa, the protectorate of Tanganyika has been promised statehood- Dec. 20. New constitutional talks are likely in a hard effort to solve Kenya's next year. But difficulties have been in a ferment on the political future of Uganda.

In Central Africa British negotiators are walking a tightrope between the resolve of Federal Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky to preserve white rule and the demand of settlers by native Africans for self - government. The issues seem a long way from settlement.

In West Africa another kind of crisis has developed—over the future of Britain's relationship with the Commonwealth state of Ghana. President Kwame Nkrumah, who professes to be neutralist, has angered Britain and even frees positions of command on the Ghanaian armed forces. This move capped a long series of incidents which has cooled Accra's dealings with London.

In Asia Britain likely will have to hand over two long-prized military holdings — the naval bastion of Singapore and North Borneo. They may merge with the Independent Commonwealth state of Malaya

Order Inquest After Students Found Dead

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Authorities are depending on results of an autopsy to sift out the mystery deaths of two University of North Carolina students in their dormitory rooms they shared.

"We can't give any diagnosis until the autopsy is complete," acting coroner George-Canaday said Friday night.

Canaday said it probably will be two days—Saturday and Sunday night. The acting coroner said the autopsy report is ready on the bodies of William Henry Hartsoe, 20, of Troy, N. and James Michael Barbaza, 21.

The bodies, in their book and dressed in night clothes, were found Friday by a janitor who went to their room in a fraternity house when they failed to appear for their jobs at the university dining hall.

The post-mortem was ordered after a coroner's jury ruled that the young men died "by unknown causes." Superficial examinations by authorities disclosed no evidence of foul play.

Canaday said one of the dead students, whom he did not identify, had foam on his mouth but there also were reports one of the youths had been in the hospital the night. The acting coroner said all samples are being studied, including examination of fresh fruit found in their room.

Charles Emerson, dean of student affairs, said the two students were about average in their studies and their records did not "indicate anything exceptional" with even the honors.

Only Thursday, Robert S. Mauldin, 33, a dental school laboratory photographer and former graduate student, was found dead under similar but apparently unrelated circumstances. Canaday had ruled Mauldin's death due to natural causes and no autopsy was performed.

Bond Markets Show Little Change in Week

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian bond markets showed little change in light trade this week.

Canada shorts/terms were the most active group with gains of from five to 35 cents in some issues.

In the mid- and long - term range the Canada 5½-per-cent Sept. 1, 1965, closed at 107.15-.35, the 4½-per-cent Sept. 1, 1961 at 101.1-.3 and the 4½ per-cent Oct. 1, 1987, at 97.35-.97.75. All were unchanged.

The 30-day treasury bills sold at 2.57 per cent compared with 2.59 per cent last week and the 182-day bills at 2.84 per cent compared with 2.89 per cent. Dey - to - day money closed the week at 2¼ per cent.

A better tone was evident in provincials, although as in the recent Province of Ontario 5¼-per-cent Oct. 1, 1983 and the Province Ontario 4½-per-cent Dec. 1, 1965, issues were cleaning up.

The corporate section was mainly unchanged in light trading.

Quackery Is Flourishing In United States

By HAROLD MORRISON
WASHINGTON (CP)—Health quackery in the United States is more than $1,000,000,000 a year on prescriptions alone, a Senate committee was told Friday.

Despite laws and better education, medical shakings were rife in the United States, says Health Secretary Abraham Ribicoff.

Dr. C. A. Maxwell, head of Canada's food and drug administration, says that the problem is a serious one for Canada, too.

Ribicoff, speaking Friday before the Senate subcommittee to study ways of fighting charlatans, testified the flourishing of unnecessary or dangerous medications in the United States probably exceeds $1,000,000,000.

Morrell, who attended the committee as an observer, said in an interview later it's difficult to estimate the cost for Canada but it would be about one-hundredth or one-twelfth of the U.S. outlay.

DENTISTS MODERNIZED

Ribicoff said the old hokum, such as snake oil liniment and wonder tonics for growing hair, has associated with it medical science which doctor's tom - tom had made it seem real. Fraudulent brochure; the roadside medicine show to the television commercial; the quack nostrum to vitamins and berries to the fake cancer cure all have their medical antidotes that proved highly unscientific.

Another company now being promoted by the health department is the Salk vaccine. Since the nothing bottled sea water at $20 a gallon offered as a panacea by "physical culture establishments."

Their study showed quackery in treating arthritis and rheumatic diseases costs victims about $600,000,000 a year; fake dieting foods and food supplements $1,000,000,000.

But quackery's costs in dollars only introduces the story, Ribicoff added.

"In terms of tinkering with human life itself, the cost cannot be measured. The quack flirts with disaster."

PROPOSE FROST PARK

BARRE, Vt. (AP)—Creation of a national park in honor of Robert Frost was proposed Friday night by Interior Secretary Stewart Udall. He told a Democratic fund raising dinner that in creating a Robert Frost memorial park in the Ripton area where the poet lives "we would be forever preserving for future generations a small piece of the New England he has celebrated in verse."

Premier Lesage Called Son Of Old France

PARIS (CP) — A son of Old France, that is how Parisians refer to Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec, whose official visit here has aroused as much attention as swell as special consideration from the French government.

Few visiting heads of government have received such attention as was accorded Lesage during the last three days of official festivities marking the inauguration of "la Maison du Quebec."

Canada's French province was treated with the deference of a major state with the result that may Parisians talking go Canadians now in Paris refer to Lesage as "our premier."

The several hundred Quebecers in Paris for the occasion and members of the 40 - man official Quebec delegation have spent much time in conversations with Parisian explaining that Quebec is one of Canada's 10 provinces but still retains its French characteristics.

Today, as the official visit wound down with a round of receptions, luncheons, dinners and ceremonies, Lesage the premier was a familiar figure to Parisian newspaper readers. Le Figaro called Lesage, The newspaper l'Aurore described him as "eloquent."

Each celebration during the last three days seemed to give the visit a new enchantment of friendship and reflected French nostalgia for the colonial empire in the New World 200 years ago.

In a toast to Quebec at Thursday's state dinner, President de Gaulle reiterated to "the incredible power" of this young branch which has grown from a French root.

The lapse of time can wipe out from the heart of Frenchmen the nostalgic thought of the child's separation from the mother country 200 years ago."

The premier said Friday English - speaking Canadians know well of French - speaking Canadians' "passionate attachment to themselves they will help Canada find a harmonious absorption by the United States.

Cheddi Jagan Visits Ottawa Later in Month

OTTAWA (CP)—For the size of the country he represents, British Premier Dr. Cheddi Jagan will be the centre of unusual interest when he visits Ottawa later this month.

Speculation here is that the visit of the controversial, left-wing premier could have an important bearing on Canada's attitude towards admitting British Guiana to the Commonwealth if it becomes independent.

Jagan, whose People's Progressive Party won a majority in the May 15 election, is said he will press for early independence.

Jagan, a young politician of East Indian stock, is expected to visit Ottawa Oct. 18 and 19. Afterward he will pay an official visit to Washington.

Some authorities here are known to consider Jagan a Communist and a tool of Communism in general. But others say he is a neutralist.

Jagan's study showed quackery in treating arthritis and rheumatic diseases costs victims about $600,000,000 a year; fake dieting foods and food supplements $1,000,000,000.

But quackery's costs in dollars only introduces the story, Ribicoff added.

"In terms of tinkering with human life itself, the cost cannot be measured. The quack flirts with disaster."

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's this week: School days, the personal study and attention of doctor and fully-ordained waiter.

SCHOOL DAYS

Does it seem like your children are always sick and staying home from school?

Well, a U.S. health survey shows that children are, indeed, much more prone to sickness than are older persons. But the average illness are mostly minor.

During one survey year, for example, the average person of five and 24 had an average of one acute ailment a year, mostly colds or other respiratory problems. More than half of them needed a doctor.

On the average, the children lost almost 5½ days of school.

The survey also showed dental decay was high in this school age group and that one in every four children had never been to a dentist.

MAGIC OF PERSONALITY

Doctors and healers through the ages have always had to be part showmen, a sort of magic, says a British doctor. But now there is a shortage selling it.

In the new medical world of x-rays, tests, drugs and specialists, the doctor as magic fades the need to bring his personality to his bedside manners, suggests Dr. T. P. Dent, editor of the journal, Lancet.

"To get rid of the personal magician may be wise. Dr. Fox said in a recent talk. Medicine is a technical age, haven't people still a need for personal medical care?"

Everybody, he said, should have a doctor, one to provide special doctor. And as for the doctor, he must have heart as well as mind. He must be willing to give of himself, as well as of his knowledge.

THE PROPER BITE

Fluoridation of city's which many experts believe makes teeth resistant to decay may also contribute to straight teeth, says Dr. David B. Ast, director of New York state's dental health bureau.

Thirty-five per cent of use group of children, aged 12-16 in Newburgh, N.Y., had nearly perfect straight teeth, compared with those in city of Newburgh fluoridates its water supply.

Nearby in Kingston, N.Y., where the water is not fluoridated, only 18 per cent of a similar age group had straight teeth, he said.

Alexandra Fiord Is Most Northerly RCMP Post, Seldom Any Crime to Report

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — There's a schools, dentists, badminton, hockey and general nightlife?

"There is a variety of crime in Ottawa but law enforcement is a full-time matter," the inspector said.

Elsewhere in the north, duties of the Mounties still range from the usual immigration officers to emergency dentists and sentry-minders.

Finally, a cautionary note for single young men:

"For the present time and for many years to come, members will find it practically impossible to secure married accommodation, police or otherwise, should they marry while in the North west Territories."

What married quarters there are go to sergeants and those married before transferred in.

Missiles Shot Down Plane In Virginia

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) —Two U.S. navy jets firing Sidewinder missiles shot down a U.S. photographic reconnaissance plane over the Atlantic Friday, the Navy called out to escape a cockpit fire.

Headquarters of the Atlantic Fleet Air Force said the jet fighters scored direct hits with the heat-seeking missiles. The graphic plane, a Crusader jet, flew "in helpless circles over the ocean" for a time before the North Carolina outer banks. It was shot down to keep it from becoming a menace.

The pilot of the photo plane, Lt.-Cmdr. Charles Price, had ejected from the plane at few miles inland and parachuted safely to earth. He suffered minor burns.

Price's plane circled for 63 minutes before it was brought down by the Sidewinder-firing jet fighters.

STAYS IN WEST

OSLO, Norway (AP)—Peter-Pallitzsch, 19, one of Red Germany's best known theatre directors, said here today he is staying in the West.

Convict Says Conviction Was 'Miscarriage'

OTTAWA (CP)—I am innocent of the crime."

Sol R. Rauch, first convict to argue an appeal case before the Supreme Court of Canada, made this statement Friday in his impassioned plea against his conviction on a charge of stealing a cheque valued at $980, from Robert Simpson Mfrsst Ltd., local.

Rauch, a former New York lawyer, told a bench of five judges of the court that his conviction was a miscarriage of justice. The "unbelievable catastrophe" that had suffered had resulted in him being barred for life as a lawyer in the United States and in the loss of his home and business.

"For the last year my wife and four children have been living on welfare in a semi-slum area in Brooklyn—all as a result of this British Mine transaction," he said.

FOUR CONVICTED

The 41-year-old American was convicted and sentenced by a jury in Toronto last November of stealing the cheque from the Brilfund treasury. The others were Toronto millionaire hotelkeeper Louis Rosenberg; New York lawyer Stanley I. Rosenbaum, and Charles Stuart, North Bay businessman.

All four were sentenced to six-year prison terms in Joyceville Penitentiary near Kingston. Their convictions were upheld last June by the Ontario appeal court.

The appeals of Smith, Rosenbaum and Rosenberg were argued before the court on Thursday by Toronto lawyer Arthur Maloney.

Rauch was granted leave to argue his own case and was represented by Ian Scott, Kingston under counsel. He will argue on Joyceville's Thanksgiving weekend and will be back in Ottawa when the case resumes Tuesday.

Pilot Assists In Birth High Up in Air

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) —"I'm not all thumbs!"

Crackling over the radio went the warning to all points from the U.S. Federal Aviation Agency's air traffic control system.

"Get off the air!"

"We're having a baby in flight!"

And from bush pilot Don Sheldon, back, came the wing with the stork 4,000 feet over Talkeetna:

"She's half born. What do I do now?"

Sheldon had picked up Mrs. Joanna Rock at Cantwell for a flight to the Alaska Native Medical Center hospital in Anchorage. High in the air, Mrs. Rock's pains began coming, self doubling as radio'ble while flying the plane.

Sheldon, in his radio cry for help the Aviation Agency got the Rock's name on the telephone and relayed questions and answers:

"Is the baby born yet?"

"Yeah, we're doing great."

"Is it breathing?"

"Yeah, he's kicking around here."

How about the umbilical cord? Sheldon asked. He it but don't cut it, said Dr. Phil Okay, said Sheldon.

The doctor offered advice on caring for mother and baby. To each suggestion Sheldon replied, "Roger."

Mother and baby were delivered safe and sound.

Kennedy May Be Forced Into Compromising Position

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Kennedy may be forced into a compromising position on the Berlin crisis that may weaken his relations with France and West Germany, French journalists, mostly the West Coast firm on Berlin.

The President's Washington talks with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany, it is believed, will be somewhat clarification of what Russia means by a "free Berlin" and guaranteed freedom of West Berlin access routes.

They also were described by American authorities as being a means whereby Kennedy could continue to warn the Kremlin that Soviet demands could lead to nuclear war.

Yet these same authorities said it difficult to brush off repeat indications that in essence Russia and the United States are seeking some kind of temporary "accommodation" on the Berlin issue and that virtually all of the explored accommodations point to a reduction of American influence and power in central Europe.

CLAIMS CHALLENGED

While Kennedy continues to insist the United States will defend West Berlin by nuclear force, if necessary, several prominent Democrats associated in Congress have publicly underscored some of his statements that in terms of these arrangements Germany is but one country divided by East and West zones.

It is recognition of East Germany, they say, that could mean that Russia wants the West to accept along with elimination of Western occupation rights in West Berlin which is encircled by East German territory.

And there is evidence of increasing sentiment that the bulk of American people don't want to fight a war over Berlin.

There also is evidence that Kennedy's men are moving behind the scenes to let some of the political and diplomatic air out of previous agreements between East and West Germany that it would be without such agreements.

AGREEMENTS EXIST

Bonn has already entered into a number of such arrangements, dealing mainly with trade.

But the Bonn authorities argue those are merely "technical" matters and such firm pacts between two "states" as Bonn regards in terms of these arrangements Germany is but one country divided by East and West zones.

It is recognition of East Germany, they say, that could mean that Russia wants the West to accept along with elimination of Western occupation rights in West Berlin which is encircled by East German territory.

Another Meeting Of Minister On Berlin Not of Question

By JOHN EARLE

LONDON (Reuters) — A conference of the Western Big Three foreign ministers likely will be held this month to line up a common position for East-West negotiations on Berlin, reliable sources said here today.

A Foreign Office spokesman would not go further than to say that contacts between the foreign ministers was not out of the question.

But reliable sources in Bonn said Friday night that West Germany feels the Big Four foreign ministers should meet before any negotiations with Russia.

There also was speculation about a possible meeting between President Kennedy and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer after Democratic Senator Hubert Humphrey told reporters in Bonn he had suggested such a meeting to the chancellor, who seemed to favor it.

West Germany's government sources said Friday night that Adenauer called for a firm attitude in talks with Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Washington. Friday before the president met with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

GERMANS ALARMED

Informed sources said West Germany is alarmed because talks between Gromyko and U.S. Secretary Dean Rusk have covered the question of NATO arms limitation in West Germany.

London sources said officials of the four Western powers will probably decide to have a West-ern foreign ministers conference when they meet in Washington next week. Such a conference is likely to be held in a few weeks, they said.

At the same time, it was thought likely that further contact with the Russians would go on through diplomatic channels to prepare the ground for East-West negotiations

Five Cited For Contempt Of Court

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Fines and jail terms were imposed Friday after five men testified at a murder trial here were cited for contempt of court.

Mr. Justice E. G. Moorhouse cited all five for their conduct during the eight - murder trial of Phillip Gordon Burke, 39, who was acquitted.

Each escaped 10-day jail terms plus $100 fines or another 30 days. Charles Robinson, 20, of the United States Air Force base in nearby Kinchester Bitch. Thomas Harmon Jr., 19, and Edward Long 19.

Kenneth Clement, 19, was sentenced to 10 days and Theodore Sepkowskin, 17, was fined $100 or 30 days.

Clement was cited for his "disrespectful" attitude while giving testimony. Others cited for the others for disobeying the court order not to discuss the case among themselves. Reasons for some had given evidence.

SHOCK KILLS WORKER

OAKLAND, Me. (AP)—A 21 year - old construction worker was electrocuted Friday while touching a crane that came in contact with 2,400 volt hydro lines. Harland Hamlin of Waterville was grasping the bucket of the crane when he touched the wires.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER
Sunday, October 8, 1961

General Tendencies: This Sunday is a wonderful day for you to decide just how you want to get along with others and to take the initial steps toward putting into motion the actual co-operative methods which you feel will close ties with those who are in your life. Services tell ways to do this. Then later, join friends at social affair.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Make it a point to find out just how far associates will co-operate with you in your plans for a more successful future. Be sure you get a better understanding of their views as well. Then all dine out amicably — have fun!

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — If you attend services in a.m., you will be inspired to live in such a fashion that others will want to emulate you. Also, take the time to do something thoughtful, informally, for fellow workers. P.M. get health higher.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — You can be a most enjoyable host for you, if you early think out ways of pleasing others who will quickly thank you for your interest. Make your calls early and plan thrifty and evening wisely. Be dynamic, charming, dress well.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Your home and close use should be of supreme importance to you today. Do all in your power to keep them from worrying and let them know that you are truly devoted and they can count on you for security and peace of mind. Grow.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Get an early start to that fine spiritual lecture that will do so much to uplift your soul and raise your level of conscious ness. You will acquire true wisdom, too. Take the time to visit those religious who love you. Have fun.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) — Look to the fine standards and goals under which you were raised for best solution to current problems, as well as past experiences that have been successful. P.M. get new week scheduled nicely on paper. Retire early.

Libra (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22) — Since you can clearly see what it is you want today, you will also have every opportunity to go after it in a most dynamic and positive way. P.M. be your most charming social self.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Since you can clearly see what it is you want today, you will also have every opportunity to go after it in a most dynamic and positive way. P.M. be your most charming social self.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Contact good friends quietly today for fine suggestion: they will proffer during conversations that will be very beneficial to you. Step out late for a happy social whirl. See that you dress in good taste.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — By giving full attention to mundane affairs today, you will get excellent benefits therefrom, while you have the free time. Act circumspectly and gain prestige so important now. Others will approve and will want to emulate you.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — By getting out early to listen to the sage speaker or adviser, you will gain wisdom and wonderful ideas for the future. You will also be able to make new contacts of merit who can help you to get ahead much faster and easier.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — If you will get into the so-called Silence for awhile, wonderful hunches can be yours that should be followed quickly. Get in touch with associates in all categories and have illuminating talks informally. Retire early in p.m.

If your child is born today— life can be pretty much a series of pleasant relationships with others because of the keen understanding in this sapire and the ready smile that if always on the lips. Give a fine, basic education slanted toward humanitarian interests or and professions that require exactness and patience. A happy, full life here, particularly with the chosen mate — a love match.

Monday, October 9, 1961

General Tendencies: This is the dark of the moon and a day and evening when you would be wise to wind up whatever you have commenced with others. Make sure that you do show all that you are a person whose word is your bond. Avoid writing now entanglements this week. Get rid of the week, for many limiting conditions could follow such commitments.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Take care you do not get into trouble with a girl-lovering associate by bothering him with unnecessary questions — learn to handle others affectively yourself. Talk less and smile more. P.M. Stay at home. Retire early.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Electronic care should be exercised in your work today and also in handling delicate materials ,etc., or there can be serious loss. Also, consider your fellow workers — don't drive them too much. P.M. Improve wardrobe and health.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Particular care must be exercised while out driving or there could be a serious accident. Also, if you think before you speak, you will avoid arguments and possible separation from one who is dear to you. Curb that temper!

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) Be diplomatic with close ties or you get into serious argument that is best avoided. In fact, it behooves you to buy thoughtful little gifts and make the rounds of the day's work that is necessary to add to comfort and harmony at home.

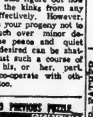
Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) Care in speech is of prime importance to your welfare today and it is also wise to hold on to whatever money you have well-hand. Errors in statements must not occur either. Be sure you use tact with neighbors and clerks in P.M.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) instead of floundering around in a sea of confusion with regard to finances, sit down and go over your books and get budget in order. You will then be able to take the right steps and also cut down on unnecessary expenditures.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Your mind is off on one of its worry tangents today, so be sure you get busy working on some constructive tasks and avoid the blues or getting into trouble with kids and scoundrels.

Scorpio (Oct. 22 to Nov. 21) If you permit others to impose on you and then lament your fate, you will get nowhere. Put them in their place instead of an objective and constructive way. Then get busy studying ways and means to get ahead faster, Work.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22. to Dec. 21) If a good pal is unable to assist you with your problems today, realize that others have worries, too, and do not become peevish or angry. Learn to stand on your own two feet or at least look at things objectively. Grow.



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure to act circumspectly today so that your reputation will not be jeopardized, especially within your immediate community. Take care you do not go to places where the public frowns and trouble could start. Stay at home.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't follow that temptation to start out on some wild goose chase that will lead you nowhere. Becoming more efficient in your present set-up is far more wise. Seek out new methods and information that can be very helpful.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) If you follow your intuition which causes you to act rather strangely, you will get in Dutch with a higher-up, and likewise in the evening with loved one. Remain calm, cool and collected and follow known paths and methods. Take something for your nerves.

If your child is born today .. be, or shr, will be one of those fascinating people who has a penchant for neatness and order yet can also figure out how to remove the kinks from any project effectively. However, early teach your progeny not to fuss so much over minor details or the peace and quiet that is so desired can be shattered by just such a course of action on his, or her, part. Teach to cooperate with others early, too.

Astrological Forecast

GENERAL TENDENCIES:—Until noon you find delays and poor judgment are apt to exist so that it is then unwise to force issues or to take chances. However, the P.M. brings to light all kind of interesting and unusual ways by which you can utilize your innate resourcefulness. Imaginative qualities to produce the results that are vital to your advancement. Work.

Aries (Starts 21 to April 19) Mercury rules the organized things as you most prefer them for the future. Thus, be very practical in the handling of property, money, insurance matters, payments, collections, etc. Don't spend more than you can afford.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) A.M. is best time to complete any duties that require the cooperation of fellow workers, or are governed by others. Afternoon and evening are then best for conferring with associates and worthwhile contacts and cherished goals.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Improve your appearance in A.M. and then show interest in the problems of others, whether of a personal or business nature, and assist in solving them. Handle own affairs later in objective and positive way. Retire early.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) Your best hours in the morning to see what must be done to remove disharmony at home. Gentility and refinement work wonders. Later is fine for fun, higher things in life and having a wonderful time in general with congenials. Play.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get reports in order during A.M. and see that there are no mistakes. Evening is time to clear up any troubles. Also, be thoughtful of the needs of others with their problems and bring greater harmony within the home. Be active.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Monetary matters are apt to cause a pain in the neck during A.M. Don't let them bowl you over; but seek advice from those who Relax in the evening with good friends. Favorite pastimes.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) Be sure you handle those personal affairs quietly and tactfully in A.M. Be considerate of the needs for whatever material concerns you have and getting expert advice that brings desired results.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) You are much concerned about your home life and are apt to vent your ire on others when it is you who have erred. Think before you act. Then make the proper adjustments. Then carry on more dynamically.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) Morning and afternoon right with good friends because you feel that you have neglected them or realize that you have problems of their own. Be kind. Pick up a hobby and enjoy cultural pursuits, the theatre.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be very careful you do nothing that can cause loss from your good name during A.M. Be considerate on handling public or civic matters now. The evening is then ideal for entertaining at home or the company of good friends.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are tempted to make some radical changes this morning, but this is not the time to put them all. However, later you can consult with influential persons and get the encouragement and backing you need for current or future projects.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Many delicate situations arise this morning which require you to write to postpone taking action on matters or to call on them. Afternoon to find the right solution. Evening will then be free from worry as you enjoy some inexpensive pleasures.

If lead pencil is worn today it is important that you shield your progeny from any unintelligent illness as their mental sensitivity is extreme and the body correspondingly frail. However, the ability to learn is great and a fine education should be provided early. See that it is well planned and diversified; since the child will be all the more active one and most productive. Fine success here.

Mother of Two Sent for Trial

BARRIE (CP)—An eighteen-year-old mother of two, Mrs. Anne Crawford, was committed Friday for trial on a charge of murder charge after a boarder at her home told a preliminary hearing of a fatal beating of her husband, Sept. 25.

Harold Jack, 18, who had lived in the Crawford home since August, said he returned through the kitchen door and saw Mrs. Crawford, 26, after drinking in downtown Barrie, hit Lindsay Crawford, 24, went indoors while he remained talking with a neighbor.

"I heard a scream of 'help me, Doris' said Doris, "but Mrs. Crawford refused to get it ready."

A minute or two later, Doris said, Crawford stumbled through the doorway saying: "Take me to hospital. She stabbed me."

Pathologist G. A. Colpitts testified Crawford suffered a seven-inch-deep wound in his chest.

DESERONTO

Water Situation Fully Discussed By Members

DESERONTO — The local water situation came in for considerable discussion at the regular council meeting on Monday night. The mayor introduced the subject in view of the condition of the water being pumped from the Bay. Some of the council thought that an investigation should be made at the center on the North side of the Foresters Island and see if the town could not be supplied from that area. Apparently the possibility of wells has been dismissed as too costly.

Following this the council asked the mayor regarding the failure of water on Monday night shortly before the council met. Several complaints had been received from ratepayers that there was no water in the mains. After several viewpoints had been aired council passed a motion that the clerk write the Public Utilities Commission regarding the low water pressure on October 2nd, and ask for a suggestion for improving conditions.

Only one letter was received and that was from the watchtec Brennan seeking permission to build bingo games in their recreation rooms over the firehall. Permission was granted.

The streets committee were given permission to remove two trees and the Hydro Electric Authority was also granted them to purchase 130 feet of sewer to relieve the drainage problem at camp Sunnineside. The costs of $65 each are to be returned to two residents who made the deposit for connecting their draing to the street drain but could not because of the difference in levels.

The street committee are also to investigate the purchase of a blade for the town truck for snow-plowing this winter and report to the next meeting.

Council adjourned about nine-thirty.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Victim of Jokes

DEAR DORIS:—At 18 my boy is in a class where the average age is 14, both boys and girls. He is good at his school work but poor at sports and does not mix well.

I guess this is the reason that the older boys pick on him. He is fat and clumsy of practical jokes and is sometimes made the scapegoat for mischief makers. He comes home broken hearted but complains by letter about what to do. How can I help him?—CANADIAN MOTHER.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR CANADIAN MOTHER:—How can Twelve out-guess Fourteen? He's mentally superior, but he's socially behind his classmates—a double handicap to winning friendship.

You can help his social development by encouraging him to get his nose out of books some of the time and into a hobby or physical activity with other boys. By joining Boy Scouts, for instance, or the "Y". Encourage him to make one school chum and invite him home to dinner. And keep on doing it. Time helps.

I daresay the boys at school won't scorn his help at exam time. He will come into his own later.

(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster universities, and has had broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

Albury

ALBURY — Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hiltz gabled on Mrs. Roy Williamson on a recent Sunday evening.

Mrs. Beckerseville W.I. met at Beckerseville, on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Earl MacGillvray, Mrs. S. C. Peck accompanied Mrs. Sanford Peck to Tweed, on Thursday evening to attend Tweed O.E.S.

Sorry to report Miss Hattie Peck not feeling so well. She is in Bickerseville hospital with her a speedy recovery.

A number attended the banquet of the North Shore Boys Star Hall. The Quinte 50 ball team, held in Belleville O.E.S. ladies served the delicious turkey dinner on Saturday evening.

A number attended church service at Albury church on Sunday morning with the Rev. J. Irwin in charge of the communion. The choir rendered the special music.

Mrs. Roy Williamson accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Smith Brown to Victoria Church on Sunday afternoon for memorial service put on by Salvation Army.

School Shelter Costs Would Be Staggering

OTTAWA (CP) — The public school board was thunderstruck last night of the "absolutely staggering" cost of protecting Ottawa's children in the event of a disaster from nuclear attack.

Chairman Harry Hill pointed out studies of a report made show we are not disregarding the threat or possibility of war."

Mr. Hill estimated it would cost $30,000 each for shelters in the 25 public schools that have basements. Forty - nine other schools don't even have basements and it would cost much more to provide shelters for those schools.

It would cost $3,100 to provide food for 300 students for two weeks at a cost of 24,473 public school children.

Mrs. Roy Williamson accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Smith Brown to Victoria Church on Sunday afternoon for memorial service put on by Salvation Army.

Castro Regime Says U.S. Trains Invasion Forces

Diplomatic Corps Told New Assault in Making

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro's regime accused the United States Monday night of training invasion forces at 20 U.S. bases and nine Caribbean points for another assault on Cuba, shortly. It said the forces included paratroops and were stronger than those cut down in the abortive landings last April.

Foreign Minister Raul Roa Garcia Olivares called in the diplomatic corps here to preside charges in a 1,600-word note. He claimed the invasion training network stretched from Guatemala-Nicaragua to the Panama Canal Zone.

He contended that 500 paratroopers were among the forces being trained in Panama.

Olivares presented the note in behalf of Central American governments were involved and Latin the United States also was setting the stage for invasion by forcing Cuba into ruining relations between Cuba and the other Governments through the use of forged documents.

MOST ARE OLD

The Cuban note apparently was the basis for Castro's speech Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa Garcia in the UN General Assembly in New York this afternoon. Except for the charges and countercharges of missiles, most of the charges had been made by Castro and his spokesman in previous months. Cuba also has submitted a complaint to the UN Monday charging the United States is planning aggression against the Castro regime.

Olivares' charges drew no immediate reaction from the U.S. state department.

Olivares assembled the 32 foreign envoys before maps of the United States and the Caribbean area on which he pointed out the alleged training sites.

He included in Florida locations as West Palm Beach, Pompano, Fort Lauderdale, Opalocka, Miami, Hialeah, Homestead, Tavernier, Islamorada, Key Largo, Marathon Key, Big Pine, Key West, St. Petersburg, Sarasota and Dry Tortugas.

Olivares claimed other training centers in the United States were at Fort Worth, Texas; Pueblo, Va.; Fort Bragg, N.C., and New York.

He asserted that one of the biggest training centres is at Vieques, an island 8 miles east of the Puerto Rican mainland. He said anti-Castro Cubans and much supplementary equipment are being massed at the U.S. naval base on Guantanamo Bay.

Iam Macleod, Colonial Secretary, Gave Independence to 45 Million

LONDON (Reuters) — Iain Macleod, who is leaving his post as colonial secretary, is only two years organized independence for 45,000,000 people.

The 52-year-old Scottish Highlander has been the storm centre of a political crisis springing from the Conservative party's "wind of change" policy of speeding colonial dependencies to the status of sovereign nationhood.

In the process he has been violently assailed by spokesmen of the white populations in Kenya and central Africa for "selling the white man down the river."

Contrary to what has been loudly praised by many African nations as a step in the right direction, demands for an end to white supremacy and quick transfer of power.

Macleod's political rise has been meteoric. He has been regarded as prime minister material before by many political observers.

Only two years after entering Parliament in 1950, he was appointed minister of health. Three years later he became labor minister and showed his talents for negotiating settlements in a series of industrial disputes.

In October, 1959, he took on the tough job of colonial secretary and within two years independence was given to Nigeria, Sierra Leone, British Somaliland protectorate, Sierra Leone and the Northern and Southern Cameroons.

Tanganyika will achieve the same status in December, while leaders, British Guiana, Nyasaland, Northern Rhodesia, Mauritius, Gambia, Zanzibar and Aden.

Macleod's successor, 44-year-old Reginald Maudling, has been described by British newspapers as "the most likely man of his generation to become prime minister."

His rise in the ranks of the Conservative party has been such he entered politics as the first of a group of talented young men to join the government department after the Second World War.

For several years he was the party's policy drafter on economic affairs, then secretary of Parliament in 1950.

In April, 1955, he received his first full ministerial appointment as supply minister, and when Harold Macmillan formed his government in January, 1957, he became paymaster-general.

He became president of the British Board of Trade in October, 1959.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY OF ONT. ESTABLISHED

MacDonald Leader Of Ont. Group

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A political wedding of trade unionists, CCF supporters, New Party Club members and some leading farm figures was held here during the weekend with the establishment of the New Democratic Party of Ontario.

More than 1,000 delegates were sent back to their districts with urgings from Saskatchewan Premier T. C. Douglas, federal NDP leader, and Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario labor-farm relief leader, to campaign hard for new members.

Mr. MacDonald, 46, who had been leader of the Ontario CCF party since 1953, was elected by acclamation.

He told the convention his election was automatic and a symbol of Central American governments were involved and that the United States also was setting the stage for invasion by forcing Cuba into ruining relations between Cuba and the other Governments through the use of forged documents.

Gromyko Sees Possibility of Berlin Accord

LONDON (Reuters) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko flew here today for talks with British government leaders and said there is "a possibility" of a peaceful settlement of the East-West crisis over Berlin and Germany.

Gromyko, flying home to Moscow after talks with President Kennedy last Friday in Washington, stopped off here for 24 hours for a meeting with Prime Minister Macmillan and Foreign Secretary Earl Home.

The Soviet foreign minister said that although a peaceful settlement is possible 'not everything is dependent on the Soviet Union."

"All powers, first of all the governments of the great powers and those of Europe, should do everything to avert the danger of settling differences by cold reporters at the airport.

"They must do everything," he emphasized.

Gromyko said he felt President Kennedy "realizes that Germany—we call it the question of the German peace treaty—is the most important and acute at present.

"HE AGREES"

"My definite opinion is that he agrees with this.

"Our conversations were not conclusive. It is difficult indeed to find anybody who could say 'Well, I know how the situation will develop.'"

Gromyko said that sometimes he felt Kennedy proposed to transform West Berlin into a "free city" was not properly understood in the West.

"... But everybody must understand it correctly," he said. "It is an independent entity with a proper guarantee. One of the guarantees will be by the Soviet Union."

Lana Turner Pays $20,000 To Victim's Son

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A settlement was approved Monday under which Actress Lana Turner will pay $20,000 to the 15-year-old son of Johnny Stompanato, who was slain in her house.

Stompanato was stabbed to death in the actress' Beverly Hills home April 4, 1958, by Miss Turner's daughter, Cheryl Crane, now 17. The girl told authorities Stompanato had threatened her mother, and a coroner's jury termed it justifiable homicide.

Stompanato's divorced wife, Sara Stompanato of Hannibal, Mo., filed a civil action against Miss Turner and her former husband, Stompanato, for $750,000. She claimed negligence caused the death and described Stompanato's son, John III, of support.

In approving the settlement, Superior Judge Burnett Wollson told Miss Turner's lawyer, Louis C. Blau:

"I don't want to tell you how to run your case. But I've been on the I would have made it $1,000 more or decrease it to a person as Johnny Stompanato III before I parted with $20,000."

The boy's mother has been satisfied Stompanato did leave a son.

Dutch Police, Red Diplomats Stage Brisk Airport Brawl

AMSTERDAM (AP) — A defecting Russian chemist and his wife separated perhaps forever Monday night after a war of words and blows involving Dutch airport police, the Soviet Ambassador to The Netherlands and Dutch Premier Jan de Quay.

Mrs. Alexei Gokub flew home to Moscow, leaving her husband under Dutch protective custody.

Gokub, 35, and his wife—Dutch public prosecutor, J. G. de Zaaijer called it a human tragedy.

In the presence of the Soviet ambassador and of the public prosecutor, Mrs. Gokub told her husband she had to think of her parents at home in Russia and was leaving without him. The couple have no children.

De Zaaijer said he was convinced the woman had not been coerced.

The Gokubs arrived last week with a party of Russian tourists. The husband, a balding, broad-shouldered man, was taken into custody after he walked out of their hotel Saturday between Gokub, 35, and his

120 Sleeping Students Routed By 2-Alarm Fire

QUEBEC (CP) — A 2-alarm fire destroyed a wing of L'Academie de Quebec early Monday routing 120 sleeping students and forcing the evacuation from their beds. There were no injuries.

The students, aged 17 to 32, filed calmly out of the four-floor building and were lodged in the city hall across the street.

The academy, operated by Christian Brothers of Ireland, is to move to a new building in suburban Ste. Foy next year.

Fire officials said the cause of the fire, believed caused by a short in the wiring, completely wrecked the top two floors.

Fire Chief Marcial Gagnon said estimate although one brother said it could reach $1,000,000.

BROCKVILLE POST OFFICE ROBBED, $33,000 TAKEN

Number of Suspects Now Being Sought

BROCKVILLE (CP) — More than $33,000 in bonds, stamps, cash and registered mail were stolen Sunday from the Brockville post office safe in what police say appeared to be the work of experienced thieves.

The theft was discovered Monday by a postal clerk when he reported to work. The building had been broken into at a second-storey fire escape door and the safe opened with a drill. Two doors were jimmied by the thieves in gaining access to the main post office room.

Police Chief W. F. Young said "Detectives from all over the province worked all day in an effort to determine the exact loss, but it was estimated at $33,000 in Canada Savings Bonds, $5,000 in stamps and $500 in cash. Bonds were also taken. An undetermined quantity of registered mail was missing.

Young said a number of suspects were being sought for questioning.

Clerk Robert Croft noticed a large bulge in the man's pocket when he collected mail at the desk. He thought a gun. Police believe Croft may have frightened away the safecrackers because $200 in cash was left in full view on the safe floor.

Common Market Countries Told British Views

Stress Need to Protect Commonwealth Lands

CP from AP-Reuters

PARIS — Britain told the six Common Market countries today that she fully shares their aims and objectives, but would like to have guarantees for the Commonwealth countries before joining the customs union.

Edward Heath, lord privy seal, outlined the British position to ministers from the Common Market states in a two-hour address at the French foreign ministry.

The meeting was convened to discuss procedural questions prior to formal negotiations in Brussels, Belgium, in November on Britain's application to join the Common Market.

An outline of Heath's remarks released by the British delegation said that "the United Kingdom shares the objectives of this Community" (Common Market) and wished to join in the bold and imaginative ventures of the six, but to help in a partnership through the European economic community for the best possible measure of European unity.

"The United Kingdom application has been made in a positive spirit."

Lawyer Charges Medicine Locked In Cupboard

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal lawyer said today Marcel Lemieux, 35, died in a Montreal hospital last week because medicine he needed for a heart condition had been taken from him and locked in a cupboard.

Raymond Daoust told Attorney-General Kelso Roberts of Ontario should investigate apparent negligence that contributed to the death.

Mr. Daoust, one of three defence lawyers acting for the accused in a murder trial, refused to the press that Lemieux's death was "just another one" and he him never to be without nitroglycerine pills in case of a heart attack. Lemieux was charged with George Wilson, suffered from angina, has not been recovered.

"On the eve of his death, I talked to Lemieux who complained of pains in his chest. He asked the jailer or the prison doctor for medicine from his reach in a locked cupboard.

"I was going to protest about this to Attorney-General Roberts of the sudden death of Lemieux.

Mr. Daoust said Lemieux was stricken with an attack shortly after breakfast and died on the jail guards jo bring him his medicine.

"No one around the jail had the key to the cupboard containing the medicine. Lemieux died a few minutes later," the lawyer said.

By the time the cupboard fi. nally was opened, Lemieux was dead.

"I feel that a complete and thorough investigation should be held into all aspects of this tragedy," Mr. Daoust said in his statement.

Earl of Snowdon Title Belongs To Prince of Wales Says Vicar

LONDON (AP) — A Welsh clergyman hinted today that Antony Armstrong - Jones will be taken one of Prince Charles' titles.

"The title of Earl of Snowdon belongs by ancient and honorable right to the Prince of Wales," said Rev. I. Michael Evans, Anglican vicar of Hendinas with Horswithy.

Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, was created Prince of Wales by his mother, Queen Elizabeth, in 1958. Last week the Queen made Armstrong - Jones Princess Margaret's husband an earl, and he chose the title Earl of Snowdon.

In a letter to The Daily Express, the churchman said the ancient princes of Wales had the Earl of Snowdon as one of their titles and that when 12-year-old Prince Charles was made it, said Hankinson.

Prince of Wales, he automatically became Earl of Snowdon.

"Loyalty of Welshmen supports my statements," said the vicar.

Britain's best known authority on such subjects disagreed.

"It is quite true that the old Welsh princes did use the title Earl of Snowdon, but Prince of Wales is an old, historic and proper title," said Cyril F. J. Hankinson, Garter King of Arms, a 39-page register of royalty, peers, baronets and knights.

The editor said that when the Queen conferred the title of Prince of Wales on her son, she did not specifically hand over the title Earl of Snowdon.

"Unless someone can show me that she did, the title Earl of Snowdon is safe with His Lordship (Tony) who now has it," he said.

Bill Hitchcock New Manager At Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bill Hitchcock, manager of Vancouver in the Pacific Coast League last season, was named officially today to manage Baltimore Orioles of the International League for the next baseball season.

Appointment of the 43-year-old Alabaman to his first major league managing job was confirmed by Lee MacPhail, Orioles president.

44 Juveniles Held by Police Over Weekend

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police arrested 44 juveniles during the weekend on charges ranging from theft to auto theft.

In one 24-hour period police made 26 juvenile arrests compared to 13 adult arrests.

Four boys, from 10 to 12 years of age, were charged with arson Sunday following a $14,000 fire in a bedding factory. They said the boys set fire to a plastic container while playing further under a loading platform. Fire firefighters worked 25 minutes before the fire was brought under control.

Nine boys from 8 to 15 were charged with breaking into an east end school and 11 boys from 9 to 13 were charged with a series of September breakins in west end stores, homes and churches.

Further information on the courses, which are open to non-members of the "Y" as well as members, is available at the local "Y".

Minor Accidents Only Despite Heavy Traffic

The Ontario Provincial Police reported only a few minor accidents over the weekend despite the heavy traffic, and no fatalities in the Quinte district.

Briefly, around midnight, at the interchange of Highway 401 and the Shannonville overpass, Bradley Lee, 20, Dundas St. east, Belleville, proceeding north on the Shannonville overpass, was attempting to make a left hand turn to proceed west when his vehicle struck a curb and rolled over. Ontario Provincial Police said Bradley was unhurt and damage was estimated at $80.

Three accidents were reported on Monday, the first occurring early Monday morning at the high gate to the RCAF station at Trenton. Police said a vehicle driven by Michael G. Jacks collided with the left end of a motor vehicle driven by Wallie Boeskens, 124 Mill St. Stirling. There was minor damage and no injuries were reported.

A four-car collision occurred Monday afternoon at the intersection of Highway 2 and 302 near Marysville. Police said three cars had stopped and a fourth vehicle collided with the rear end of the car ahead of him causing a chain reaction of rear-end collisions.

The cars were driven by Russell Waite, King St., Grenville Que.; George Tanaka, 31 Crest view Rd., Toronto; John Coffee, 19 Winchester Ave., Montreal. The fourth vehicle was driven by Robert Merric, R.R. No. 2, Stirling. Ontario Provincial Police said traffic was extremely heavy at the time of the accident.

A passenger in the Coffee vehicle, Miss Clara Nosworthy, 17, received injuries to her elbow. Damage to the cars was not estimated.

The Walbridge Rd. and Highway 401 appears to be a bad luck spot on Highway 401. An accident which took place there on Friday night, sent five persons to hospital and two cars were involved in an accident at the intersection Monday evening.

Police said a car driven by John R. Hall, R.R. 1 Frankford, south bound on the Wallbridge Rd., failed to see a westbound vehicle driven by Stanley Waddington of Wallens St., Napanee.

Regan was said to have pulled into the westbound lane in front of the Waddington vehicle, resulting in an accident.

There were no injuries and charges are pending.

FALL FRUIT

A noted fruit at Thanksgiving time is the Anjou pear, its greenish - yellow skin flecked with russet when ripe.

IN MEMORIAM

DOUGLAS. — In loving memory of our dear father, Harry Douglas, father, Clarence R. Douglas, who passed away October 9th, 1955, as the result of a car accident.

Two golden years are gone,
One year ago today;
Our farewell left unspoken,
You never stopped to say.
You went without a chance,
Your spirit did not bend;
You faced your pain with courage,
And fought the end.
You tried so hard to stay with us
But God was at the wheel,
God took you to His loving home,
He knew you'd had enough.
Dear Father, there's a silent tear,
A fervent wish unspoken,
That you were released, not sent,
But he was ours, we loved him so.
Sadly missed and remembered by daughter and son-in-law Shirley and Murray Scott and granddaughter Angela.

DOUGLAS — In loving memory of our dear son, Clarence Douglas, who passed away October 9th, 1955.

No morning dawns, no night, But that I think of you;
Those left behind are very good,
But none replaces you.
Many a silent tear is shed,
When I am all alone;
I look at your very much,
And wish I could be with you.
Sadly missed by loving wife Amelia.

WEIR — In loving memory of our daughter and sister, Ruth, who passed away on Oct. 11, 1958, and our father, Albert Weir, who passed away Feb. 3, 1960.

We who love you sadly miss you,
As it grieves our hearts to see
Your place at home forever empty,
Thoughts of you, are ever near.
—Always remembered by brothers Allan and Bessie, Gladys and Roy and grandchildren.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market fell on all fronts in moderate morning trading today.

The industrial list was led down by losses among steels, refining oils and utilities, with widespread fractional falls prevalent dominant.

In steels, Algoma, Atlas, Page Hersey and Steel Company of Canada all slipped in the 4 to ¾ range, while among utilities Bell Telephone, Calgary Power, CPR and International Utilities dropped as much as ¾.

Refining oils were weak on the basis of losses ranging to 75 cents going to BA, Alberta Gas Trunk A Imperial, Interprovincial and Texaco.

Imperial Six had the biggest individual gain, up $5 to $138, while US Ford rose 1¾ to a new high of 113¾ on a volume of 33 shares.

On index, industrials fell 1.42 to 386.75, base metals .03 to 261.40 and western oils .35 to 94.75. Golds rose .45 to 87.98 and the 11 a.m. volume was 748,000 shares compared with 847,000 at the same time Friday.

The senior base metals list was weak with Consolidated Mining and Smelting, Hudson Bay, Ventures and Noranda all off to ¾.

Gold trade was light with Hollinger ahead ¼.

In weak western oil trading, Dome dropped ½ and Pacific Petroleum ¼.

Trade to become colonial secretary.

Henry Brooke moves from the housing ministry to become chief secretary to the treasury and government leader. As such he will be a senior cabinet minister assisting Chancellor of the Exchequer Selwyn Lloyd.

Dr. Charles Hill succeeds Brooke. He also will continue to be responsible for co-ordination of government information services at home.

Frederick Erroll, formerly minister of state for the Board of Trade, joins the cabinet as president of Britain's equivalent of the trade department.

Erroll's old job goes to Sir Keith Joseph, previously parliamentary secretary for the housing ministry.

The Ear. of Dundee becomes minister of state for the foreign office.

Lord Mills relinquishes the paymaster-general's post to become minister without portfolio.

SEE DOWNGRADING

First reaction to the announcement of the major reshuffle was that it represents a big downgrading for Butler.

The London Evening Standard, however, feels Macleod's removal from the colonial office will be seen as a more serious check to a political career than Butler's giving up the chairmanship.

"As a realist, Macleod who wanted to run colonial affairs more than anything else at this stage will recognize this.

"He now has to go the way to 10 Downing Street—and he is much younger than most of the others in that race. For the moment his chances depend no longer on building up a reputation as a statesman, but on winning new kudos as a clever party manager."

Macleod had been under fire from the right wing of the party for assertedly adopting over-liberal policies towards Britain's African territories.

MAY SUSPECT

The Guardian says that as a result of the shift "Many people in Africa will suspect the government of being about to sell them to the Conservative reactionaries."

The Daily Mirror takes the same line, pointing to "a danger that Africans will interpret the moving of Mr. Macleod as a sign the government are switching away from his progressive ideas."

It calls on Maudling "to declare, at the earliest possible opportunity, that he fully intends to carry on Macleod's good work."

Thanksgiving Rally Is Held By St. Lawrence Auto Club

For the second time in three years, Les Rice of Montreal, formerly of Kingston, and a member of the St. Lawrence Automobile Club, drove a Peugeot 403 to win the eighth annual Thousand Islands Rally, according to provisional results. Rice's navigator was Robin Edwards of Montreal.

The rally, which had three starting points this year — Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto, covered some 600 miles of Ontario and Quebec roads, the major portion of the route being held north of the Belleville-Gananoque area. It started on Friday evening.

There were 31 competing vehicles which tried the course. After the Ingersoll Mills to Shar-bot Lake, where the common route began, the course led through Kingston Mills to Kingston, where an acceleration test was held. The 21 competitors then headed for Belleville, their breakfast stop, via Bath and Desoronto.

From Belleville the route headed north to Madoc and wound through Hazard's Corners, Plevna, Meyer's Cave, Deseglon, Blackdonnell Mines and over towards Calabogie, before heading south to the finish at Gananoque.

Of the 31 starters only four failed to finish the event. The lone Belleville entry of Wayne Read and Bob Frederick, in a Peugeot 403, reported that many of the competitors were hampered by a heavy fog encountered between the hours of 3.30 and 9.00 on the Saturday morning. This was the only adverse weather condition encountered.

MOTORALERS SECOND

Second in the overall rally results were Grant McLean and Bill Leathem of Montreal, who also won The Ontario Intelligencer Trophy as the best-placed press entry. It was Mr. McLean's first time to win the trophy, as a representative of the National Film Board, although his navigator, Mr. Leathem, had won it on one previous occasion when he was a member of the CBC-Montreal team.

In provisional third place was a pair of ardent rallyists, Terry Sumner and Art Van Dermeyden, of Toronto, who also won the Special Alpine Race Award and the large car class award. The Manufacturer's team entry went to the team from Volvo Canada Limited from Montreal, while the private team award was won by the Motorsport Club of Ottawa.

The provisional winners, Les Rice and Robin Edwards, also won the Kingston Mills test award and the class award for cars between 1,000 and 2,600 cubic centimeters piston capacity.

The up to 1,000 cc. class category was won by Helmut Teubler, formerly of Belleville and now of Toronto and the ladies' award went to Claire Stewart and Mary Clark of Toronto.

OTHER PRIZES

Following the road rally, which ended on Saturday evening, there was the annual driving skill test and concours d'elegance held on the Sunday. The Carlings' Trophy, awarded to the top exhibitor regardless of class, went again to Francis Walsh of Massena, N.Y., with his newly well prepared MG. "T.D." with which he also won the best concours car class. The best vintage car award in the show went to Dr. Stewart Pinchbeck of Kingston with his 1932 Auburn roadster.

Belleville's Dr. Robert Allore won the best non-rally car class with his Porsche coupe and the best rally car class was won by John Prescott of Ottawa with a Volvo sedan.

In the driving skill tests Larry Wood of Kingston won both his class the sports car class, and the Carlings' Trophy as top competitor overall, driving an M.G. 'A'. The small sedan class was won by Mr. McFarrine of Booneville, N.Y., and Mr. T. Pearce of Toronto was the compact car class. The large sedan class was won by B. Worthen of Ottawa.

Awards were presented at a dinner held in Gananoque on the Sunday evening. All of the results listed above are provisional, pending possible protests within the allotted 48-hour period.

Heavy Traffic Through Town Over Holiday

TRENTON — In spite of the increased flow of traffic through the town's main streets, Trenton was free from serious accidents over the Thanksgiving weekend.

Around 1 p.m. on Saturday Mrs. Emma Kelliher of Bay Street in Trenton, sustained facial cuts and bruises when the car in which she was riding struck a parked car on Henry Street. Driver of the car, Gerald Terry, of Carrying Place, and a passenger, Harold Fox, also of Carrying Place, escaped with a shaking up. Damage to the Terry car and the parked vehicle, owned by Angus Cameron, at Henry Street, was estimated at $550.

A dense fog was blamed for an accident which occurred after Brighton early Saturday morning. Patricia Hopper and Wilbert Hopper of Ottawa, were taken to Cobourg General Hospital after their late-model car went out of control on Highway 401, two miles west of Brighton No. 2. Mrs. Hopper was reported to be the driver of the car and damage to the car was estimated at $1,000.

A car owned by Keith Hodges of R.R. 6 Brighton, and stolen here the weekend, was reported recovered in Quebec City yesterday, and two youths and a teen-aged girl are being held in connection with the theft.

Town Officials Visit Kingston And Brockville

TRENTON — Trenton's stick-a-comproiler O. W. Larry, councilmen Douglas Jagnes and town engineer Eric Aldersey visited Brockville and Kingston today. The municipal authorities conferred with municipalcals in these communities, as part of a survey as to how community government is carried out in these centres.

SETS COURSE RECORD

On Sunday, during a friendly golf game at the Bay of Quinte Golf Club, Al Freeman RCAF pro, set a new record for the course of 68, beating the old record by one stroke. Playing with Mr. Freeman were Mike Sioboolan, pro at the Trenton Golf and Country Club and George Balazs, professional instructor at the Bay of Quinte club.

Obituary

MRS. HERBERT M. GARDNER

TRENTON — Friday, a service was held at the Weaver Funeral Home in Trenton for Mrs. Herbert M. (Dorothy) Gardner, 39 Guelph Street. Rev. K. F. Blachford conducted the service and the bearers were Richard Whitley, Edward English, Garfield Gilman, Del Topping, Cecil Marchand and D. Elliott. Interment was in Mount Evelyn Cemetery.

Mrs. Gardner died in Trenton Memorial Hospital last Wednesday following a short illness. She was 72.

Mrs. Gardner was born in England. She had lived in Toronto and Copper Cliff, Ont., before moving to the Trenton district eight years ago. She was a member of St. George's Anglican Church in Trenton and a member of the Women's Church Guild.

Mrs. Gardner was a popular member of the Trenton Senior Citizens' Club, having served as recording secretary.

She is survived by her husband, Herbert M. Gardner; three sons, Frederick Sheridan of Copper Cliff; Richard Sheridan of Sudbury and Phillip Sheridan of Richmond Hill. Also surviving are two step-sons, Arthur and Garnet Gardner of Port Credit, and six grandchildren.

Youth Fined In City Court

Bruce McGrimmon was fined $30 in city magistrate's court this morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of disturbing the peace and obtaining alcohol under the age of 21.

Inspector McLauchlan testified that constable D. Martin was called to a local theatre where a midnight show was in progress. A complaint was received citing noise in the balcony. As a result, one youth was arrested for consuming alcohol under age. About an hour later Constable Martin was called back to the theatre. The manager said the noise was so loud several people left. The inspector said the house lights were turned on at one time and the show interupted.

Inspector McLauchlan went on to say Bruce and Douglas McGrimmon were brought downstairs and asked to leave the theatre. He stated that Bruce McGrimmon was very belligerent and called the owner and the constable names.

Fire Prevention Parade Staged

TRENTON — On Sunday, children of Trenton lined the streets of Middlefield Park and downtown Trenton to watch the annual fire prevention parade sponsored by the RCAF and Trenton fire departments.

Equipment from all departments had been polished up for the occasion. Guides, Brownies, Scouts and Cubs marched proudly in the parade, carrying safety slogans and fire hazard warnings.

Smokey the fire safety dog waved gaily to the youngsters from his space ship.

"Old-time fighters" arrayed in shiny brass helmets, proudly pulled an ancient fire hose wagon through the streets.

A "fire victim" was driven along in the parade in an ambulance and another fire victim was carried on a stretcher by firemen.

This week, fire drills will be carried out in the town's schools and Fire Chief Cecil Ellis and his men will carry out an inspection of all commercial and industrial properties.

Today, Chief Ellis said that he wanted to thank all those who had contributed to the success of Sunday's parade and added that Fire Prevention Week would be a good time for local residents to check their homes for potential fire hazards.

Police Relations and Crime Rise

Canada's top law enforcement officer, Commissioner C. W. Harvison of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, recently issued a warning that "Canada has become a new and attractive target for syndicated crime."

Speaking at a convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police in Montreal, Commissioner Harvison stated that a crime syndicate does operate in this country, although there is not a crime czar in Canada, and that crime is increasing in Canada at a greater rate than in the United States. He termed this an "alarming rate" and noted that in one day a crime "can be planned in Montreal, carried out in Hamilton and the criminal can be in Vancouver by night."

Everywhere the story is the same: The patterns of crimes are becoming more involved and complicated. Criminals are becoming more organized and therefore more powerful."

What is the reason or cause for this? Commissioner Harvison lays part of the blame on the police themselves. They have fallen down in recent years, not so much on becoming competent in the mechanics of police work, although there is room for improvement here, but on earning and enjoying the support of the public. The latter matter is no small point either, in Commissioner Harvison's opinion.

"The question of public confidence is in my opinion the most important single question facing law enforcement officers . . . we will continue to lose the battle against criminals until such time as we have earned and enjoy the full support of the public," he said.

This point is one on which any and every police force, large and small, can take action. When the general public is made to feel that the police are working for its protection and not its persecution, it should become much more difficult for criminals to operate. It is only when the public begins to realize, and this can only be effected through the conscientious efforts of police at the local level, that a policeman is to be considered a friend and not a foe that such a happy situation will come about as exists in the United Kingdom.

There, in the majority of communities and districts, the policeman is viewed by most citizens as a just and fair-minded individual whose conduct will be beyond reproach and within the bounds of his duty at all times. It is not considered as sneaky or tattle-tale to give information to the police about something suspicious, either voluntarily or when asked.

It is this trust in the police which we believe Commissioner Harvison feels is lacking in the relationship between the general Canadian public and Canadian police forces, at least, in some areas.

A Socialist Blames the West

Mr. R. H. S. Crossman, one of Britain's best known socialist writers and MP, has come up with this intriguing idea that the West, rather than East Germany and the Soviet Union, is to blame for the Berlin crisis.

The real reason for the threatened Soviet crackdown on West Berlin, according to Mr. Crossman, is that it has become the centre of too much propaganda against socialism, too many demonstrations of economic warfare against East Germany. The barrage of propaganda, argues Mr. Crossman, has been undermining morale in East Germany. Private trade deals have disrupted the East German planned economy. Its finances have been thrown into a state of chaos by the black market in eastmarks. High salaries in West Berlin have drained off East Germany's abler scientists, engineers, doctors and other skilled workers.

Mr. Crossman's prescription for holding West Berlin is simplicity itself. All that is needed, he says, is "going slow on subversion, sabotage and psychological warfare."

Such reasoning may be convincing to the socialist mind. Thoughtful folk, however, are unlikely to be impressed. It is not "psychological warfare" by the West that has brought the Berlin situation to the boiling point. Rather, it is the reign of terror in East Germany itself, the abject failure of socialist totalitarian planned society, the despair of the victims of communism, and the human drive for freedom, that has brought things to the crisis that exists today.

IS HE CONVINCED?

I do not believe anyone ever started a war when he was convinced beforehand he would be destroyed. I cannot believe Khrushchev would start a nuclear war.—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Red Anti-Missile Missile

Montreal Gazette

No one knows when the Russians make statements, whether they are nothing but deceptions, or whether they might not contain a slight discloseure of the truth. A recent statement by Marshal S. S. Moskalenko is one of this mysterious kind. Marshal Moskalenko said that Russia could devastate an enemy with "invulnerable missiles to modern means of counteraction."

Not everyone in the West has been inclined to dismiss such a statement. It is not always possible that it relates to rapid progress Russia might be making in perfecting the anti-missile missile.

At the present time, there is no known defence against missiles. The only counter-action is the threat to use missiles in retaliation. But any action in these nuclear times that is able to end missiles, would also being able to shoot down missiles that might come in retaliation, would have gained one of the most drastic advantages of modern war. It may not "add up to nuclear blackmail" as Mr. Bevan suggest. But it would certainly place the Western world at an extremely anxious disadvantage.

The United States has recognized the importance of an anti-missile missile. Work on its Nike-Zeus has been going on for years. But the programme has been delayed by conflicts of opinion.

As matters stand now, no decision on producing the Nike-Zeus will be made until it has proved itself completely in tests over the Pacific in 1962. It is then considered will be another four years will pass, after the decision for production has been reached, before these anti-missiles will be in place somewhere within the United States.

This is a thorough, cautious programme. It is not merely what could be called a crash program. If Russia were to throw its resources into perfecting an anti-missile missile first, Russia would have won the striking power of the missile, with something like a shield against the missiles of retaliation.

What is involved here is not a new principle of defence from missiles. It is the power to hit back has always been critically necessary.

When the first missiles and the same question arose. The opposition to the battleship and warships then seemed to have made Britain hopelessly vulnerable. It was Winston Churchill and the prospect of a battle fleet propelled by oil that succeeded to bring about "a fearful diminution" of the degree of security Britain had enjoyed.

As one writer put it: "Steam power would enable an expedition to be launched overnight against us at any hour, and in almost any state of weather, without having to wait for a favorable breeze, and without the risk of being baffled midway by the coming on of a calm, as by anything up of an adverse wind."

But in this general apprehension, one Englishman struck a note of confidence. He was Sir Edward Creasy, professor of history at the University of London. Sir Edward Creasy suggested that England's defence against the menace created by steam would be to have warships propelled by steam.

Sir Edward Creasy asked: "The question is often propounded, What would have happened if Napoleon had possessed steamers to bring his troops from Boulogne to England?" But another question remains to be asked: What would have happened if the English had possessed a fleet of armed steamers, when the flotilla on its way?"

In 1859 work was begun on H.M.S. Warrior, the first of England's steamdriven, armorclad battleships. "Rifle at steel" proved as effective in defence as "wooden walls" had proved in the days of sail.

But what would have happened if there had not been a sound balance of military power. What if Napoleon, contemplating invasion of England, had been able to equip his troops with steam power, with England still had to depend on sail.

This is rather close to the present possibility that Russia might be first with the anti-missile missile.

Whatever the aim of Russia's program with the anti-missile missile, the year 1962 for the first completion of the test, with another four years for placing the Nike-Zeus in position, seems a nervously long interval.

Why Modest Ol' Syd Is a Good Emcee

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend recently asked me to what I attribute as vast popularity as a toastmaster and chairman at banquets, meetings and social functions. "Is it charm, brilliance, humor, wit," he inquired, "or simply your overpowering presence and unrivaled knowledge of people?"

Tempted though I was to reply in the affirmative, a remnant of honesty in my soul called for supremacy and won. "None of these," I admitted. "Although I might with modesty lay claim to all these virtues, actually it is a vice of mine that has brought me unsurpassed success on the rostrum and before the microphone."

"And what is this vice?" he promptly asked.

"Lack of patience," I said. "Except where small children are concerned, I have the most impatient of men. Speeches bore me—including my own. I cannot tolerate long-winded introductions. I will not, as toastmaster, join the long, tedious two-minute response that drones on for ten minutes. I am highly allergic to sound without sense."

"How has this brought fame, fortune, and the most beautiful women in the Western world to your feet?" my friend pressed on.

"Easily," I waved. "American cars are being strangled by verbosity and affluence and inconsequence. They go to a dinner at seven, are through eating at eight, and then sit around until two and a half hours of stale smoke, alder cocktails, static oratory, and the prolonged introduction of everybody in the room except the waiters.

"When, some years ago, word leaked out that I was the most available — even at a staggering fee — toastmaster of massive impatience, I was not getting nothing better than to slice an hour from thirteen hours. In fifteen minutes, the bidding for my services became an indecent riotous. I had to call auditoriums flung themselves on my chest, nothing dislodged them. They backs clunched in both moist paws.

"There's a better lesson for moralizers in this," I continued, "for all my superficial virtues have merely nudged me closer to the precipice of bankruptcy, while my sinful vice of this raw edge of impatience — has been the only thing keeping me solvent.

"Were I suddenly to lose this, were I suddenly to become bland and tolerant of gaseous public speaking, my mortgage would be foreclosed in a month, my wee ones left homeless."

"I'll stop using deodorant," said my friend. "Let me tell you about my . . ." but I had already vanished. He was talking too much.

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

AN OLD TESTAMENT GOSPEL

The Book of Job is a closed book to many Bible readers. It is often a mystery to those who try to wade through it. Every one appreciates its poetic beauty. Many, however, do not catch its moral teaching.

Great trouble had come upon Job, his friends, following the opinion of their day, took the position that this trouble had come upon Job because he had committed some great sin. Job denied his guilt. The Book of Job is an attempt to answer the question: "Why do the righteous suffer?"

The book, as a matter of fact, does not answer the question which it poses. In the end, God, instead of answering Job's question, puts a number of searching questions to Job. God demands to know of Job how he can presume to question the wisdom and power of God. Man by his very nature can know little. How then can he justly criticize God or question divine providence?

The teaching which the Book of Job thrusts, as it were, into our hearts is that while most human suffering is the result of men's sins, there is some suffering which God permits to come upon us that our souls may be disciplined and our spiritual growth increased. Most trouble is the result of our own folly or sin. Some trouble is the means by which God encourages us to cast ourselves upon His mercy, to put everything in His hands, to trust Him.

The Book of Job is one of the Old Testament Books which has in it the spirit of the Christian gospel.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 10th, 1941

Apparently this is the season for large vegetables. Mr. J. Kenneth of Bloomfield recently produced a beet which weighed seven pounds and was 24½ inches in circumference.

A decline of 3 feet in the consumption of water in the municipality is seen in the fact that in 1910 the per capita figure was 141 gallons and in 1941 one hundred and fifty-four gallons. Thirty-six per cent of the water pumped is used for commercial and industrial purposes, and of this amount over two-thirds is used by the C.N.R. and seven other large consumers. The domestic consumption for 1940 is estimated at 1,180,000 gallons per day. The revenue of the system reached a total of $66,451 in 1931, declined to a low of $57,220 in 1935 and has increased steadily since that time. The revenue for 1941 will establish a new record. In 1934 the rates were reduced by 5 per cent and in 1938 by 10 per cent.

The surplus for 1940 is $18,-940 an increase over 1939 of approximately $3,500. Surplus for 1940 is expected to exceed $20,000. The increase of the storage at the pump-house to 1,200,000 gallons by the addition of a new reservoir, is necessary. The existing stand-pipe is well situated for high level storage, but, its effective capacity is very small for a city the size of Belleville. While it is fifty years old and its useful life nearing an end, either it must be repaired and maintained in good condition, or taken down. In 1940 there were 29.74 miles in the mains distribution system of the waterworks; mains are well provided with gate valves, but as most of them have been in service for many years, the policy of checking valves should be continued.

Are Two Different Tests Which Can Reveal Diabetes

By Joseph C. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Would you explain when 'suspected diabetes' passes into the category of known diabetes? Can they verify the period during which this takes place? — C. F."

If you mean, can tests tell in advance when (or if) a suspected case will turn into a known case, or confirmed case, the answer is no. Some fairly shrewd guessing sometimes proves to be correct, but even good guessing isn't dependable.

However, once the dividing line has been passed, it is possible to determine the fact definitely.

A suspected diabetic is a person who may have abnormal sugar in the urine, and occasional periods when the concentration of blood sugar is elevated.

It becomes a known case when sugar is present regularly in the urine and — this is important — the blood sugar level does not return to the normal fasting level within 2 or 3½ hours. Indeed, the second test is more important than the first, because the real danger in diabetes lies in the body's inability to use up or get rid of excess blood sugar.

This may be getting a bit complicated, but it is significant. Let's be sure that the point is clear. Then, by proper food, proper diet and medication — whether insulin, diabetes pills or both — the case is brought into balance so that no more sugar is taken into the system than can be disposed of. The patient may even eat foods normally without sugar showing in the urine. That's fine! The diabetic is under control. But it does NOT mean that it is "cured." The condition is there, ready to cause trouble if ever we are careless enough to stop taking the necessary precautions.

There is still a third term to keep in mind. That is "potential diabetic," who may not yet be a "suspected diabetic" — although he has in him the seeds of "potential" and "suspected" can often be so that this the difference vanishes.

Potential diabetics — people who are likely to develop diabetes — are marked by such signs as these: Those who under certain circumstances may have a showing of sugar in the urine or an abnormal sugar tolerance test, such as obese persons; those with a strong family history of diabetes; some women have large babies, by which I mean over 8 or 9½ pounds.

The "certain conditions" under which sugar may appear include situations involving stress, as with the use of cortisone, during surgery, or severe infection. Afterward the sugar may return to normal. All the same, these individuals may properly be regarded as potential or suspected diabetics, since there is a relatively strong chance that some of them will develop diabetes later on.

The term, "known diabetic," has another connotation. We use it to signify people who cases have been definitely identified, as opposed to the million, or perhaps even two million people who have diabetes but don't yet know it. Every year, during the diabetes campaigns, we find thousands.

THE LIBRARY OF MEMORY

No matter what you think about, that thought always touches some chord of memory already nestles in the library of your memory.

Mental growth is an accumulation. Images, experiences and impressions that have made a deep impression, find room in the brain. And the bigger library you create, the less lonely you will be, the more softly the passions of earlier life. The compensation is the richness of spirit through experience.

A drive through some beautiful countryside, an hour of meditation at the edge of the ocean, the lights of the city below as viewed from the windows of a towering New York City skyscraper, an evening with prized books, alone in some strange place dining — these things recall to your memory happy times you have shared with someone else.

In this library of memory you will have a place for the choice memories of your lifetime, a few of those whom you especially love, and then there will be shelved filled with the gatherings of the years. You will go to this library often, alone or with most alone and when you desire most to rise above the commonplace and the ordinary.

And when this earth presents to you some of its more unpleasant sidelights, you will remember that in its beautiful presentation, all did not fall on the shoulders.

When winter's bleak and chilly air wraps the earth in its snowy and somber garments, it is essential and a heartening glance out of the window and see in that favorite corner, where you have bathed the hill, the remembered beauty of a happy bed.

You may be richer than the richest, merely through the possession of a vast library of memories.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

At a tea party, a young woman astonished me, referring to a man I know very well, by saying he didn't like dogs.

"He seems like a very decent sort of fellow," she said, "but he doesn't like dogs. That puts him out for me."

Now I know very well that the man in question likes dogs very much, has always owned a dog in the house and has a home in some Black Labrador retrievers which he and some companions train and hunt.

A few minutes later at the tea party, I was chatting with another guest who is a friend of the young woman; and I mentioned casually that she seemed like a very nice girl.

"Well," said the friend, "she's very fond of that small of a terrier she has, the worst dog you ever saw. Barks like a lunatic all the time, jumps up all over you when you visit, tries to be the life of the party, and doesn't mind bed of a dog I know."

"Ah," said I.

ARGUES AGAINST

He disputed the Canadian view that "collective responsibility" of all UN members is a cardinal principle of peace-keeping operations.

Canadian alternate delegate J. R. Price of Montreal, addressing the committee before Rosehchin, said the principle of collective responsibility is clearly spelled out in the UN charter.

Reiterating that the UN is facing financial disaster by the refusal of the nine-nation Soviet bloc and some other countries to pay their assessments, Price declared:

"For the privileges we derive from this organization we must also assume the obligations of membership. My delegation will be motivated by this overriding consideration in all its work here: The collective character of our organization requires that we undertake to abide by the decisions of the appropriate majority stipulated in the charter for approving financial measures."

Bruce Turner, UN controller, estimated last week that the world organization will be $80,000,000 in debt by next June.

Rosehchin termed the UN's eagerness in The Congo illegal because they were not first approved by the Security Council where Russia has a veto. For this and other reasons the Communist countries have refused to pay their assessment of The Congo's expenses.

The Communist conflicts are along with Arab and Latin-American countries—have also shied away from costs of the United Nations Emergency Force in the Middle East.

Rosehchin departed from his prepared text to discuss the Canadian interpretation but developed a large part of his speech as an attack on the Communist demands for a troika secretary-generalship, with representatives of communism, neutralism and the west.

In another development however, U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson said reporters after a meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Monday night some progress has been made on the question of finding an interim secretary-general.

Most prominently mentioned for the post in recent days has been Burma's Ambassador U Thant, said to be acceptable to both the U.S. and Russia.

Two Men Die As Two Freight Trains Collide

GANORA, Sask. (CP) — One M - car CNR freight train plowed into the rear of a second freight loaded with grain standing in the yards in this rail centre in eastern Saskatchewan Saturday night and minutes later a passenger train ploughed into the wreckage and its flames.

Two men died and a third was injured.

The dead were identified as David E. Yow, about 45, the engineer of the first train and his fireman, Francis O. Wright, about 32, both of Kamsack, Sask.

Twenty freight cars were demolished. The wreckage was piled at least four cars deep. Then leaking diesel fuel caught fire and flames leaped through the wreckage. It burned through the night.

Driver Charged After Accident

Glen Harold Parks, 24, Plainfield, has been charged with careless driving as the result of a two-car collision on Saturday.

Provincial police Parks was proceeding north on the Canniffon Road and after rounding what is known as a "notable" curve, veered across the highway and collided with a vehicle proceeding south, driven by Norman R. Mosclow of Birds Creek, Ont.

Both Parks' vehicle continued west over the river bank and plunged 18 feet to the river bed which was dry in this area. Parks was taken to the hospital in the police cruiser where he is suffering from possible internal injuries. Dr. J. Hart attended the scene of the accident.

Passengers in the south-bound vehicle were Doris Laffman of Tweed, Gerald Reynolds, R.R. 1 Corbyville; Richard Downing, Calumet, Que., and Silas Woodcock, 5 West St., Belleville. No injuries were reported.

Damage to the truck, owned by Francis and Evelyn Shannon of Plainfield, driven by Parks, was estimated at $1,200. Damage was slight to the other vehicle involved.

day night and announced he had bought asylum in the West. Police withheld his reasons, presumably to protect any relatives in Russia.

Monday's arguments resulted in Dutch police to make certain the woman was returning home of her own free will.

She appeared at Amsterdam airport Monday morning with Ambassador Ponomarenko and a group of Russians ready to leave for Moscow.

Mrs. Golub had no passport, her husband having turned it in to the Dutch police. The Russian officials stormed into the airport police headquarters and demanded the passport. Dutch police officer Frits Vellinga refused until he could talk with Mrs. Golub alone.

Fighting broke out between the Dutchmen and the Russians. Ponomarenko was heard shouting, "You are under the ambassador? We are Soviet officials."

Vellman emerged with a bloody hand and one Soviet attache had a bruised face. The ambassador showed reporters a button he said was torn from his raincoat.

Ponomarenko protested that Mrs. Golub's police "did not refrain from using physical action against (Soviet) Embassy personnel including the ambassador."

Farm Income Sets Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Farm cash income in the first half of this year rose to a record $1,230,000,000, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The total is four - per - cent higher than the estimated $1,276,000,000 in the first six months of 1960 and is one-cent more than the previous record of $1,218,600,000 set in 1959.

The DBS estimates include not only receipts from the sale of farm products but also wheat board participation payments, advances on harvested grain on the Prairies, and government deficiency payments.

Phil Stone Will Be Speaker

Guest speaker at the annual meeting of Quinte Branch Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society at Tabernacle United Church, 6.30 next Thursday will be Phil Stone, executive vice-president of radio station CHUM, Toronto, is also the station's public service and live talent director. Exceedingly active in community and welfare field, Mr. Stone serves on some 30 committees.

Mr. Stone has been with CHUM for some 13 years add has been featured, as a freelancer, on both the CBC-Radio and CBC-TV networks. Prior to his broadcasting career he was a newspaper and magazine writer and editor. With CHUM he has a live broadcasting personality for over 10 years but is now fully engaged in administrative work.

Engineers Will Form Chapter

This Thursday evening one of the first two local chapters of the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario will get it' start as an estimated 125 district professional engineers gather at the Sirbie Arms to discuss the establishment of a Quinte chapter of the association.

A provisional executive has been chosen to conduct business during the formation stage of the proposed chapter, which is to include that territory bounded on the west by Bright, on the north by Bancroft, the east by Deseronto and on the south by Picton.

There are an estimated 130 to 135 professional engineers in this area, interim vice-president Malcolm Turnbull said this morning, and it is the feeling of the Ontario Association that they will be better served through the provision of local chapters. It is to this desire for closer contact with the members that the Quinte chapter is being formed.

The guest speaker for the occasion will be Mr. G. Simmons of the Association of Professional Engineers from Toronto. The meeting will commence at 7.30 p.m.

and heated, would end with one last battle. A constitutional resolution that would give affiliated members the same voting rights at constituency meetings as attending conventions as full party members caused the trouble.

VOTE IN FAVOR

Despite arguments that all New Democrats should be signed up on the same basis, the majority of delegates voted in favor of the resolution.

An affiliated member is one who pays 60 cents a year to the party through his local union. If he wants to be a full member he must pay an additional $1.90, which adds up to the general membership of $2.50 a year.

Earlier, trade unionists and old-guard CCF-ers fought over the constitutional problem of elections.

The provincial council of the Ontario CCF urged that it be given the power to elect executive members, rather than have them elected by delegates to the convention.

The recommendation was opposed by the constitution committee, although it is supported by the federal New Democratic Party constitution. It was defeated and delegates elected, a time-consuming process.

BID FOR SUPPORT

The convention, at CCF conventions before it had been, was a time for candidates by Trade unionists and CCF-ers, but delegates made a special bid for new party support.

Among the "new deal" promises hammered into a draft program was farm policy calling for removal of "restrictive" measures in provincial compulsory marketing legislation and offering long-term credit to farmers.

Among approved draft policy was a resolution calling for new provincial labor legislation, a labor charter encouraging trade unionism and collective bargaining, and a minimum wage of $1.25 an hour.

Another resolution endorsed the federal New Democratic Party's opposition to nuclear weapons on Canadian soil.

Officers named were:

Vice-presidents — Roy Battaglia, Windsor; Len Lavender, Glasgow Station; Dr. John Magner, Iona Sarnia and William Mahon, Toronto, secretary-treasurer—Peg Stewart, Toronto.

Named to provincial executive includes: Sam Bowman of Elora; Paul McRae, Rainy River; Ed Ziegler, Kenora and Thur Wood, Niagara Falls and Norman Richards, Port Arthur.

Hasty Pees' Annual Reunion Dedicated to Former Padre

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment wrote another page in its history at the regimental reunion ,success into the regimental archives over the holiday weekend.

Som 250-300 ex-members of the famous plow boy regiment from all parts of the country were here to reminisce, meet former buddies and pay tribute to those "who never came back."

Headquarters for the reunion was the Bridge Street armories where with the exception of the regimental banquet it get-together functions took place.

While former reunions always paid tribute to the memory of those of the, "Valle Battalion," who lie in foreign battlefields, the 1961 get-togeth. er had a special significance.

It was dedicated to the memory of the regiment's beloved padre Lieut. Col. J. Frederick Goforth, MC, CD who passed away in Brantford in May of this year.

Canon the Rev. A. S. McConnell, MBE, rector of St. Thomas' Church here and former chaplain of the regiment paid fine tribute to Padre Goforth's memory at the special Memorial service held Sunday.

Speaking to some 200 bemedalled, blazered veterans at the cenotaph service, Canon McConnell said, "he had a full strong love of the regiment and all its members . . . His going breaks a bond of personal friendship and loving admiration on the part of all of us."

"He gave himself fully and without any thought of personal danger for the men of the regiment no matter their rank. His sense of humor and full understanding of his duty as a chaplain brought out the best in the man — a straightforward approal to the better things of life."

IDEAL CHAPLAIN

Canon McConnell said "He was the ideal chaplain. He achieved more than most. His was mostly, eloquent, compassionate, but he lived his Christianity every moment of his life he passed it on to others."

"He was the happy-warrior-meeting all men at face value and leaving them better men for having spent a few moments with him".

"As year by year" concluded Canon McConnell, "we bow our heads and the sad notes of the Last Post and Reveille sound out a proud requiem for our glorious dead. Our thoughts return to days of war and we will see them again as we knew them then. But none will occupy such a proud place in our hearts as our beloved padre. May he with them find peace under the everlasting arms of a merciful God".

The church parade was headed by the regimental drum and bugle band under Drum Major Corporal G. Crawford. It was resplendent in its old-time uniform of the infantry of a century ago with spats and tasseled shoulder knots and the procession. Many fine tributes were heard on all sides on the band's fine appearance and efficiency.

It moved off from the armouries at 1.30 for memorial service at twelve noon.

The regimental banquet was held at 1.30 in the ANAF auditorium. Front Street. Some 300 veterans were in attendance and heard a "soldiers" address by Canon McConnell. He spoke behalf of the good and bad sides of the army and inaugurated his address with many humorous and serious anecdotes. He paid touching tribute to former padre Col. Godforth and others of the "Valle Battalion".

The regimental association meeting was held in the armouries on Sunday morning. The incoming president is Mike Gallagher of Peterborough, the new secretary Pete Castle also of that city. The parade was marched under the direction of parade marshal CSM Keith Sharpe of Port Credi-

Reunion Adds Another Chapter In 'Mystery of Missing Color'

The "Mystery of the Missing Color" of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment added another chapter to its unfinished story over the regiment's reunion weekend.

Among the happenings during the reunion, happy 300 ex-members of the regiment, probably gloating in anonymity, strolled the culprit or culprits responsible for the theft of the regiment Queen's Color some six months ago.

Since that time written messages have been received by the regiment through Lieut.-Col. Angus Duffy, commanding officer.

They have contained threats to seize the regiment's famous battle color, now resting in a glass case under lock and key in the sergeants' mess in the armories.

The Queen's Color was taken from a glass case in the officers mess early this year, Col. Duffy immediately ordered the battle color removed to the sergeant's mess.

It has been under close surveillance by regimental members since the arrival of the first threat letter. Close investigations along many avenues have revealed no clues as to the identity of the color-stealing culprit or culprits.

PRESENT AT REUNION

He or they gave direct evidence that they were present at the Thanksgiving weekend reunion festivities functions.

Another message was left for the regiment and Col. Duffy.

This time it was not written on paper and delivered by hand-di.

It was printed in a legible

Brigadier Don Cameron, another former C.O. of the wartime Hasty Pees, is in England and wired his regrets at being absent ant wished for a successful reunion.

Howdy, Stranger.
A gas pump and the average Volkswagen don't get together too often. (At 26 miles to a gallon you can understand why.) When they do have a visit, it's short and sweet.
The journey between fillings is fun, too. For the first time, on the new deluxe Volkswagen, you'll find a gas gauge to cheer you up between pay days. (Don't worry if the needle seems to be stuck. It's just slow, that's all.)
High gas mileage is good, but it isn't enough. It's the efficient use of gas that really counts. The VW engine has been designed to get every ounce of power from regular gasoline.
There are other reasons why a Volkswagen feels out of place in a service station. For example, you'll never need oil between changes. And you'll never need anti-freeze, period. The VW engine is cooled with air instead of water. There's no radiator, or radiator problems.
But don't let your Volkswagen come between you and your service station attendant. You can always wave as you go by.

PALMER — PRINDLE

Fombora United Church was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding at 3 o'clock, September 30th, when Hazel Audrey, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Prindle, Fombora, was united in marriage to Donald Allen Palmer, Brockville, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Homer Palmer, Portland, Ontario.

Baskets of pink and white gladioli made a pretty wedding setting for the double-ring ceremony which was performed by Rev. R. G. Nicholls, of Plainfield.

Mrs. Frank O'Connell, Roblin, Ontario, presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Jack McGuinness, Toronto, cousin of the bridegroom in his rendition of "O Perfect Love," before the ceremony and the "The Lord's Prayer," while the register was being signed.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in copen blue organza with rounded neckline, tiny sleeves and softly shirred bodice skirt. Her headdress was a circular pillbox in matching color of nylon hair, decorated with seed pearls and crystals with matching nylon veiling. She wore white accessories and carried a cascade of red Sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Douglas Stark, matron of honor, wore a floor length gown with rounded neckline and tiny sleeves, with white accessories and carried a cascade of pink Sweetheart roses.

Best man was Mr. McGuinness, Parry Sound, uncle of the bridegroom attended the bridegroom's brother, Mr. Weldon Prindle and Mr. Iner Prindle, brothers of the bride ushered the guests.

A buffet luncheon was held at the bride's home which was adorned with pink and white gladioli.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with white damask cloth centred by a miniature wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath a replica of a wedding bell and cascading pink and white streamers adorned a lovely nuptial note.

The bride's mother, gowned in magenta matle jersey with white accessories and a corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, gowned in teal blue crepe with magenta accessories and a corsage of red Sweetheart roses. She present was the bride's grandmother, Mrs. A. Shaw, 86 years old, wearing a black crepe dress and black accessories and a corsage of white "Mums, and Mrs. McGuinness, grandmother of the bridegroom, attired in a navy blue suit and brown stole with navy blue accessories with a corsage of yellow "Mums."

After travelling to Keswick and Algonquin Park, the bride wore a two-piece poodle cloth suit of gold with brown accessories and a corsage of bronze 'mums.

Guests were present from Perth, Kingston, Portland, Marmora, Belleville, Fombora, Toronto and Parry Sound.

A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Norman Pennington with Mrs. Ross Palmer as hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer will reside at R.R. 2 Brockville, Ont.

Parents Spend Back to School Evening at Moira Secondary

Last Thursday evening the Moira Home and School Association met for their first meeting of the season. The president, Mrs. S. Whitaker, welcomed over 300 parents. Greetings from the Minister of Education, Mr. John P. Roberts, were read by the president.

"The partnership of understanding between the home and school is the most satisfying and rewarding one" wrote Mr. Roberts. "The real reward of this close co-operation is the fulfillment of the separation that each offers for each child — that he be brought up and taught in the combined security and harmony of the home and the school. Youth — should be guided and nurtured with care and understanding and it is to this end that the work of 1,900 Home and School Associations in Ontario is dedicated".

Mrs. Charles Cooke lead the devotions.

CHARTER PRESENTED

After the budget was approved, Mrs. S. Whitaker presented to Mr. Musgrove the Home and School Charter.

The parents were urged to support the only money raising endeavor of the year, a dance to be held at Moira Secondary School in November.

The program was introduced by Mrs. Whitaker. The parents were told that they would follow one of their child's Thursday evenings. Within a few minutes the mothers and fathers were in the role as parents and it was back to school. The parent student body was instructed on homes to be followed at an opening assembly. The timetable periods were shortened to ten minutes.

The total staff of Moira was on duty to meet their new students. As each class came in, the teacher covered briefly the year's work in the subject to be taught. The teacher also related that year's work to the total high school curriculum to help point out. She covered.

Bell's rang and parents rushed madly from one class room to another. Many crept shamefully into classrooms after the door was closed to mark the start of class. Most parents completed the class timetable, although a few were unable to keep up the pace. These latter were told over the public address system, how disappointed the principal was that these 'students' had to drop out.

The classes were closed with a series of typical announcements by the principal over the public address system. The school day was closed as usual with prayer.

The parents were treated, as closely as possible as students. They were disciplined, pushed and pulled at for one and three-quarter hours. But good humor prevailed throughout and they loved every minute of it.

Mr. W. J. Musgrove, the principal, Mr. Linton Reed, the vice-principal and their staff deserve much credit for the evening's performance. All present felt that they obtained a clear picture of the student life, and curriculum in a way that they could not have had in any other manner.

The evening ended with a social hour in the cafeteria.

Shirley Topley Can Play Many Games

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shirley Topley is not what you'd call a natural athlete. But it's difficult to tell that from a list of her activities.

The 27 - year - old Vancouver girl is not exactly graceful on the baseball diamond, basketball court or hockey field but she succeeds through determination and versatility.

She plans to take a one-stop season. She rotates from softball to basketball to field hockey, curling and badminton and has played in world tournaments in all those sports.

In softball, she manages, coaches and pitches—when she's not playing first base—for the South Hill Queens. Her team finished eighth in the 1961 world tournament but Shirley's sparkling play earned her a berth on the world all-star team for the fourth time.

In 1956 she went to Australia with Canada's all-star team for the world field hockey championships.

This season will be Shirley's 10th in the senior ice basketball player. She has played on several Canadian championship teams and was coached by Richmond Mercha nts, formerly known as Vancouver Grads, and was a member of the Hollywood Queens world all - star team which toured extensively in 1959.

In between, she has found time to coach senior B teams, do salesgirl in a sporting goods store. Shirley says she'll marry when the right man comes along. Right now it appears she's too busy—even for marriage.

Christ Church EBWA Enjoys Travelogue

The October business meeting of the Afternoon Branch of the Women's Auxiliary of Christ Church was held in the Parish Hall on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. H. Pitt, president, in the chair.

A devotional period appropriate for Thanksgiving was conducted by Mrs. I. Wilson with Mrs. H. Wright, acting as pianist.

After reports were heard from Mrs. W. McLaughlin and Mrs. R. Woodcock, secretary and treasurer, respectively, the business at hand was discussed. It was agreed to give a donation toward the Little Help-er' annual party.

It was noted the sale of infants' clothing had left for Oak Lake, Manitoba, in response to an emergency appeal.

As part of the group's social service program a sum of money was voted toward establishing a fund to be used to meet various appeals in the parish. It was decided to order church calendars again this year.

Mrs. D. Stewart, Deanery president, told of the forthcoming Deanery meeting to be held in St. Thomas' Church, on October 19th.

Mrs. H. Wright reported on the quilting activities. This department is proving to be more successful as time goes on, thanks to the untiring efforts of Mrs. Wright, who is an inspiration to all the members.

On conclusion of the afternoon's business, Mrs. G. G. Wright transported the group to Europe with a vivid, humorous and informative account of her recent trip.

Refreshments were served by hostesses Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Ashton.

ORBY—ARLISS

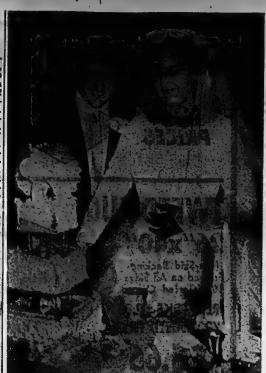
The marriage of Ruth Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Arliss, of Montreal, to Mr. Robert Walker Orby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Owen of Belleville, Ont., took place October 7th at four o'clock in St. Philip's Anglican Church, Montreal West, the Rev. Charles C. Campbell officiating. The bury choir, under the direction of Mr. Lorne West, was in attendance, and sang "The Wedding Hymn". Hymn 547 Standards of white gladioli and white chrysanthemums and candelabra were used to decorate the church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white oriental brocade, fashioned on simple lines with a fitted bodice having a portrait neckline and long sleeves ending in points over the hands, and a bouffant skirt with a redingote over-skirt falling into a chapel train. Her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of tiny white leaves, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids, stephanotis and white heather. Her only ornament was a necklace, the gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Graham Bealey of Belleville, as matron of honor, and Miss Elizabeth Moffitt of Montreal, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaid, were in frocks of peacock blue silk taffeta with ruffled bodices having scoop necklines and straight skirts with bouffant petticoats. They wore matching Juliet caps and carried sprays of pink gladioli and white Shasta daisies.

Little Miss Carol Jones of Montreal, cousin of the bride, as flower girl, wore a frock of peacock blue silk taffeta, a matching Juliet cap, and carried a basket of pink and white flowers.

Mr. Charles Maser of Belleville acted as best man for Mr. Orby. Ushers were Mr. Ronald Orby and Mr. Graham Beeby, both of Belleville.



Mrs. Arliss, the bride's mother, was in a navy sheath with orchid peau de satin with hat to match and a pink and navy corsage of orchids. Mrs. Orby, the bridegroom's mother, was in a gown of beige chantilly lace over organza. She wore a matching hat and corsage to match her yellow Sweetheart roses.

Following the reception which was held in the Versailles Room of the Windsor Hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Owen left for Bermuda, the bride traveling in a navy sheath of vagabond green, a toque of vagabond velvet, brown accessories, and a mink rat jacket.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Owen will take up residence in Belleville.

Out of town guests were from Toronto, Vancouver, B.C., Rochester, N.Y., Smiths Falls and Belleville, Ont., and Foster, Que.

Showers honoring the bride were given by Mrs. G. L. Beeby of Belleville; Mrs. J. Coombes of Montreal, the Misses Mary and G. Wilkey of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cecil Smith are shown cutting the wedding cake following their marriage in St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Frances Patricia Moran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Moran of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Charles Smith, also of Belleville, and the late Mr. Smith. SMITH — MORAN

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the setting for a recent lovely autumn wedding when Frances Patricia Moran, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Moran, became the bride of Charles Cecil Smith, of Belleville, son of Mrs. Charles Smith of Belleville and the late Mr. Charles Smith. The Rev. Peter Murphy officiated before an altar adorned with red gladioli and guest pews designated by white satin ribbon bows centered by sprays of lily-of-the-valley.

The wedding music was provided by Sister Mary Joan of Arc, who accompanied the soloist, Mr. Robert Burke.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her full-length bridal gown of pure white silk organza with bateau neckline outlined by scalloped Chantilly lace, and long, sheath-like sleeves pointed over the hands. The fitted bodice was in long torso lines of Chantilly lace dotting into the bouffant skirt which cascaded into a chapel train. She wore a pillbox type of beaded dress trimmed with Chantilly lace and shoulder-length veil of silk illusion tulle and carried a shower bouquet of red roses.

Attending her were: Miss Elaine Anton, of Belleville, as maid of honor; Mrs. Elaine Foley, Miss Margaret Ervine and Miss Shirley St. Denis, all of Belleville, as bridesmaids. All were gowned alike in pure silk organza in tropical-weather shade, fashioned with scoop necklines, tight-fitting cuffs, cap sleeves and softly draped bodices. The bouffant skirts featured extra deep hems. They were matching pillbox hats, white gloves and shoes and carried baskets of white Shasta mums.

Bethlehem Shrine No. 11 Holds Lovely Autumn Tea, Bazaar

A lovely autumn tea and bazaar was held recently in the Oddfellows Hall Front Street, Belleville, under the auspices of Bethlehem Shrine No. 11 Chapter.

The hall was appropriately decorated in keeping with the autumn color scheme of red, green, gold and yellow decorations for this special event.

The tea was held in the tea room, where Mrs. R. Bushnell W.H.P. assisted by Mrs. D. Wright, Mrs. Hewson and Mrs. Owen showers of wheat sprays and in gold and bronze supported by white poms. Here, the floral point of interest was the lovely appointed tea table with its linen cloth, centered by a large gold colored vase, narrow crocidalia gold, yellow and white flowers, interspersed with gold wheat sheaf sprigs and flanked by gold and yellow candles in iridescent silver candelabra. Gleaming silver tea services added to the lovely setting.

LOVELY DECORATIONS

The many individual tables were equally attractive, centered by miniature gold colored wheel bearers with a pretty arrangement of small white, gold and yellow flowers, with sprigs of golden wheat. Those serving were Mesdames D. Elvidge, H. Dewell, E. Stewart, E. Broad, G. Finch and D. Stevens. 'Kindergarten Tea' Held by Hillcrest H-S

The Hillcrest Home and School Association recently held a "Kindergarten Tea" in the school auditorium.

The president, Mrs. D. Fredden, welcomed the mothers and guests at the door.

The principal, Mr. Marner, extended a greeting and introduced his staff. He also stated that he would like the parents to feel free to call on him at any time to solve any problem that they may have.

Mr. Marner also introduced Miss Farnsworth, the kindergarten teacher.

Miss Farnsworth thanked Mrs. Frudden and her executive, for the pleasant way of getting the mothers and teachers acquainted. She went on to say that the kindergarten year is important for a child of nursery school age. This class prepares the child in many ways for the following year.

The first part of the school term is taken up in pre-play period. This included a variety of familiar games such as the 'Farmer in the Dell'. These games that the children play together, learn to take turns and play with each other.

Next is the dramatic period where a theme or a topic is involved. The first topic could possibly be on the home and family. This is a subject in which a child can share with the rest of the class. There is a good assortment of toys, that will help the child with and share with each other. These two ways are just a start on the long idea of starting to them.

MUSICAL INTERESTS

From this they go to the musical interests. The children march or walk according to the speed of the music being played for them. They have to listen closely for any change of tempo.

As the year progresses, less time will be spent in this period and more in the preparation of the table tasks of the distinguishing of colors, touch and tell, pictures with letters and numbers and counting.

Miss Farnsworth went on to say how much she enjoys her work with the children; watching a lovely and encouraging them in their first year of school.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. D. Mansfield, assisted by Mrs. Dyer, Mrs. Dryden, Mrs. Sweet, Mrs. Hudgins and Mrs. Wey.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. H. I. — She's so lonesome. We should send her to a boarding school.

Mr. H. I. — She's all right at home. She has her studies and a few visitors.

Mrs. H. I. — Our daughter, Nannine, is 16 and has spent eight years of her life in a wheel chair, due to a spinal condition she was born with. Naturally her contacts with other...children are severely limited. Transportation is the big hurdle. It's just about impossible to get Nannine to the places where interesting things are going on.

Aside from her disability, she's healthy and happy and has a fine mind. But she gets so lonesome. And as she grows older, it'll get worse. She'll crave dances and dates and pretty dresses like other teenagers. I feel the best solution would be to enrol her in a special school where she can have easy contact with people like herself.

Mr. H. I. — I disagree, Nan. nine has plenty of contact with other people, inspite of being confined to the house so much. Her teacher brings the regular courses from the Board of Education. She sees our friends come and go. Sometimes they bring along a youngster Nan's age to keep her company.

We get her down on the street several times a week. Besides, we've taken her to a few affairs at our community centre.

We'd miss having her at home and I'm sure she'd be miserable away from us. The school my wife has in mind is for handicapped children. Nannine is better off this way, among normal people.

The Council: In caring for a handicapped child, the pitfall for such devoted parents as Mr. and Mrs. I. is over-protecting her. "Watchman, what of the night?" we might ask Mr. I. — the "night" being the time when Nannine must shift for herself. We vote for any change that will extend this child's circle and increase her self confidence.

She may not have to leave home to fill in the social blanks in her life. Thanks to the enormous push in rehabilitation activities following World War II, many communities have worked out a team-work approach, enabling the disabled to be included in the mainstream of events.

In New York, for example, there's the Federation of the Handicapped at 261 West 14 St., which has a special project going for youngsters like Nannine. The aching void for fun and "getting together" is filled by rounding up the kids, wheel chairs, crutches and all in special buses and wafting them to the organization's reception rooms. There they enjoy an all-day program of games, including such dunk-raisers as wheel-chair basket-ball and — why not? wheel-chair square dancing!

Of course this takes some doing. Lone parents can't attempt anything so elaborate. But Nannine's repertoire of skills can be vastly enlarged by setting her among groups of ambulatory and wheel chair people. If Mr. and Mrs. I. can affiliate with an organization such as the above, a special school for Nannine may be unnecessary.

As Nannine approaches her teens, the emphasis must be on "What can she do?" — not on "What's happened to her?" By getting her out among her peers, Mr. and Mrs. I. will find her doing "social" things that need doing — running the record player, serving refreshments, taking telephone messages and writing invitations. This kind of home, plus community aid and parental cooperation boosts a boarding school.

SUPPORTS CHINA RED

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) Dr. Martin Luther King, Negro integration leader, called Monday night for admission of Communist China to the United Nations. In answer to a question from the floor at a "freedom forum" attended by 1,500 persons, Dr. King said he could not understand why the United States "objects to the admission of numerically the largest nation in the world, without whose agreement there can be no truce peace."

TWO ESCAPE CRASH

SALZBURG, Austria (AP)—A fast tank explosion shattered the mountain station of the Wurfen cable railway Monday, sending two cable cars plunging several hundred yards down the mountain. Two soldiers in one of the cars jumped to safety. The railway is used by tourists visiting the caves 300 yards above the station.

DIES IN FALL

VALHALLA, N.Y. (AP)—Edward H. Meyerding, 42, associate director of the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy, died Sunday of injuries suffered in a fall from the roof of his home in Greenburg, N.Y. He was a former director of Quaker House in Vienne, Austria, doing relief work for Hungarian refugees.

WORLD OF FASHIONS — International and Canadian fashions are being shown regularly at luncheons in a Montreal hotel. Designs at a recent show include this light emerald green Canadian wool dress (left), two-piece wool ensemble from Spain featuring chain belt and matching necklace (centre) and Paris gold lame theatre coat with side fasteners. (CP Photo).

Canadian Designers Hold Own Against Imports

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian designers held their own with imports from Spain, Switzerland, England, Ireland, France and Italy at the first of a series of fashion luncheons here.

Sponsored by a department store (T. Eaton Company Limited), the luncheons, held in a plush downtown hotel, are to continue through to spring with a new collection weekly.

Emphasis throughout the first show was on wearability and, indeed, some of the fashions showed intense practicality.

For instance, a dark brown theatre coat with the look of brocade, a French import, is so heavily quilted it could be worn outdoors during the mid-winter theatre season.

It was shown with a slim, very low-backed dress of the same color. The tucked skirt had a floating panel and the scooped — front bodice had narrow straps.

Two Canadian furs shown were both of persian lamb in the same cocoa - brown color. All resemblance between them ended there, however.

TRENCH COAT STYLE

One was a three - quarter-length with a dropped shoulder line, cowl collar, gathered back and cuffed, bracelet - length sleeves. The other, when worn with its matching belt, looked like a trench coat with its slim line, large notched collar and patch pockets. Since it was slightly tapered, it also looked well without the belt.

A third Canadian design had a round, removable mink collar on a vivid green, textured wool with a bloused bodice, fitted waisted and semi-sashed, the latter gave the impression of a two-piece ensemble.

The Spanish import, in pink wool, had a braid - trimmed jacket over a cap-sleeved sheath dress, loosely belted by a gold-colored metal chain. The braid on the jacket, almost an inch from the borders, was the same color as the jacket.

The Swiss design was a low-waisted tunic dress in green textured wool with pockets and a short - quarter - length sleeves. From Ireland came an immense tweed coat with raglan sleeves and a notched collar, and from England there was a belted green tweed coat with a natural raccon collar.

A three-piece Italian knit, also in the effect of green tweed, and had a side-fastened front with the jacket buttoned opposite to the skirt.

Red Red Chocolate Cake

By Mary Moore

It will take me a month to make up all of the recipes that I received from generous friends, and to give all the recipes requested by friends I saw on my recent trip.

I'm out to enlist the help of my sister, who is an expert cook as you know, to get away to a quick start today. I wanted my recipe re-tested for red red chocolate cake that Kaye Rowe, fashion and feature writer for Brandon Sun, requested. So my sister Peady made two of them and I have those cakes on my desk as I type. The recipe I am giving you produces that coveted "velvet crumb".

On the day after Thanksgiving I hope you will welcome this change-of-pace baking.

RED RED CHOCOLATE CAKE:

Melt 2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate over hot water. Cream together ½ cup shortening (room temperature), 1¼ cups white sugar and 2 eggs. Add the melted chocolate and 2 tablespoons red food coloring (yes — I did say 2 tablespoons — that is a full 1-oz. bottle). Sift together 2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour and 1 teaspoon salt. Add this to the creamed mixture alternately with 1 cup buttermilk. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and beat well. Fold in but do not beat 1 teaspoon soda and 1 tablespoon vinegar. Turn into 2 buttered 9" layer cake tins lined with wax paper, and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes then turn out and cool on cake racks.

NOT-SO-SWEET ICING:

Melt ¼ cup butter or margarine with 3 tablespoons flour over hot water, stirring. Stir in 1 cup warm milk and stir until thick. Cool thoroughly. Cream until light ¾ cup butter or margarine, 1¾ cups sifted icing sugar. Beat well. Spread between layers and on tops and sides of cooled cake. Delicious!

K. GETS OFFER

ORLEANS (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev has been offered the honorary presidency of the World Association of Bakheaded Societies, the president of the French Brotherhood of the Bald told a national convention Monday. Khrushchev hasn't replied.

You can depend on it for a special cake for birthdays and other occasions for folks who are chocolate cake addicts. The icing is sensational. For those who are hunting for a frosting that is not too sweet, that is a cross between butter icing and whipped cream, this is the answer. When you clip this (and I hope you do it now) make a note to use the icing on other cakes too.

SUNBEAM M. B.

RAWDON — The October meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Sunbeam Missionary Band was held in the church hall on Sunday morning. Brenda Williams gave the call to worship and all sang, "We Are a Missionary Band," and repeated the Mission Band Purpose.

Plans were made to have a coloured film "The Bible Through the Centuries" at the next meeting. The thankoffering envelopes were distributed. A short playette was taken from a recent issue of "World Friends" and was given by Jean Sharpe, Brenda Campbell and Bonnie Williams.

The worship service was based on the "Twelve Disciples" with comments on the Lord's Prayer. The offering was gathered by Kenneth Sharp and dedicated by the leader. A prayer was read by Brenda Campbell.

Mrs. Stanley Williams outlined the primary study book. This was based on a little seven year old girl in the Philippines who learned to read. Mrs. Herbert Smith gave the junior story on the subject "Pilot Leadings" on the shores of Lake Ontario when the junior department of a city church earned money and forwarded Bibles to Southern Rhodesia, Puerto Rico and the Marshal Islands. During a period of five years they mailed nearly 400 Bibles and New Testaments. Then other boys and girls were given a chance to learn about God.

The service closed with a contest on hymns.

ACCOMPLISH MAJOR MAKE-UP RENOVATIONS IN PRIVATE

A little primping in public may be tolerated, but not when it's done with a grand gesture.

Naturally, there are times when lipstick needs a little retouching or a few strands of hair get a fly-away look.

If repairs can be made quickly and unobtrusively, fine. But to make a public production of it never shows good taste and certainly indicates a lack of sensitivity on the part of the make-up artist.

What she fails to realize is that extensive primping may cause embarrassment to her date or to dinner companions. She may take considerable pride in carving her lipline, but the interest is centred only in her mirror, and is hardly fascinating to those who are kept waiting at the table till her face is on straight.

Of course it's permissible to touch up the lips at the end of the meal. But it shows a lack of refinement to wipe off the remaining color with a napkin and then start from scratch building a new mouth. If repairs require use of a lipstick brush, then it's more considerate to retreat to the powder room and retouch in private.

Hair, of course, should never be combed at the table. It's also unsightly to adjust straps and take great pains to readjust the lines of a dress upon standing. The front, which may be crinkled from sitting, may be smoothed with the brush of the hand, but any major restoring should be done away from the public gaze.

Excessive primping always attracts attention, which is something a well-mannered woman tries to avoid. Beauty secrets are best kept private if the public image is to be at all attractive.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Anything Can Start A Row

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My husband gives me and the children the feeling that he needs us like a hole in the head. Hardly ever talks to us; never remembers birthdays or anniversaries. He works hard, doesn't drink or gamble.

Although we have been married seven years, the only thing which is holding our marriage together is our strong physical attraction for each other.

Right after our first little girl was born my husband was out of work for a while and we started quarrelling. But we are better off and don't have money worries now; and anything can start a row. Sometimes I think he hates us. It's terrible to see our marriage going down hill when there is no need for it.—HOPING AGAINST HOPE.

DEAR HOPING:—Your quarrels started with poverty. Hubby lost confidence then and never got it back. You yourself may have added to his defeat by your bitterness and criticisms.

You still both need love—all humans do. There is bound to be a way to melt his defenses. You must both come to see what is happening and find a way to start fresh, before the children get bitter too.

One way is through personal counselling. Make an appointment to talk it over with your Children's Aid Society, 63 West Moira Street, Belleville.

DEAR DORIS:—My son wants to marry a negro girl five years older than he is. She is a waitress in the restaurant where he has lunch every day. He is a college graduate and a engineer. I have not met her.

Does such a marriage look good to you? He swears he loves her and will be unhappy all his life if he has to give her up.—NINA.

DEAR NINA:—Race differences present tremendous obstacles. Willy, nilly, we marry in family; and your son will find himself in strange settings, at least part of the time.

Children of such unions are not readily accepted. So the couple automatically present their children at birth with a big handicap.

But it has been known to work. Do these two love and respect each other enough to risk all? It's time you did meet her. Get him to bring her home; then accept her enough to free him to make his own decision.

(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster universities, and has had broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

Contractor vs. Archaeologist Has Become Issue in Grave Dating Back 8,000 Years

GRAND RAPIDS, Man. (CP) — The contractor versus the archaeologist has become an issue at the site of the multi-million-dollar hydro-electric dam project 235 miles north of Winnipeg.

An archaeological team under Dr. William Mayer-Oakes of the University of Oklahoma, sponsored by the provincial government and the University of Manitoba, has been unearthing relics of human civilization dating back as far as 8,000 years.

And everything, they've received some questionable help from the contractors. A bulldozer recently ripped open a grave, doing some damage to the bones within.

It brought up a sore issue: contractors trying to complete their work as fast as possible; archaeological men anxious for more time to investigate the grave and to look for more nearby.

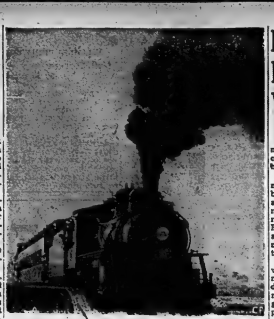
At the time, Dr. Mayer-Oakes and his four-man team were up the Saskatchewan River on Cross Lake, in spite of the protests of his assistant, the Grand Rapids RCMP were called in.

RCMP collected two bones of scrambled bones, rotten wood from the coffin, a stone pipe, buttons and beads. The remains, according to law, had to remain with the police until a coroner's order released them. Mounties photographed the bulldozed grave before removing the contents, but the archaeologists felt police photographs could not substitute for a professional excavation.

This example, plus the fact that the area will be flooded in about two years when the hydro project is completed, prompted Dr. Mayer-Oakes to urge a permanent archaeologist for Manitoba.

Dr. Mayer-Oakes and his associates have more reason than the findings of an over - eager bulldozer to back up their enthusiasm about the archaeological possibilities of the area.

They recently found a piece of flint, hand-carved as a spear-point about 8,000 years ago.



Dr. Mayer-Oakes also believes a spear - point carved even earlier is in the possession of a private collector who is unaware of its importance. It is a Sandia point, found previously only in New Mexico.

The discovery of authentic Sandia points in the north would be an important step in tracing the origin of the prehistoric North American.

Dr. Mayer-Oakes has divided his discoveries at the Grand Rapids site into five periods.

The first is represented by the Folsom point, of which a piece of flint is an example. The second, third and fourth are represented by various types of pottery. Spoons, part of a Jew's harp, brass buttons, beads and other trade goods make up the newest part of the discoveries. They have been deposited since 1650.

Dr. Mayer-Oakes' team has left the site, but a new archaeological team is expected to return next summer.

SMOKY FINALE — Black smoke belches from the old steam locomotive hauling the last train over the 12-mile Manitoba Coal, Railway and Power Company line between Macan and Jogging, N.S. The trip, arranged by members of the Canadian Railway Historical Association, marked the end of the line's 170 years' service. (CP Photo).

Dutch Immigrant Forced Into Good Pickle Business When Crop Was Market Glut

By ROBERT TAYLOR

TORONTO (CP) — Dutch immigrant Walter- Bick stumbled onto the road to success almost by chance.

Ten years ago, his 117-acre mixed farm in suburban Scarborough faced a minor crisis: a surplus of cucumbers and a market glut. Bick dusted off recipes used by generations of Bick housewives in Amsterdam and went into the pickling business as a sideline, marketing two varieties.

Canadians liked the new flavors, so Mr. Bick unearthed more recipes and today he produces 33 varities of pickles and relishes. The work force has grown from five to 170 at the peak bottling period in the fall.

The 46-year-old Mr. Bick, who arrived in Canada in August, 1939, was in a reminiscing mood as he watched the 40,000,000-jar speed off the production belt. "I recall the first year's operation when I performed each stage by hand - picking, packing, capping, pasteurizing and labelling. Today I look at all the machinery and can't believe my eyes."

IN EXPORT MARKET

Success has brought few changes to Mr. Bick's manner of living. Joe Bick family still lives in the original rambling farmhouse, a two - storey red brick building.

The plump manufacturer, his pretty wife and three of their four children centre their lives on their home and plant. Nineteen-year-old Cathy, the eldest, is a general arts student at Ottawa's Carleton University and spends part of her vacations as a pickle demonstrator at international trade fairs. Mrs. Jeanny Bick takes an active part in the management of the company.

Mr. Bick logs an impressive number of flying hours a year visiting export markets extending "from the West Indies through the United Kingdom to Hong Kong.

"I make it a point to spend some time each year with every one of our representatives from coast to coast. After all, they are the boys who have done the hard work to get us started."

PROFIT-SHARING PLAN

But he finds little romance in faraway places and riches to get back to his family.

Two years ago, Mr. Bick introduced a profit-sharing plan for all who have been with the firm more than a year. Recently one employee came up with a suggestion for a new pickle, with the result that Mr. Bick is first on the market with a stuffed pimento gherkin. Another employee designed and built a piece of machinery that feeds jars at a faster rate onto the conveyor belts, eliminating a production bottleneck.

Future plans? On the immediate agenda is a trip to Britain this fall, and Mr. Bick will go to Africa in January when his pickles make their debut in Ghana and Nigeria.

"But the sledding will be tough because many people there can't afford pickles and, for those who can, a pickle is something they've rarely eaten."

Characters You Will Meet At Any Office Picnic

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Now that office Christmas parties have fallen into some disrepute, many thoughtful corporations are filling this gap in the starved lives of their employees with summer picnics.

If you have ever been to an office picnic, you might recognize the following characters:

"Doubtful Donald" — He is sure the hot dog are recondemned leavers from unsuccessful 1900 county fairs, and the company bought them at half price.

"Helpful Harry"—"My gosh, it isn't fair for the firm to do everything for us—we ought to do our bit, too," he says. He proudly unloads his contribution—35 cents worth of potato salad—and spends the rest of the day cursing about what miserly loyalty will get him a $10-a-week raise in pay.
